

NQ, Milton In Tournament Championship Today Liuzzo, North Quincy Edge Quincy, 1-0

By SEAN BRENNAN

Tim Liuzzo threw a complete-game, two-hitter, striking out four as North Quincy edged Quincy, 1-0, in the first round of the Quincy Baseball Tournament Tuesday at Adams Field.

The Red Raiders (1-2 overall) will play Milton today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. in the tournament championship game.

"We have three games this week," said Liuzzo. North Quincy played Silver Lake on Wednesday in a makeup affair. "It starts with one (win). Hopefully we can rack up some wins."

"My fastball was there early and then my curveball came there at the end of the game," Liuzzo said about his sterling 74-pitch performance. "We have a dangerous lineup and we have some good bats so this is just the beginning."

As good as Liuzzo was, Quincy's starting pitcher Adam Nazzaro was equally impressive for the Presidents. Nazzaro retired the first four North Quincy batters before allowing back to back singles to Andrew Curry and Josh Hayward in the second, but he escaped any damage by getting Dan Gould to pop to short.

North Quincy finally broke through in the top of the third off Nazzaro. With one out, junior Pat Gould singled and took second before Joe Alibrandi (RBI) plated him with a bloop single to centerfield.

Two innings later, the Raiders had a golden opportunity to add to their total when No. 9 hitter Chris Kerin singled, stole second and advanced to third on a ground-out by Gould. Kerin broke for home on attempted suicide squeeze by Patrick Verhault but was thrown out in the ensuing rundown, as Quincy limited the damage.

In the bottom of the frame, the Presidents threatened. Bobby Salvucci led off with a single to right-center and Alex Heffernan walked. Following a sacrifice bunt by Greg Paolo (Salvucci was cut down at third), Liuzzo induced John O'Callaghan to ground into a double play to end the threat.

Liuzzo helped his own cause in the top of the sixth by smacking a one-out double to left-center, but Quincy got Dan Gould (hit) to fly out to center with runners on first and third.

Liuzzo sat down Quincy 1-2-3 in the bottom of the sixth and the Raiders had chance to tack on an insurance run in the seventh when Kerin led off with his second hit of the game and stole second. Pat Gould drew a walk but the Presidents escaped further damage when Alibrandi went down swinging to end the inning.

Liuzzo closed it out in the bottom of the seventh, but not without some drama. He got Nazzaro to ground out to short to start the frame and then walked Rob Munroe on six pitches. But Munroe was gunned out by Pat Gould trying to steal second. Liuzzo ended the game in style by striking out Salvucci.

The Red Raiders play at Hanover (April 23), at Duxbury (April 25) and at Middleboro (April 27) next week.

Tournament note: Milton advanced to the championship game with a 2-0 win over Weymouth.

College Baseball/Softball Updates

Seniors Glen Misho and Tom Conley, battery mates for the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, continue to play outstanding ball.

Over the past three weeks Misho has pitched 21 innings and allowed just five earned runs for a 2.15 ERA. His best performance was against Albany University when he allowed three hits over seven innings in a 4-1 UMass win.

Conley once again has proved to be durable as he has been the starting catcher in all but one of the Minutemen's games. His .451 on-base percentage leads the team and as in seasons past, he has excelled defensively, throwing out nearly 50% of attempted base stealers.

Down in Connecticut at Fairfield University, senior Scott Warwick has been the team's most consistent pitcher this season. In seven starts, Warwick has thrown 40 innings, struck out 30 batters and had limited batters to a .265 average. He currently holds a 2.90 ERA.

Season Over For LeBel

Two weeks ago University of Rhode Island senior Michael LeBel had season-ending surgery on his left shoulder. Since he was injured early in the season, LeBel has since filed for a medical redshirt.

If the redshirt application is approved by the NCAA, LeBel plans to return to URI next year to complete his final year of college baseball.

Division III

Kevin Keith, a pitcher for Colby Sawyer College, has been the ace of the pitching staff. He leads the team in wins, inning pitched (36) and strikeouts (28). Keith has a ERA of 2.72.

At Curry College, catcher Matt Rodriguez leads the team in home runs and RBI.

College Softball

A couple of former Quincy High teammates, Olivia Berry and Kori Sorensen are playing key roles for their respective teams.

Berry, a sophomore starting catcher at Trinity College (CT), has a perfect fielding percentage behind the plate while Sorensen has been sensational as a pitcher and as a third baseman/shortstop at Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy.

Sorensen has won eight of her team's nine victories. In 82 innings, she has allowed just 67 hits; her ERA is 1.96, and she has a 281 batting average and leads the team in runs scored.

Record Breaking Weather Scorched Course Residents Braved The Heat To Finish Boston Marathon

By SEAN BRENNAN
Monday's record temperatures may have been a welcome sight for students enjoying their first day of April vacation, but for one local marathoner running the 116th Boston Marathon, the heat was historically unbearable.

"Yesterday's (heat) was the worst I have ever seen," said Hassan Haydar who finished his twelfth Boston Marathon in 3:54 just a year removed from running the 26.2-mile course from Hopkinton to Boston in 3:16. "It was hottest once you got close to the city around mile 22 from Boston College into Boston. I don't usually heat up quickly but I did yesterday."

Haydar, who begins his quest to run the Boston Marathon course every Sunday for the next 25 Sundays on April 22, was hoping to better his time from 2011. But the unseasonably warm weather put in end to that goal, quickly.

"The difference between it being 55 degrees (the temperature last year) and 88 for me was 40 minutes," he said about his finishing time of 3:54:12. "I have run Boston twelve times and that was the most difficult one yet."

Quincy attorney Tracy Wilson, who finished her fifth straight Boston Marathon Monday, echoed Haydar's sentiments about the oppressive heat during this year's race.

"I finished," she said, "but it took awhile. I came in over six hours. That was hands down the toughest thing I've ever done. It was really hot and the last four or five miles I had to walk most of the way."

"Even if I wanted to run (those last few miles) I probably wouldn't have made it," Wilson said about the toll the heat took on her body. "But the crowds were great and at the finish line my family got to cross with me."

Prior to the running of the 116th Boston Marathon, Boston Athletic Association (BAA) race officials offered runners an unprecedented opportunity to take this year off and try again next year. An estimated 4,000 people took the BAA up on its offer and chose not to participate, heeding the warnings about the dangers of running 26.2 miles in blazing heat.

Of the 22,426 runners who took off from the starting line in Hopkinton, 2,200 sought some type of medical attention either along the course or at the finish line, according to emergency officials.

But for Wilson, bowing out and waiting until next year was never an option she considered. Including this year, Wilson has run and fundraised in support of Children's Hospital in Boston and its Children's Fund, raising close to $40,000.

"I never considered not doing Boston," she said on Tuesday. "You train all winter for it and so many people gave money for my fundraising cause. Also, I knew my running partner (a Children's Hospital patient) would be at Mile 13, so I had to run it."

A number Quincy runners finished the 116th Boston Marathon on Monday.

Among the top-50 finishers, according to the BAA's official website, was Jeffery Belovarac (3:30:06), Matthew Kelsch (3:44:02), Rey Flores (3:45:21), Ashley Peterson (3:45:50), Maureen Lamie (3:51:55), Haydar (3:54:12), Laura Shuford (4:01:10), Rose Harrington (4:09:42), Linda-Marie O'Connor (4:10:19), Kellyrose O'Brien (4:12:15).

David Twomey (4:14:19), Joe Flynn (4:14:21), Jordan Moore (4:17:36), Sarah Atiya (4:18:14), Mary Varden (4:20:46), Sinead McGlynn (4:22:41), Jon Willner (4:24:48), Kevin Curran (4:30:14), Giuliana Foy (4:35:41), Greg Keefe (4:38:08), Alicia Golden (4:39:09), Brad Ba-ronas (4:43:07), Kathryn Gamache (4:44:28), Nicole Romanowski (4:46:17), Keryn Murphy (4:46:54).

Gail King (4:48:13), Lee Giordano (4:51:44), Andrea Sawler (4:51:48), Eileen Price (4:57:34), Daniel Coughlin (4:57:35), Jim Lyons (4:58:53), Elizabeth McInnes (5:00:57), Gary Sichau (5:07:47), Marie Christian (5:09:06), Vivek Shah (5:10:59), Gina Gallagher (5:14:45), Kathleen Crowell (5:15:43), Austin Baker (5:18:06), Michael Crowell (5:18:52), Joel Balducci (5:19:19), Julee Jaruszawicz (5:19:42), Patrick Foley (5:25:18), Stephen Wells (5:27:08), Kate Hensley (5:29:08), Robert Collins (5:33:03), Amy Mason (5:38:59), Daniel Robichau (5:40:02), Michael Miller (5:45:54), Mary DeCoste (5:46:09), and John Porter (5:53:43).

Kenyans Dominate... Again

Wesley Korir won the Boston Marathon in a time of 2 hours, 12 minutes, 40 seconds; a finishing time that was nearly ten minutes behind the world record marathon pace set just last year by fellow countryman Geoffrey Mutai. Korir became the 19th Kenyan men's winner in 22 years.

It wasn't just the everyday runner that was felled by Monday's blazing heat. Mutai was forced out of the 116th running at the 18-mile mark with stomach cramps.

Levy Matebo and Bernard Kipyego finished second and third to give the Kenyans a 1-2-3 sweep.

On the women's side, Kenyan Sharon Cherop won in a time of 2:31:50, slipping by countrywoman Jemima Jelagat Sumgong by two seconds.

Canadian Joshua Cassidy won the men's wheelchair race in a record time of 1 hour, 18 minutes, 25 seconds while American Shirley Reilly sprinted by Japan's Wakako Tsuchida to win the women's wheelchair race.

Customers Face $25 Fine For Refusing Access To Property Council Overhauls Water Service Code

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council approved an overhaul of Quincy's Water Service Ordinance in a series of unanimous votes Monday after the measure floundered in committee for over a month.

Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi had urged the council to approve the changes during the March 12 meeting of the council's Ordinance Committee, saying it needed to be brought up to date after not being recodified for at least 15 years.

"Recently we've had about an $8 million investment in water meters with the automated reading from the homeowner and the business owner through receptors and into city hall to get accurate and update

As McCauley Sees It!

Gov. Mike Huckabee A Good Fit As A Romney Running Mate

By FRANK McCAULEY

When Rick Santorum finally threw in the towel by suspending his presidential campaign, he opened the door for Governor Mitt Romney's nomination as the Republican Party's nominee for president.

Santorum's departure frees up the Romney campaign to focus on President Obama as well as intensifying their search for a suitable running mate.

There are many competent present and former office holders in the Republican Party from whom to choose. They include present governors Bob McDonnell of Virginia, Chris Christie of New Jersey and Mitch Daniels of Indiana, as well as former Minnesota governor Tim Pawlenty.

Congressional House Members Paul Ryan of Wisconsin and Eric Cantor of Virginia have been mentioned as well as freshman U.S. Senator Marco Rubio of Florida. However, these individuals are largely unknown to the nationwide electorate.

GOV. MITT ROMNEY

One former governor merits strong consideration as Governor Romney's running mate; he is Mike Huckabee of Arkansas.

Governor Huckabee was first elected to public office in 1993, winning a special election to fill a vacancy in the office of Arkansas Lieutenant Governor. In 1994, Huckabee was re-elected to a full four-year term defeating his Democratic opponent winning 59 percent of the vote.

In May 1996, Arkansas Governor Jim Guy Tucker was convicted on one count of arranging nearly $3 million in fraudulent loans. Upon Governor Tucker's resignation, July 15, 1996, Lieutenant Governor Mike Huckabee was sworn in as Governor. Governor Huckabee was re-elected to successive four-year terms as governor in 1998 and 2002.

From 1996-2007 Huckabee served as the 44th governor of Arkansas and was recognized nationally for his leadership. Time Magazine in 2005 honored him as one of the best five governors in America!

Huckabee announced his candidacy for president in January 2007. He participated in 2008 in a number of primaries and caucus events, winning several before withdrawing his candidacy on March 2, 2008 when it became apparent that he could not obtain the 1,191 delegates necessary to win the Republican nomination.

Since leaving political office behind, Governor Huckabee has written a number of books. His political commentary, "The Huckabee Report," is carried on the ABC Radio Network. He also hosts a very popular TV show on the Fox Channel at 8 p.m. Saturday (repeated Sunday evening.)

Of all the possible running mates, Governor Huckabee is by far the best known. His experience as Arkansas Lieutenant Governor and Governor complements Governor Romney's extensive private sector experience. His place on the ticket would appeal to and energize the Tea Party-Evangelical base of the party which has been lukewarm towards Romney.

He is young enough (turning 57 in August), to serve two full terms as Romney's vice president and still be young enough to run for president in 2020.

While the selection of a running mate is Mitt Romney's choice alone, I wish to go on record that "I Like Mike For Vice President!"

Frank McCauley is a former Mayor of Quincy.

Sen. Keenan Co-Sponsors EBT Reform Legislation

Effort To Restore Public Confidence
In Critical Safety Net Program

Welfare benefits could not be used at casinos, tattoo parlors, or bars, and welfare recipients would be limited in how much cash they could withdraw from ATMs, under legislation co-sponsored by Sen. John F. Keenan (D-Quincy).

"Although the vast majority of welfare recipients use these benefits responsibly to purchase the necessities of life, there clearly is a need to clarify the rules regarding what is and what is not a proper use of publicly-funded benefits," Keenan said.

"Even if just one percent of welfare benefits are mis-spent, we're still talking about millions of dollars that could be used in a more appropriate manner."

The bill was filed by a bipartisan coalition of lawmakers disappointed by the limited recommendations of a special commission appointed to study reforming the state's cash benefits programs.

Individuals who receive benefits on an Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT) card can use it like a debit card. According to the commission's report, 85 percent of all benefits are withdrawn from the cards as cash, allowing individuals to spend the money on anything they want, unmonitored by program managers.

Last year, Keenan helped pass a law banning the use of cash assistance to purchase alcohol, tobacco and Lottery tickets.

The new bill expands the restrictions to prohibit using EBT cards in liquor stores, bars, casinos and other gaming establishments, adult entertainment establishments, smoke shops, firearms dealers, tattoo parlors, nail salons, health spas, electronics and appliance stores, jewelry stores, health clubs and gyms, movie theaters, and for bail bondsmen.

Recipients would also be prohibited from using their EBT cards to access cash at ATMs located within these establishments.

In addition, individuals would not be allowed to use EBT cards in non-contiguous states, and would be charged for replacing lost EBT cards.

"These changes will not balance the state budget. However, they will help restore public confidence to this critical and valuable state program," Keenan said.

"As legislators, we have a responsibility to ensure that the public's money is being spent appropriately."

Boston Firefighter Featured Friday On America's Most Wanted All-Star Program On TV's Lifetime

Quincy's Glenn McGillivray Nominated For Award For Saving 6-Year-Old Boy

By EMILY TAFT

Longtime Quincy resident and 22-year Boston Fire Department veteran Lt. Glenn McGillivray of Engine 42 was nominated for the America's Most Wanted All-Star award after saving the life of a six-year-old boy along with a number of others during a six-alarm fire in Roxbury on Oct. 18, 2011.

McGillivray will be featured on the show this Friday on Lifetime from 9 to 10 p.m.

"I thought it was a joke when I got the call from one of the production managers at America's Most Wanted," said McGillivray. "It is very humbling to be nominated, I am not looking for recognition, it was just part of the job."

The International Association of Fire Chiefs (IAFC) nominated McGillivray for his heroism after catching the six-year-old boy from a third floor window. The fire was caused after a tenant of the building tried to set fire to his apartment, which caused an explosion that blew out the main stairwell, according to McGillivray.

The fire happened three blocks from the firehouse where McGillivray is stationed, which allowed his engine to be the first on the scene.

"When we arrived I noticed there was around 15 to 20 people hanging out of their windows trying to get away from the fire," said McGillivray. "My mind couldn't fathom what must have happened to make these people want to jump.

GLENN MCGILLIVRAY

My job at that point was to keep everyone calm, keep them in place, and not jump."

It was then that McGillivray noticed an older woman holding on to a young boy dangling him out the window.

"I looked over my shoulder to see where the ladder trucks were and realized that with the way the child was flailing about there was no time to wait for the truck," said McGillivray. "I told the women to drop him, and he fell right into my arms. We don't have training for situations like that, I knew I just had to do my best and hope for the best. My only goal was to hopefully break his fall."

McGillivray was nominated for the America's Most Wanted All-Star award because of his heroism and terrific catch that night, but he says that it was a team effort that things happened the way they did.

"Everybody was working together and getting their jobs done, which allowed me to tell people to stay in place and focus on life safety," said McGillivray.

"It isn't just me doing the job, we all did our part that night."

McGillivray is up against five other nominees that include a police officer, an EMT, a paramedic, a detective, and another firefighter. The public chooses the winner by voting on America's Most Wanted website, <http://www.amw.com/all-star/2012/>. Voting closes May 5th and the winner will travel to Washington D.C. for a ceremony and receive a $10,000 check and other prizes.

"I would take the money and donate it around, and give back," said McGillivray. "I would also like to take part of the winnings and throw a huge cookout for all the firefighters, because it isn't just me doing this job, we all do our part."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On May 6, 1911, George Maledon, the man who executed at least 60 men for "Hanging Judge" Isaac Parker, dies of natural causes in Tennessee. Paid $100 for each hanging, he tried to be a conscientious hangman who minimized suffering with a quick death. Maledon considered the job "honorable and respectable work."
- On April 30, 1927, the Federal Industrial Institution for Women, the first women's federal prison, opens in Alderson, W.Va. All women serving federal sentences of more than a year were to be brought there, with the vast majority imprisoned for drug and alcohol charges imposed during the Prohibition era.
- On May 1, 1931, President Herbert Hoover officially dedicates New York City's Empire State Building. The entire 102-story building went up in just over a year, under budget (at $40 million) and well ahead of schedule. During certain periods of building, the frame grew an astonishing four-and-a-half stories a week.
- On May 5, 1945, in Lakeview, Ore., six people are killed while attempting to drag a Japanese balloon out the woods. The explosive balloon was one of a handful of Japanese attacks against the continental United States, which were conducted by Japanese submarines and later by high-altitude balloons carrying explosives or incendiaries.
- On May 3, 1952, a ski-modified U.S. Air Force C-47 becomes the first aircraft to land on the North Pole. On the flight was Dr. Albert P. Crary, a scientist who in 1961 traveled to the South Pole by motorized vehicle, becoming the first person in history to have stood on both poles.
- On May 4, 1965, San Francisco Giants outfielder Willie Mays hits his 512th career home run to break Mel Ott's National League record. Mays would finish his career with 660 home runs, good for third on the all-time list at the time of his retirement.
- On May 2, 1972, Steven Spielberg begins filming "Jaws." The production, which used three mechanical sharks to great effect, enthralled audiences and grossed $458 million in its theatrical release.

a reception attended by over 100 family, friends, past and present elected officials and other invited guests at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

In presenting the award named in memory of his father and the Quincy Sun's founder, Sun Publisher Robert Bosworth said, "Betty does everything for all the right reasons: helping people. Community service has been her labor of love."

He then read the inscription on the plaque that features a handsome clock:

"The Quincy Sun Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented to Ruth (Betty) DeCristofaro - a selfless and tireless volunteers who has served her community and city providing solace and comfort to friends, neighbors and all in need."

DeCristofaro was selected for the honor by a judging panel among 22 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers last fall.

She was nominated by George McCafferty, a friend and fellow resident of 1000 Southern Artery. Bosworth, DeCristofaro and members of the DeCristofaro family thanked McCafferty for

Quincy's Bob Noble Keynote Speaker At Field Of Honor

Quincy's Bob Noble, a POW of World War II and past commander of the American Ex-Prisoners of War, Department of Massachusetts, will be the guest speaker at Cohasset's sixth annual Field of Honor Flag Display Saturday, May 26 at the town's Veterans Memorial Park.

A dedication and wreath-laying ceremony scheduled for 1 p.m. on May 26 will be a special tribute to those who have defended our nation.

"I AM BLESSED to have the ability and the strength to help all these people whether they are just beginning in life or are seniors just like myself," Betty DeCristofaro said after receiving the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun. Betty was recently honored a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

In accepting the award, Betty said:

"There are many wonderful candidates to consider and I am very humbled and grateful to be the one that was chosen."

She said it was her parents - the late John and Nellie Petzoldt - who shared and instilled in her the "heart-felt value of service to church and the community."

"My church has been Quincy Point Congregational Church and my community has always been this great city of Quincy and my neighborhood of Quincy Point - the best place on this earth.

"For my whole life, I've lived in only three homes within a mile and a half of each other and just a short distance from 1000 Southern Artery. I am blessed to have the ability and the strength to help all these people whether they are just beginning in life or are seniors just like myself."

"I want to thank my family," Betty continued, "for all their love and support as well as so many friends across the city and at 1000 Southern Artery. I'm so surprised to see such a full house but very, very pleased."

Betty then paused to remember her husband of 56 years, the late Ted DeCristofaro, who served many years as the Ward 2 city councillor.

"There is only one person missing and you know it's my Ted. He is here. He's right beside me and he's shaking his head and he has a big smile on his face. Without him, I never would have been eligible to get this award."

"Thank you to Bob (Bosworth) and the committee for my selection as a Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award recipient and to be a part of Henry's legacy to the City of Quincy. And I know Henry is looking down and he's very pleased and he says 'another Quincy Pointer (award recipient).'"

Betty's award reception was a community celebration of her outstanding community service and countless volunteer gestures since she was a young girl growing up in Quincy Point. She volunteered as a candy striper while attending high school

Dining Room, Squantum Inn, SQUANTUM, Mass.

THIS IS A 1912 postcard view of the main dining room of the Squantum Inn on Shoreham Street near the park at the end of Dorchester Street in Squantum. The 16-room inn was built by Nelson Titus who with his wife owned over 100 acres of land here. It opened the summer of 1899, the year after electric trolley service was extended out to here from the Atlantic railroad depot. It was first managed by Joseph Leo who was well-known in Boston as the long-time owner of the Woodland Park Hotel at Norembege Park as well as for his successful catering company. He established a reputation for the Inn as a popular summer resort whose restaurant specialized in fresh local seafood and game dinners. After Lee died in 1908, others operated the Inn until its demise, partly due to the nearby Moon Island sewer plant. His wife went on to open Lee's Inn in the old Pratt family mansion on Parke Avenue. Both inns were closed by the 1920s. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Appalled At Cahill Indictment

I think it is appalling that Attorney General Martha Coakley decided to indict former State Treasurer Tim Cahill, accusing him of spending $1.5 million in taxpayer generated monies to finance TV commercials for the state lottery to boost his campaign for governor two year ago.

As Bob Bosworth stated in his Son Beams (Where is the Crime? - April 12), "The ads in question never mentioned Cahill by name. Didn't show his face. And didn't state he was a candidate for governor." When Coakley asked him back in 2010 to take the ads of TV, he complied with her order. That should have been the story's end.

However, now Coakley has decided to indict him under a brand new law never before applied criminal section of Chapter 268. She never mentions that Section 268 is in conflict with another law supported by the Office of Campaign and Political Finance, which regulate campaign financing. Tim Cahill never should have had to go before a judge at a Suffolk Superior Court arraignment to plead "not guilty."

What the attorney general is seeking is to make criminal standard practice in place forever in Massachusetts's legal history.

Doesn't State Secretary Billy Galvin always run those TV ads encouraging voters to register and vote where he speaks to all watching this commercial, which obviously boosts his own re-election bid. Is Galvin a criminal too? Why didn't Coakley indict him too? I wonder if Cahill actually won the governor's race if Coakley would be so vocal right now? Me thinks not so.

What about all those Senior Shuttle vans in Boston with Mayor Menino's name plastered on them or those Hubway bikes that carry his name of them? Isn't it all just self-promotion and never open to challenge as criminal?

I also wonder if this indictment might not be the first volley in 2014 governor's race where Coakley might be seeking voter redemption after her surprise 2010 loss for US Senate?

Oh, how about the dog and pong show in the Governor's Office to celebrate the 6th anniversary of Romney Care, wasn't that just an Obama campaign stop?

With all transparency, I have known Tim Cahill for decades. He was a great Quincy City Councillor, Norfolk County Treasurer and State Treasurer; he doesn't deserve this grief from poor Martha Coakley seemingly looking to outshine the current US Attorney Carmen Ortiz getting so much limelight lately. Cahill didn't deserve to be the poster boy for a new law never before enforced.

I agree, "Where is the crime?" The only disagreement I have is a quote from Cahill, "Knowing what I know then and even what I know today, I would do it again." I think I would have added, "I should have requested a thank you letter from Coakley for complying with her cease and desist order. Had he done this, Coakley's hands would have been tied making it impossible for her to indict anyone for anything."

Tax Rate Set At $33.40

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin announced a $33.40 tax rate for 1937, a reduction of 20 cents due largely to a $200,000 City Council slash in the budget and an increase in state aid of nearly $100,000.

The total valuation of the city was also reduced from $124.1 million to $122.6 million.

Most of that reduction was caused by a new state law, which removed the assessment of manufacturing machinery from the local assessors and placed it in the hands of state tax officials.

Actually, the value of real estate in Quincy went up $673,225.

CO-EDS FLEE FIRE

Monday At The 1870 Adams Carriage House 'John Quincy Adams In Ghent: The Diplomacy Of The War Of 1812' Illustrated Lecture Topic

"John Quincy Adams in Ghent: The Diplomacy of the War of 1812" will be the subject of an illustrated lecture Monday, April 30 at 7 p.m. at the 1870 Adams Carriage House, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

Alan Henrikson, Lee E. Dirks Professor of Diplomatic History and director of Diplomatic Studies at The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University, will present the lecture.

The program is free and open to the public. Street parking is available.

Henrikson, a Fulbright Shulman Professor of United States-European Union Relations at the College of Europe in Bruges in 2010-2011, traveled to Ghent, located and photographed the sites where the American and British delegates lived, worked, and met to negotiate and achieve peace on the continent of North America.

Professor Henrikson will share his insights into this fascinating and over-looked period in the diplomatic career of John Quincy Adams and American diplomatic history.

The War of 1812 was famously inconclusive regarding the issues which ignited the conflict between the United States and Great Britain: neutral rights, impressment of sailors, access to fisheries, protection of Indian tribes, and territorial ambitions. The "Christmas truce" that ended the war, negotiated at Ghent by John Quincy Adams on Christmas Eve, 1814 would be, Adams hoped, "the last treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States."

Adams, American Minister to Russia, and his colleagues, former Secretary of the Treasury Albert Gallatin, Speaker of the House of Representatives Henry Clay, Minister to Sweden Jonathan Russell, and Delaware Federalist Senator Thomas Bayard, each had their own opinions about negotiations with Great Britain.

"Mr. Gallatin," Adams noted in his diary, "is for striking out any expression that may be offensive to the adverse party. Mr. Clay is displeased with figurative language which he thinks improper in State papers. Mr. Russell, agreeing with the objections of the two other gentlemen, will be further for amending the construction of every sentence, and Mr. Bayard, even when agreeing to say precisely the same thing, chooses to say it only in his own language."

Although the American diplomats prevailed, the diplomatic achievements of 1814 that ended the War of 1812, remain relatively unknown today.

For more information on Monday's lecture, call 617-770-1175.

South Shore Mental Health Hosts Building Hope Breakfast

South Shore Mental Health recently hosted their first annual Building Hope, Changing Lives (BHCL) Breakfast at Lombardo's in Randolph.

More than 200 people attended the breakfast that highlighted the BHCL program and client success stories.

In remarks at the breakfast, Harry Shulman, president and CEO of South Shore Mental Health, said, "When someone is physically ill, people rally around the family, bringing casseroles over, making sure everything is okay; but when someone is mentally ill, there is often denial. People see it...but they don't talk about."

Shulman added: "Many of the challenges people face seeking treatment is due to the lack of the public's understanding about psychiatric disorders. To this day, stigma continues to be a major barrier to recovery. Only 25 percent of individuals with a diag-nosable mental illness actually seek counseling from a mental health professional."

The Building Hope, Changing Lives initiative goal is to educate people about the programs and services we provide, create viable partnerships and to raise sustainable funding to meet the increasing demand for SSMH's services.

Historic N.E., Wollaston Garden Club Partner For Cleaner, Greener Quincy

Historic New England and the Wollaston Garden Club will partner for Cleaner, Greener Quincy Saturday, May 5 from 9 a.m. to noon for a garden clean-up at the Josiah Quincy House, 20 Muirhead St., Quincy.

Members of the community are welcome to join in and help clean up the gardens and grounds surrounding the historic 1770 home.

Volunteers are needed to weed and do general clean-up. Volunteers should bring work gloves and simple garden tools if possible.

The Josiah Quincy House was built in 1770 by Colonel Josiah Quincy, the first in a long line of Josiah Quincys who owned the property. The city of Quincy is named for this prominent family, which included three mayors of Boston and a president of Harvard. Much of the historical information pertaining to the house and family was documented in the early 1880s by Eliza Susan Quincy. She kept journals, inventoried the contents of the house, commissioned photographs of the interior, and persuaded relatives to return heirlooms so that the house could become a repository of Quincy family history.

The house will be open for tours on the first Saturday of the month from June through October, from 1 to 5 p.m. with tours on the hour and the last tour starting at 4 p.m.

Admission is free for Quincy residents and Historic New England members; $5 for non-members.

John & Abigail: Their Words In Music Program

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Chicken Sauté With Veggies

I guess during my years of cooking chicken, one of my favorite foods, I've done it hundreds of ways.

One day, as I was preparing to make it for dinner, I added some zucchini and began by sautéing the chicken and then as I went on, I added artichoke hearts, and peas and it turned out pretty different.

Chicken Sauté With Veggies

- 4 chicken thighs
- 2 cloves of garlic (minced)
- Olive oil for sautéing
- 1 medium zucchini (sliced on the thick side)
- 4 or 5 artichoke hearts (either from can

- or frozen)
- 1 cup frozen peas
- ¼ cup white wine
- ½ cup chicken stock
- ½ cup seasoned breadcrumbs for topping (optional)

Salt and pepper to taste

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and the chicken turning until almost done.

Add the salt and pepper, wine and chicken stock, the zucchini and the artichoke hearts, and cook on low heat until well blended.

Add the frozen peas and when all of the ingredients are cooked and done, sprinkle top with the breadcrumbs.

I served it over rice.

Swedish Apple Pie

- 1 cup flour
- 1 cup walnuts (cut in halves)
- 1 egg

Melt the butter and set aside.

In a mixing bowl, add the sugar, flour, walnuts and the egg. Add the melted butter. Set aside.

Peel and slice the apples, add the lemon juice, cinnamon and nutmeg, and mix until blended. Place the apples onto a pie plate. Spoon the mixture over the apples to cover.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for 45 minutes. Let cool before slicing. I served it with whipped cream - delicious!

Friends Of The World Charitable Trust Second Annual Spring Fundraiser May 2

In September 2011, six Quincy hair stylists traveled to Bangladesh to train young orphan girls in cosmetology, providing them with a valuable trade in the country's burgeoning beauty industry.

Building on the success of the trip, the stylists are now holding a fundraiser to take the initiative to the next level: the construction of a salon which will employ the newly trained orphans. To that end, the Quincy-based non-profit Friends of the World Charitable Trust will hold its second annual fundraiser from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Wednesday

May 2 at the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry St., Quincy. The event will feature food, drinks, raffles and auctions as well as a cultural fashion show and other entertainment.

"These young people are, in a sense, orphaned again once they age out of their orphanages," said Aura Salon owner and Friends of the World Trustee Sue Canavan, one of the stylists who traveled to Bangladesh to conduct the training. "They often have few skills and no extended support network. We seek to establish schools to train them in the beauty industry, providing them with desperately needed jobs in this impoverished country."

Tickets for the fundraiser are $45 and are available at Quincy's Allure Spa and Aura Salon. Donations to the Friends of the World Charitable Trust also are greatly appreciated. For more information, visit www.fotwct.org, e-mail info@fotwct.org or call (617) 471-4464.

ENC Commencement May 5

Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) will hold its spring commencement exercises on the college's front lawn at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 5.

intendent in the Church of the Nazarene. In this role, she had oversight responsibility for 103 churches. Prior to serving as district superintendent, she served as pastor of Second Church in Dorchester and principal of Parkside Christian Academy.

Dr. Owens received her bachelor's degree from ENC in 1974.

ENVOIUS?

If you were born during the month of May, you must forgive any friends who might be envious of your birthstone, emerald. After all, this storied gemstone was a favorite of none other than Cleopatra, who treasured emeralds taken from the Upper Egypt mines. However, even the Queen of the Nile would be envious of the better quality emeralds later discovered by the Incas in Colombia. The mines from this South American source have traditionally produced the highest quality emeralds available, and they continue to do so. When purchasing this green form of the mineral beryl, consumers should understand that it is quite common for emeralds to be somewhat clouded with inclusions. Perfectly transparent emeralds are relatively rare and valuable.

Coughlin Loosens Rules But Some Believe They May Still Be Too Stringent Concerns Over Proposed Solar Panel Regulations

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin has loosened some of his proposed solar panel regulations, but there's some concern they're still too stringent.

At a meeting of the City Council's Ordinance Committee, Coughlin, briefed his colleagues on the latest version of his proposal to regulate small-scale solar power in the city. Under the new plan, solar panels could be installed on roofs after the property owner obtained building and electrical permits; Coughlin's original draft would've mandated that Planning Board approve those projects. The councillor said he scaled back the restrictions after discussions with city officials.

"I introduced the initial iteration of this ordinance - it was for more restrictive than perhaps need be," Coughlin said. "After having discussions with some folks including the building commissioner, the fire chief, and with others I ratcheted it back."

The newest proposal would still require the Planning Board's to grant a special permit for free standing solar equipment. This would mandate a site plan review, something that city Planning Director Dennis Harrington said would be too costly for homeowners.

"Peer review and application costs related to Planning Board site review as suggested are onerous for a non-commercial installation," Harrington wrote in a memo to Coughlin. "Planning Board should not be involved as a Special Permit Granting Authority."

Instead, Harrington suggested that ground-mounted be allowed under a building permit provided several conditions were met. The units could not be bigger than 25 square feet; would not be allowed in front or side yards in Residential Zoning Districts or on non-residential lots abutting residential ones; would not be allowed more than four feet above ground level; and would need to be in a yard surrounded by a fence or planting at least six feet high and with at least 70 percent opacity.

Councillor-at-Large Joe Finn also expressed concern that homeowners could find themselves priced out of installing solar panels.

"My fear with certain regulations or ordinances is not just the intended consequences but the unintended consequences," Finn said. "If the focus is on keeping this type of energy affordable and accessible to homeowners oftentimes a regulatory process can obviously make that very difficult."

In response to the comments by Harrington and Finn, Coughlin said his goal wasn't to make the regulations too strict for homeowners.

"I don't want to make this too onerous," Coughlin said. "I appreciate Mr. Harrington's comments...I don't want to make it so that its unaffordable. That's the last thing I want to do. But on the other hand I think we need to take heed and show some ability to reasonably and rationally regulate the free standing installations."

No action regarding the proposal was taken Monday. Because it represents a change in zoning ordinances, a public hearing would need to be held before the council could approve the measure. Coughlin said it's likely experts on solar installations would appear before the council at some point as well.

Board Of Registration In Medicine Topic May 4

Phil Beattie, Jr., manager of Investigations with the Board of Registration in Medicine, will be the guest speaker Friday, May 4 at 10 a.m. at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

Beattie will explain the function of the Board which is a public protection agency that licenses and regulates all physicians in Massachusetts. The Board reviews and investigates complaints about physicians, including conduct and quality of care issues. The Board also provides the public with a profile of every doctor in the state that includes where they went to school, what type of insurance they accept, what hospitals they are affiliated with, their specialty and whether they have been disciplined in the last ten years. Handouts that explain the complaint process, profiles and patients rights will be available.

To attend this presentation, call the Quincy Council on Aging at (617) 376-1506.

Downtown Hearing Topic May 2

A hearing related to the redevelopment of Quincy Center will be held next Wednesday May 2 at 6:30 p.m.

The meeting is related to the Adams Green transportation improvement project. The Planning Department submitted the projects 25 percent plan to the state Department of Transportation earlier this month. The full 80-page set of documents is available to the public at the Planning Department.

Planning Director Dennis Harrington said the plan is important because it will detail the proposed layout of several major roadways around Quincy Center.

"You know 25 percent is very, very significant," Harrington said. "It does create the layout of the roadways. This is an important traffic plan."

Harrington will give a formal presentation of the plan to the council's Downtown Committee at the meeting. A separate hearing conducted by MassDOT will also be held at later date regarding the same matter.

The council also scheduled a separate public hearing over I-Cubed funding for May 21st. Under I-Cubed, the state Development Finance Agency would sell bonds to raise $50 million in capital. The state would guarantee repayment of the bonds, and would use state monies derived from the project - income taxes from newly created jobs and sales tax revenues - to fulfill the guarantee. Quincy would be responsible for any short fall in revenues, and would also get credited for excess revenue.

That money would then be used by the city finance three projects the city must undertake before Beal/Street-Works begins its redevelopment of Quincy Center. Those projects are the relocation of the Town Brook culvert, the Adam's Green project, and the building of a bridge over MBTA tracks near Cliveden St.

The city received preliminary approval from the state to use I-Cubed funding. In order for the city to receive final approval, the council must approve the economic development proposal Mayor Tom Koch had presented to the state secretary of administration and finance.

The mayor introduced an order at Monday's council meeting to approve the economic development proposal and indicated in a letter to the council that he would give council members the proposal before the council's Finance and Downtown Committees act on the matter.

Jim Fatseas, the mayor's chief of staff, told the council that the mayor hopes the proposal is passed before the council takes its summer recess.

Housing Authority May Search For New Director

MacRitchie's Contract Expiring

By KRISTINA KALABOKAS

The Quincy Housing Authority may be looking to hire a new executive director, following the expiration of current director Joseph A. MacRitchie's contract.

A review, which is typically done each April, of MacRitchie's performance as executive director was carried out at this month's meeting of the board, coinciding with the near expiration of his two-year contract.

City officials could begin the process of appointing a new executive director as soon as May 2, depending on whether fellow commissioners vote to reinstate MacRitchie to his current position.

MacRitchie ruffled feathers recently after accusing the City of Quincy of falsely collecting nearly $2 million in water and sewer fees from the housing committee.

His self-evaluation was intended to detail the numerous improvements to the organization seen over the last year under his direction, yet sounded more like a last-ditch undertaking at drawing away attention from efforts at recuperating the alleged lost funds which, according to MacRitchie, have "adversely affected QHA finances."

MacRitchie began by citing a reduction in unit vacancies since he took office in 2005. At the time, the QHA had upwards of 55 vacant apartments, which were producing no revenue in the form of rent collection. "We have no rent coming in from these apartments, and we are paying the electricity and the heat in each one of these vacant apartments, so not only are we not having money coming in, we are paying money out," he said. Currently, the QHA claims to only have eight vacancies, for a total vacancy rate of .5%.

His report also detailed an increase in rent collections for fiscal year 2011. According to MacRitchie, the housing authority's "strong rent collections have contributed to the QHA's improved financial position."

Last year's totals exceeded the expected budget amount by $254,627. Over half of that amount has gone to increasing operating reserves.

The QHA received what MacRitchie called an "additional year's capital fund allotment" through utilizing the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, an economic stimulus package enacted in February 2009 to create jobs, provide relief to those impacted by the economic recession, and to invest in infrastructure, health, education, and "green" initiatives. These funds were used to improve conditions at the Drohan Apartments, Pagnano Towers, O'Brien Towers, and the Riverview property.

Additional items discussed in the assessment included the creation a diverse workplace of multilingual employees, the negotiation of fair wage increases with the QHA's administrative unions, and consistently high scores from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

MacRitchie's attempt at retaining his position may be for naught, as an official decision regarding his contract with the QHA is expected to be reached at next month's meeting, the date of which has yet to be announced.

Another hot-button topic pertained to claims of improperly heated units at the Snug Harbor complex.

According to Regina Jones-Jenkins, M. Ed, chairwoman of the Harborview Residents Committee, bedroom walls are equipped with a vent that, when left open, allows heat to circulate into the room. She stated that this system is insufficient, leaving rooms uncomfortably cold in the winter. "For us to get heat in every room...the doors have to be open," she said. "If I close a door, a bedroom door, there's no heat going in that room."

To compensate for the cold conditions, tenants have purportedly taken to using space heaters in their units. Operating the portable heaters, however, comes at a cost. "My electric bill has gone up," said Jones-Jenkins, "because in order to keep the heat, you have to keep the [heating] unit going."

The chilly temperatures are not only a comfort issue. Jones-Jenkins is concerned over the integrity of the complex's water pipes, many of which are in the unheated basement. "The pipes in the basement could burst if they get cold," she said.

Commissioner Rosemary Wahlberg stated that she "was told that these units were used in Upstate New York, where winters are much colder than they are here...and they were very successful."

The heating system, which was fully replaced in 2011, is posing an additional inconvenience to residents; it apparently allows sound to travel easily through walls. Jones-Jenkins said that "you can hear a simple conversation of a normal voice" when the heating vent is left open. She feels that this impedes on tenants' right to privacy.

State engineers will analyze data collected by temperature sensors at Snug Harbor and present their findings to the board according to Executive Director Joseph A. MacRitchie. "If the systems are not working, we certainly want to know that," he said.

No resolutions to the noise complaint were offered.

Jones-Jenkins was not the only person to present the Board of Commissioners with grievances in relation to perceived inadequacies of QHA properties.

A resident of QHA housing requested the issuing of additional police patrols around Tobin Towers, particularly in the evening hours, to deter criminal activity in the area. The tenant cited a recent incident in which a car was overturned on the property.

Commissioner Deacon John Menz attributed the increase in crime to youth activity. "We are trying very hard to keep the buildings in the area safe," he said. The board is currently waiting on funds which will be used to install security cameras and additional lighting around the property.

The tenant, who expressed outrage at last month's meeting over the approval of a 2.25% increase in MacRitchie's salary, voiced concerns over strangers having full access to her building's laundry room. She was also displeased by what she claimed was an insufficiency in response time from building maintenance to a flood which recently occurred in the basement. "Eight calls I made to maintenance, not one response," she said. The issue was finally resolved upon the arrival of the Quincy Fire Department.

Elections held for the positions of chairman, vice chairman, treasurer, and assistant treasurer of the board awarded Menz, Commissioner James P. McDonald, Wahlberg, and Commissioner Mary Ann Morris the seats respectively.

Sen. Brown: Voice Of Reason Amid Polarized Congress

As partisan bickering stifles progress in the U.S. Senate, Scott Brown has emerged as a voice of reason amid a polarized Congress. Rated the second most bipartisan senator by Congressional Quarterly, Sen. Brown assesses each issue on its merits and casts his vote based on what is in the best interest of the people, not any political party.

Sen. Brown has used his willingness to work across the aisle to make real progress in Washington. His recent bills, the JOBS Act and the STOCK Act, were both passed with overwhelming bipartisan support and were recently signed into law by President Obama. What's more, the only elements of the president's jobs bill to become law — the Hire a Hero initiative and the repeal of the 3 percent withholding tax — also were Sen. Brown's.

The contrast between Scott Brown and his likely Democratic opponent, Elizabeth Warren, could not be any more apparent. Whereas Sen. Brown reaches across the aisle in a spirit of bipartisan cooperation, Warren herself defines her career as "throwing rocks at people I think are wrong." While Sen. Brown works with legislators from both parties to develop solutions to key issues like job creation and financial abuses, Warren says she likes to "leave blood and teeth on the floor." And while Sen. Brown has kept his pledge not to sponsor legislative earmarks — the

"pork barrel" spending that is bankrupting our nation — Warren says that earmarks are "how the game works" and if elected, she intends to keep right on playing the game.

Washington doesn't need another divisive, partisan senator committed to politics as usual. It needs independent, bipartisan leaders like Scott Brown who can work together and get things done.

A Message From Impact Quincy Point Webster Middle School Got The Point: They Are ATOD Free

By BARBARA FENBY
Health Educator Point-Webster Middle School

What's an ATOD?

Ask any Point Webster Middle School (PWMS) student; they will provide you with the answer. PWMS students, grades 5-8 are learning about alcohol, tobacco and other drugs (ATOD) prevention. And these skills are being taught by students!

Peers teaching peers is becoming a valuable and effective prevention tool for our schools and community. Fifty 7th and 8th grade PWMS students promoted the fact most teenagers are not using drugs to their classmates! Substance Abuse Prevention grants provided a creative avenue for the students to receive training.

PWMS was the fortunate recipient of the following substance abuse prevention grants: The Robbinside Beaumont Foundation grant, Blue Hills Community Health Alliance (BHCHNA) mini-grant and Impact Quincy (IQ) ATOD prevention grant. These grants breathed life into the school's comprehensive health curriculum! PWMS kick-off was a play performed by the improbable Players (IP), "I'll Never Do That!" The IP messages were authentic and powerful because the actors are in recovery from ATOD.

The BHCHNA mini-grant provided an IP actor, Dennis Staroselsky, to return as an "Artist in Residence." Dennis encouraged 8th grade peer advocates to author and perform in an original play for their classmates.

The audience's favorite scene illustrated a girl pressured to try gum. Her refusal skills created a chain reaction for others to say, "No!" An additional scene portrayed an alcohol vs. marijuana debate between parents. The play depicted students would rather swim, shoot hoop, read a book, or play with their little brother than do drugs. The audience reported "You guys are awesome!" as feedback.

Book marks displaying safe website information and support on the subject matter were distributed at the end of each performance.

The IP grant provided funding for PWMS to view Camfel Production's 3 screen multi-media, character-building message video, "Get a Grip" (Making A Case For Self-Control). The students loved the video; it contained current excerpts from television, movies and songs relevant to their world.

Additional resources enabled the students to design posters, create a drug-free pledge, craft bingo prizes, sponsor an ATOD logo contest and design ATOD prevention t-shirts. At PWMS, peer advocates are spotted sporting forest green t-shirts displaying the PWMS compass on the front with the word "Point" circling both cuffs and proudly announcing on the back "We've got the Point...We are 'ATOD Free!'"

Peer Advocates not only get the Point, they teach their peers the Point; PWMS is ATOD free!

QCAP Grateful For Walk Of Hunger Support

On Sunday, May 6th, Project Bread will celebrate the 2012 Walk for Hunger.

The 20-mile route begins at the Boston Common and weaves through Boston, Brookline, Newton, Woburn, to Cambridge. In the current economic crisis, this year's Walk has never been more important. As the Emergency Food Center (EFC) Coordinator at Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP),

I witness the human cost of this crisis every day — families who are newly unemployed or whose unemployment benefits have run out, children who are eating two meals a day, and seniors who are giving up food for medicine. I urge all Quincy residents to take part in this important event that helps families right here in Quincy who struggle to put food on the table almost everyday.

Today in Massachusetts, over 700,000 people in Massachusetts do not have enough to eat. At QCAP, many of the people seeking food assistance are working but their wages are just too low to cover all of their housing and food expenses. As the crisis continues, more and more families turn to us for assistance.

Last year, the Food Center prepared and distributed 8,619 food orders that helped 2,900 unduplicated people. With reductions in public funding, our Food Center depends upon the donations to Project Bread's Walk for Hunger in order to provide nourishing food and other important services to those in need.

QCAP has been fortunate to have the support of Quincy residents who time and again have answered the call to support the community. Last year, Quincy was named one of the top 10 most generous cities by Project Bread for their support of the 2011 Walk for Hunger.

This year, I ask that you again consider walking, donating, organizing a Walk Team, or becoming a Volunteer. You can even join QCAP's Walk for Hunger team. Every dollar, every mile, and every volunteer will help, and the money from The Walk for Hunger stays in Quincy.

For more information, visit www.projectbread.org or call Project Bread at 617-723-5000. If you can't be there this year, support someone who can or be part of the "virtual walk" with a donation. I urge you to help us at QCAP to stop the battle that many are facing today — hunger.

Thank you for your continued support.

Thanks From Quincy After School Child Care

QCARE would like to thank certain individuals and organizations/businesses who contributed to the success of our Ride With K-Rob Event on March 28th at Broad Meadows Middle School. South Coastal Bank and an anonymous benefactor were generous event sponsors who made the evening possible, as well as Hannaford Supermarket in North Quincy for their generous donations of food and beverage items for the event. BMX Gold Medalist and World Record Breaker, Kevin Robinson provided an exciting and educational performance for all audience members. Robinson promoted good character and explained how hard work and perseverance leads to success. His message will be a powerful force for positive change for those who attended.

We would also like to thank Joe Catalano and his crew at QATV assisted us in the promotion of our event and warmly welcomed us into the studio for a television interviews. Local businesses and individuals who advertised our event were a great help to get the word out.

An additional thank you to Quincy Public Schools who assisted us in arranging the location of the event and securing the particulars, and Broad Meadows custodian Joe Bianchi who made sure we had everything we needed while at his school.

Lastly, our amazing staff members who enthusiastically volunteered their time for the benefit of our organization and the children of Quincy made this event a smashing success! Thank you to our team!

QCARE also thank all of the families who attended the event. We hope that you enjoyed the event and we can't wait to see you all again! Remember as K-Rob says, "Dream Your Life... Then Live Your Dream."

Bettyanne Lang To Receive Quincy Lions' 'Frank McCauley Community Service Award'

The Quincy Lions Club has selected Bettyanne Lang of Weymouth as the recipient of its 2012 "Frank McCauley Community Service Award."

The award will be presented at a special club luncheon Thursday, May 10 at noon at the Neighborhood Club. Tickets for the luncheon are $25 per person and may be purchased online at www.quincylionsclub.org.

Quincy Lions Club President Donna Muller said Lang was selected for her more than two decades of service to Interfaith Social Services. As the non-profit social service organization's manager of material assistance, Lang oversees the agency's Pantry Shelf and Career Closet programs, supervising volunteers, interviewing clients and acting as a community liaison to Interfaith's partner organizations.

"Bettyanne Lang is known to many across the South Shore who have benefited from her assistance and compassion during difficult times," Muller said. "Her efforts to support and assist our neighbors in need make her amply deserving of the Frank McCauley Community Service Award."

A graduate of Brookline High School and Chandler School for Women, Lang joined Interfaith in 1990 after having worked for many years with local churches and businesses, including eight years as the administrative secretary for Hingham Congregational Church. In 1997, she became coordinator of Interfaith's Pantry Shelf and was promoted to manager of material assistance in 2001.

Lang continues to supervise the food pantry amid a period of unprecedented increase in demand for assistance. When the recession began in 2008, Lang was supervising the distribution of food to 10,000 hungry South Shore residents each year. In 2011, that number climbed to more than 17,000 people. Last year alone, Interfaith's Pantry Shelf distributed more than 400,000 pounds of food to local residents who are struggling to provide for their families.

"Bettyanne is an incredibly kind-hearted woman who has helped thousands and thousands of Quincy and South Shore residents over the years," said Interfaith's Executive Director Rick Doane, who noted that Lang also is active in the community through her church. "She knows most clients by name. She has become a surrogate mother and grandmother to countless clients and volunteers, and she takes that responsibility very, very seriously."

In 2010, the Quincy Lions Club recognized former Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley's 50th anniversary as a member of the club with the creation of the "Frank McCauley Community Service Award." Presented annually, the award honors a local resident, activist or businessperson who has demonstrated a commitment to being of service to others and the community consistent with the Lions motto, "We Serve."

Past recipients of the award include former QCAP Executive Director Rosemary Wahlberg and Quincy Sun Publisher Robert Bosworth.

NQHS Air Force JROTC Academic Team To Compete In National Championship

After advancing through two rounds of intense, worldwide competition, North Quincy High School's Air Force JROTC academic team, composed of Junior Johnson Fong, Junior Cyril Caparanga, Junior Tuyen Nguyen, and Sophomores Simon Quach and Yvonne Fong, will compete in the final championship round of The 2012 Air Force JROTC Academic Bowl Championship.

The competition will be held in Washington D.C., on the campus of George Mason University, June 22-26. This event is sponsored by the Air Force JROTC and conducted by College Options Foundation.

In the second round, to win a place in the finals, North Quincy High School's Air Force JROTC team earned top scores out of over 200 teams competing from around the world. The finals berth qualified them for an all-expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C.

In two fast-paced rounds of online competition, students were tested on their knowledge of JROTC curriculum, English, Math and Science, using SAT/ACT-type questions. One of the main goals of the JROTC Academic Bowl is to prepare students for state exit/graduation exams as well as college entrance exams, such as the SAT and ACT. The team is one of only sixteen Air Force JROTC teams worldwide to advance to the finals.

That same weekend, the winner of the Air Force JROTC Academic Championship will compete against the winners of the Army JROTC and Navy JROTC Academic Bowls in the newly established JROTC

Tri-Service Academic Bowl Championship.

The JROTC Leadership Symposium and Academic Bowl is a nationally recognized academic competition created exclusively for JROTC students. By participating, cadets learn the values of citizenship, garner academic competition experience, and explore college opportunities.

The competition creates these tremendous opportunities for JROTC cadets by allowing them to demonstrate leadership and academic abilities.

All About Disability

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Disability is something most people do not like to think about. But if you're not able to work because you have a medical condition that is expected to last at least one year or result in death, you may be able to get Social Security disability benefits.

Here's what you need to know.

You should apply for disability benefits as soon as you become disabled. It can take months to obtain all your medical records and process an application for disability benefits (three to five months, on average).

Generally, the information we need includes:

Your Social Security number;

Your birth or baptismal certificate;

Names, addresses, and phone numbers of the doctors, caseworkers, hospitals, and clinics that took care of you, and dates of your visits;

Names and dosage of all the medicine you take;

Medical records from your doctors, therapists, hospitals, clinics, and caseworkers that you already have in your possession;

Laboratory and test results;

A summary of where you worked and the kind of work you did; and

A copy of your most recent W-2 Form (Wage and Tax Statement) or, if you are self-employed, your Federal tax return for the past year.

IMPORTANT—Do not delay filing for disability benefits if you don't have all the above information in your possession. Social Security will assist you in getting the necessary documents, including obtaining your medical records.

The fastest and most convenient way to apply for disability is online at www.socialsecurity.gov/applyfordisability. You can save your application as you go, so you can take a break at any time.

If you prefer, you may call our toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, to make an appointment to apply at your local Social Security office or to set up an appointment for someone to take your application over the phone.

If you are approved for disability benefits, that doesn't mean you'll never return to work. Social Security has special rules called "work incentives" that allow you to test your ability to work.

Learn more about disability benefits and take advantage of the helpful Disability Starter Kit at www.socialsecurity.gov/disability.

Mayor's Breakfast To Honor Three With Good Scout Award

Three individuals will be honored for their service and contributions to the city and scouting at the Quincy Mayor's Breakfast to benefit the Boy Scouts from Boston Minuteman Council on Boy Scouts of America Tuesday, May 15 at Granite Links Golf Club, Quincy.

The 8 a.m. breakfast will recognize Scott and Sean Galvin of Galvin Construction and Frank Tramontozzi, the city's engineering manager.

The event will be hosted by Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch.

The event committee is chaired by Anthony Agnitti, Agnitti Insurance Company, Inc.; Daniel J. Flynn, Daniel J. Flynn Company and Thomas O'Connell, president of Marina Bay Management Services.

Reservations for the public are available. Call Committee Member Maralin Manning at 617-471-1700 or Paul Gendreau at 617-615-0004 ext. 305.

The Galvin brothers and Tramontozzi are being honored for exemplifying behavior that makes scouting a largely worthwhile endeavor and to salute these individuals have made to scouting or to community service.

Born and raised in West Quincy, Scott and Sean Galvin grew up in a family of three brothers, the fifth generation of their family to live in the City of Quincy. They both attended Quincy Public Schools and are graduates of Quincy High School.

After high school, Scott went on training and became a Master Carpenter. Sean attended Stonehill College where he received a Bachelor of Science degree. After college Sean joined Scott, working with one of the South Shore's largest developers. Both went on to further their education in construction and obtained unrestricted Massachusetts Construction Supervisors Licenses.

In 1992 the brothers formed Galvin Construction Company. Renovating basements, building decks and installing replacement windows they would, over a 20-year period, grow their business into a successful Real Estate Development, Construction and Property Management company. In 2009 they expanded their business into the hospitality and restaurant industry by becoming owners and managing partners of the Best Western Adams Inn, The Adams Pub and Adams Inn Functions.

As responsible members of the community they have taken an active role and participated in many civic and charitable organizations including roles as; Board Member of The Quincy Chamber of Commerce, Past Chairman of The Quincy 2000 Economic Development Corporation, Trustee for The City of Quincy's Affordable Housing Trust, Trustee of the Quincy College Trust, Trustee of the Woodward School for Girls, and member of the President's Advisory Council at Quincy Medical Center. Now married with children they still live in West Quincy with their families; Scott with his wife Janet and their three daughters and Sean with his wife Kathy and their daughter.

Koch appointed Tramontozzi to be his Engineering Manager for the New Quincy Center District last May. He is responsible for the coordination of all City of Quincy Departments with the City's development partners at Street-Works, LLC.

Tramontozzi is the City's liaison with Federal and State Agencies for the New Quincy Center Project. The Project entails a $1.6 billion revitalization of 50 acres of the downtown with mixed-use development. It consists of over 1,000,000 square feet of office space, 700,000 square feet of retail space, two hotels, over 1,000 residential units and parking facilities for about 4,800 vehicles.

THREE QUINCY MAYORS were among the invited guests who helped honor Betty DeCristofaro as the 2011 recipient of the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award presented by The Quincy Sun. From left are former Mayor Frank McCauley, who is also a past recipient of the award; Mayor Tom Koch, and former Mayor James Sheets. Koch proclaimed April 15 as "Betty DeCristofaro Day" in Quincy in recognition of her selection and for her outstanding community service. Sheets and his wife, Joann, are good friends of Betty and her late husband, Ted DeCristofaro, who served as Ward 2 councillor for 14 years.

at the Woodward School for Girls. She was president of her senior class in 1944.

She also attended the Pollard Elementary School in Quincy Point and Point Junior High School.

Betty, a young 86 years old, received several companion presentations from elected officials and words of love and praise from family and close friends.

Betty's community service has touched virtually every corner of her beloved Quincy Point and beyond.

For many years, she has been active at Quincy Point Congregational Church where she was baptized. During the years of World War II, she helped serve lunch to the shipyard workers who came to the church.

Over the years, she has served on every church board and helps serve food at church suppers and lends support at church fairs. She attended Sunday School and taught Sunday School at the church.

Rick DeCristofaro, one of Betty's three sons and the superintendent of Quincy Public Schools, noted her mother's father, John Petzoldt, was the sexton at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

"But he was never paid. He volunteered to keep that church clean every day," Rick said.

Betty, who has also served as a church deacon, delivers flowers to the sick, ushers at services and helps put the church newsletter together.

"She makes sure that those who cannot get to the service are visited with flowers and best wishes," Rick added.

Betty's community service is also widespread.

While her children were young, she volunteered in the classroom and lunch room at the former Pollard School.

She was a Den Mother for Cub Scouts and troop leader for Brownies and Girl Scouts.

She was a founder of the Ward 2 Civic Association and helped out at the July 4th Field Day and Parade and the Bean Supper.

She has served on the Quincy Park and Recreation Board and the Quincy Council of Aging.

At 1000 Southern Artery where she lives, she helps out in the kitchen and waits on tables. She also welcomes visitors at the front desk and arranges trips and visits many apartments where residents may be ill or lonely and always offering solace and comfort.

Other causes near and dear to Betty's heart:

- Interfaith Social Services where she collects clothes and volunteers at the ISS desk. She participated in the Walk for ISS for nearly 20 years and coordinated a team of walkers from Quincy Point Congregational Church.

- Quincy Christmas Parade - a longtime volunteer who has helped dress the elves and other costume characters and put their make-up on. For the last four years she's served hot cocoa and cookies for the kids in front of Saint Ann's after the parade.

- Marshall Elementary School - collects tonic tabs and box tops for education.

She's also served the community as a volunteer driver bringing patients to their appointments at the hospital and doctors' offices.

Betty also says she's always enjoyed knitting and her hobby has helped people of all ages.

She knits prayer shawls at her church, hats for premature babies at South Shore Hospital, chemo hats for women undergoing chemotherapy and baby blankets for the Parent-to-Parent program in Quincy. The program provides baskets filled with newborn necessities - from blankets to afghans - to new parents in Quincy.

She also knits baby hats for high school students who are part of the Quincy Teen Mothers Program and contributes to a scholarship fund in memory of her husband Ted. The scholarship helps graduates of the program continue their education.

Ted and Betty were married for 56 years and raised four children:

Ted, Jr., the superintendent of the farm at Plymouth County House of Corrections; Ruthie (DeCristofaro) McInnis, a secretary in the Quincy Public Schools; Rick, the QPS superintendent; and Don who works for the Braintree Electric Light Department.

She also has 11 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren.

Betty's children also thanked George McCafferty for nominating their mom.

"The two words that George used in his nomination were solace and comfort. There are no truer words for Betty," Rick said. "An author once said as a way of life, always find what brings you joy and go there. I would suggest that Betty has been and continues to be there quite often in her wonderful, wonderful life."

The DeCristofaro children said their mom has always cherished and taken care of family first.

"We are so fortunate to also have a mother whose heart speaks to her every morning as Betty plans how she will serve others every single day," Rick said.

Don said his parents set the "community service bar" out of reach.

"I think my brothers and sister and I have all done okay in terms of community service. We've sat on the committees and coached the teams.

"But I for one realized a very long time ago that the bar had simply been set out of reach.

"I think we all knew growing up that there were some very special people living in our house. But I don't think we truly understood it until many years later. We knew that our parents seemed to be busier than other kid's parents yet at the same time managed to never leave any of us wanting for attention. But of course we couldn't know until we became parents ourselves just what a balancing act that really was.

"An easy thing to figure out," Don continued, "while watching them come and go from the seemingly endless list of meetings and suppers was that we were living with people who had no problem giving of themselves to others on a regular and constant basis.

"But what we couldn't completely know until years later, is that we were seeing in action people who actually got it.

"People who truly understood and who were passing on to us every single day, what life is really all about."

In closing, Don quoted Martin Luther King.

"Life's most persistent and urgent question is this: What are you doing for others? He said that 'Living is a form of not being sure, not knowing what's next or how,' and that 'the moment you know how, you begin to die a little.

"Well, I am here to tell you that I certainly hope he was right. Because if he was then our mother, who never stops looking for what's next or how, still has a very, very long life ahead of her."

The special day began with Mayor Tom Koch proclaiming April 15 "Betty DeCristofaro Day" in Quincy.

"Betty is a woman of great faith. She is just a delight. I also want to thank Betty for her friendship and her kindness over the years," the mayor said.

"When I think of all the things that Betty has done with her life, I think of the Gospel of Matthew. When you were hungry, you gave me food. When you were thirsty, you gave me drink. When you were without clothes, you clothed me and you visit the sick.

"That's Betty DeCristofaro," Koch added while noting her profound love of Quincy and her endless kindness, generosity and caring spirit.

The city's State House delegation commended Betty for her community service.

House Majority Leader Ron Mariano and House colleagues Rep. Tackey Chan and Rep. Bruce Ayers presented a House citation to Betty.

"I love Betty DeCristofaro," Mariano said. "I have the good fortune of working with her once a month to serve dinner to the residents at 1000 Southern Artery. It is a trip. I don't have the energy that she has now. Betty is tireless."

When he entered public service, Mariano said one of the first guys he went to see was Ted DeCristofaro to make sure that he had his support.

"And with Ted's support came Betty and the grandchildren - the greatest flier droppers in the history of Quincy Point. Give them a whole precinct and off they'd go. They'd show up later for hot dogs and a cold drink and that's all they asked for.

"Betty and Ted," Mariano added, "have been one of the pillars of Quincy Point. There are truly some special families that make the Point unique and there are an awful lot of good, good people who are supportive, who help each other, are concerned about the City of Quincy, want to see the City of Quincy do well and the DeCristofaros are one of them."

Mariano recalled attending the Ward 2 Field Days at Fore River Field and seeing Ted man the races.

"We watched him and we learned that you have to give something back to the kids and we still do. It continues on because of leadership like this that makes Quincy a very special place and makes the Point a great place to grow up.

"Betty, thank you for your inspiration and thank you for the laughs. It's really a lot of fun."

Ayers remembered serving on the Quincy City Council with Ted.

"We used to sit next to each other at the horse-shoe (in the Council Chamber). So many times Ted would strike up a conversation about Betty and a lot of times he would say how Ted got all the credit and all the accolades as the city councillor and he said it was really Betty who deserved it.

"You have touched so many people over the years," Ayers told Betty, "and I think a lot of people don't even realize it but we realize it. We're proud to be here today. Thank you for making Quincy a better place to live."

Chan added:

"Congratulations on receiving this very prestigious award and for all the wonderful work you do in the Quincy Point neighborhood and the entire City of Quincy."

State Sen. John Keenan presented a Senate commendation to Betty.

"What makes this and what makes you so impressive is the manner in which you do the work. There are a lot of people who are very much out front doing things, looking for recognition and the accolades.

"Then there are the real workers. People who are behind-the-scenes who do so much, do it in such a quiet way and do it so humbly.

"If you asked a lot of people in the City of Quincy they would say they certainly know what you do but most wouldn't know all that you do. Those who know are the ones who have been directly touched by you," Keenan added.

Sun Reception Honoring Betty DeCristofaro On QATV This Weekend

The Quincy Sun reception honoring Betty DeCristofaro as the 2011 recipient of the Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award will air on Quincy Access TV's Channel 8 this weekend.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes.

McFarland said one of his first experiences observing Betty's kindness was as she offered hot chocolate and cookies to cold kids wearing wet costumes who had marched in the Quincy Christmas Parade. And helping seniors use the ATM machine at 1000 Southern Artery.

"This is one very fine, dignified woman who very quietly helps everyone she meets. She never looks for praise," McFarland said.

Croall, who holds the council seat that was held by Ted DeCristofaro for 14 years from 1982 to 1995, said he realizes the men who served before him have quite a distinguished pedigree.

"Your husband was a household name in Quincy Point. You've done a lot for the community but you've always made it a point to reach out and acknowledge those individuals who are just becoming involved and you pass on that message of community service and improving the quality of life. That's something that is very special."

Several good friends of Betty offered sincere praise for all that she has done for her church and the community.

"There are women who have such elite celebrity status that they are known to us by their first names. There is Oprah, there is Hillary, and in Quincy Point we have Betty D," said the Rev. Ann Suzedell, pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church as the audience responded with sustained applause.

"If you want to have anything done in Quincy Point and you have the support of Betty DeCristofaro then you have everything you need because we trust her because we admire her and because we love her," Rev. Suzedell said followed by more applause.

"Betty is our advocate, she speaks up for us. She knows us, she understands us. She's a one-person public relations committee for what is good and true about our community and we thank you for that."

Rev. Ann said Betty one of the church's "great blessings."

"The Scriptures say we receive God's blessings so that we may be a blessing to others. So I have no other way of putting it in our church - Betty DeCristofaro is a great blessing to us because of her insight and faithfulness and determination she is seen as a leader among us.

"She keeps us true to our mission. What's the church supposed to do? Love God and serve our neighbors and she keeps us true to the vision of the church.

"Betty DeCristofaro makes a huge difference in people's lives. She doesn't just talk about compassion. She is a deeply compassionate person and she never walks away from anybody in distress.

"I have seen her at church give praise and encouragement to a child who may lack confidence.

"I have seen her give support to somebody who may be overwhelmed by grief and loss.

"And I have seen her be so faithful to her long-term friends who may be struggling with serious illness.

"Betty D. is a person who is compassionate, not to say that she isn't a person who is a lot of fun. Where Betty D. is there is laughter and life energy and an affirmation. She is the duchess of the great DeCristofaro family and presides over her realm with wit and wisdom and honesty and love."

Then, in one of the more moving moments of the afternoon, Rev. Ann walked over to Betty and hugged her with these words of heart-felt love and praise:

"Anybody who has the support of Betty DeCris-tofaro has everything they need because we trust her and we admire her and we love her and we get to thank her today."

Former Mayor James Sheets expressed his thanks for Betty for the friendship. Sheets, his wife Joann, Betty and Ted traveled frequently together attending government conferences while Jim and Ted were colleagues on the City Council and while Sheets was mayor.

"Joann and I want to thank you for the memories. Many may not know that we used to travel to the mayor's conferences and other conferences with Betty and Ted. We enjoyed and loved every single minute of it because they were so much fun and we had such a good time and we built so many wonderful and meaningful and lasting memories."

Sheets recalled funny story when the foursome attended a conference in Chicago. The event included a dinner night featuring dishes of different ethnicities.

"We had a marvelous time but we only had one problem: we kept losing Ted. . . Betty would find him and bring him back and we had a great evening but we lost Ted again. Where's Ted? We walked through that big crowd and we walked into the Italian pavilion. And there was Ted standing there with another plate of pasta."

They also traveled to Washington, D.C. Jim and Ted would walk for at least an hour or two every day.

"Betty, did you ever figure out why we never invited you on our walks? It was simply because we couldn't catch up with you," the former mayor told her as the crowd laughed.

He added:

"Memories shape our lives and Joann and I want to say to you thanks for the memories."

Rick Doane, executive director Interfaith Social Services, said Betty does everything it takes to help anyway she can.

"We serve 17,000 people a year through the food pantry. Betty is making sure everyone gets what they need so that they have a Thanksgiving meal. She is helping them get Christmas for their kids. She is doing everything it takes.

"She knows Quincy and she's not just seeing or hearing about it but she's helping all these people.

"She's also funding the schools. If you try to get one of those box tops you're not going to find them in our food pantry because she cuts off every single one. It was one of my first days and I said, 'what is that lady doing with all those box tops?' And they said, 'Oh, that's Betty. She cuts all of them and we do 400,000 tons of food a year. That's a lot of box tops. That's got to be a considerable donation to the schools.

"She cares and we are so grateful," Doane said. "Betty is an incredible example to all of our volunteers. She leads the way. She shows them how it's done. On behalf of all of the people she serves, we're are grateful and thank you." Bosworth thanked Betty for "carrying the torch" as this year's Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award recipient.

Betty is the 28th recipient of the award that was established in 1985 as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year. The name of the award was changed several years ago in memory of Henry Bosworth who founded the Sun in 1968.

The award recognizes the charitable endeavors of a volunteer or "unsung hero;" a city worker or resident who has gone above and beyond his or her job description while providing a service to the community; or the good works of public servants.

Nominations for the 2012 award will be announced in the fall.

BBB Advice For Avoiding A Moving Scam

Following a few simple rules when selecting a mover will go a long way toward protecting yourself from being victimized by scams this moving season. Better Business Bureau and American Moving & Storage Association (AMSA) recommend during your homework before selecting a mover.

As we approach the busiest time of the year for changing residences, BBB encourages consumers to know their right...and the red flags of moving scams. Every year BBB and AMSA receive thousands of complaints from consumers who have fallen prey to dishonest and often unlicensed moving companies. In a too-frequent, worst-case scenario, the moving company holds the customer's belongings "hostage" and requires potentially thousands of dollars to unload the van.

"Anyone can claim to be a mover, so checking a mover's credentials is critical. It's also easy to do," said Paula Fleming, vice president of communications & marketing for the local Better Business Bureau. "Know your rights and know your options, but more importantly do your homework before turning your precious belongings over to a mover."

BBB and AMSA offer the following checklist for finding a trustworthy moving company:

- Research the company thoroughly. While state regulations vary, all interstate movers must, at minimum, be licensed by the federal government and are assigned a motor carrier number you can verify on FMCSA's website, protections.move.gov. Also check the company's rating with your BBB, which maintains more than 17,000 Business Reviews on movers across North America.

- Get at least three written in-home estimates. Not all price-quotes online or over the phone are legitimate. Keep in mind that the lowest estimate can sometimes be an unrealistic lowball offer, which can cost you more in the end.

- Know your rights. Research your rights as a consumer with either FMCSA for interstate moves or the state in which you reside for moves within that state.

Also, enlist the help of BBB or local law enforcement if the moving company fails to live up to its promises or threatens to hold your belongings hostage. FMCSA requires interstate movers to offer arbitration to help settle disputed claims.

- Consider getting full value protection. It may cost a few dollars more up front, but it can provide some peace of mind and eliminate a headache after your move. Investing in full (replacement) value protection means any lost or damaged articles will be repaired or replaced, or a cash settlement will be made to repair the item or to replace it at its current market value, regardless of age. It's important to note that the required minimum coverage of 60 cents per pound would not cover the replacement cost, for example, of a flat panel TV if damaged in transit.

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, April 12, at approximately 11:50 a.m., K-9 Officer James Cassidy and Officer Thomas Ford were dispatched to Malden Street after a resident reported that a male suspect parked a red Explorer in a neighbor's driveway and was now looking into the windows of the house. As Officer Cassidy neared the area, he observed a red Explorer pulling out of Hayden Street with one male occupant.

LT. DAN MINTON

The officer activated his blue lights, pulled aside the suspect vehicle and signaled the driver to pull over, which he acknowledged with an "ok." As Officer Cassidy turned his cruiser around, Officer Ford pulled in behind the suspect vehicle and put his blue lights on as the Explorer turned onto and traveled eastbound on Furnace Brook Parkway.

Detective Lt. John Steele, who was monitoring the call, notified dispatch that the Hingham Police Department was investigating a past break, where the suspect was seen leaving the area in a red Explorer. At this point, instead of pulling over, the suspect drove off, followed by the officers as they went around the Furnace Brook rotary. The Explorer lost control, jumped the curb and struck the guardrail.

Officer Ford pulled next to the driver's side door while Officer Cassidy pulled in behind the Explorer, pinning it in. The suspect put the Explorer in reverse and rammed the front of Officer Cassidy's cruiser. The suspect then exited his vehicle and fled on Furnace Brook Parkway. Officer Ford gave chase on foot as Officer Cassidy opened his cruiser door and yelled to the suspect to stop or he would release his K-9 unit after him.

After multiple warnings to no avail, Officer Cassidy instructed K-9 Khiya to apprehend the suspect. Officer Ford stepped back to the side. Although the suspect had a 40-yard lead, within seconds, the suspect felt the presence of Khiya when the K-9 made contact with the suspect's left leg, causing him to fall to the ground. The suspect continued to resist the K-9 as the officers approached the suspect. Officer Cassidy brought the K-9 away from the suspect while Officer Ford attempted to handcuff the suspect. At this time, the suspect's dog, a gray pit bull, came charging at Khiya, biting and snapping, within two feet of Officer Ford's face. Officer Ford stood up to prevent being bitten.

A citizen then ran over and cautiously grabbed the pit bull's leash as the suspect claimed that his pit bull was friendly. Once the pit bull was led away, the suspect was handcuffed and brought to the cruiser. Meanwhile, Lt. Steele arrived at the crash scene. He located in plain view numerous items of clothing stacked up inside with price tags on them.

When the suspect was brought back to the cruisers, several pieces of jewelry were removed from his pockets. After being read his Miranda rights, the suspect was asked where he got the jewelry and he said, "Some guy gave me those to sell. That's all I know." When asked who the "guy" was, the suspect stated that he did not know his name.

Officer Ford transported the suspect to the station while Officer Cassidy returned to the scene of the crime, where he met with Sergeant Terrence McDonnell, standing by an open basement slider. The Officers went inside, guided by the K-9 and cleared the house of any additional suspects.

The house appeared to have been ransacked. The basement door also appeared to have been forced open, with damage to the door jam possibly caused by a hammer on the floor. The owner of the home arrived and confirmed that the house had been broken into and valuables were missing. The victim later identified the clothes and jewelry as hers.

The suspect was treated at the station by Fallon Ambulance Paramedics for 3 small puncture wounds to his leg as a result of his apprehension. Lieutenant Steele then interviewed the witness, who said that she observed the suspect get out of Explorer with a black dog. The suspect peered into a garage window, then walked behind the house.

The witness thought that the suspect could be one of the workers recently hired to fix up the house, but when the suspect came walking out the front door and throw a bag into the vehicle, she jotted down the license plate and called the Police. The suspect, a 44 year-old Weymouth

Quincy Residents Reflect On Their Experience Celebrating Fenway's 100th Anniversary

By SCOTT JACKSON

Two Quincy residents who attended Fenway Park's 100th anniversary celebration were both moved by the experience.

Richard Sweeney and Janice Walsh were among the 37,000 or so fans in attendance on Friday for the hour-long ceremony honoring baseball's oldest ballpark. They said the event was emotional and moving.

Sweeney, who runs Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, has been a season ticket holder for 30 years. He started attending games prior to that, and was in the bleachers for Game 6 of the 1975 World Series, when Carlton Fisk hit his famous walk-off home run in the twelfth inning.

While Sweeney said he couldn't compare that game to the anniversary celebration, the atmosphere in the park took him away Friday. He was especially happy to see fellow season ticket holders he doesn't get to see all the time, because they have a shared history of Fenway.

"It was nice seeing all the people around us," Sweeney said Monday. "The season ticket holders we don't see much of anymore. When you're there together you have these moments."

Unlike Sweeney, Walsh isn't a season ticket holder. Her son Gregory, a member of the board of directors of Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts, won tickets to Friday's game at a church raffle in November. But at the time they thought they'd merely won tickets to the first Yankees-Red Sox game of the season, and not to the celebration. Walsh said she was thrilled when the team announced that the festivities would take place prior to the game.

Both Sweeney and Walsh said their favorite part of the day was seeing 212 former players and coaches who played at Fenway walk onto the field. Those players included everyone Hall of Famers like outfielder Carl "Yaz" Yastrzemski and second baseman Bobby Doerr to players who only played in a handful of games in a Red Sox uniform like relief pitcher Scott Schoeneweis.

Sweeney said the players he liked seeing the most were outfielders Jim Rice and Dwight Evans and pitchers Jim Lonborg and Pedro Martinez. Walsh was happy to see Lonborg and Yastrzemski, because both were members of 1967's "Impossible Dream" team that won the American League Pennant and became the first Red Sox team to make the World Series since 1946. She said she started following the team that season.

"I liked seeing Yaz and Lonborg," Walsh said Monday. "Because 1967 was the year I discovered the Red Sox. We started calling them the 'Cardiac Kids'."

Before the game, Walsh, her husband Tom, and her son got a special tour around Fenway Park, including access to the field, courtesy of a police officer that knew them. During the game, they sat along the third baseline.

Walsh said she enjoyed the music at the event. Music from Field of Dreams, The Natural, and Jurassic Park played as the 200-plus players and coaches took the field. That was followed by the Boston Pops performance of "Fanfare for Fenway," a piece written and conducted by five-time Academy Award winner John Williams. The orchestra, led by Keith Lockhart, then played the national anthem followed by Williams' "Hymn to New England."

"It was orchestrated to perfection, very well planned," Walsh said.

Neither Sweeney nor Walsh would've changed anything about the ceremony.

"I don't know what else they could've done," Sweeney said.

Walsh said she would only change one thing about the day — the outcome of the game. After the anniversary celebration, the home team proceeded to lose the game 6-2 to the rival Yankees.

GREGORY WALSH got the opportunity to go on the field at Fenway Park. Walsh and his parents were on hand to experience the 100th anniversary celebration of Boston's "lyric little bandbox of a ballpark." Over 200 former Red Sox players were on hand to celebrate the momentous occasion.

Busy May For Local Baseball Teams

By SEAN BRENNAN

Held over the April vacation week at Adams Field, the Quincy Baseball Tournament featured Quincy and North Quincy as well as neighboring Weymouth and Milton in a round robin format.

And when all was said and done, it was Milton that was crowned champions.

The Mustangs advanced into the championship round against North Quincy (a 1-0 winner over Quincy in the first round) following a 2-0 win over Weymouth on April 17. The Red Raiders and Milton played to a 0-0 score through two innings, but in the third, Milton used a two-run rally to go ahead 2-0.

Connor Regan reached base after being plunked and Justin Curley advanced him into scoring position with a base hit. Both runners came around to score on a RBI single from Nate Breslin. The Mustangs added another run in the fourth and two more in the fifth, but the Red Raiders (1-4) staged a rally of their own.

The biggest hit for North Quincy came off the bat off senior Tyler Braun (2-run single), which cut the Milton lead to two runs, but the Mustangs held on to win 7-3.

In the consolation game, Quincy dropped an 8-5 decision to Weymouth.

Looking Forward

Despite the slow starts for both North Quincy and Quincy baseball, there is time left to make a late-season charge toward the postseason.

Rainouts on Monday forced both programs to reschedule games versus Patriot League foes Hanover (North Quincy) and Whitman-Hanson (Quincy), but the Red Raiders and Presidents jump right back into the fray this week.

On Wednesday, North Quincy hosted Duxbury and on Friday the team makes the trip to Middleboro to play the Sachems. Next week, the Red Raiders play at Whitman-Hanson (April 30) before hosting Scituate on May 2. North Quincy travels to Pembroke on May 4.

The month of May continues with away games at Silver Lake (May 7), Hingham (May 9), and Duxbury (May 11). A home tilt with Whitman-Hanson on May 15 is followed with an away game at nonleague Brockton.

North Quincy Jayvee Baseball

The 2012 edition of the North Quincy jayvee baseball program sports 12 new players this spring. The team returns four players off last year's squad.

Through four games the Red Raiders (0-4) are winless, but steady progress is being made every day in practice. The following are results off these early season games:

NQ vs. Marshfield

Bryan Turner was the tough-luck losing pitcher as North Quincy fell to Marshfield, 4-0. Turner was solid on the bump. He allowed five hits, issuing no walks and striking out nine.

Offensively, Matt Monahan led the Raiders with a single and a double, Sean Egan (double), and Scott Higgins and Evan Feinberg who both finished with a single each.

NQ vs. Brockton

The Red Raiders lost to the Boxers, 9-3.

Matt Monahan took the loss on the mound, but pitched well. He struck out eight, walked five and allowed seven hits. Scott Higgins powered the offense with two hits and a run scored and Monahan had a triple and two RBI.

Brendan Therrien finished with a hit and a RBI while Joe Hutchins and Sam Grossfeld each had a single.

NQ vs. Quincy

North Quincy lost a last inning 4-2 decision to cross town rival Quincy.

The Red Raiders scored their runs in the fourth inning to tie the game at 2-2. Trevor Carey and Matty Deagle had the run-scoring base hits for North Quincy.

NQ vs. Silver Lake

The Red Raiders fell to 0-4 following an 11-0 loss to Silver Lake.

For North Quincy, Evan Feinberg had two singles, Matty Deagle, Brian Ayers and Bubba Therrien each chipped in with a hit.

Second baseman Joe Hutchins, who turned two unassisted double plays, was the defensive start of the game for the Red Raiders.

Sox Assign Biagini To Elmira Class A

By SEAN BRENNAN

North Quincy's Bob Biagini, who made an impression on everyone, including Quincy's Sam Mele and Ted Williams, at the Red Sox spring training camp in Winter Haven, Florida, is now in St. Petersburg for an extension of spring training until June.

Biagini will be the report to the Sox' Elmira, New York, Class A team in the New York Penn League, managed by Dick Berardino.

"I tell you, Bobby looks great all the time," said Mele, a special assignment scout and batting instructor for the Sox.

Williams was just as enthused as Mele. "I love Biagini. He's as good a hitter at that stage as I've ever seen. There's nothing I could show him because he's got damn near classic swing already."

Biagini was an outstanding catcher in the Suburban League the past two years, hitting over .500 for North Quincy.

PITCHING OUT OF TROUBLE

As the incidence of obesity among children and young adults rises alarmingly, no one is going to argue that exercise is not a good thing. However, it is certainly possible to get too much of a good thing. Such is the case with young baseball pitchers who throw too many pitches. Research involving healthy male pitchers aged 9 to 14 years shows that those playing more than 100 innings per year had 3.5 times the risk of suffering serious elbow injuries compared with pitchers playing fewer innings. The simple fact is that developing bodies often cannot withstand the accumulated forces placed upon them by forceful repetitive motions. Chiropractors are expert in averting and treating sports-related muscle and joint injuries.

The 2012 Quincy Recreation Department George Dunn Basketball Tournament championship belongs to Atlantic Red following a 47-44 win over defending champions Snug Harbor.

The tournament championship, which is for high school-aged participants, saw Atlantic Red's Matt Gerakis (12 points, eight free throws) and Matt McPhail (11 points) score a combined 23 points while Anthony Green and Solomon Umoren took the pressure off the two leading scorers with ten points each.

Cole Barrett chipped in with six points on two 3-pointers; Jackie Chen added four points and Kevin Pillone scored a bucket. Emmitt Harrow and Mike Boretti were the defensive specialist for Atlantic Red.

Coach Joe MacRitchie commented on his team's defense and ball handling skills throughout the championship round. Greg Clarke and Kyle Richardson assisted MacRitchie during the tournament.

Snug Harbor, coached by Paul Carson, fought back in the second half after falling behind in the first, but despite the high-scorer James Lan's 15-point effort, Snug Harbor was unable to come up with the victory. Rafeal Santang contributed 11 points; Jordan Creech chipped in seven points; Jonathan Fabian buried two first half 3-pointers; Reda Laftih added six points and Andrew Bell added a basket to round out the score.

George Dunn Semifinals

For The First Time In Program History There Will Be A Junior Team Changes Coming For Morrisette Legion Baseball

By SEAN BRENNAN

Last July when the final strike was called, Morrisette's season came to a sudden end with a 5-2 loss to South Attleboro in the 2011 Massachusetts American Legion State Finals.

That loss closed the book on a very successful chapter in Morrisette history. Morrisette finished District 6 East play with a 15-3 record before sweeping Franklin (2-0) in the Zone 6 best-of-three playoffs before knocking off Hawkeye, Hyde Park and Somerset in the South Sectionals to advance, for the first time since 1995, into the state final round.

But as is the case every year, change is coming.

However, when the season begins on June 7 at Cohasset, Morrisette Legion should once again be considered a favorite to compete for a District 6 title, but the cast of characters will be different.

What else will be different this year is that Morrisette will be fielding a Junior Legion program for the first time. This team will be made up of fifteen 15-17-year olds that will play other local Junior Legion teams in the area.

"This is a new program for Morrisette," said Manager Steve Maze on Tuesday. "As far as Junior Legion itself, it has been around a few years, and this was something we really wanted to get involved with."

"This program will allow me to know what (quality of ballplayers) are coming up," continued Maze. "The basis of Junior Legion is not to take kids from other programs, it is so these kids can practice with (my Senior Legion team). I want to see kids in game situations at the legion level to know that next year they are maybe ready to play for us. I am just trying to build a program and if I have the opportunity to make two teams (a Junior and Senior), kind of like a feeder system, than I am going to do it."

The junior team will play a 22-game season against some of the best talent around. It was time for Morrisette to jump onboard.

"Most of the teams in District 6 West have it," Maze added. "The only teams in District 6 East that have it are ourselves, Cohasset and Holbrook but it is definitely the way it is going."

"If you are a baseball player and you know that you want to play at the best level possible," continued Maze about the benefits of 15-17-year olds playing at the legion level, "legion baseball is the way to go. I could give you a list of 20 guys who played or are playing college baseball who played for my program. If you can play legion, you can play college ball and that is what I want to do: I want to build college baseball players."

Rick Beach will coach the Junior Legion team under the same rules and regulations Maze and his coaching staff use at the senior level. This consistency is binding. Representing the Morrisette-way should only help to improve the program as a whole.

"I would expect this team to play at the highest level, get into the tournament and go from there," Maze said about first-year expectations for the junior team before adding, "These players and these coaches will be held to the same standards as my team."

The caveat about the program this season is that anyone who wants to play Morrisette Junior Legion is required to tryout with the entire field of candidates for Senior and Junior Legion starting Saturday, May 26 at O'Rourke Field (noon). There will not be a separate Junior Legion tryout.

Maze and his staff will select an 18-member senior team and the 15-member junior team from the players who are at tryouts, which continue every Saturday and Sunday throughout the month.

"If you have aspirations of playing high-level baseball, if you want to get better this summer and learn the game of baseball you need to tryout for Morrisette," said Maze. "Everyone will tryout out together and we will go from there."

'Time Is Ripe' For Promoting Bicycling In Quincy

Quincy bicyclists, residents, and elected officials met April 19 at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 308 West Squantum St., for an initial discussion of the needs and concerns of bicyclists in Quincy.

Among those who participated in the meeting were Quincy City Councilors Doug Gutro and Kevin Coughlin.

Pastor Nathan Piphlo led the meeting and began by sharing several reasons the time is ripe for promoting bicycling in Quincy.

The redevelopment plans of the New Quincy Center and Adams Green include bicycle lanes and the Quincy Planning Department received grants over the past couple years to install bike racks on several city properties.

With gas prices climbing to over $4 gallon, residents are considering alternatives to automobiles. Neighboring communities have made dramatic improvements to their bicycle infrastructures. Boston has installed over 50 miles of bike lanes in the past four years and has worked with thousands of its residents in educational, safety, and promotional events. With the August completion of the major reconstruction of the Neponset River Bridge, Quincy will be linked to Boston's bike infrastructure in a safe and attractive way. Milton also has recently installed an extensive network of bike lanes and one participant suggested that he often rides out of Quincy into Milton to take advantage of them. Developing Quincy's infrastructure to match those of neighboring communities has a variety economic and health benefits.

In the conversation following the presentation, a range of issues and possibilities were discussed, including the need for a Quincy Transportation Committee with a Bicycle Subcommittee. Upcoming road work on Adams Street and Sea Street were identified as "low-hanging fruit" where bicycle lanes could be incorporated into designs by the Department of Public Works before repaving occurs. The rights and responsibilities of both bicyclists and motorists were acknowledged.

To earn respect of motorists, bicyclists need to obey traffic laws, and educational events for children and youth are needed to instill safe bicycle habits. It was noted that currently one Quincy Elementary School principal discourages students from biking to school out of concerns for their safety.

The group was encouraged by Mary Smith of the Quincy Planning Department to be in conversation with the Metro Area Planning Committee (MAPC) which is working right now to identify bike routes in Quincy to connect with regional routes through the area. The economic impact of connecting Quincy's historic and cultural sites with those of Boston by bicycle was also stressed. With an increasing number of tourists exploring Boston by bicycle, infrastructure improvements would draw them and their tourist dollars into Quincy. To make the most impact, the need for partnerships was identified - between bicyclists and motorists, residents and City Officials, Quincy and surrounding communities.

The next meeting for Quincy residents interested in promoting bicycling is set for Thursday, May 17 at 7:00pm at 308 West Squantum Street (Good Shepherd Lutheran Church). For more information, contact Pr. Nathan Piphlo at bikingquincy@gmail.com or by phone at 617-471-0258.

Students At North Quincy High Making History

By EMILY TAFT

Mayor Thomas Koch recently recognized the North Quincy High School History Bee and Bowl State Champions.

Koch spoke with the 20 students, 12 of which will be making the trip to Washington D.C. this weekend, about the competition and some of the history questions they had to answer.

"As the mayor and the chairperson of the school committee, I am extremely proud of our students in all of our schools," said Koch. "It is certainly a highlight when occasions like this come about. They made us proud at the State level, and they will continue to make us proud at the National level. I hope they will encourage others to enjoy history as much as they do."

North Quincy High history teachers and team organizers Mera Kriz and Danielle Fernandez work together to teach the students and have helped the students make the trip to Nationals.

"Our school is very proud of their achievements," said Fernandez. "We are very excited for Nationals."

During their visit with Koch, the students spoke about the fact that their success could not have been possible without the help, and guidance of their teachers.

"We never could have done this without our coaches," said team member Tessie McGough. "They deserve a lot of credit as well."

North Quincy High School junior Timothy Bill is hoping to become a part of the school's history by winning the Bee on April 28. This will be Bill's second trip to the National competition; he has come in first in the state individual competition for the past two years.

"I have always been into history, even as a little kid I would read random historical information," said Bill. "Something always interested me about history, from the very beginning."

Bill will also compete in the History Bowl, a team competition, with a number of other students from North Quincy High. Two varsity teams and one jayvee team along with Bill advanced to the national round after competing in the statewide History Bowl, and Bee on Jan. 28. Seven teams of four participated from North Quincy in the History Bowl, and 27 students entered into the individual competition, the History Bee.

"Last year was the first year of the National History Bowl and Bee we had three teams that qualified for nationals but we only took one team. The event is rather expensive so we basically said to the students that if you could get down there we could participate," said Kriz. "This year the event is even more expensive and we are kind of saying the same thing as before, if the students can get down there then we will be able to participate. We will try to fund raise but I'm not sure how much we will be able to get."

Last year, only three families made the trip to nationals and the team finished 22 out of 72 teams; Bill made it to the semi-finals before being eliminated from the competition. This year the hope is that more students will be able to participate and that the team and individual competitors will be able to place higher than last year.

"I would like to win, and I would like to see everyone else do well too," said Bill. "It is nice to be able to spend that time with other people from my school, and see them succeed."

So far Bill has been able to see his classmates succeed right along side of him. North Quincy students swept both the History Bee by winning at the varsity level with Bill, and at the jayvee level with Joe Nelson, and the History Bowl competition by winning at both the varsity and jayvee level for Massachusetts.

If Bill wins the individual competition he will advance to the Europe Championships, in June, which takes place at the Institute Fenelon in Grasse, France.

"My goal is to win," said Bill. "No matter how I do though, I will be proud of my accomplishments."

Although this is only the second year for the two competitions, the North Quincy students are the front-runners for national.

"We could potentially win nationals, and that is the goal we set for ourselves," said Kriz. "With Tim being a part of our team, and certainly in the individual competition, it seems like a really achievable goal."

Students who wanted to participate in the competitions had to take a placement test so Kriz could place them onto the appropriate teams. During the competition, the teams and individual students go through four rounds of questions, gaining points for each correct answer. They begin by facing off against 10 other students from different schools, and as they advance the number of competitors dwindles down. The winner is determined by the number of points received by the end of the competition.

"They have rounds where they are asked 30 questions per round," said Kriz. "Once they answer eight questions in the round then they make it to the next round. Tim would answer eight questions by question 11."

For Bill it was the pieces of history he has yet to read or learn about that proved to be the most challenging and nerve-racking part of the competition.

"The most challenging questions are the ones I haven't learned or heard of yet, and the areas I don't know much about, such as American History after the Civil War," said Bill. "It can be a bit challenging, but I have to have confidence in the fact that I have studied outside of school as well as in school."

Kriz said that although they teach the students what is part of the curriculum in school they don't hold after-school practice sessions to study for the competitions.

"Sometimes the questions are so innate that you can't teach them in a classroom," said Kriz. "We let them study on their own in order to retain more information."

Bill said he has the help of his parents when it comes to studying for the competition.

"They have been very supportive and very proud of me," said Bill. "They are always asking me history questions to help me study."

Along with answering history questions, Bill participates in a lot of activities through out school, including being a part of the math team, band, choir, and participating in the academic decathlon.

"A lot of kids here at North Quincy seem to do it all," said North Quincy High School Principal Earl Metzler. "Tim is only a junior and he is going on as one of the favorites for nationals. He is a very interesting and smart guy, and a great representative for our school."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Temper your typical Aries urge to charge into a situation and demand answers. Instead, let the Lamb's gentler self emerge to deal with a problem that requires delicacy.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You are aware of what's going on, so continue to stand by your earlier decision, no matter how persuasive the counter-arguments might be. Money pressures soon will ease.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) By all means, have fun and enjoy your newly expanded social life. But don't forget that some people are depending on you to keep promises that are very important to them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You need to wait patiently for an answer to a workplace problem and not push for a decision. Remember: Time is on your side. A financial matter needs closer attention.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You now have information that can influence that decision you planned to make. But the clever Cat will consult a trusted friend or family member before making a major move.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Good news: You're finding that more doors are opening for you to show what you can do, and you don't even have to knock very hard to get the attention you're seeking.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your gift for creating order out of chaos will help you deal with a sudden rush of responsibilities that would threaten someone less able to balance his or her priorities.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Congratulations. Your energy levels are coming right back up to normal -- just in time to help you tackle some worthwhile challenges and make some important choices.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The sage Sagittarian should demand a full explanation of inconsistencies that might be cropping up in what had seemed to be a straightforward deal.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A conflict between obligations to family and to the job can create stressful problems. Best advice: Balance your dual priorities so that one doesn't outweigh the other.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't guess, speculate or gossip about that so-called "mystery" situation at the workplace. Bide your time. An explanation will be forthcoming very soon.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Boredom might be creeping in and causing you to lose interest in a repeat project. Deal with it by flipping over your usual routine and finding a new way to do an old task.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can warm the coldest heart with your lyrical voice and bright smile. You find yourself at home, wherever you are.

Council Overhauls Water Service Code

readings each and every day," Raymondi said at March meeting. "The system is changing and obviously things that might've been codified 15 or 20 years no longer serve our customers in the modern era."

The new code gives Raymondi the ability to fine water customers $25 a day if they refuse access to their property for the purposes of inspecting water meters, pipes, or other equipment used for water supply. The same measure would also allow the city to place a lien on any property whose owner doesn't pay their water bill within 60 days.

The ordinance had been held up because it originally would've allowed Raymondi to set 39 fees relating to water service. In March, several councillors objected to authorizing the commissioner to set fees, fearing that adopting the state law granting department heads that power would unintentionally allow other department heads in the city to change fees their departments charge without council approval.

"At first blush," Councillor Doug Gutro said at the prior meeting, "it sounds like we're giving up an extraordinary amount of discretion and oversight and we're doing it under the guise of providing flexibility to our department heads to use their discretion in public works, but it may well have far-reaching implications that frankly take this body out of setting fees or approving fees across the spectrum of departments."

It was amended Monday night so that council would retain its ability to set the fees, though Raymondi will still be responsible for setting the rate for water service users.

As part of the overhaul, the city will now also be able to place liens on property whose owner fails to pay any of the 39 fees. Under state law, the council had to take a separate vote on each charge to authorize the liens, and the council approved every one by a 9-0 vote.

While the council approved by the rewrite of the water code and the ability to place liens for each of the 39 charges, they did not set the fees. Whether or not the council voted to set the fees became an issue after Raymondi thanked the council for approving the measures but said they hadn't voted on the fees themselves.

"I appreciate the work of the council and these are significant initiatives," Raymondi said. "It's been over two decades since we recodified the water ordinance so I really appreciate that. Even though we have a disagreement on the setting of the charges I respect the wish of the council to do that. But you have to do that. You have passed the ordinance that authorizes the council to set the charges and you've approved the liens once those charges are set...the third ingredient is that the City Council now has to go through and set the charges."

There was confusion over the issue because Raymondi had attached to each of the 39 items a recommended, but there was no language specifically authorizing it. City Solicitor Jim Timmins recommended that fees be approved in a separate vote at the next council meeting.

New Rules For Donation Bins

introduced amendments to the ordinance limiting ownership of bins to registered non-profits and tripling the $50 fee Coughlin had proposed.

It restricts the type of bins that may be used, allowing only bins that don't allow people access to their inside compartment. It further restricts bins to non-residential property within a Business A, B, or C zoning district that doesn't abut a residential neighborhood; limits bins to three per lot; limits their size to five feet long by five feet wide with a maximum height of six feet; says they must not take up parking spaces in lot if that leaves fewer than required parking spaces available; and says that criminal background checks need to be conducted before a license is granted.

Before the final vote was taken Monday, Coughlin's colleagues praised him for his work putting the ordinance together.

"I just want to congratulate Councillor Coughlin on that," Councillor-at-Large Doug Gutro said. "For the record, I was approached by a selectman in Acton that read about the donation bin ordinance and there's a preponderance of them that are happening throughout the state and they contacted Councillor Coughlin to get his ordinance and figure out how their community as well could manage the issue...thank you for your leadership."

"I also wanted to recognize Councillor Coughlin for the hard work he did researching elements of that," McNamee said. "I know it wasn't easy to get that precise balance but as many of you know I work in the City of Salem and Salem has an absolute epidemic of these appearing everywhere and it is significant visual blight to a community and I commend you on the efforts you made to address this - I think you did a great job."

Marina Bay Vietnam Veterans Clock Tower Marks 25 Years

MARINA BAY VIETNAM Veterans Memorial Clock Tower on Victory Road will mark its 25th anniversary at a ceremony today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. at the clock tower. Special guest for the event is Medal of Honor recipient Paul W. Bucha who served as a captain in the Army during the Vietnam War. The grounds of the clock tower have been spruced up including two sets of six flag poles (one on either side) that fly flags of the five Armed Services and the Prisoner of War/Missing in Action Flag. The flags at the left are (from left) U.S. Marines, U.S. Navy, U.S. Air Force, Coast Guard and POW/MIA. Not visible is the flag of the U.S. Army.

THE NAMES OF 48 Quincy men who were casualties of the Vietnam War are inscribed on one side of the marble and brick 110-foot Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower in Marina Bay. At the time of its dedication in October, 1987, the Clock Tower cost $500,000 and was the only privately funded Vietnam Memorial in the United States. The tower is capped off by a white cupola with gold leaf dome and also features a working clock on all four sides. The memorial was funded by the O'Connell Management Company. The keynote speaker at its dedication 25 years ago was William Westmoreland, retired United States Army General.

City To Defend Reponsible Employer Ordinance On Central

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city plans to continue to defend its Responsible Employer Ordinance despite a preliminary injunction issued against it last week.

The 2010 ordinance requires that 33 percent of workers on each contracted project be Quincy residents. It also mandated that each contractor maintain an apprenticeship program, and provide pension and health benefits to employees. A group of plaintiffs referred to as the Merit Construction Alliance sued the city over the law, claiming that residency requirement violated the U.S. Constitution and the pension and health requirements violated the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA). Their suit was based on a previous one in Fall River, in which a similar ordinance was struck down.

Last Wednesday, U.S. District Judge Rya Zobel — who also presided over the Fall River case — ruled in favor of the plaintiffs, finding that their case was “likely to succeed on the merits” and issued a preliminary injunction barring Quincy from enforcing the ordinance.

But City Solicitor Jim Timmins said Monday the city will continue to press its case. He said Mayor Tom Koch is committed to keeping the residency apprenticeship requirement in place, though the city won't fight for the health and pension requirements as they realized the ordinance couldn't pre-empt ERISA, which doesn't mandate healthcare for employees.

“We reviewed the earlier decision in the Fall River case,” Timmins said. “We realized that we can't enforce the pension and healthcare parts of the law, but the apprenticeship and residents requirements are worth fighting for.”

The impetus for the project is the construction of the new Central Middle School. Timmins has maintained that the lawsuit won't slow construction of the school, as the city anticipated the suit and added a built-in time buffer. Each bidder on the Central project received notice after the injunction was issued that the city wouldn't enforce the ordinance when issuing the contract, according to Timmins. It also won't affect the redevelopment of Quincy Center, as that project is being undertaken by a private developer and not the city.

The injunction also gave 14 days for the city and plaintiffs to prepare a jointly submitted proposed order. It will outline how the parties plan on working together, and how Quincy would proceed in regards to the ordinance.

“The judge wants us to specify how it is, moving forward, the parties are going to work with each other and how Quincy is going to deal with the fact that it's got this ordinance on the books but it's been found to be unconstitutional,” Timmins said.

That order is due Wednesday, May 2nd. Timmins said he expects the judge to okay the order without a hearing. He added the next hearing on the case isn't imminent.

Guest Speaker Paul Bucha At 25th Anniversary Of Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower:

'Lead A Life Worthy Of The Sacrifice These Men Made For Us'

By EMILY TAFT

At a ceremony at Marina Bay commemorating the 25th anniversary of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower, guest speaker Capt. Paul W. Bucha, a U.S. Army Medal of Honor recipient, spoke of leading a life worthy of the sacrifice those in uniform have made for this country.

"Let's all leave here dedicated to one simple proposition, that we lead our lives from this moment on worthy of the sacrifice that these men made for us along with countless others across this nation, in war after war,"

Bucha said at the April 26th ceremony. "Let's lead a life worthy of that sacrifice, not a life that is convenient and comfortable for each and every one of us."

The ceremony, attended by many state and local officials along with veterans of wars past and present, celebrated the 25th anniversary of the clock tower, which was built in 1987 and bears the names of the 48 Quincy men who died during the Vietnam War. During the ceremony there was a firing volley by the 2nd Marine Division and 'Taps' was

FY 2013 Spending Plan Presented To Council Monday No Layoffs, Small Growth In Mayor's Budget

Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday that the new City budget he will present to the public and the City Council next week will include no layoffs while continuing to keep property tax growth millions of dollars under state limits.

Mayor Koch is saving specifics of the spending plan until his annual budget presentation before the City Council on Monday night, but he indicated that the Fiscal Year 2013 budget, which begins July 1, will continue the City's financial arc through the worst economy since the Great Depression.

"We are stable and the economy is certainly improving, but it would be foolish for anyone to think we are totally in the clear," said Mayor Koch. "We are being responsible and cautious, knowing that everything we do must be sustainable for the long-term. It's going to be a tight bottom line, but we will be making new investments in education, public safety and infrastructure."

The most positive thing about this year's months-long budget process inside the administration, Koch said, was that "our decisions our now about what we can afford to add, not about what we need to cut."

The spending plan for the Fiscal Year beginning in July will continue an Administration fiscal policy that has seen City build one of the largest pots of untapped property tax increases in the entire state. The measurement, called excess levy capacity, is the amount the City is legally allowed to collect in property taxes but doesn't.

Almost every City and Town in Massachusetts collects property taxes to the maximum level allowed by law, and only the City of Cambridge has a higher uncollected reserve.

The policy has saved homeowners hundreds of dollars on property tax bills over the last several years, and has led to the among the lowest average home tax increases over the last three years in the state, the mayor's office said.

New Bad Check Restitution Program

DA Morrissey Offers Businesses A Better Way To Get Their Money Back

District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey launched a new way for Norfolk County businesses to deal with bad checks this week.

"The existing ways of dealing with bounced checks has left a lot of merchants, tradesmen and small businesses frustrated and still out their money," Morrissey said. "This kind of crime is an indirect theft from the honest customers who have to pay higher prices to cover the loss. We wanted to find a good way to deal with bad checks."

Morrissey developed the program with five key components:

- Bad check reports are easy to file and follow-up action is prompt.
- Upon recovery, 100 percent of the face value of the check is returned to the victim.
- There is no minimum dollar restriction.
- Bad check offenders must complete an educational class at their own expense.

NORFOLK COUNTY Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey launched his new Bad Check Restitution Program at a meeting with three dozen Norfolk County merchants held this week at Legacy Place in Dedham. From left are: Rep. Paul McMurtry of Dedham, Legacy Place GM Beth Winbourne, DA Morrissey, Director of Security for Legacy Place Mike Blanchette, GM of Showcase Cinema de Lux Kim Howland and Stewart Rappaport, Director of Operations at Legacy Place.

• The program operates at no cost to the county or the taxpayers.

Morrissey invited businesses wanting more information, or to access the program, to visit www.norfolkda.com and follow the link at the center of the page.

"The objective is to make merchants whole and to give offenders some education on the consequences of passing bad checks. Many falsely believe they are committing a victimless crime," Morrissey said. "The benefit to the offender is that, if they cooperate, in many instances they can avoid criminal prosecution."

Morrissey announced the launch of his Bad Check

Restitution Program last week as part of the Retail Crime Prevention Seminar he brought to Dedham's Legacy Place merchants meeting. Morrissey has previously held retail crime prevention and prosecution seminars at the South Shore Plaza, Patriot Place and the Wrentham Premium Outlets.

Determined to pay off your mortgage as quickly as possible? This loan is for you!

There are so many good reasons to love the 10-Year Mortgage. For some people, it's about being debt-free. Others want the mortgage paid off by the time the kids go to college or before they retire. Some see paying off their mortgage quickly as a kind of "forced" savings. Here's the simple fact: If you can swing the somewhat-higher monthly payments, a 10-Year Mortgage knocks years off your original loan. Your equity builds very quickly. And you pay thousands less in interest, compared to a longer-term mortgage loan. Rates are still at historic lows. How much longer? Who knows. If a 10-Year sounds good to you, let's talk. Soon! Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com. (Have another loan or term in mind? 'Champions Of Freedom' Forever

When it comes to its veterans, Quincy doesn't forget. There are numerous traffic islands and green spaces throughout the city dedicated in memory of local veterans, many of whom paid the supreme sacrifice defending democracy and preserving freedom.

Many monuments have also been erected as testament to the brave men and women who have fought gallantly in our nation's wars.

One of those monuments, the Marina Bay Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower, marked its 25th anniversary with ceremonies last Thursday.

It's hard to believe that two and a half decades have passed since the clock tower was dedicated on a blustery October day in 1987.

But anyone in the standing-room-only crowd who attended will never forget it.

As more than 1,000 watched from the boardwalk, retired U.S. General William Westmoreland dedicated the tower. He offered kind, noble sentiments to the men and women who served and sacrificed their lives during the Vietnam War.

His words then still resonate loudly and truly today.

"This is a time to remember, a time to understand. This is a time to appreciate.

"This is not a wake, it's not a time for mourning.

"It's a time to express our pride in those who have served their country and paid the full price of freedom that sometimes has to be paid," the retired general said.

Westmoreland, who was 73 years old at the time of the dedication, served as commander of American forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968.

The 90-minute ceremony featured a long procession of dignitaries, members of all Armed Services color guards, various veterans groups, and Gold Star families, relatives of the deceased or missing servicemen.

Others who attended included members of the Quincy Fire and Police Department, Sen. Paul Harold, Mayor Francis McCauley and Bernard Cardinal Law who arrived by helicopter minutes before the 11 a.m. ceremony and delivered the invocation.

Westmoreland had been invited to be the keynote speaker by Peter O'Connell, one of the key organizers of the effort to build the $500,000 privately-funded memorial.

"We made the right contacts and we let the general know the scale of the memorial which had interested his people a lot because at the time he said outside of Washington it was the nicest memorial to the Vietnam veterans in existence," O'Connell said recently.

"Today, the memorial remains a very impressive structure and honors the young men who gave their lives and who served in Vietnam. It recognizes that the Vietnam War carried such a human price. Look at our city - 48 were killed."

With an overflow crowd gathered near the memorial, there was a palpable anticipation of Westmoreland's remarks. Here - in the City of Quincy - was one of America's most iconic figures in its military history. The U.S. Army 4-Star General had commanded U.S. military operations in the Vietnam War at its peak. The highly decorated general had also served as U.S. Army Chief of Staff from 1968 to 1972.

But first, it was time to dedicate the memorial.

Westmoreland and Thomas O'Connell of the O'Connell Development Company unveiled the 46 names of Quincy residents (now 48) who died or are missing in action while serving in Vietnam. The names are engraved on one side of the 110-foot tower.

Then, it was Westmoreland's time to speak.

And everyone listened.

Describing the Vietnam veterans as "gallant," Westmoreland said history may judge American aid to South Vietnam as one of its most "noble causes."

Westmoreland said the U.S. was a "strong nation helping an inspiring nation to reach a point where it had some reasonable chance to achieve and keep a degree of freedom and human condition."

"At last," Westmoreland said, "America and the world are beginning to realize that America was not defeated militarily on the battlefield in Vietnam. When the North Vietnamese came down with 16 divisions and overran South Vietnam, we had no American troops on the battlefield. They had been gone for two years.

48 Names On Vietnam Memorial

The Marina Bay Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower was dedicated 25 years ago this October "in sorrow, gratitude and pride to the citizens of Quincy who gave their lives while serving their country in the Vietnam War.

The 48 names listed on memorial today are:

"The American military," Westmoreland emphasized, "did not lose a battle of any consequence in Vietnam. The American military was not defeated."

Westmoreland, who served during World War II, Korea and Vietnam, said he personally believed the Vietnam veteran deserves more praise than "his veteran father and grandfather" of World War II and Korea because he fought a war without public support.

Westmoreland concluded by saying Quincy residents who died serving in Vietnam made the ultimate sacrifice for freedom.

"The names on this monument tell a story of our freedom. The fathers and grandfathers and the men whose names are inscribed on this monument came from many places, from many societies.

"They came here to America to build a nation, and to create a free society. And they have succeeded," Westmoreland told onlookers.

"They have also demonstrated their love for freedom. They have fought for it, and they have died for it.

"They, as their forebearers, are America at its best. They are truly the champions of freedom."

After the names were unveiled, Westmoreland also helped place a yellow and red flowered wreath at the foot of the memorial. Taps played followed by a 17-gun salute.

The retired general also presented roses to Gold Star women in the audience.

Westmoreland died in 2005. And many of those proud veterans of all wars who attended the original dedication 25 years ago are no longer with us, either.

Time marches on.

But the memory of those 48 names on the clock tower - and the important words spoken at that dedication day 25 years ago - should live on forever.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1960 postcard published by The Hollow Restaurant that was located at 516 Adams St. near Furnace Brook Parkway. In the 1930's, the restaurant's owners - Adams and Grace Lucason - had bought an ice cream and sandwich shop named The Warfield Co. that had been built on top of a culvert that carries the Furnace Brook under Adams Street. The brook meanders along the Parkway down from its source at St. Moritz pond. From the mid 1800's the brook was used to create an ice pond in the area along the Parkway between Adams Street and O'Rourke Field. In the 1930's the ice pond was owned by the Granite City Ice Company, previously known as the Eaton and the Meadowbrook Ice Companies. They had a large ice storage house in what is now Walgreens parking lot. After the ice company converted to ice-making refrigerators the pond was drained. About 1940 the Lucasons built their restaurant in the hollow where the Warfield was, followed a few years later by the Meadowbrook Apartments built around the perimeter of the old ice pond. This postcard shows the front dining room portion of the restaurant on the bottom and The Adams function room that was in the rear of the top. They also had a popular lounge and bar that featured piano music seven nights a week. The lounge's motto was "Have A Swallow - At the Hollow." From its beginning, the restaurant never closed for a day until the Blizzard of '78. In 1999, the Hollow was sold and then went through three different restaurant themes until it was demolished a few months ago to make room for a TD Bank branch. Says Ayotte, Snowe Are Good GOP VP Prospects

A few months back I ended up in a point-counterpoint Letter to the Editor discussion over who should be the Republican presidential nominee. The point guy was Frank McCauley and as usually I was the counterpoint guy.

Mayor McCauley was supporting Mitt Romney at the time and I was a Rick Santorum supporter.

Last week's paper carried McCauley's latest letter in support of former Governor and Fox News Network show host Mike Huckabee as an ideal running mate for Romney. Once again, I beg to differ. Frank is a dye-in-the-wool Republican while I am a Reagan Democrat. If Romney needs Huckabee to win in November, he is in real trouble. Southern voters should be automatically casting ballots for Romney over Obama.

As a conservative Democrat, I will not be voting for President Obama and really have no realistic alternative but to put a clothespin on my nose and support Romney. However, Romney does need a good Republican running mate but Huckabee isn't it. I believe Romney needs someone who can attract voters that he has a difficult time doing himself.

I see two good prospects. One is United States Senator Kelly Ayotte (R-New Hampshire), which the Boston Herald touted recently on Page One. The other possible candidate to me would be retiring United States Senator Olympia Snowe (R-Maine).

Snowe might be the stronger of the two possibilities. She is an established moderate within the overly conservative Republican Party. She is often seen in positive bi-partisan terms. She is willing to compromise when necessary. She is like the rest of us, tired of all the rancor and foot stomping preventing government from working on all those major issues caught in this partisan logjam of ours on Capitol Hill.

The Obama Administration is running on a record of failure. We are worse off today than we were four years ago. Mitt Romney summed it all up best when he stated, "It's about the economy and the American people aren't stupid."

Quincy High Celebrates Culture

By DONNA NIOSI

On April 10th, Quincy High celebrated its culture the best way it knows how, through the annual Culture Fair. Each year, students and teachers work together to research a country and then present it to the faculty and student body on a half day.

This year about 30 countries had tables representing them including: Dominican Republic, Italy, Germany, and Poland, just to name a few. Music, dance, sensational food, colorful presentations, and gorgeous attire filled the cafeteria, transforming it into a United Nations. Over 200 students participated as volunteers, learning about countries and sharing their knowledge. The fair took place in the cafeteria, under the eighty flags that proudly hang representing our school's diverse culture.

Students came down during specific times in the day to tour around the world, eat, and learn about what makes Quincy High so unique. A sense of pride filled the school and has continued since that day.

Each year Quincy High has the Cultural Fair, but this year National Honors Society took on the task of planning it. Students stepped up to the challenge and worked hard to put everything together. Advisor Jane Lundquist said she was "extremely impressed by the work and efforts of the students, from both the students who worked to organize the fair and those who volunteered at tables." Some National Honors Society students did both, meaning they volunteered at a country and helped organize the event. Committee Chairperson Donna Niosi, said she is "extremely proud of what we were able to accomplish. We took an annual event and made it our own."

The Cultural Fair was a smashing success. Students and faculty enjoyed the event. It is a staple of the tradition that defines Quincy High. Everyone proudly worked together to share their knowledge and passion of the diverse culture within Quincy High.

Suzie's Super Kale Salad With Quinoa Vegetables Pilaf

Whenever I have lunch or dinner with my daughter Suzie, who is a nutritionist, I know I will be eating a wonderful healthy meal.

And this one day, one of those early summer like days, she served the most delicious kale salad ever.

So right after eating lunch, I got my paper and pencil out for today's recipe.

SUPER KALE SALAD

1 large bunch organic kale
1 small minced shallot
4 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
1 garlic clove (pressed)
Juice of one lemon
1 avocado, chopped
1-teaspoon sea salt
1/3 cup chopped walnuts
1/4 cup goat cheese
1 large shredded carrot
1-teaspoon raw honey
1/2 cup goji berries

Remove center ribs of kale and cut into thin strips. Place kale and shallots in a bowl. Mix together the olive oil, lemon, garlic, honey and salt. Pour over kale mixture and toss to coat thoroughly. Let stand for about an hour. Then add the nuts, cheese, carrot, berries and avocado. Serve and enjoy!

With this she served the following. Equally delicious.

QUINOA VEGETABLE PILAF

1 cup quinoa (resembles couscous)
2 cups chicken broth
2 cloves of garlic (chopped)
1/2 small onion (chopped)
Juice of half lemon
1/2 red pepper (chopped)
Bunch of asparagus (chopped)
Olive oil and butter

Cook the quinoa according to directions using the chicken broth instead of the water. While that is cooking, sauté the garlic, onion and the red pepper. Add the chopped asparagus, lemon juice and cook until the veggies are tender.

When this is done, add the quinoa and mix until well blended. Serve with Parmesan cheese.

Roasted Asparagus With Lemony Breadcrumbs

Years ago my mother bought a magazine called "You Are What You Eat" that I really enjoyed reading. And on the cover was a fresh bunch of asparagus.

A favorite of our family, we usually had creamed asparagus on toast, something I still make and enjoy.

Recently, I found a great recipe for roasted asparagus that hopefully you will enjoy as much as I did. And quite simple to prepare.

Roasted Asparagus

With Lemony Breadcrumbs

2 pounds of asparagus (one or two bunches)
1-tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
Salt and pepper

1/2 cup Panko breadcrumbs (Japanese breadcrumbs)

Juice of 1/2 lemon and the zest

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Asparagus that are roasted on a high temperature guarantees a tender instead of a mushy texture.

Place asparagus on a rimmed baking sheet. Drizzle with olive oil, salt and pepper. Roast until tender (15 to 20 minutes). Transfer to a platter.

For the crumbs, melt the butter on medium heat. Add the Panko and cook until deep golden brown. Remove from heat.

Stir in the lemon juice and zest and blend with the crumbs. Drop over the asparagus when ready to serve so the crumbs will be crunchy and delicious. Enjoy.

Inclined Plane Railway Clean-Up Saturday

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum will participate in Quincy's Cleaner, Greener Day Saturday, May 5 from 9 a.m. to noon.

This year's clean-up will be at the historic Inclined Plane Railway site, located on Mullin Avenue, West Quincy.

The Inclined Plane was designed and built by Solomon Willard in 1830 to bring stone down from Pine Hill Ledge to the Granite Railway system to be transported to the Neponset River for shipment by granite sloops to Charlestown for construction of the Bunker Hill Monument.

The public is welcome to participate in the clean-up and learn a little history of the Inclined Plane Railway.

Volunteers Cleaning 'Quincy Canal' Area

The public is welcome to join a group of volunteers who are cleaning up the area once known as the Quincy Canal.

With recent work to stabilize the world famous Souther Tide Mill, the old Quincy Canal may enjoy a renaissance of sorts. The economic potential of revitalizing this area is endless.

Crews will clean up the trash (which often blows out of people's rubbish barrels and recycling bins) along exposed sections of Town Brook. Right now hundreds of Rainbow Smelts are spawning and it's a wonderful opportunity for the entire family to do a good deed and learn more about your community.

Cleaner, Greener Quincy is the morning of May 5th. Quincy Canal covered a long stretch so residents will be working on the clean-up the entire week before. The city will provide the necessary equipment.

To arrange a time to help or for more information please contact laurainnis@gmail.com.

Noted Forensics Scientist And DNA Expert Dr. Henry Lee Speaker At Quincy College Law Day

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy College welcomed forensic scientist Dr. Henry Lee Tuesday as a part of its Law Day program. Lee spoke about the lessons he has learned from cases, particularly cases involving DNA evidence, and urged students to never give up in their life.

"Never give up. I never give up on any case, because once you give up, you give up on the victim and the victim's family," said Lee. "In your life, don't ever give up, just work hard and continue to work hard."

Throughout his hour-long presentation, Lee discussed how DNA affected the outcome of the many cases he has helped with throughout his 50-year career. Lee serves as the chief emeritus of the Connecticut State Police, and as a faculty member at the University of New Haven where he established the Henry C. Lee College of Criminal Justice & Forensic Sciences, and the Henry C. Lee Institute of Forensic Science.

Dr. Lee has assisted in investigating more than 6,000 criminal cases, many of which have been high profile cases. Those include the O.J. Simpson case, the murder of expecting mother Laci Peterson, the murder of JonBenet Ramsey, and the suicide of Vince Foster, the former White House Attorney for President Bill Clinton.

In talking about each one of those cases, and others like them, Lee noted the importance of DNA samples and in some cases how important it is to look at where the blood lands.

Lee said that when he first began his career in the forensic field DNA testing did not exist until the 1980's when it began to be applied to forensic science.

"DNA was all of the sudden like wild fire," said Lee. "Everybody just rushed to do it and use it in every case possible. DNA has changed the standards of a crime, before DNA you had to have a body, now you don't."

Lee said once DNA stepped into the picture, they were able to use the new science to solve cold cases and wrongfully accused cases.

"When I walk into an amusement park I see DNA. When I walk into a hotel, I see DNA. I have nightmares about DNA," joked Lee. "DNA is very important to an investigation. It can be used to identify in many different ways."

Lee added that DNA becomes particularly important in a case where other traditional identifiers such as finger prints, tattoos, and dental records may not be possible. He said that in several of his cases the DNA samples helped to exclude a suspect, but that it can also help to link the suspect, the victim and the crime scene together. Lee said that the collection of samples at the scene could be very important when it comes to linking those three pieces together and the key is to take the right DNA samples in order to come to a conclusion quicker.

"With forensic work, there are no short cuts," said Lee. "It isn't easy, it is nothing like what they show in the news media or on an episode of CSI where at the end of the day we are finished with our work and eating dinner at a fancy restaurant."

played along with a wreath that was placed at the base of the tower as a part of the military honors.

Quincy Police Officer Don Sautter opened the ceremony by singing the National Anthem.

Mayor Thomas Koch presented a book with the stories of all 48 men listed on the tower, and said that the book was made to tell the stories of every name carved into the granite clock tower.

"It's more than a name etched in the wall, behind every name is a story, and behind every name is a family," said Koch. "It's often said we should never forget, I don't like that term. I think we should always remember."

The audience of over 100 people heard from a number of different speakers including Bernard Edelman, the Department director of Policy and Government Affairs for the Vietnam Veterans of America and the editor of the book Dear America: Letters Home from Vietnam, and Robert Brudno, the brother of E. Alan Brudno, the first name listed on the clock tower. Brudno spoke of the anger and hurt the whole family suffered during and after the Vietnam War. E. Alan Brudno was an Air Force pilot, and Prisoner of War in North Vietnam for seven and a half years.

"It's unimaginable that 25 years ago, that we could even think that our wounds would ever heal," said Robert Brudno. "Every loved one of every man whose name is engraved on this clock tower, grieved alone, or buried their sorrow to try and move on. Feeling better never seemed possible in our minds. Then, 25 years ago, a small group of local Vietnam veterans decided to do something to make sure these men were remembered. It took years before this memorial gained its power to heal."

For guest speaker Bucha, healing from the events that earned him the Medal of Honor has been a long and endless road. In 1968, during his service in Vietnam, Bucha and his company came under fire from a full brigade of NVA soldiers. Bucha crawled on his own towards a bunker 40 meters away, destroying it with grenades, and also stood in full view of enemy snipers while directing helicopters with a flashlight at night. His company, which referred to themselves as the Clerks and Jerks, killed 156 members of the enemy brigade, forcing them to withdraw. He received the Medal of Honor in 1970 from President Richard Nixon.

"We were the last unit formed of all infantry divisions. We were the last company and the last batalion, and the last brigade, we were the leftovers," said Bucha. "I asked them to have one thing with me, and that was a contract to trust, that if they do what I asked of them I would bring them home. They did, I didn't."

"Besides my eight men (who died) there were three men assigned to me for that night, so there are 11 names on a black shiny wall in Washington. They are there because I failed not because of anything they refused to do or could not do. They did everything. At the end of the war Delta Company was among, if not the highest, decorated unit in the Vietnam War."

Bucha spoke of his flight home after the war and watching as the soldiers took out their cloths, wiped away the dirt, polished their shoes, and took out their medals, because they were all proud to be soldiers, and happy to be going home. Bucha went on to add that when they landed, which happened to be at night, there was no one there to welcome them home. Bucha described that one by one the soldiers at the front of the line began to turn around and hug the soldier behind him, welcoming each other home.

"Vietnam veterans greet each other with a hug that says welcome home, and often a whispered I love you. Meaning that love that's so rare and deep, that is forged

WITH THE 48 names of Quincy men who gave their lives while serving their country in the Vietnam War, Mayor Thomas Koch said there is more than a name etched in the wall. "Behind every name is a story, behind every name is a family. . . We should always remember."

in the crucible of combat, where any last breathe might truly be your last, and where your safety and livelihood is in the hands of the man on your left or the man on your right, regardless of the color of his skin or the ethnicity or the religion you may or may not believe in," said Bucha. "It repeated itself all across this nation, and then some places, some special places said that's not good enough. We're going to join the families and the friends of those who served and were going to build them a clock tower, and every year we will come together to say welcome home."

In a speech that brought many to tears, Bucha spoke of how thanking a soldier has changed with each passing war, and urged those in attendance to take the time to really thank those serving.

"These group of veterans are fighting a war that we never saw before. Twenty-four seven they're in combat. These young men and women are coming home from 10 years of combat. It use to be fashionable to say thank you for your service and mean it; it has now become a pejorative term," said Bucha. "You've seen the Budweiser ad where the soldiers walk into the airport and every body stands and claps. It last 13 seconds. Why, on the 14th second, we sit down and start reading our newspapers again? How many times have you seen a person slap a soldier on the back and say welcome home, and not stop and say thank you for serving us, who are you, where are you from, are you married, do you have kids, no I haven't got time for that, but thank you for your service. That's it - I'm done and don't I feel good."

Bucha said he believes it is important to continue to gather and remember those who have fought so bravely, and he is proud that the veterans of Vietnam continue to do that each year.

"The Vietnam veterans didn't need a parade someone else threw for them, we threw our own parades. We didn't need monuments built for us, we built our own monument," said Bucha. "But we took a vow, each and every one of us, never again will another group of veterans come home to this country and have to throw a parade for themselves and build monuments for themselves. This group would lead and insure that no group of veterans feels forgotten."

Basil Ciriello, David Pitts, George Underwood Honored Squares Dedicated In Memory Of 3 Vietnam Veterans Killed In Action

By EMILY TAFT

Three Quincy residents who were killed in the Vietnam War where honored April 26 with dedications around the city. Air Force Major Basil L. Ciriello, Marine Corps Private First Class David A. Pitts, and Army Specialist George W. Underwood all had memorial squares in Quincy dedicated to them.

"It is fitting that we as a community come together and to remember those that gave so much," said Sen. John Keenan during the dedications. "As time goes on and the Vietnam War drifts more and more to the distant past, events like these become all that important. We have to remember, we have to remember every single day, and we have to take that memory and use it so that we can avoid the mistakes of the past, so that we can recognize the Vietnam veterans for what they did, and recognize all the veterans for all they have done over the years."

"We can't forget that."

The intersection of Connel and Robertson Street in West Quincy was dedicated to Major Basil L. "Buzzy" Ciriello, U.S.A.F. The house where the plaque stands in front of is the same house in which Ciriello grew up. He was a graduate of Quincy High School in 1951, and led the school's basketball team to the state championship. Ciriello decided to join the Air Force while coaching basketball at the Air Force Academy. He was killed on Oct. 21, 1968 when his C-47 cargo plane crashed in South Vietnam's Darlac Province. He was 34 years old.

"I consider it one of the greatest honors of my entire life to be able to speak about my teammate Buzzy Ciriello," said former Norfolk County District Attorney and friend George Burke. "Buzzy was a dear friend of mine. I came here today to say thank you Buzzy, you gave your life for us. To me, you're a double hero. You gave your life in Vietnam and you gave your life on the basketball court. That is the only state championship we have ever won, and I thank you Buzzy for that great gift to our high school."

Behind the backstop of the Fore River baseball field is where a plaque stands in dedication to Pitts. The rededication took place on his birthday. Pitts was a graduate of Quincy High School in 1967, a member of the Quincy Little League, and he was one of three boys from the same family to serve in the Vietnam War.

"This is really a story about three brothers, who served as combat Marines in Vietnam, whose duty and sacrifice are a source of great pride and profound sorrow," said friend Gulien Terry. "One died in Vietnam, one died because of Vietnam, and one carries the pain and burden. Where do Marines come from, these modern day Spartans, certainly not from White Plains NY, or Beverly Hills. I always say from Quincy Point, where

Pitts served with the 2nd Battalion of the 5th Marine Division. According to Terry, Pitts was sent into combat Jan. 30, 1968 and died 21 days later on Feb. 19, 1968 near the city of Hue in South Vietnam's Thua Thien Province.

"It was one of the longest, dirtiest and most brutal battles of the entire Vietnam War. A great but costly victory for the Marine Corps," said Terry. "Make no mistake about it my friends. David and the rest of those boys, with unwavering dedication to task, duty to each other in the Corps, and back bones of steel, charged into the fire. Twenty-one days later Private 1st class David Pitts, a proud, tough, gallant, and heroic marine from Quincy Point was killed. He was 18-years-old."

In the dedication for Underwood, held at the Merrymount School, students sang patriotic songs, such as 'Proud to be An American', and fifth grader Alexander Atanassov played 'God Bless America' on the saxophone. The guest speakers for Underwood's rededication ceremony were retired Quincy Police Lt. Robert Perchard and retired Quincy Police Officer Frank Calabro; both served as Green Berets with Underwood and were his best friends.

"This is quite a tribute to George's memory," said a tearful Perchard. "War can bring out the best of characters within an individual and it always destroys men. The pain it brings those who are wounded, or those friends and family of those who died, there is no justification. If you are ever faced with the decision if this country should go to war you must ask yourself 'is it worth your son's life?'"

In November 1962, Underwood traveled to Vietnam on a temporary duty assignment for six months. When his three-year enlistment was near completion he decided to re-enlist for six more years and returned to Vietnam in June 1964. During his second tour, he was assigned to a Special Forces base camp in Boun Brieng, where a part of his mission was to provide humanitarian aid and to help build a school. On July 23, 1964 he was leading a convoy with building materials for the school when NVA and Viet Cong forces ambushed them. Underwood was 21 years old and was the first Quincy and New England resident killed in Vietnam. The school that was being built was named in honor of Underwood.

At the end of each dedication, three flags were placed on each site: an American flag, a flag of Armed Service they served in, and the POW (Prisoner of War) flag. Part of each ceremony included the traditional military honors, with a firing volley and 'Taps', along with a wreath placed at each memorial site.

City To Mark National Day of Prayer Today

Mayor Koch announces the City of Quincy will commemorate the 61st National Day of Prayer today (Thursday) by ringing the bell atop the United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) at noontime.

Koch asks that all Quincy residents pray for the well-being of the City and its residents at this time. Other churches across the City will also be ringing their bells at the same time.

The National Day of Prayer officially began during the Truman Administration, but the tradition dates back to the days of George Washington. Cities and towns throughout the country will mark the National Day of Prayer with ceremonies asking for God's blessing on the people of the United States.

"We are fortunate in Quincy to have an active, diverse religious community," said Mayor Koch. "Coming together to ask for God's grace on our City, Commonwealth and Nation is something that serves to strengthen and enhance the bonds we all share."

In 1983, President Ronald

REFURBISHED BRONZE BELL as it was positioned into the bell tower at United First Parish Church in January. The new bell will ring today (Thursday) at noon as the city marks the 61st annual National Day of Prayer.

Quincy Sun Photo/Emily Taft Reagan summarized the importance of a National Day of Prayer in these words: "From General Washington's struggle at Valley Forge to the present, this Nation has fervently sought and received divine guidance as it pursued the course of history. This occasion provides our Nation with an opportunity to further recognize the source of our blessings, and to seek His help for the challenges we face today and in the future."

WHAT A STUD!

There may not seem much to talk about when it comes to button and stud earrings; after all, as much as they may show off beautiful diamonds and other precious gemstones, their diminutive size tends to limit the drama quotient of these small pieces. Well, tell all that to the runway models and red-carpet celebrities who have fixated on button and stud earrings this year. Particular emphasis is being placed on studs with unusual motifs. There are diamond-encrusted crescent moon designs, as well as gold and silver stars. There are also the classic fleur-de-lis designs and edgy diamond-eyed human skulls. Of course, pavé and halo styles still abound, but no one can say that stud earrings are conservative any longer.

May 6-12 Lions Week In Quincy

A citywide collection of used eyeglasses and the annual Quincy Lions Club 5K for Sight are among the highlights of "Lions Week in Quincy," to be celebrated May 6-12.

Mayor Thomas Koch proclaimed May 6-12 as "Lions Week in Quincy" in recognition of The Quincy Lions Club's efforts to make eye health and vision care available to local residents in need.

In a proclamation presented to Lions Club President Donna Muller at the club's luncheon last week, the mayor praised the Quincy Lions for raising thousands of dollars each year to fund eye research and numerous local community service activities, including providing free eyeglasses and eye exams to local residents in need. The club also provides college scholarships to local high school students and funded a room at the Thomas Crane Library featuring special equipment that makes the library's resources accessible to the blind and visually impaired.

Citywide Eyeglass Collection

Among the activities planned for Lions Week is the Quincy Lions Club's annual citywide collection of used eyeglasses, which are then repaired and distributed to people in developing countries where access to proper vision care is either unavailable to too expensive for most people.

"Many people have old eyeglasses lying around that they don't know what to do with," Muller said. "By donating them to the Lions, people can give someone in need the gift of better vision."

During Lions Week, eyeglasses may be dropped off in specially marked collection boxes located in businesses across Quincy and Braintree. Some of the locations include the Harvard Vanguard Optical Shops in Quincy Center and Braintree, branches of South Shore Savings Bank, the Kennedy Senior Center and Manet Community Health Center. For a complete list of locations and street addresses, visit: <http://www.quincylionsclub.org/Eyeglass-Collection.html>.

Lions Week will also feature the presentation of the Quincy Lions Club's Frank McCauley Community Service Award to Bettyanne Lang, director of material assistance at Interfaith Social Services. Lang will receive the award at a special luncheon to be held at noon Thursday May 10 at The Neighborhood Club in Quincy.

"Each year, Bettyanne oversees Interfaith's efforts to help more than 17,000 South Shore residents, including the distribution of more than 400,000 pounds of food through the Pantry Shelf," Muller said. "She is amply deserving of the Frank McCauley Award."

Tickets for the luncheon are $25 and may be purchased online at www.quincylionsclub.org.

667 Petition To Save Winfield Elm

Forty pages of petitions with over 667 signatures to "Save the Winfield Elm" were delivered April 20 to Mayor Tom Koch's office, along with a live cutting from the elm taken in the fall of 2011, according to organizers of the petition drive.

Pat Artis, president of the Wollaston Garden Club and Elaine McGrail, a member of the club's conservation committee, brought the petitions to the Mayor on behalf of the over 25 signature gatherers (Friends of the Winfield Elm) who had been collecting signatures from Quincy citizens since last December at churches, community centers and other Quincy organizations, including all three of the city's garden clubs: Houghs Neck Garden Club, Seaside Gardeners of Squantum, and the Wollaston Garden Club.

Signature gatherers encountered no real opposition from citizens - support for the century elm was widespread and came from every ward in the city, the petition drive organizers said.

Copies of the petitions will also be given to each member of the Quincy City Council.

Artis said when "we first became involved, we knew little about the Winfield elm tree. We now know from heritage/century tree expert and certified arborist, Matt Largess, that the tree is close to 130 years old and a unique healthy tree well worth preserving."

Originally it was explained by the City that the tree was diseased and "in decline."

A diagnostic report, made from good incubated xylem sapwood pieces from the tree, by the UMASS Extension - Landscape, Nursery & Urban Forestry Diagnostic Lab determined that the tree was healthy and they could find "no Dutch elm disease or branch canker pathogens," Artis said.

They did recommend that "dead branches be removed to improve the tree's appearance and to reduce the danger of dead limbs falling." They also recommended "a once weekly soaking irrigation, fertilization as needed and 2-3 inches of mulch over as much of the root zone as possible, to aid in the retention of soil moisture."

In the fall with full permission from the city, garden club member, Elaine McGrail, took cuttings from the elm with directions from Arnold Arboretum arborists and kept them viable throughout the winter. The elm cutting that she delivered to the Mayor April 20 was healthy and turgid with lateral and ancillary bud development. McGrail commented "that this old tree must have strong dna to produce such healthy offspring."

At a meeting with the Mayor Koch on Feb 7th he promised that "all the options were still open on the Winfield Elm."

Right now the tree is leafing out amid the rubble of the construction site for the new Central Middle School parking lot. Many, many Quincy citizens hope that saving this heritage tree has begun to be a serious priority for the city, and for the mayor, Artis added.

ARTHRITIS SUFFERS, GET MOVING!

Due to factors such as an aging Baby Boomer population, a rising incidence of obesity, and increased longevity, an estimated half of the U.S. population will get some form of osteoarthritis in their lifetimes. This most common form of arthritis is a painful joint disease that causes weakness and disability, and often leads to costly joint-replacement surgery. However, osteoarthritis need not necessarily result in serious outcomes that too many sufferers simply accept as "an inevitable part of aging." In fact, the inflammatory disease can be successfully managed by losing weight (if necessary), adopting a generally healthy lifestyle, and exercising. The chiropractor can help osteoarthritis sufferers get moving by helping to guide affected joints through a greater range of movement.

The word arthritis means inflammation of the joint and can affect a person at any age. The FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC offers a unique approach to successfully treating pain and discomfort using non-invasive, non-surgical techniques. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Call us today at 617.472.4220

Please join us on Saturday, May 12th from 11am to 1pm for our annual "Kid's Day" event. Balloon animals, bouncy house, face painting, spinal screenings, back pack safety, food and entertainment. This event is free and all are welcome! Call for more information - 617-472-4220.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

FILLINGS THAT ARE AS GOOD AS GOLD

Aside from being rare, gold has a number of qualities (including purity and malleability) that make it such a highly regarded precious metal. Not only is it the oldest dental filling material, it is also the most reliable and long-lasting. Additionally, gold is less likely to compromise the color of the surrounding tooth than traditional amalgam filling material, and it does not chip or crack. Filling cavities with this high-quality material involves first eliminating any decay, just as with any cavity-filling procedure. Then, small bits of gold are pressed into the prepared area until its surface is level with the surrounding enamel. Gold is comfortable to chew on, will not deteriorate, and is completely biocompatible.

Now, no matter how many cavities you have filled, your smile can appear unblemished and brilliant. To find out if gold fillings are a good option for you, please contact us by calling 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Help is available through cosmetic dentistry. You will feel more confident when you can freely smile whenever you want. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where you'll find that our staff is knowledgeable, friendly, and accommodating. We're confident that you will be pleased with our professionalism and high standards. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Gold is a preferred material for fabricating dental onlays and inlays, many of which last a lifetime.

Update Sought On Unfunded Pension, OPEB Liabilities

By SCOTT JACKSON

City Councillors want to know how the mayor plans to address the city's unfunded pension and OPEB (other post-employment benefits) liabilities.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci had submitted a resolution asking for an update on the matter during the council's April 2nd meeting. That same night, city financial advisor Cinder McNerney said the city had about $300 million in unfunded pension liabilities as of Jan. 1, 2010 and another $250 to $450 million of unfunded OPEB liabilities.

Councillor Joe Finn, the chair of the Finance Committee, brought the issue up again at last Monday's meeting. He said it was the most important issue the committee is facing, and added that he wants Municipal Finance Director Mark Cavanagh to address the matter.

"A key component of this resolution is that we be provided an update on the status of the unfunded pension liability as well as plans in place beyond the annual appropriations to fund this," Finn said. "I think this is a very important discussion to have, particularly prior to the budget because this is an issue that's going to continue only to grow. So at some point if we could have that on the agenda to have the director of municipal finance come before this body so that we can begin that discussion."

Councillor Doug Gutro noted that while Quincy has no known plans to tackle the issue, other communities are beginning to address it by establishing trust funds or setting aside line items in their annual budgets.

"Cinder McNerney presented it to us that many communities have not established long term strategies for meeting unfunded health and pension liabilities," said Gutro. "But some are, in fact, starting to do so. They're beginning to do it by establishing line items in their annual budgets to do just that. The second piece that they seem to be doing is establishing an OPEB trust fund."

Gutro and Finn circulated an additional resolution at last Monday's meeting. It calls on the mayor to both set aside a portion of the upcoming budget - set to be introduced at Monday's council meeting - and to introduce ordinances establishing a trust fund to pay off the liabilities.

Palmucci said he supported the resolution sponsored by Gutro and Finn. He also added that he had spoken to Mayor Tom Koch, and felt the mayor had a solid solution to the problem.

"Anytime you're facing 'impending financial doom' I think it's better to address it sooner rather than later," Palmucci said. "That's why I drafted the resolution calling for an update on what we're doing. Since I filed that resolution, I had an opportunity to meet with the mayor and I discussed it with Mayor Koch who sees eye-to-eye on the issue. I fully appreciate that he understand what we're looking at and I've had conversations with him and I'm confident that he has a solid plan to address this."

Jim Fatseas, the mayor's chief of staff, said the issue would be too complex to address in the next few weeks during the course of budget hearings. He pointed that the state has yet to tell municipalities what OPEB liabilities actually are.

"There is not a specific answer," Fatseas said. "There is not probably going to be specific answers that are going to be appearing with the next few weeks to be able to totally address this issue. This issue is serious as we all agree, but I think it is somewhat unrealistic to take steps in the Fiscal '13 budget to address these health and pension liabilities when we can't even get the folks at the state level to tell us what these liabilities actually are."

In response, Finn said he knew there was no easy solution to the problem, and that the idea behind the resolution was to get the ball rolling on the discussion.

"Councillor Palmucci alluded to the fact that he'd spoken to the mayor and the mayor's considered and is implementing certain things with his team," Finn said. "It's good for this body simply to hear it. All of the points you're making hear this evening certainly can be part of that discussion. I certainly don't think there's any intent behind this of saying 'you're going to solve this overnight,' I think the discussion is what are the devices and what are the ways of moving forward."

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, April 24, at approximately 12:45 a.m., Officer Robert Sweetland was on patrol in the area of Kam Man Market Place on Quincy Avenue.

Using his mobile data terminal in his cruiser, the Officer checked a license plate of a parked car and learned that the registration status was revoked due to the insurance being canceled.

At approximately 2:10 a.m., Officer Sweetland returned to the parking area and observed the same vehicle drive from the parking lot and take a left onto Quincy Avenue. Knowing that the registration was revoked, Officer Sweetland caught up to the vehicle as it was making a left turn from Quincy Avenue onto Faxon Park Road, where he activated his blue lights and stopped the vehicle.

The officer approached the operator and requested his license and registration. As he made this request, Officer Sweetland noted that the operator's eyes were bloodshot and glassy. There was also a very strong odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from the operator.

When asked if he had been drinking, the operator said he drank "two beers about an hour and a half ago." Inside of the vehicle was a female sitting in the passenger seat. The operator opened his wallet but had difficulty removing his license. After a brief period of time, the operator produced the license, but had to be reminded about the registration.

The female passenger then removed a bunch of papers from the glove box and handed it to the operator. Officer Sweetland told the operator that according to the Registry, he did not have auto insurance. The operator stated that he did have insurance. As the operator spoke, the odor of the alcoholic beverage became stronger. The officer again requested the registration, so the operator started looking around again.

Officer Sweetland told him to look at the papers that were in his hands because the registration was visible on the top of the pile. The operator then handed the Officer the entire stack of papers which included the current registration and expired registrations. The officer kept the current registration and gave him back the rest. Officer Sweetland requested the operator exit and move to the rear of his vehicle. Once he did this, the operator immediately put both his hands on the rear tailgate of the vehicle as he thought he was being placed under arrest.

Officer Sweetland told the driver to relax as he requested the operator try some field sobriety tests. During the questioning, the operator constantly giggled. When asked to recite the alphabet starting with the letter A and ending with the letter M, the operator started with A and correctly recited the alphabet to the letter G, then repeated the letter and stopped.

When asked to count backwards from the number 64 to 48, the operator counted very slowly, using his fingers to count back, pausing at 51 and saying 51 again. The operator then asked to recite directions again, so Officer Sweetland inquired if the operator forgot directions. The operator began counting again, stopping at the number 41. The next test administered was the one leg stand.

After exhibiting and explaining the test to the operator, the operator attempted the test, immediately losing balance on two occasions. The operator asked if he could perform the test again and although he was afforded this opportunity, he did poorly with the counting as well as balancing.

The last test administered was the 9-step walk and turn. When instructed to place his right foot in front of his left foot and touch heel to toe, the operator continually lost his balance. He was again advised how to perform the test; take 9 steps forward, touching heel to toe and count out loud each step. He was to turn around and take 9 steps back, touching heel to toe and count each step out loud. He started to sway from side to side, but did touch heel to toe on each step. He did not count out loud.

On the steps back he still did not count out loud, but did touch heel to toe on each step. Based on observations and the performance of the field sobriety tests, Officer Sweetland believed that the operator of the motor vehicle was impaired due to alcohol consumption. He was then placed under arrest for Operating under the Influence of alcoholic beverage (second offense).

The operator, a 26 year-old Quincy resident, was found guilty of OUI Alcohol from Woburn District Court on Feb. 13. The operator's motor vehicle was towed away.

Nice Work!

Nation-Wide Scam Via Text

A Quincy School Department employee notified me that a family member received a text message claiming that she won $1,000 and all she had to do was call 949-421-9932. He knew it was a scam but wanted to let the Police know about it.

I called the number and a recording stated it was a "non-working number." However, a "Google" check showed that the number is associated with this scam across the country.

Remember, you can't win if you didn't enter the contest, and secondly, a simple check via the internet or your local police department will help determine if you are the focus of a scam.

Sons Of American Legion Memorial Day Service May 27

Memorial, Honor Flags To Decorate Vets Island

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Sons of the American Legion will hold their third annual Memorial Day Service on Sunday May 27 at 1 p.m.

The event will be held at the Flags for Veterans Island, located at the intersection of School and Pleasant Streets in South Quincy. The island is named as such because the SAL dedicates American flags on the traffic island to veterans, and there is a 35-foot tall flag pole which Mayor Tom Koch personally donated last year. As of Friday, 32 flags have been sponsored for this year's event, according to Post Commander Paul Moody.

But Moody is still looking for more flag sponsorships. He said anyone in the community is invited to sponsor a flag, and they are invited to contact him at 617-472-5952. A $30 donation is needed for each flag. They will remain on the island until Flag Day in June, and will be placed at the island again before Veterans Day.

"We'd love to have the whole island covered in flags," Moody said.

The service is expected to last about 20 minutes. During the ceremony, they will unveil a bench dedicated to Debra Troupe, who had served as president of the Ladies Auxiliary.

Mayor Koch, state Sen. John Keenan, state Rep. Tackey Chan, and City Councillors Kirsten Hughes — chair of the council's Veterans Services Committee — and Kevin Coughlin are all expected to speak at the event. Following that, Sr. Vice Commander James Gill and Chaplain Joseph McDonald will raise a flag on the island's flagpole. There will also be a wreath laying ceremony followed by the playing of Taps.

Moody said that Flags for Veterans Island ceremony will be the only one of its kind on the South Shore that day. A similar event will take place the day before in Cohasset, and Moody said that members of his post will attend that as well.

Following the ceremony will be a reception at post headquarters at 81-83 Liberty St. In case of inclement weather, the memorial service would be held at post quarters.

In addition to donation for flags, Moody is also looking for participants to serve in the Color Guard for the day. He said that in addition to veterans and active duty personnel, police officers, firefighters, and junior ROTC members may also participate. The deadline to contact him for that is May 11.

As of Friday, flags had been donated in memory of Anne and Jim Moody; Richard J. Clark; John and Helen McDonald; William Murphy; Henry Bosworth, Jr.; Richard J. Koch, Jr.; Michael J. Kelly, Jr.; Col. John "Jack" Ferris; Kelly, Marie and Makie Ford; Joseph White; Robert E. Foy, Jr.; Debbie Troupe; Daniel Gill; P.F.C. Philip Daley; James Joseph Norton; George Leary; Sgt. William Calabraro, Navy/Army; Charles "Chuck" Brooks, USN; George Winters; George G. Dunn, USN; and the Lotterhand Brothers.

Additional flags were donated by the Fowles Family; the Pugliesi Family; Richard Bosworth Family, Bob and Carol LaFleur; Sgt. Joseph Rinaldi; Quincy Cavanaugh Disabled American Veterans, Chapter #79; Cpl. John Dres, USMC; Mjr. Robert Roughsedge, U.S. Army; P.C. 294 Bill Cochran; P.C. 294 Kevin Cochran; and SAL Post 523 Harrisburg, N.C.

Adams Green Transportation Meeting May 9

Wednesday's planned meeting over the Adams Green transportation project has been rescheduled for next Wednesday, May 9 at 7 p.m. in the new City Council Chamber, City Hall annex.

At the meeting, Planning Director Dennis Harrington will give the City Council's Downtown and Economic Growth Committee a presentation on the 25 percent plan for the Adams Green Transportation Project. The Adams Green project will close the portion of Hancock Street between City Hall and the Church of the Presidents and the area will be converted to a park. As a result, various streetscape and public works improvements will take place, and several major roadways in Quincy Center will be re-routed.

AMERICAN FLAGS decorate Flags for Veterans Island, located at the intersection of School and Pleasant Streets in South Quincy. The Sons of the American Legion will hold its third annual Memorial Day Service Sunday, May 27 at 1 p.m. at the island. The public is welcome to sponsor a flag in memory of a deceased veteran or in honor of a living veteran for $30. Contact Paul Moody at 617-472-5952. Flags will remain on the island until Flag Day in June, and will place at the island again before Veterans Day. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble

The 25 percent plan will include the new layouts of the proposed roads. "You know 25 percent is very, very significant," Harrington said at last Monday's City Council meeting. "It does create the layout of the roadways. This is an important traffic plan."

Committee Chair Doug Gutro urged residents to attend the meeting because of the impact the proposed changes will have.

"This is an extraordinary opportunity," Gutro said at last week's council meeting, "not only for this body but for the public to weigh in on a design plan that's going to shape the downtown, before the horse has left the barn here. Once we get to 50 percent design or 75 percent design, it becomes much more difficult. That's when you have an opportunity to make minor tweaks, but this is where we really need to have the presentation, understand what the impacts are to certain surface parking and the network of roads that surround City Hall and the Adams Green and weigh in on it."

The Planning Department submitted the 25 percent plan to the state Department of Transportation in April. The full 80-page document is available to the public at the Planning Department. A separate hearing conducted by MassDOT will also be held at later date regarding the same matter.

Police Receive Grant For Child Passenger Safety

The Quincy Police Department has received a $1,500 grant from the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security's Highway Safety Division to expand its child passenger safety efforts.

Quincy is one of 28 communities/entities in the state awarded Child Passenger Safety Equipment grants totaling $42,500 in federal funding for non-profits and municipal departments to reduce motor vehicle fatalities and injuries involving children.

The grants will be used primarily to purchase child safety seats for free distribution to parents and caregivers in need. Nationwide, traffic crashes are the leading cause of death for children ages 3 to 14. Properly installed child safety seats have been proven to reduce the risk of death and injury in crashes. It is estimated that 75 percent of child passenger safety equipment is installed incorrectly.

"In this economy, more families and caregivers in our community find themselves financially strapped," said Quincy Police Captain John Dougan. "With this grant, the Quincy Police Department can better serve those residents who find it difficult to afford child safety and booster seats to protect their children from death or injury in a motor vehicle crash."

To access information about the Quincy Police Department's Child Passenger Safety Program, go to: <http://www.quincyma.gov/Government/POLICE/>

EOPSS-HSD has designed updated CPS hand cards for all Massachusetts municipalities to distribute publicly. The cards have newly updated information from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) on how to correctly install car seats and how to select the right type of seat for each child.

NHTSA advises that children are best protected by using rear-facing safety seats up to the specific age and weight limits of the safety seat. EOPSS-HSD is also designing Spanish-language CPS hand cards to be mailed to municipalities in order to reach a more diverse population.

Massachusetts state law also requires the use of child safety seats or booster seats until a child is 57 inches tall or eight years of age. NHTSA data shows that among children under age five in passenger vehicles, an estimated 309 lives were saved by 2009 by restraint use.

For more information on how to obtain or properly install child passenger restraints, call the Quincy Police Department at 617-745-5824 or the Massachusetts Child Passenger Safety Hotline at 1-877-392-5956.

KATHLEEN RILEY of Quincy, a staff member of Project Bread, the state's leading antihunger organization, was recently named to The Walk for Hunger's Leadership Circle, raising to date $1,010 for the 44th Walk that takes place Sunday, May 6. Walkers and Volunteers in the Leadership Circle, are devoted individuals who raise $1,000 or more in pledges for the Walk for Hunger. Additionally, a Heart & Sole Walker or Volunteer is an individual who raises $500 or more in pledges for The Walk for Hunger. YMCA's Future Home Hailed As Gateway To New Quincy Center

Groundbreaking Ceremony For $30M Project

By SCOTT JACKSON

The YMCA's future home was lauded as a gateway to the new Quincy Center at a groundbreaking ceremony Monday.

Speaking at the event, Mayor Tom Koch praised the YMCA for their work in the community and for helping to make Quincy a livable city. He also said that the $30 million project would mesh well with other projects along Coddington Street.

"We're certainly looking forward to the construction of the new facility which is going to add beautifully to the corridor here along Coddington Street," Mayor Koch said. "As we all look across and see the new high school, we're seeing the construction of a new track facility, coincidentally going to be located right across the street for those runners. A little further up the city's investing in Coddington School, the 1909 elementary school, which is going to be refurbished historically, and hopefully this summer the old Quincy High School will come down. This really is the gateway to the Coddington Street entrance feeding into Quincy Square."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest also addressed the crowd Monday. She thanked the YMCA for helping make Quincy a strong community.

A Message From Jon And Roberta Norton -
Co-Chairs Annual Support Campaign

Why Give To The Y? The Answer Is In The People

By JON and ROBERTA NORTON

Once we started to work, volunteer, and workout at the Y, we learned of the incredible programs that improve the health and general well-being of our friends and neighbors. We already knew how the Y had improved our own lives. As members and then volunteers and even an employee of the Y, we became more physically active, gained so many new friends, and became more involved in our community over the years.

But it was learning about the ways in which the South Shore YMCA improved the lives of thousands of our neighbors that touched our hearts. Thanks to the Germantown Neighborhood Center, for example, families have affordable childcare, receive food subsidies, and participate in family violence prevention programs. Hundreds of children have access to innovative early learning programs and attend overnight or day camp, thanks to the South Shore Y.

The Y provides financial assistance through the funds raised during the Annual Support Campaign - this year's theme is "Make a Difference." More than 5,500 of our South Shore neighbors, hundreds in Quincy alone, have the opportunity to participate in Y programs and services as a result of the funds raised during the campaign.

Few people know that the South Shore YMCA is a charity that serves more than 60,000 people each year. The South Shore YMCA ensures that people of all ages, incomes, backgrounds, and physical abilities have the opportunity to learn, grow, and thrive.

With full Y facilities in Quincy and Hanover and program branches including the Germantown Neighborhood Center in Quincy, the South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell, the Early Learning Center in Hanover, and residence camps Burgess and Hayward in Sandwich, the South Shore YMCAs provide more than 100 programs that emphasize youth development, healthy living, and social responsibility.

JON and ROBERTA NORTON of Hingham are longtime board members and volunteers of the South Shore Y. They are serving as co-chairs of the Annual Support Campaign.

Of the $1.3 million raised as a result of the Annual Support Campaign, more than $400,000 will be used to send children to overnight and day camps this summer. Another $350,000 will support early learning and after school childcare programs. At the Germantown Neighborhood Center, more than $200,000 will help feed hundreds through the food pantry and support women's programs, GED training and testing, and family violence prevention. The remaining funds are distributed to other program areas such as membership, sports, arts and humanities, healthy living, and outdoor education.

The Y is a home away from home, an education center for pre-school children and kindergartners, a gathering place, and a safe zone where kids, teens, single parents, whole families, seniors, and people with disabilities go for support, fitness, fun, friendship, and education.

Sure the numbers are impressive, but what we find most fulfilling is the way in which the Y impacts so many people's lives. It brings smiles to our faces and fills our hearts with joy to see children exiting their after school and childcare programs, many after having been there for hours or all day, jumping and playing with cheerful laughter. They are happy to be there and the Y is an important part of their lives.

We are overwhelmed by the emotional stories we hear from the staff, volunteers, and members about how the Y has done so much for their lives, like the high school boy who works to ensure his younger brother can attend the Y camp in the summer. The diversity of members in terms of age, race, and athletic ability are amazing. An older woman who will participate in the senior Olympics swims in the next lane over from a little boy who is just starting his first lesson. Over the holidays and throughout the year, companies contribute food and gifts to people who are grateful for the assistance. These people keep us involved and contributing.

Over the next few weeks, the South Shore YMCA is seeking contributions to the Annual Support Campaign. The goal is to raise $1.3 million that will support financial assistance, scholarships, and subsidize programs and services for those in our communities that need extra help.

NQ Boys' Basketball, Hockey, QHS Girls' Hoops Three Local Teams Honored By City Council

By SEAN BRENNAN &
SCOTT JACKSON

The success this past winter by the North Quincy boys' basketball and hockey teams as well as the Quincy High girls' basketball team has not gone unnoticed in Quincy.

On April 23 at a City Council meeting at City Hall, all three programs were presented with citations presented on behalf of the Quincy City Council for outstanding participation, meaningful contribution and successful performance for the great work that was put in on either the hardwood or on the ice.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, spoke first about the accomplishments of the Quincy High girls' basketball team. The Presidents finished the season at 18-5 overall and advanced all the way to the Division 1 South Sectional semifinals before losing to Franklin, 57-53, in a hard fought game.

"I was quite proud to be in the audience for their Massasoit (semifinal) game, cheering these girls on," Laforest said before adding, "I'm just going to read one of their citations: 'Presented on behalf of the Quincy City Council, for your outstanding participation, meaningful contribution and successful performance in helping your Quincy High School basketball team qualify for the MIAA sectional semifinals tournament. Congratulations on a magnificent season and your pursuit of excellence in sportsmanship as well."

Quincy High head coach Jeff Bretsch, speaking in glowing terms about his team, especially his impressive senior class, thanked the City Council for the honor.

"We really appreciate being here and we appreciate you taking the time to recognize this group of girls, it was a really special year," he said. "The last two seasons, actually, have been the two most successful years in the history of the high school. These girls are responsible for a lot of it, particularly this group of seniors."

"We had six seniors this year, four of them were all stars," Bretsch continued. "We had a tremendous season. The girls played great, they battled, they never stopped believing in themselves and I was very proud to be a part of it."

Councillor at-Large Joe Finn then recognized the fine season put in by the North Quincy boys' hockey team. North Quincy captured a second consecutive Patriot League regular season championship and proceeded to advance all the way into the Division 2 South Sectional semifinals before losing to Mansfield, 5-3. The Red Raiders finished the season at 13-6-4 overall.

"This has been an incredible team," said Finn about the Red Raiders, "(and) my understanding, unprecedented back-to-back Patriot League championships. They took their team deep into the tournament, all the way to the semifinals and did tremendously well. Again, it's an incredible, incredible achievement and I think it goes to the efforts that (Coach Matt Gibbons) puts in. Not only are they good hockey players but they're gentlemen as well."

Gibbons thanked the Council before reflecting on his program's milestone-making campaign.

"I just want to thank you guys for honoring the program like this," he said. "We did have a great season. It was back-to-back Patriot League titles, which had never been done. We now have two banners hanging at the (Quincy Youth Ice Arena) rink, which we're very proud of."

"We have big expectations for next year," continued Gibbons. "We're hoping to win another banner and hopefully we can be here celebrating a (state) championship because this is cool for not even winning a (state) championship; I can only imagine what happens if we win."

Council President Michael McFarland had the honor of recognizing the job well done by the North Quincy boys' basketball program, which finished the regular season at 17-3, and won the Patriot League championship outright. The Red Raiders lost to New Bedford in the opening round of the Division 1 South state tournament.

"It's not often that we come up here and (are) able to honor three sports teams in one evening," McFarland noted, "but it's an honor for me to be here tonight to honor the North Quincy boys' basketball team who really had an incredible season."

Head coach Kevin Barrett thanked the City Council and reflected on his team's performance on the court as well as their attitude and sportsmanship throughout the winter season.

"On behalf of the entire North Quincy boys' basketball program and family, I'd like to extend my thank you for the acknowledgement," he said. "As was stated, it was a tremendous season. We finished the season at 17-4 with a Patriot League championship."

"Furthermore, it's something I'm probably more proud of at this point than the kids are, but I think they'll appreciate it further down the road, is the fact that they're two-time sportsmanship award winners in the Patriot League," Barrett continued, "which is very uncommon for a team. They did a tremendous job representing our program. North Quincy High School, as well as the entire City of Quincy. I couldn't be more proud."

QHS Girls Lax Upends NQ, 14-3

The girls' lacrosse programs at Quincy and North Quincy squared off at Veterans Memorial Stadium on April 26 in the first of two meetings this spring between the city's high schools.

Behind two goals each from Gabby Zorkers, Brie O'Leary and Olivia Goldson and Ashley Gouthro's first varsity tally, the Presidents defeated the Red Raiders by a score of 14-3.

The victory improved Quincy's early season record to 3-3.

North Quincy received solid games from Juliette Callahan (two goals) and Kelly Byrne (goals, assist). Jenn Adduci (assist), and Leah Ryan (assist). Heidi Ochoa (strong defense) also played well for the Red Raiders in defeat.

Quincy v. Scituate (April 27)

The Presidents got right back into Patriot League action last Friday against powerhouse Scituate. Quincy held the Sailors close - the score at halftime was 9-5, Scituate - but in the end dropped a 19-7 decision to fall to 3-4 overall.

Zorkers and Goldson each had multiple goals while Sam McArdle continued her stellar two-way play for the Presidents.

The Road Ahead

Quincy squares off at home today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. with Whitman-Hanson. Following a six-day layoff, the Presidents travel to Whitman to play the Panthers on May 9 before settling in for three consecutive home games against Duxbury (May 10), Pembroke (May 15), and Hingham (May 17).

Quincy closes out the spring with an away game at Hull on May 18, at home with North Quincy on May 22 and at Brookline on May 24.

North Quincy travels to nonleague Brookline today (Thursday) before hosting Scituate on Friday at 3:30 p.m. The Red Raiders invite Whitman-Hanson on May 7 and Hanover on May 9, both games start at 3:30 p.m.

Six road games with Dedham, Cohasset, Silver Lake, Abington, Hull and Quincy, end the 2012 season for North Quincy.

Raiders Tennis Serving Up Early Wins

By SEAN BRENNAN

After advancing all the way into the Division 1 South sectional finals last spring before losing a heartbreaker to Needham High, 3-2, you could forgive the North Quincy girls' tennis team if they began the 2012 spring season a little slow.

That wouldn't be the Red Raider way.

Instead of lamenting and carrying over the disappointment of such a wrenching defeat, Coach Kathy Torroco's squad has started this spring like gangbusters. North Quincy is off to a 6-1 overall start, including a perfect 6-0 record to begin the Patriot League schedule.

The Red Raiders rebounded from an early season loss to nonleague Brookline to knock off in consecutive order: Silver Lake, Hingham, Hanover, Duxbury, Middleboro, and Whitman-Hanson - all strong teams but not strong enough to defeat the reigning Patriot League champions.

But it hasn't been easy. There have been some early hurdles to overcome, but things are clicking because the foundation of the team is solid.

"We have had a good season up to this point," said Torroco on Tuesday. "The first two weeks we had to deal with some turmoil, but we have started off with a nice record and the team has really picked it up."

"The girls have really pulled together and each match we seem to be getting better and better," continued Torroco. "The hope is to continue to improve in each match and each game, and so far so good."

Leading the charge at No. 1 singles has been senior Elizabeth Sullivan while at No. 2 singles her sister, Sara Sullivan, has been a steady force. The Sullivan sisters were a major part of last year's 18-2 campaign and Torroco expects both of them to continue to pile up the wins for North Quincy this season.

"Elizabeth and Sara are really stepping up," she said about her senior leaders, "and they are always challenging each other to be better."

At No. 3 singles, junior Mallory Devoe has taken over after spending last season teamed with since graduated Julie Doyle at doubles. Devoe has excelled thus far at singles while giving North Quincy a strong presence at the backend of the individual matches.

"Mallory has really played well," praised Torroco. Devoe was the deciding factor in the Red Raiders' 3-2-match win over Duxbury back on April 25. She clinched the important Patriot League victory with a 6-2, 6-2 showing at third singles.

At No. 1 doubles, sophomore Sanjana Kadirvel, a two-year varsity starter, has teamed with senior Christina Ng to give North Quincy a potent pair against opposing teams top doubles pairing.

Rounding out the rotation at No. 2 doubles are Kayla Sugrue and Kim Tsang. This duo has been impressive and in North Quincy's 5-0-match victory over Middleboro last Friday they won 6-1, 6-2.

Strong Start To The Week
North Quincy opened a critical stretch of league games on Monday with a convincing 4-1-match win over Whitman-Hanson.

Elizabeth Sullivan won at No. 1 singles, 6-0, 6-0, while Sara Sullivan took No. 2 singles by an identical 6-0, 6-0 score. Devoe made it a 1-2-3 sweep at singles with an impressive 6-0, 6-1 win.

The Red Raiders were set to travel to Scituate on Wednesday. The Sailors were the only Patriot League program to knock off North Quincy last year. Following that match, North Quincy hosts Pembroke at home on Friday with a 3:30 p.m. start time.

"The goal is always to make it back to the tournament," said Torroco about the mindset of her Red Raiders. "Like I said, we are really taking it a game at a time."

North Quincy ends the 2102 season with road matches at Silver Lake (May 7), Whitman-Hanson (May 15), and at Quincy on May 17. Home matches left include against Hingham on May 9, Duxbury on May 11, and versus Randolph on May 21 and Brookline to end the season on May 22.

The Wins Are Piling Up

The Red Raiders have gone a collective 21-2 over their last 23 regular season matches.

This two-year mark is among the best ever in North Quincy girls' tennis history and at the rate this season is going a possible back-to-back Patriot League championship run is possible.

Key league matches left include against Scituate, Duxbury and Hingham, but North Quincy has already beaten both Duxbury and Hingham.

At the start of the state tournament in 2011, the Red Raiders were the third seed and proceeded to defeat No. 14 Duffee (4-1) in the first round before sneaking past No. 11 Braintree, 3-2, in the sectional quarterfinals.

An upset 3-2-match win over No. 2 Wellesley in the sectional semifinals set North Quincy up against No. 4 Need-fielding a junior legion team. However, any player who wants to tryout for either junior or senior legion MUST attend tryouts together.

NQ Capture Shot Put Relay

The North Quincy girls' track team did something at Saturday's Mass State Track Coaches Association (MSTCA) Division 1 State Relays that no Red Raider team has ever done - North Quincy won the girls' Shot Put Relay.

The team of Vanessa Bolden, Maya Umoren and Olivia Umoren totaled 30.15 meters (99 feet, half-inch) to grab the gold.

The discus relay team of the Umoren sisters and Si Han Huang placed tenth overall. Huang teamed up with Sam McNally and Jessie Thuma for 14th in the same event. McNally later tossed the spear a personal best 109'08."

On the track, the 4 x mile team of Julia Bryson, Danielle Mullaney, Brianna Mullaney and Emily Bryson clocked in at 23:57 for tenth overall while the distance medley team of the Brysons, Colleen Bellotti and Danielle Mullaney finished in 13:20 for 12th place overall.

At last week's meet at Hingham High School the boys and girls' teams lost both ends with a 96-39 score in the girls' side and 126-10 score in the boys' event.

For North Quincy, Danny Tran won the 400 hurdles and Mike Mullaney won the two-mile while Camille Mullaney won the high jump, Rose Bennett took the 400 hurdles, Maya Umoren won both the shot put and discuss, and Emily Bryson won the two-mile.

For Quincy High, Jaquan Harris won at the 100-meters and took a close second in the long jump and 200 meters. New javelin throwers Viet Doan and James Lam threw over 110.' Lam is only a freshman and his throw of 113'0" is one of the top freshman throws this year in Massachusetts.

This Saturday, 14 athletes will participate in the MSTCA Large School Freshman-Sophomore Meet at Newton South High School.

NQ Softball Optimistic Despite Two Losses

By SEAN BRENNAN

Although her team lost two of its first three games, North Quincy girls' softball coach Cheryl Manoli looks toward a successful season and has high hopes of making the Eastern Mass tournament.

The Raiders defeated Weymouth North, 8-4, last Friday to even its record at 3-3.

"We have some fine looking rookies this year, including sophomores Lisa Henderson catching, Jane McGuiggan at third base and Ann Geribo and Phyllis Germain in the outfield," Manoli said. "Linda Ayles and Judy Kane are newcomers but are seasoned athletes. Returnees are Joyce Flynn, Marie Nestor, Sharon Cobban, Donna Shaw, Susan Cooper and Jeanette Nolan."

QUINCY SOFTBALL OFF TO GOOD START

Coach Barbara Webster's Quincy girls' softball team is playing good ball and going into this week's games, the Presidents were 3-2.

Quincy opened with a 13-12 win over Cambridge Latin; lost to Brockton, 11-6; walloped Weymouth North, 17-1; outlasted Weymouth South, and in its last game last Friday, lost to Waltham, 11-6.

"We have been playing without senior Lois Malvesti, one of our standouts, who is out with a torn thigh muscle," Webster said. "We had to move senior Claire Oliverio, from left field to catcher, and she has done quite well. Margaret Thorley was our starting third baseman and now is a starting pitcher."

TRACK CLUB MEMBERS SHINE IN NORWELL RACE

Several members of the Quincy Track Club did well last weekend in the Norwell Jaycees Clip-A-Long road races.

In the Elementary Division half-mile, Mike Williams placed second among the boys and Kathy Hussey won the girls' race. In the two-mile Michelle Millane and Linda Morash took third and fourth, respectively.

In the five-mile run, Geoff Hennessy and Bill Monahan were second and third while Regina Hussey won the women's division in the 10-mile run. Linda Cellini was second in the women's five-mile run and also running well was John Furey, a ninth-grader, in the five-mile.

Recreation Summer Clinics

The Quincy Recreation Department announced Monday its summer schedule and registration information for the "Sports and More 2012."

According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation the highly anticipated summer school vacation programs are of great value to residents and by utilizing the great wealth of local leadership and by taking advantage of Quincy's outstanding municipal facilities, the Recreation Department can offer unmatched programs at an affordable price.

"In addition to all of last year's programs, for 2012 we have added a new week called 'Sports and More Week,'" said Welch. "This week will feature traditional games, arts and crafts, and activities that are in the mainstream of youth at play."

Due to the clinics and workshops ever-growing popularity, the department announced that once again this year there will be three ways to register. YMCA's Future Home Gateway To New Quincy Center

"As you walk to the entrance to the YMCA," Laforest said, "there's a stone and it mentions 'strong kids, strong families, strong communities,' and in no question Quincy is a strong community. But definitely it's the partnerships with organizations like the YMCA that make us continue to be a strong community."

The new facility will stand two-stories tall and will have more than 120,000 square feet of space inside. It will replace the current three-story, 85,000 square foot building originally constructed in 1954.

The new building will include a fieldhouse, an indoor area with synthetic grass which can be used for soccer and field hockey, among other sports. Inside will also be two regulation-sized basketball courts that could also be used for volleyball. Above those courts will be an indoor track – each lap will be one-eighth of mile long. The new building will have five locker rooms, a men's, women's, boy's, and girl's lockers as well a family one.

Like the current YMCA, the new one will have a dedicated exercise center and two pools, a six-lane

CITY AND YMCA officials broke ground Monday at the site of the new YMCA adjacent to its current location on Coddington Street in Quincy Center. Construction of the $30 million facility will start next and the building will open next June. competitive one and small warm-water one for children and for water exercise classes. Unlike the current building, there will be large windows facing Coddington Street, giving the building a more open feel to it.

The new building will also have eight pre-school classrooms and meeting rooms which could be utilized by various community groups. South Shore YMCA President and CEO Paul Gorman said all those features will make the building an important one for the city, and highlighted the financial contributions the organization has made to the community.

"This is going to be an important community asset to the city," Gorman said. "Everyone is welcomed at this YMCA. In Quincy alone, we give away more than $1.3 million worth of financial assistance, so no one is turned away."

Another one of Monday's speaker was capital committee co-chairman Dave Keefe. He thanked Mayor Koch for his family's support of community organizations such as the YMCA. Councillor Margaret Laforest, South Shore YMCA President and CEO Paul Gorman, YMCA building committee chairman Mark Dickinson, Quincy Branch Board Chairman Phil Lusier, Chief Volunteer Officer Dan DeMarco, Mayor Tom Koch, Capital Committee Co-Chairmen Alex Clark and Dave Keefe, and Quincy Branch Executive Director Eric Snyder.

lowed in North Quincy if you were from Houghs Neck – but I just wanted to mention that the Kochs have long been a part of the fabric of Quincy and the mayor continues that."

Another attendee of the event was Karl Briggs, who serves on the YMCA's advisory board. He was also present at the groundbreaking for the current building, but said he isn't sad to see it go because he likes the plans for the new building. "The old building served its purpose," Briggs said after the groundbreaking, "but it's tired, it's time to do something."

Construction of the new building, located where the YMCA's outdoor track was, will begin next week according to YMCA building committee chair Mark Dickinson. It will open in June of next year, and the old building will be razed and paved into a parking lot that October.

Paul Gorman said that he hopes to double participation at the YMCA once the new facility is opened – the organization serves 20,000 people in Quincy currently, 11,000 members and 9,000 program participants. He also said that the new building will have about 400 employees on staff, up from 300 at the current building.

Half of the project's $30 million price tag is being financed through loans. The rest is from fundraising by the capital committee. The committee has raised $10 million so far, and Gorman said after the event that he expects to raise the remaining $5 million by year's end.

YMCA Annual Support Campaign Goal: $1.3 Million

Longtime board members and volunteers of the South Shore YMCA, Jon and Roberta Norton of Hingham are serving as co-chairs of the Y's Annual Support Campaign. Held during the month of April, the Annual Support Campaign is an effort to raise $1.3 million.

As a nonprofit organization, the Y provides financial assistance and scholarships for special programs, early learning, after school care, overnight and day camps, and memberships. Throughout the coming year, the South Shore YMCA will give out $2 million in support to 5,500 people.

"Few people know that the South Shore YMCA is a charity that serves more than 60,000 people each year," Jon Norton says. "The South Shore YMCA ensures that people of all ages, incomes, backgrounds, and physical abilities have the opportunity to learn, grow, and thrive."

With Y facilities in Quincy and Hanover and programs including the Germantown Neighborhood Center in Quincy, the South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell, the Early Learning Center in Hanover, and residence camps Burgess and Hayward in Sandwich, the South Shore YMCAs provide more than 100 programs that emphasize youth development, social responsibility and healthy living.

Of the $1.3 million raised as a result of the Annual Support Campaign, more than $400,000 will be used to send children to overnight and day camps this summer. Another $350,000 will support early learning and after school daycare programs. More than $200,000 will feed hundreds through the food pantry. Other programs provide after school care, sports, arts education, health education, outdoor education, self-esteem and recovery programs, family violence prevention programs and so much more.

The Nortons have been involved with the South Shore YMCA for a decade. Roberta Norton took to the Y with such enthusiasm, she went on to earn a certification in personal training and then worked for eight years as a health and well-being coordinator at the South Shore Y in Quincy. She is now a member of the YMCA Quincy Branch Board of Directors.

Jon Norton, a senior vice president at Sager Electronics, initially became passionate about the Y through his participation with Roberta at Y staff events and fundraisers. "I was overwhelmed by the emotional stories I'd hear from the staff, volunteers, and members about how the Y had done so much for their lives," Norton went on to join the Y as a member and was inspired by other Y members and staff. He also serves as a Y volunteer and is a member of the South Shore YMCA executive board of directors.

"The diversity in age, race, and athletic ability are amazing," Norton says. "An older woman who will participate in the senior Olympics swims in the next lane over from a little boy who is just starting his first lesson."

The Nortons are co-chairing the Annual Support Campaign – the theme of which is "Make a Difference" – as a way to encourage others to contribute because they are so passionate about all that the Y does for the people in their community. "The partnership program makes it possible for people with disabilities to work out alongside everyone else. Watching a high school student partner and workout with a child who has autism, week after week, is inspirational and rewarding for this special pair and all those around them at the Hanover Branch," Jon Norton said. Norton shared some of the human connections he's witnessed at the Y with members of his Rotary club. The club went on to donate specialized equipment to support a young child with disabilities workout alongside his father and help many others have the same opportunity at the Quincy Branch.

"Over the holidays and throughout the year, companies get involved and contribute food and gifts to people who are grateful for the assistance. This all happens through the Y," Norton said. "Roberta and I are so moved by people we have met at the Y, like a high school boy who works to ensure his younger brother can attend the Y camp in the summer. These people keep us involved and contributing. We want everyone to know why they should contribute to the Y."

For more information or to donate to the Annual Support Campaign, contact Laurie Capone at lcapone@ssymca.org or 617-479-8500 ext. 102.

The YMCA is among the South Shore's leading nonprofits committed to strengthening communities. Every day the Y works with thousands of children, adults, and families to make sure that everyone, regardless of age, income, background or physical abilities, has the opportunity to learn, grow and thrive.

Quincy Store Owner Charged In State EBT Fraud Investigation

A Quincy store owner and 21 individuals have been charged in connection with the fraudulent use of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), known commonly as "food stamps," Attorney General Martha Coakley's Office announces.

Beginning with a referral from the Quincy Police Department and following an investigation into the fraudulent use of EBT SNAP cards that began in November 2011, State Police assigned to AG Coakley's Office, in conjunction with federal agents from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) and Quincy Police executed a search warrant at Lotto Luck (D.B.A Pat's Mini Mart) located in Quincy.

Investigators arrested Pat Lu, age 48, of Quincy, in connection with his involvement in an ongoing criminal scheme to defraud the EBT SNAP program. Lu, owner of Pat's Mini Mart, is charged with Larceny by Continuous Scheme, Procurement Fraud, and Access Device Fraud.

Lu was arraigned in Quincy District Court this afternoon. He pleaded not guilty and was held on $100,000 bail. Lu is due back in court on May 14, 2012 for a pretrial hearing.

In addition, a total of 21 individuals were charged with larceny over $250 for illegally selling their SNAP benefits at certain Massachusetts locations. Among the 21, 6 arrest warrants and 15 summonses were issued. The investigation remains active and ongoing at other sites in the Commonwealth.

"We allege that both the store owner and recipients engaged in a scheme to unlawfully exchange food stamps for cash," said AG Coakley. "This alleged scheme was a direct fraud on taxpayers, and our action today should make clear that we take this type of fraud seriously and it will be investigated."

Pat's Mini Mart is a convenience store that primarily sells beverages, candy and other convenience items. Pat's Mini Mart was authorized by the USDA to accept SNAP benefits from customers for eligible items. Authorities alleged that Lu engaged in a scheme to traffic SNAP benefits in exchange for cash. As part of the scheme, customers presented their EBT card to Lu and another store clerk.

Authorities allege that Lu would swipe the customer's EBT card and enter fraudulent information on a dedicated EBT terminal indicating that a customer purchased groceries. Lu would allegedly furnish cash to the customer for a half of what he charged to their EBT card account. For example, if an EBT card customer wanted $50 in cash, Lu would provide the customer with $50 cash and enter a $100 grocery sale. Lu's account would subsequently be credited with $100 from the customer's EBT SNAP account, providing Lu with a $50 profit on the transaction.

The SNAP program does not allow cash to be exchanged in lieu of benefits.

In recent months, it is alleged that Pat's Mini Mart has been transacting about $70,000 per month in mostly fraudulent sales. It is estimated that Lu's cut each month resulted in roughly $30,000. Investigators allege that between August 2010 and March 2012, Pat's Mini Mart processed approximately $700,000 worth of fraudulent SNAP transactions.

Community PlanIt Launch Saturday

The Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) in partnership with Asian Community Development Association has created a virtual reality game called Community PlanIt, which will officially be launched at an event Saturday, May 5, from 4 to 6 p.m. at B Cafe, 405 Hancock St.

People who live, work, and go to school in Quincy are invited to play the game once it's launched. The game prompts players to answer questions in an effort to increase civic engagement for future planning and community visioning in the neighborhoods of North Quincy and Wollaston.

Community PlanIt will be open for one month, starting Saturday. To play the game, users will create a log-in and complete a series of timed "missions" which focus on different aspects of neighborhood transportation, local business growth, arts and culture, and other civic issues. Information, mission descriptions, and game questions are also available in Chinese text. To learn more, go to www.communityplanit.org.

Computers will be available for residents to play the game at Saturday's launch. Space is limited at the cafe, however, so those interested in attending the launch are encouraged to register at <http://quincycommunity-planit.eventbrite.com>.

For more information, call Sean Glennon in the city's Department of Planning and Community Development at 617-376-1167.

Projected $112 Average Tax Bill Hike For Mayor's $247.857M FY 2013 Spending Plan

Koch Budget Adds Teachers, Police; Restores Sunday Library Hours

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Tom Koch's proposed budget would add teachers and police officers, keep more fire stations staffed, restore Sunday hours at the Thomas Crane Library, and pay for sidewalk repairs. The extra spending would be paid for by a projected $112 increase in the average single-family home's tax bill.

The mayor introduced his budget for fiscal year 2013, which starts July 1, at Monday's City Council meeting. He proposed spending $247.857 million, a four percent increase over the current budget.

The budget proposal gives the School Department $88.88 million in FY13, up $2.6 million from FY12. The School Committee is responsible for allocating that budget; the City Council only sets the bottom line. Koch, who serves as chair of the committee, said he would press the committee to spend $500,000 to add more teachers.

"The budget for education is up about $2.6 million and that will include $500,000 additional moneys which will be added for the purpose of, in my view, hiring some additional teachers to deal with classroom size," Koch explained. "But it also allows the School Committee to come togeth-

Commercial, Multi-Family City To Auction Tax Titles For 47 Properties

The City of Quincy will conduct a Tax Title assignment auction Thursday, May 22 at 10 a.m. at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St..

In scheduling and planning this auction, city officials hope to collect severely delinquent taxes totaling more than $1.9 million due from 47 commercial and multi-family properties.

The City of Quincy has made efforts to collect back taxes from property owners to no avail. Massachusetts

General Law allows the city to sell its receivable position to the highest bidder at public auction for, at a minimum, what the city is owed. Winning bidders assume the city's position and are entitled to 16% simple interest on the principal balance of the tax title account. Assignees can elect to initiate foreclosure proceedings if the debt, plus interest, is not repaid. The tax title assignment auction will allow the

School Committee Votes 6-1 To Renovate Coddington School

By EMILY TAFT

The school committee voted 6-1 at its May 2nd meeting on plans to renovate Coddington Hall, and make it into the new administrative headquarters for school and city offices.

School Committee member Anne Mahoney voted against the plans saying she doesn't agree with price tag of $9.8 million to renovate the hall.

"I don't agree that we should have to pay $9.8 million for a building that is already structurally sound," said Mahoney. "This is a huge decision, and $9.8 million is a big plan."

Mahoney said she has concerns about the large amount of money that is being used to make a building more comfortable for the administration when funding for school programs continue to be cut.

"I resent the implication that we are trying to build some type of Taj Mahal here," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "We are making first-class space for our first-class professionals. We are making historical renovations with practical uses."

The plans that have been discussed and drawn up are to decrease the amount of city offices and school offices that right now are paying rent in buildings throughout the city. The $9.8 million will be coming out of a bond order that was set in front of the city council, which allows the mayor to borrow $18 million for two different projects.

A different bond is earmarked for renovations to the James R. McIntyre Government Center or Old City Hall. That building has not undergone any significant renovations in about 100 years.

A renovated Coddington Hall will house the IT departments for both the school system and city, the athletic department, the special education department, the superintendent's office, and the city's planning department, among many others. Some of these workers are being displaced because of the renovations to the McIntyre Government building.

The Coddington Hall plan, according to Koch, is for the construction to be done within 12 to 15 months and for the offices to be moved in by sometime next year. The plans were brought in front of the Finance Committee Monday night and the city council will weigh in on the plans sometime in the near future, according to Koch.

The new location will allow for easier access for the public and it will also save the city and school system significant money in rent payments.

"We have to think long term financially with this plan," said Koch. "The space will be well used by our departments, and the layout seems to work really well. The plan over all is a good one."

Chapter 70 Funds Would Increase To $22.98M

Delegation Optimistic Boost In Local Aid For Education

By SCOTT JACKSON

It's expected that Quincy will see an increase in local aid for education in the upcoming fiscal year.

Members of Quincy's state delegation appeared before the City Council Monday.

Sen. John Keenan reported that in two different budget plans – Gov. Deval Patrick's original proposal and the budget the House approved – the city would receive $22.98 million in Chapter 70 funds, which are used to pay primary and secondary school expenses. Quincy received $20.96 million in Chapter 70 funds in FY12.

The amount of unrestricted general government aid (UGGA) that Quincy receives would likely stay the same under both plans.

In FY12, Quincy received $16.15 million in UGGA funds, which included a supplemental appropriation from a surplus at the end of FY11.

The House-approved plan and Patrick's plan differ on how municipalities would receive UGGA funds in FY13. Under the House plan, cities and towns would receive all the money up front, whereas Patrick's plan would split the payments again. Quincy would receive $16.15 million under the House plan and $14.98 under Patrick's plus additional funding dependent on a surplus at the end of FY12.

Keenan said he doesn't know which of the plans the Senate will favor. Its budget will be released May 16, and debated from May 22 to May 25. A conference committee would work out any differences between the Senate and House plans. A final budget would then be sent to the governor, who could veto or make changes to it. The legislature could override those changes.

More than 1,500 volunteers flocked to neighborhood parks, playgrounds, beaches and traffic islands for a citywide cleanup effort on Saturday in what City officials believe was one the most successful Cleaner, Greener Quincy Days in the events 23-year history.

Determined to pay off your mortgage as quickly as possible?

This loan is for you!

There are so many good reasons to love the 15-Year Mortgage. For some people, it's about being debt-free. Others want the mortgage paid off by the time the kids go to college or before they retire. Some see paying off their mortgage quickly as a kind of "forced" savings. Here's the simple fact: If you can swing the somewhat-higher monthly payments, a 15-Year Mortgage knocks years off your original loan. Your equity builds very quickly. And you pay thousands less in interest, compared to a longer-term mortgage loan. Rates are still at historic lows. How much longer? Who knows. If a 15-Year sounds good to you, let's talk. Soon! Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com. (Have another loan or term in mind? Janice Walsh Leaving A Legacy Of Love

Janice Walsh was helping young moms attain a high school education well before there was a Quincy Teen Mothers Program.

Walsh, who started teaching at Quincy High School in 1974, tutored students for about three years during the mid-1970s. These kids were mostly teen mothers who used to stay at home while they were pregnant. The tutors, like Walsh, went to their home to help them continue their education.

"After they had their babies, they were expected to go back to class at the high schools and find someone to take care of the baby," Walsh recalls nearly 40 years later.

Little did she know at the time but Walsh was on her way to helping many teen mothers stay in school and receive their diplomas.

In the fall of 1985, Walsh joined the Quincy Teen Mothers Program as a part-time business teacher. She became the head teacher of QTMP in 1987 and in 1990 the coordinator. She'll step down from that post this September.

She says she will miss the girls and the staff but believes the time is right for "new blood, new energy and new thoughts."

"It's time for the next generation to come in," Walsh says, adding she may teach again or try her hand in the business world.

Her future may be unknown but her past is certain: Walsh has left an indelible mark on a program that's become a national model.

Since its inception in 1978, Quincy Teen Mothers Program has succeeded in bridging the school system and the community to meet the educational needs and address the social problems of adolescent pregnancy and parenthood. Over the last 34 years, Walsh says some 330 teen moms have graduated.

Another 300 have participated in the program and learned valuable skills without receiving a diploma, mostly because they move out of the city due to family reasons. But the QTMP still has a profound influence on these non-graduates. They learn to become better people and adjust to their new roles as mothers.

"If the girls have a relatively stable home life, they will graduate. But if they live from town-to-town and go to school-to-school, they don't always make it," Walsh notes.

"The girls who go through the program but don't graduate still benefit from the family education, the parenting classes, the nutrition classes, the health classes. We made them better parents even if they didn't graduate from high school. And it doesn't mean they didn't graduate somewhere else or received their GED. They may have been able to finish their education later on."

Walsh points out three main reasons for the program's success: continuity of staff, its church setting location, and the support of the entire community.

"We have very low turnover and it's not just me but other staff. I think the kids get a sense of stability that we care about the program and it's not just a stepping stone to someplace else."

Consider the constituency of staff over the years:

Kate Cryan, 34 years, including service as a tutor, English teacher and the head teacher since 1990; Guidance Counsellor Marjorie Engel, 23 years; Tutor Leslie Bridson (11 years), Secretary Jackie Maier (10 years) and Nursery Staff Margory Lyons (20 years) and Eileen Rabs (20 years).

Walsh is the fourth program coordinator and is the longest serving. Other coordinators are Kathy Bears (1978-1983); Linda Stice (1983-1987) and Gail Murphy (1987-1990).

Even Walsh's mother, Eileen Leahy, has been instrumental in the success of the program. The 81-year-old has been fundraising for QTMP for some 15 years — anything from mailing lists to collecting auction items. She helped raised $5,000 at the program's recent "Landlubber Cruise" held last week at the Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks.

Linda Stice, who is a member of the QTMP Board, said, "When they start interviewing for my position, they're not going to say to this new person, 'what credentials do you have and where did you go to college? ... They're going to say, 'what does your mother do? Can she come with you?'"

"It's going to be different when I'm gone but it's going to continue — absolutely," Walsh said.

Another mainstay of the program has been Bethany Congregational Church that has housed the program since it started.

"The church setting really gives a certain warmth and a nurturing environment," Walsh says. "It's a wooden structure and there are rugs on the floor and in all these years there hasn't been any graffiti in the building. There's a lot of respect for the physical building and it does add a certain charm and ambiance to the whole program."

Another prong in the program's success is support from the school, business and at-large community.

"The school system has been behind this program for 34 years. If it weren't for the school system and the school committee, the program could have ended years ago," Walsh says. "We have a lot of people who donate to us and they really believe in the mission that we're doing."

She adds: "This really is a community effort for the staff. It's all of us. We're like a family and we work very well together. One person doesn't deserve all the attention. It's not just about me. It's about all of us. It takes a village."

But if Walsh had one wish, it would be that the program would end because it's no longer needed.

"I'm probably the only person I know who wants to put myself out of business. In fact, I take the teen mothers and we go to talk to eighth grade health classes about the trials and tribulations and difficulties of being a teen parent and trying to talk to these eighth graders into not having sex."

"We try to talk to them about what they need to have in their lives first: they should finish high school, they should go to college, they should get married, they should have a house and then they should have a baby. That's the order."

"My job is to put us out of business. Is it ever going to happen? No, but it's definitely going on the decline. There are fewer teen parents now than there have been in a long time."

Teen birth rates, Walsh points out, are down in Quincy and nationally.

Built in 1932, the corner store was first the Gordon Pharmacy and became Platners Pharmacy in 1935. Nelford Platner operated the store for 20 years and then it became known as Furnace Brook Apothecary. Platner owned the 1937 Lincoln Zephyr parked on the right. Today, this building has an ad-

Helen Hayes Here To Witness Salk Vaccine Shots

Some 3,500 Quincy youngsters in the first, second and third grades from public and parochial schools, received vaccinations in a test of the new Salk Polio Vaccine.

Actress Helen Hayes, whose 19-year-old daughter, Mary MacArthur, died of polio five years before, was on hand to watch the shots administered at St. John's School.

"I have lived for this day," she said, "to actually see the vaccination being done. We all have great hopes for it."

Among the first vaccinated at the Coddington School was Robert Birch, 8, of 27 Woodward Ave., one of the boys chosen to give a blood sample to determine its polio antibodies.

"You're a good boy," said Dr. Frederick W. Manley.

"You're a good doctor," said Robert. "It didn't hurt much."

"I am finding that there are many delegates who will come to the Worcester convention unpledged and I sense that they are looking for a candidate who is free from a career marred by past political activities," he said.

Thank You Larry Norton, Vietnam Combat Veterans

I am writing this letter to thank Larry Norton of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces. We dedicated the square at Connell Street and Robertson Street to Basil L. Ciriello. It was very well attended and extremely well organized by Larry Norton.

I read with great interest the remarks of Larry Norton in The Quincy Sun in which he stated he considered Basil L. Ciriello, of the 1951 Quincy High School team, the best basketball player at Quincy High School. I agree with Larry Norton, as they were the only team to win the state championship and also go to the finals of the New England Championship.

Basil "Buzzy" Ciriello was selected First Team All-New England from Quincy High School.

I remain the only player from Quincy High School selected First Team All-New England in college while I was at the University of Massachusetts.

Stop Tearing Down History

It is a sad day indeed, when we need a petition to save a tree.

The same signers should have had a petition to save our "Egg & I" from the wrecking ball, as well as the business next to it.

I did sign the tree petition, although it should not have been needed.

Mayor Koch has a very big thing for removing revenue producing buildings from the tax rolls. Why do we need a "tahmahall" of a school for students that won't see it as a "great building" but as a learning center? There was no structural problems with the "old" school.

Why then tear the "old" school and the surrounding business, for a over built school?

Leave the tree alone, it can be saved for future children. We do live in an historic city after all.

I believe (I could be wrong) the tree was planted by our own John Quincy Adams, over 130 years ago. Stop tearing down history.

Theater Group To Make Quincy Debut At Library 'Play Around' At Crane

Anastasia O'Brien is making her dreams come true.

The Quincy-born actress/director has launched a unique community-theater organization, Play Around, which began performing in January. The nonprofit group will present its free show "An Afternoon of Neil Simon" on Saturday, May 12, at 2 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center — its first appearance in the city.

Play Around is different from other theater groups because it doesn't simply perform at the same venue two or three times a year; it travels to nontraditional spaces such as libraries, schools, hospitals and retirement homes.

"That way, people who might not ordinarily see live theater have a chance to do so," said O'Brien, who serves as artistic director. "We bring it to them for free."

She came up with the idea to form the group about three years ago and was inspired, in part, by the memory of a theater performance she attended a few days after the 9/11 terrorist attacks in 2001.

"[The show] completely

distracted me from those events," she said. "Sometimes we need to be distracted from our real worlds and I think live theater does that pretty successfully. I think that's why people go."

It took about a year's worth of planning before O'Brien and the group's other co-founders — Milton resident Jennifer Walsh and North Quincy High School alumnus J. Michael Whalen, who lives in Weymouth and is a former assistant editor of The Quincy Sun — were able to stage a performance. Play Around has since appeared at libraries in Hingham, Dorchester and Weymouth.

"The response from the audiences has been extremely positive," said O'Brien. "People have really enjoyed it; they've made it a point to say so after the shows and I've received personal e-mails telling me the same. The program directors at the libraries also have received very positive feedback."

She hopes to continue to grow the membership of Play Around, which accepts newcomers regardless of their experience levels.

"We're always recruiting," she said. "Actors, directors, producers, makeup artists, whoever. It's a great place to start, or to build your résumé."

The site www.playaroundma.com offers more information.

O'Brien, who based the group out of her West Quincy home before finding some office space in Hingham, said she's thrilled to be bringing Play Around to the city.

"I've been waiting to get the group to perform in Quincy for a long time," she said.

Despite having had some initial trepidation about starting her own theater company, O'Brien said she is happy she did so.

"I'm ecstatic about it," she said. "I feel validated that it was the right thing to do. I'm having a blast."

"It's so fulfilling when you have a dream and actually see it become a reality."

And while a number of children's performances are planned for this summer, she said adults at the Crane will love this Saturday's Neil Simon material, which includes scenes from "London Suite" and the female version of "The Odd Couple."

"It's going to be a fun-filled afternoon," said O'Brien. "Get ready to laugh."

Free Screening Of Sergeant York Friday At Houghs Neck Church

Houghs Neck Congregational Church will present a free screening of the Academy Award-winning movie Sergeant York Friday, May 11 at 6:30 p.m. in the church's Fellowship Hall, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy.

Starring Gary Cooper, Walter Brennan and Ward Bond, Sergeant York recounts the true story of Alvin York, a pacifist who, despite struggling with his personal feelings toward war, went on to become the greatest American hero of World War I. Released in 1941, the film resonated with Americans on the brink of another war, and Cooper went on to receive the Academy Award for Best Actor for his portrayal of York.

Sergeant York is being shown as part of Houghs Neck Congregational Church's "Faith and Film" Fridays, a series of free monthly screenings of popular films that explore issues of faith and spirituality.

Faith and Film Friday screenings are held on the second Friday of each month downstairs in the church's Fellowship Hall. Admission is free.

Films begin at 6:30 p.m.; a snack bar offering homemade soups, sandwiches, snacks and drinks opens at 6 p.m.

Directed by Jason Reitman, the film also stars

Patrick Wilson and Patton Oswalt.

The 94-minute film is rated R for language and some sexual content.

JANET PARNES will portray First Lady Dolley Madison in "The War of 1812: Dolley Madison Tells All" at Quincy Historical Society, May 17.

Dolley Madison And The War Of 1812 At Adams Academy

First Lady Dolley Madison, as portrayed by history performer Janet Parnes, will present "The War of 1812: Dolley Madison Tells All," Thursday, May 17, at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy Historical Society, the Adams Academy, in Quincy Center.

This is the Historical Society's initial program in the commemoration of the war's 200th anniversary.

Dolley Madison was First Lady throughout the War of 1812. In perhaps her most famous act, she had to flee the White House to escape advancing British troops and in the process managed to save numerous invaluable artifacts of the American Revolution.

In portraying Dolley Madison, Janet Parnes will discuss her extraordinary journey from Quaker child to First Lady and share her behind-the-scenes perspective on the events of the war: the origin of our National Anthem, battles botched, heroic victories, and her own demure yet powerful influence.

Her performance will offer a distinctive picture of the catastrophes, conundrums, ironies, and ultimate successes that characterize the War of 1812.

Everyone is welcome.

There is no charge for admission.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Mary's Chicken Francoise With Alfredo Noodles

When our cousins get together for lunch (this time they were 11 of us), I almost always come away with a recipe. This time, Mary was telling us what she had made for Sunday dinner. And it was for chicken Francoise, which sounded so delicious and one that I hadn't made.

It's a little more steps to take than most chicken dishes, but well worth it if you like something different.

CHICKEN FRANCOISE

8-10 pieces of thinly sliced chicken filets
2 eggs
2-3 tablespoons vegetable oil for sautéing
1-cup milk
1-½ cups flour
½ cup cornstarch
2 tablespoons fresh chopped parsley
Salt and pepper

In a large bowl, make a batter by mixing the beaten eggs, milk, flour, cornstarch, parsley, salt and pepper. Refrigerate for at least an hour.

Place chicken in the batter and refrigerate for another hour.

When ready, sauté in the hot oil turning until golden on each side.

Keep in a warming oven.

TOPPING FOR CHICKEN

1 stick of butter

Juice of one lemon

Melt the butter and add the lemon juice. Spoon it over the chicken when serving.

Mary served it over homemade wide noodles with an Alfredo sauce.

Here is a tried and true recipe for the Alfredo sauce that I always make.

ALFREDO SAUCE

1 stick of unsalted butter

¾ cup of Parmesan cheese

1 pint of half and half (or cream if preferred)

1 pound fettuccine

Melt butter and add the cheese, blending them well together, and then add half and half or cream and cook until done. Pour over a pound of fettuccine with added Parmesan cheese. Serve with the chicken.

How Climate Changes Affect Quincy Workshop May 23

The City of Quincy's Department of Planning & Community Development (PCD) will sponsor a workshop on May 23 from noon to 2 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., to give residents an opportunity to find out how Quincy will be affected by climate change and what they can do to help.

Sea level rise is a topic that has had a lot of press in the last few years as a major consequence of global warming.

For many, the effects of sea level rise are hard to grasp and easily written off as a problem to be dealt with in the future. Over the next 100 years, scientists predict that the sea level will rise as much as five feet. This with a 100-year storm could cause the sea level to be more than ten feet higher than today's average. The effects would cause huge losses in real estate value and require massive modification to our infrastructure.

More than one percent of the country's population lives within one meter (3.3 ft) of today's average sea level, so even on a normal day with a mid-level sea level rise prediction, several million people would be affected.

In order to plan for building and living on the coastline in the future, the threat of sea level rise needs to be considered today.

Recently, experts Chris Watson and Professor Ellen Douglas were engaged by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) to begin studies on sea level rise in the Boston area. Their work with The Boston Harbor Association resulted in a regional forum in November of 2010 that incorporated perspectives from a range of disciplines. PCD has been fortunate to engage these local scientists to map sea level rise along Quincy's 27 miles of shore.

The May 23 event will feature Chris Watson and Ellen Douglas presenting their work, followed by a question and discussion period with Quincy architect Stephen Wessling; civil engineer George Preble; and environmental planner Julie Conroy, each of whom stands to deal with sea level rise in different ways, given the type of work they do.

The event will be filmed and edited into a program for Quincy Access Television (QATV) so that people that can't make it to the meeting can see the gist of it on television. Meeting announcements in English and Mandarin will be posted throughout the city and on the PCD website [www.quincyma.gov/government/planning/], with links to further information on sea level rise and climate change.

Additionally, the fliers have Quick Response codes for people to easily access the website created for the event. PCD intends to produce another presentation on sea level rise with a more regional focus in the near future, most likely in collaboration with the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

Research and preparation of the sea level rise presentation has been managed for PCD by city planning intern Kara Chisholm.

What will your neighborhood look like when the SEA LEVEL RISES?

'The Valor Act' Expands Benefits, Services For Vets, Families

The Massachusetts State Senate has unanimously passed "The Valor Act," new legislation that will expand benefits and increase access to a range of services for veterans, active-duty military and their families, Sen. John F. Keenan (D-Quincy) announced.

The bill works on many fronts to help veterans and active military members improve business, educational and housing opportunities. It establishes public/private partnerships to facilitate seed money for the start-up and expansion of veteran-owned businesses, as well as promotes the participation of disabled-veteran business owners in public construction and design projects.

The legislation also removes certain educational obstacles by requiring the state's public institutions of higher learning to adopt new policies and procedures for awarding proper academic credit for a student's prior military training, course-work and experience.

"This bill targets areas of concerns identified by local veterans as areas of concern, and takes specific steps to make life easier for veterans, active duty service members and their families," said Sen. Keenan, a member of the Joint Committee on Veterans and Federal Affairs. "Massachusetts is known for doing more for its veterans than any other state, and this legislation continues that commitment."

The Valor Act makes it easier for the children of military personnel to transfer between school districts and states, joining 42 other states in the Interstate Compact on Educational Opportunity for Military Children.

To help ease the costs of housing, utilities, medical services and food for Gold Star Families, the bill expands eligibility for the Massachusetts Military Family Relief Fund. It also eliminates the $2,500 Property Tax Exemption Cap for Gold Star Spouses.

The bill also helps the courts better recognize veterans issues by making sure veterans and service members facing criminal complaints have a properly recorded military history and are considered for diversion and treatment options if eligible.

The Valor Act also does the following:

- Prohibits local hiring authorities from requesting military medical records that are not requested by the Human Resources Department;

- Requires the Department of Veterans' Services commissioner to be a veteran;

- Allows for at least a 90-day license renewal extension for service members returning from active duty for certain Department of Public Safety licenses, such as engineering and firefighter licenses;

- Creates a local option property tax exemption for veterans who volunteer in their community, with a maximum credit rate equal to the minimum wage and a total exemption not exceeding $750; and

- Directs the Executive Office of Health and Human Services, in consultation with the Executive Office of Administration and Finance, Department of Veterans' Services, and the soldiers' homes to study the fiscal impact of designating a non-profit entity as a state soldiers' home.

The bill was authored by Sen. Michael Rush (D-West Roxbury), a lieutenant in the United States Navy, who returned in December from a 10-month deployment to Iraq as an intelligence officer in the Navy Reserve.

The Valor Act, which now goes to the House of Representatives for consideration, is the legislature's latest effort to support veterans, military members and their families.

Dating from 1686, the house is 325 years old. During the 17th and 18th centuries, this mansion was considered the grandest estate in Quincy. During the Revolutionary War era, it was a meeting place for such patriots as Josiah Quincy, John Hancock and John Adams. It was the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy Hancock, the wife of John Hancock.

The Homestead is operated by the Colonial Dames of Massachusetts in conjunction with the Massachusetts

Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR).

Groups may request a private tour on a date of their choice by phoning 617-742-3190 or emailing nscda-ma@verizon.net. For more information, visit the Homestead's website: www.nscda.org/ma/quincy_homestead.htm

JDRF Kids' Walk To Cure Diabetes May 19

The Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, in partnership with Atherton Hough, Lincoln Hancock, Wollaston, Bernazzani and the Parker Elementary School and the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF), will be participating in "The JDRF Kids' Walk to Cure Diabetes" Saturday May 19 (rain or shine) at 10 a.m.

Walkers will be gathering at 9:30 a.m. at the Beechwood Knoll, Fenno Street.

The BKS community is working with JDRF in raising funds to help find a cure for a disease that affects millions of children and their families who struggle with this disease.

More than 18 million Americans are affected by Type 1 diabetes and there are 15,000 children who are diagnosed with Type 1 (insulin dependent) and that number continues to grow.

Children who have this disease must check their blood sugar several times per day by pricking their finger and take painful injections of insulin in order to keep their blood sugar level. It is one of the most costly chronic disease among children and there is no cure.

With this walk, "Kids Helping Kids" kids and their families will be learning about diabetes, nutrition education and good physical fitness activities. At the same time, they will learn what it means to help fellow classmates with diabetes by becoming an advocate for a cure. To donate, go on line to:

Here you can find a school, donate in the name of a particular student or give directly to the school.

For more information, contact Beechwood Knoll Elementary at 617-984-8781, or Stephen Golden 617-786-8738.

'Syria: The Faces Of The People' Tuesday At Library

Newton resident Dick Simon will offer an insightful, illustrated presentation about his experiences traveling in Syria Tuesday, May 15 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

With the aim of better understanding the human story behind how Syria is portrayed in the news, Dick Simon and his family traveled there - and what they experienced led them to reconsider this country that has been labeled a part of "the axis of evil."

The Syria they saw was not a harsh land with a hostile populace but rather a beautiful country with wonderful people.

Dick Simon has spent much of the past 10 years working with business leaders making a difference through Young Presidents' Organization (YPO), an international network of over 17,000 CEOs in over 100 countries. He has studied photography at New England School of Photography, Mass College of Art and Design, deCordova Museum and Maine Media Workshops.

The presentation is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Faster Disability Approval For People With ALS

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

May is National ALS Awareness Month. Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), more commonly referred to as Lou Gehrig's disease, is a progressive neurodegenerative disease that attacks nerve cells and pathways in the brain and spinal cord. More than 5,600 people each year are newly diagnosed with ALS. As many as 30,000 Americans may currently be affected by this fatal condition. Social Security can help.

People who have ALS meet the medical qualifications for Social Security disability benefits. ALS is one of Social Security's "Compassionate Allowances." The complete list of Compassionate Allowances conditions can be found at www.socialsecurity.gov/compassionateallowances.

The Compassionate Allowances initiative identifies claims where the nature of the applicant's disease or condition clearly meets the statutory standard for disability. With the help of sophisticated new information technology, the agency can quickly identify potential Compassionate Allowances and then quickly make decisions and begin monthly benefit payments.

Social Security Commissioner Michael Astrue made the Compassionate Allowances initiative a top priority soon after he began his tenure as Commissioner in 2007. Social Security launched the Compassionate Allowances program in 2008 with a list of 50 diseases and conditions. There are now more than 100 Compassionate Allowances conditions — and counting. Commissioner Astrue's dedication to Compassionate Allowances has earned him a humanitarian award and the attention of President Obama.

"Commissioner Astrue has worked tirelessly to ensure that disabled Americans receive the Social Security disability benefits they've earned in a timely way," said President Obama.

We develop the list of Compassionate Allowances conditions from information received at public outreach hearings, comments received from the disability community, counsel of medical and scientific experts, and research with the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Also, we consider which conditions are most likely to meet our definition of disability.

For more information on the Compassionate Allowances initiative, please visit www.socialsecurity.gov/compassionateallowances.

Community Service Program Before School Committee

"I understand some of their concerns," said school committee member Paul Bregoli. "I think that everyone agrees with the concept in terms of what the kids will be required to do. We do have a different demographic than the surrounding towns, but the past history would indicate that the staff really does step up."

The pilot program, which will require students in grades nine through 12 to perform 10 hours of community service each year, is an idea that came to the table by former school committee member Jo-Ann Bragg. Bragg submitted a resolve before leaving the school committee last year, and said that she believes it will be a great program for students to be required to do. Bragg also said that when she submitted the resolve, the plan was for the pilot program to be phased in.

"When I evaluated other communities last year, I found they had phased the program in, and thought that would be the right choice for us," Bragg said during a phone interview. "I think 10 hours isn't a lot to ask, and I think we could all strive to do a little more community service."

"It will help to build their self-esteem, make them better leaders, and more compassionate human beings."

Bragg said that she hasn't really followed what the committee has done with the idea since she left, but she said she would be at the next week's meeting to observe and listen as the school committee votes to implement the program or not.

Some concerns voiced at the meeting consisted of how to decide what will be considered community service, and the fact that it will be implemented all at once as a mandatory graduation requirement. Although programs in both high schools have individual community service requirements, such as the ROTC and the National Honor Society, the students who are not in those specific programs aren't required to participate in community service during their four years of high school.

"I think it is going to be difficult, it isn't going to be a simple thing," said School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "Nothing worthwhile is ever easy in the beginning."

Bregoli said the hope is to get every student involved in the community by making community service a graduation requirement just like taking four years of math and other subjects the students have to pass to graduate.

"We are the last in the area communities to do this," said Bregoli. "Our students are already participating in community service but we haven't made it a graduation requirement. I believe that the initial implementation is going to be easier than everyone is anticipating."

Committee members Emily Lebo and Dave McCarthy brought up concerns about students who don't have the support at home being able to achieve the 10 hours a year. Lebo also voiced her concerns about having a lot of paperwork concerning students asking for their hours to be approved as community service.

"I think this is going to be a management nightmare," said Lebo. "We are really going to have to pay attention to things. I think it is a good idea. I am just not certain it is a good idea to mandate it."

Another concern brought up was where the volume of community service opportunities will come from for both high schools. Bregoli said they are continuing to improve and adjust the plan with help from the superintendent, the principals of both high schools, and the student leaders of both schools. Bregoli also added that he wants to make sure that the pilot program is designed to be what is best for the students and he wants to get as much input from the students as possible before moving forward.

"I don't want to set this program up for failure, at all," said School Committee Vice Chairwoman Barbara Isola. "I truly believe in this program. I really think our staff has their finger on the pulse to support our students in this."

Koch Budget Adds Teachers, Police; Sunday Library Hours

er with the superintendent to address some other program needs that may be there."

The proposal also calls for spending $42.38 million for public safety, an increase of about $600,000 from the previous budget. It would give the Police Department $22.29 million, a 2.3 percent increase, which would be used to add a new patrol officer and another sergeant to the force.

Police Chief Paul Keenan would receive a raise of approximately $5,000, bringing his budgeted salary to $114,764.

The Fire Department's

budget would increase by 1.2 percent to $18.43 million, which Koch said would be used to pay for overtime so the department would have more flexibility in keeping stations staffed. Fire Chief Joseph Barron's salary would remain at $151,000.

The budgets for other departments falling under the umbrella of public safety, including inspectional services and emergency management, would stay largely the same.

Koch's proposal would also give an extra 11.6 percent to the Department of Public Works, increasing the department's budget to about $3 million. A majority of the increase is to fund $250,000 worth of sidewalk repairs. The mayor said sidewalks are one of the biggest issues on the minds of residents.

"We've put $250,000 additionally into the DPW for sidewalk repair," Koch said. "In my 25 years of service in government, there's two constituent issues that come up on a regular basis - sidewalk repair and tree removal or tree planting - that's been consistent in all those years. This $250,000 is an attempt to catch up on that sidewalk repair list."

The mayor is seeking $2.5 million for the library's budget. That's an increase of 6.6 percent compared to the current budget, but less than the $2.8 million the library received in FY09. Koch said the added money would be used to open the library's main branch in Quincy Center for four hours on Sundays year-round.

"In this budget we're allowing the main library to be open for each Sunday throughout the year," Koch said. "I think that's important for the city. I don't hear it on a regular basis like sidewalk repair, but I hear fairly regularly that folks would like to see more hours at the library and I think it's a good thing."

The Parks Department would see its budget increased by 15.3 percent to $1.68 million, still down slightly from the department's FY09 level. Koch said the increase would go towards hiring two laborers and partially bringing back the tree-removal/planting program. In addition, money from both the Parks and Public Works Departments would be used to partially restore a summer jobs program for young people.

Koch also wants the city to hire a "floating clerk" for city hall. That person would be free to assist various city departments depending on need. For example, they would assist the Elections Department during elections season, and would also be available to provide coverage for employees on vacation or maternity. The position would be paid for by a 4.4 percent increase, about $40,000, in the budget for the treasurer/collector's office.

The mayor's plan would also begin to address some of the city's unfunded liabilities. He proposed dedicating 20 percent of the city's state-certified surplus, also known as free cash, to an OPEB (other post-employment benefits) reserve account. Previously, Quincy's outside financial advisor Cinder McNeerney told the council that city had between $250 and $450 million in unfunded OPEB liabilities, which must be funded by 2041.

Koch also proposed eliminated deficits in the snow and ice removal budget. He proposed budgeting $1.25 million towards that account for FY13, up from $1 million in FY12. The mayor's goal is to eventually bring that amount up to the annual average the city has spent for snow and ice removal over the last five years, currently about $1.8 million. Under state law, municipalities can deficit spend for snow and ice removal.

Additionally, 10 percent of free cash would be set aside for an inclement weather reserve. That money would be used to costs unrelated to snow and ice removal, such as hurricanes or tornadoes.

To pay for the increase in the budget, the Koch expects to increase the property tax levy by 2.5 percent. That tax increase wouldn't be set until December, however. He also said he anticipates $4.5 million in new growth, $2 million of which was due to the privatization of Quincy Medical Center.

Increasing the tax levy by 2.5 percent would cause the average single-family home's property tax to increase by about $112. Koch said the increase was reasonable and in sync with his goal of avoid massive tax hikes.

"We recognized people needed a break," Koch said. "I think what's important going forward is, both from my perspective and yours (the council's), is that we do not have the crazy spikes that happened many years ago. We've had a consistent approach to [tax increases] where it's an understandable one but also very doable. In the range we're talking about you're probably looking at about $28 a quarter to deal with the issues we have before you."

Following the mayor's presentation, the City Council referred the budget to the Finance Committee without discussion. The committee will hold three budget hearings in the coming weeks. The council lacks the authority to increase the mayor's proposal, but can cut funds as it sees fit. Once the council approves a budget, the mayor signs it into law.

The City Council's Finance Committee will begin budget hearings Monday.

After Quincy Neighbor Suffers Heart Attack Earl McCloud Helps Save Mary Mastrantonio's Life

By EMILY TAFT

Longtime Quincy residents Earl McCloud, 87, and Mary Mastrantonio, 88, have been neighbors for over 50 years, but recently McCloud came close to losing Mastrantonio when she suffered a severe heart attack while he was driving her to the hospital.

McCloud and Mastrantonio have known each other their entire lives, growing up in the same neighborhood where they both live today. They even worked together for the Quincy Planning Department for a number of years. McCloud moved on to a job in Boston, and Mastrantonio continued to work there as a principal clerk for 22 years before retiring in 2003.

"It's a comfortable feeling to know you have a neighbor that has lived there for so many years," said Mastrantonio.

McCloud added, "We cover each other really."

On the afternoon of March 5th, McCloud would end up doing more than being the typical neighbor to Mastrantonio. He took the right steps to save her life.

"She called over and said she needed to go to the hospital," said McCloud. "By the time I got out the door she was already at the car, and to me she looked fine but she said that she had pain in her heart."

What happened from McCloud's driveway on Quincy Street to Penns Hill Road in Braintree has made McCloud a hero in the eyes of the Mastrantonio family.

"He was there for me and saved my life," said Mastrantonio. "He was there to do what he had to do. He saved my life; it's as simple as that. He was the one that got everything going, got me to that fire station, and made the call. He's a hero."

LONGTIME QUINCY residents Mary Mastrantonio (left) and Earl McCloud and have been neighbors for over 50 years, and have known each other all their lives.

On their way to the hospital Mastrantonio said she wasn't feeling well, so McCloud pulled over allowing her to exit the vehicle and get some air.

"She thought she was going to get sick so I stopped and she got out," said McCloud. "Then she got back in, put her seat belt back on and that was it, she passed out."

McCloud immediately called 9-1-1 and told them he was heading to the East Braintree Fire Station that he knew was right down the street from where they had stopped.

"There wasn't any scary part about the whole day. My brain just kicked in, plus I figured she would be mad at me if I didn't get busy," joked McCloud. "Everything kicked in, my brain must have worked some how, and I got to my cell phone and dialed 9-1-1. I knew there was a fire station about 1,500 yards from where we were and told them I was heading there. Everything seemed to be timed just right.

"We were all in just the right place at the right time."

McCloud then drove to the East Braintree fire station where Lt. James Lochiatto, firefighter Michael Milward, and firefighter Larry Mawn were awaiting their arrival. The three men quickly got to work on Mastrantonio using a defibrillator just once to make her heart start beating again.

"Everything just worked out, our training kicked in and we went right to work on her," said Lt. James Lochiatto. "It is highly unusual that when you turn the machine on it tells you to shock the person and that's what it did when we hooked it up to Mary."

After her heart began beating again the ambulance arrived to take her to South Shore Hospital where they continued to stabilize her for three days. While at South Shore, Mastrantonio's family along with McCloud filled her in on what had happened the day of her heart attack.

HER HEROES – Earl McCloud (left) and Firefighter Michael Milward (right) were two of the four men who helped save Mary Mastrantonio's life March 5th. McCloud has been a neighbor of Mastrantonio's in Quincy for more than 50 years. Milward is a Braintree firefighter.

"I was absolutely shocked to hear what had happened, of all the things I never would have thought it was my heart," said Mastrantonio. "I just didn't know what had happened to me. I couldn't remember any of it."

After three days at South Shore Hospital, Mastrantonio was transferred to Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, where she underwent heart surgery.

"I have always eaten healthy, and stayed active, so to hear I needed heart surgery was certainly a shock," said Mastrantonio. "The last thing I ever expected was my heart because I was always very careful about diets, very careful about what I ate, so it was a shock until they said to me that it may be hereditary."

Although she can't remember that day, Mastrantonio knows she has McCloud and the firefighters from the East Braintree Fire Station to thank for being alive today. Her two daughters, Margaret Fortier and Christina Mastrantonio, are thankful to everyone involved in keeping their mother alive, especially the whole McCloud family.

"My sister and I are just so grateful to Earl, he saved her life," said Margaret. "I should add that although Earl is the hero here, the Quincy Sun Photos/Emily Taft whole McCloud family has just been wonderful. Calling them wonderful neighbors just doesn't do them justice."

Now over a month later and after weeks at Marina Bay Skilled Nursing & Rehabilitation Center, Mastrantonio is back to her active and social self. She is cooking, going for walks and of course visiting with the neighbor who saved her life.

"I like to have a positive outlook on life. I think I am here because I still have a lot to do. I don't know what it could be but there must be something left for me here," said Mastrantonio.

McCloud joked adding, "God wanted to keep you here so you could make me that coffee cake and to remember the recipe for the spaghetti sauce."

A WELL-TURNED ANKLE

Just about a century ago, the mere sight of a woman's ankle peeking out from beneath her hemline was sure to raise some eyebrows. Now, years later, many women make the most of their ankles with elegant jewelry that emphasize their ankles in much the same way that bracelets bring focus to their wrists. While the trend in anklets has largely centered on delicate chains, beaded anklets provide the newest take on this jewelry favorite. In fact, beaded jewelry has been a popular staple of women's jewelry for some time now. It should then come as no surprise that beads composed of pottery, glass, china, metal, and precious gemstones are finding their way to the ankle.

Mayor Presents Scholarships To Six High School Students

Mayor Thomas P. Koch recently presented six scholarship checks to students from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

The six winners – Jack Kozlowski, Erin Chiochio, Donna Niosi, Jennifer Griffith, Samantha Embar-Salo and Kelly Lew – competed in an essay contest as part of the city's second Substance Abuse Awareness Week.

Each student wrote an essay discussing the importance of the Students Against Destructive Decisions (SADD) program. SADD chapters operate in both high schools.

Quincy High School started a chapter this past year, while North Quincy High School has had a chapter for several years. SADD aims to educate and empower young people to avoid making destructive decisions in their lives, from drinking and drug abuse to bullying and teen violence.

"I am proud of these six young men and women because they are taking a stance that is not easy to take," said Mayor Koch. "They are setting an example for their peers to follow and they are demonstrating true leadership day in and day out – these are great kids who are making a big difference in our community."

The Substance Abuse Awareness Week program is in its second year.

In January, Chris Herren, a Fall River native and subject of the ESPN documentary 'Unguarded' spoke to students at both high schools of his own personal experience with substance abuse. Herren played for the Boston Celtics, yet lost his career due to addiction to opiates.

"Mr. Herren's story is a powerful example of what is at stake when people begin to experiment with drugs," Mayor Koch said. "In speaking with these young folks, it's clear to me that his message got through to a lot of their peers."

The Mayor's Substance Abuse Awareness Task Force co-sponsored the events. The Task Force has been in operation since 2008 and has raised awareness of drug abuse through community forums, the semi-annual drug take-back day and publication of informational pamphlets.

Weekly Job Readiness Workshops Feature Local Experts

QCAP Announces State Street Funding For Career Institute

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) announces it has received a $20,000 grant from the State Street Foundation, Inc. to support its Create Your Career Institute, a job readiness counseling program designed to strengthen workplace and life skills.

The program - which will feature weekly workshops on a rotating series of topics - will run from May through June and again from September through March 2013.

"We are grateful to the State Street Foundation, Inc. for its continued support of our organization and our workforce development initiatives," said Beth Ann Strollo, QCAP's executive director. "The Career Institute is an essential program to help residents secure long-term and gainful employment and become financially self-sufficient."

The Career Institute, now in its second year, helps students take the next steps toward employment, continuing education, and/or job training. Topics include: Career Readiness Skills, Preparing to Enter the World of Work, Soft Skills to Get and Keep a Job, Financial Foundations for Success, and Job Search and Retention. As part of the curriculum, QCAP will invite local experts from the financial, health care, and education sector to provide valuable insight into the current hiring trends in their respective industries, how students can make themselves more competitive in the job market, and what loan programs may be available to them to pursue advanced education or open a small business.

The funding demonstrates a commitment by the State Street Foundation, Inc. to invest in the community, part of which is strengthening workforce skills to meet the needs of area businesses. Although the local economy is showing signs of recovery, employers are requiring higher levels of education and experience. In February of this year, 45% of all job openings in Massachusetts required some college or post-secondary education and 38% of openings required a bachelor's degree, according to the University of Massachusetts Donahue Institute. Of the top 30 fastest growing occupations in Quincy and the South Shore, 23 - or 77% - require at least an Associate's degree, according to the Massachusetts Department of Workforce Development. However, the latest U.S. Census data showed that of Quincy residents ages 18 to 24, 15.9% have less than a high school graduate level education.

"The State Street Foundation firmly believes that investing in education and workforce development is the best strategy to promote sustainable economic progress in the communities where our employees live and work," said Amanda L. Northrop, vice president at the Foundation. "We are pleased to partner with QCAP to support their work to equip residents with the skills they need to achieve success."

With support from the State Street Foundation, Inc., QCAP can offer its Career Institute free of charge to participants, a critical element for many residents who, with the high cost of housing, food, and other basic needs, are not able to prioritize education.

All classes will be held at QCAP, 1509 Hancock Street in Quincy. For more information and to register for a workshop, contact Margaret Doherty, QCAP's Adult Education Counselor at 617-479-8181 x 387 or mdoherty@qcap.org.

Neighborhood Housing Services Mulligan Golf Tournament June 8

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will host its 13th Annual Mulligan Golf Tournament Friday, June 8 at the Brookmeadow Country Club in Canton.

The event begins at 8:30 a.m. and features 18 holes of golf plus dinner, poker, a silent auction and prizes.

Proceeds benefit the Housing First collaborative between Neighborhood Housing and Father Bill's Mainspring.

Neighborhood Housing Services Executive Director Robert Corley said the Mulligan Tournament takes its name for the popular golf term for a second chance or "do-over."

"Due to the financial crisis and tougher underwriting standards for new homebuyers, there have been huge increases in rents across the South Shore, which makes it more difficult for people to find a decent, affordable place to live," Corley said. "The Housing First program offers people a second chance at a safe place to call home."

Since its inception, the Mulligan Tournament has raised more than $400,000 for the Housing First program.

"The proceeds from the tournament help us support local families and individuals who were formerly homeless," said Tournament organizer Antoinette Toney. "An affordable apartment truly gives them a second chance and a fresh start."

The registration fee is $125 per player and includes golf, use of a golf cart and a sit-down dinner. Tournament sponsorship opportunities are also available.

To register online or become a tournament sponsor, visit <http://www.neighborhoodhousing.org/Events-Mulligan-Golf-Tournament.asp> or call 617-770-2227 for more information.

JIM LUNDY of Roche Brothers (center) is presented a Quincy Public Health "Achievement in Public Health" award from Public Nurse Educator Ruth Jones and Quincy Health Inspector Bill DeCarli.

Roche Brothers, Tavern At Granite Links Recognized For Achievement In Public Health

The Quincy Health Department recently presented its first "Achievement in Public Health" awards.

Jim Lundy, Store Manager for Roche Brothers and Dave Todisco, Executive Chef at the Tavern at Granite Links, were the recipients of the awards.

Over the past several years, both Roche Brothers and The Tavern have hosted special food service inspections attended by students enrolled in the Allied Health program at both Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

As part of their clinical experience, they partner with the Quincy Health Department under the direction of Public Nurse Educator Ruth Jones. Each clinical session involves detailed inspections of food service operations and both Jim Lundy at Roche Brothers and Dave Todisco of the Tavern have not only offered their facilities for the inspections, but they offer their expertise in the area of food safety to the students.

These two facilities have hosted dozens of inspections each year for the past several years. It is for their commitment to food safety that the Quincy Health Department recognizes their Achievement in Public Health.

Raises Money, Awareness About Poverty*

South Shore Walkathon Draws Large Crowd And Community Support

Clowns and cheerleaders are not what you'd expect to see at most Walkathons, but at the recent South Shore Walk they blended right in with the fun family atmosphere.

Over 300 local residents followed a three-mile route around the Quincy neighborhood of Squantum to raise money and awareness about poverty on the South Shore.

For 38 years Interfaith Social Services has hosted the South Shore Walk. Located in Quincy, Interfaith is a non-religious multiservice center for local residents. The organization serves the towns of: Quincy, Milton, Holbrook, Randolph, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset and Scituate. Their mission is to strengthen family life and offer assistance to anyone in need.

Last year, Interfaith's programs assisted more than 25,000 local residents, and their Pantry Shelf food program distributed over 400,000 pounds of food to hungry South Shore families and individuals.

Interfaith relies on support from individuals and the community to sustain their programs. Since the Walk began nearly four decades ago Pat Baird of South Weymouth has been participating in the event.

"My husband and I started walking because our Church, Old South Union in Weymouth, told us of a walk in Quincy to help less fortunate families," Baird said. "By walking and raising as much money as we could we felt that we were doing our part every year. I am still doing the walk today because I know that it will go to help many families."

Those sentiments were echoed by Interfaith Social Services' executive director Rick Doane.

"There is poverty all around us," Doane said. "It is not something that people discuss around the water cooler, but we see it every day through our food pantry and other emergency programs here at Interfaith."

Doane said Interfaith's food pantry is currently serving over 17,000 people a year.

"The past few years we have seen dramatic increases in the number of people reaching out for help. Families are struggling to provide for their children; this Walk brings attention to their plight. It is wonderful to see a community pitching in to help their neighbors."

That example of community spirit was evident at the Walkathon. Teams of walkers from State Street Corporation, Kohl's, numerous local churches and other businesses all participated.

"Interfaith Social Services is an outstanding example of what it means to be a part of and to serve the community," said Peter Tsaffaras, president of Quincy College and South Shore Walk participant. "Quincy College cannot think of a better way to show our commitment to the community than to support the daily efforts of Interfaith Social Services."

The South Shore Walk culminated with a party at the Kennedy Center in Quincy where participants enjoyed lunch courtesy of The 99 Restaurant and Papa Gino's Pizza, ice cream thanks to Blue Bunny Ice Cream and a host of other activities. From silent auctions and massages by Facilitated Healing Center to an interactive inflatable soccer game hosted by The New England Revolution Cheerleaders, the theme of fun while helping others permeated every aspect of the event.

The South Shore Walk is one of Interfaith Social Services' most important annual fundraisers. Their goal was to raise $30,000, and they almost made it.

"We are only a few hundred dollars away from reaching our goal," said executive director Rick Doane. "We are definitely still accepting donations."

To donate online visit www.InterfaithSocialServices.org, or via mail to 105 Adams St., Quincy, MA 02169.

"Thank you to everyone who helped to make this such a fun and successful day," Doane added.

'No Courts, No Justice, No Freedom' Law Day Message

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

"No Courts, No Justice, No Freedom" was the theme for the Quincy District Court's annual Law Day ceremonies, honoring those who have performed extraordinary service in the field of law and law enforcement in Quincy and other communities served by this court.

Quincy Bar Association President Siobhan Foley emphasized the historic role our courts have played in protecting the fundamental rights of our citizens. In her Law Day motion to the court she said, "Even the most eloquent constitution is worthless with no one to enforce it. Our courts guarantee social order, and public safety."

Law enforcement officers, elected officials — including State Sen. John Keenan and Reps. Bruce Ayers and Tackey Chan — Quincy Court judges, educators, the families of honorees and members of the legal community made for a standing-room-only crowd in the courtroom as citations were presented to honorees.

Police officers from Quincy, Weymouth, Cohasset, Braintree, Holbrook and Randolph, as well as the Mass. State Police were present in dress uniform to accept being honored with the Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement.

Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey first presented the award to eight Weymouth police officers, all of whom were called in on the brutal murder of a mother, her boyfriend and her daughter in Weymouth last year.

In November of 2010, responding to what was supposed to be an "unwanted party" call, Weymouth officers apprehended a suspect, the woman's son, apparently looking for an avenue of escape from the crime scene. The team acted outstandingly, not only in his capture, but in preserving key evidence at the scene.

Cohasset police officer Patrick Kenney instigated the apprehension of a suspect armed with a sawed-off shotgun following report of a home invasion in Marshfield. While in lead pursuit of the suspect, Kenny radioed traffic officers ahead to deliberately tie up traffic and was then able to reach and arrest the two at gunpoint.

Quincy Police officer Lt. Kevin Tobin received the Dana award in recognition of saving a life. In April of last year Tobin was among the officers responding to report of a suicidal man at Faxon Park, holed up and armed with a handgun, and partially obscured in a vehicle with tinted windows.

Morrissey said, "After establishing the safety of bystanders, Lt. Tobin obtained the cell phone number of the suicidal party and made contact with him. Gradually, gently, Lt. Tobin established a rapport that eventually led to the man placing his loaded, 9 millimeter gun on the roof of the vehicle."

"The man surrendered peacefully and was taken to the hospital for the help he needed. This outcome was only possible because of Lt. Tobin's experience, training and professionalism and outstanding conduct."

From the Braintree Police Department, Sgt. Timothy Cohoon and Officer Paul Hamilton were recognized for their efforts in rescuing a woman stranded on a high-voltage tower, and Officer Brian Kelley for his apprehension of a bank robber following a foot chase.

Officers Brian MacGregor and James Hurley of the Holbrook police received honors as did Officers Marc L'Italien, Douglas Morgan and Kevin Donnelly of Randolph P.D., who responded to a Randolph house fire in March of this year.

The officers were attempting to evacuate the home when L'Italien was doused with gasoline by a party in the home, some of which splashed onto Officer Morgan. Armed with a knife, the suspect then fled into the backyard and was held there at gunpoint by Officer Donnelly, until the other two officers, despite being soaked with gas, assisted with the arrest.

Awards to State Police were presented to State Troopers Michael Close and Eugene Lawrence for solving a string of crimes in the Blue Hills area, where frequent car break-ins were leading to substantial credit-card fraud.

Quincy Celebrates Community Development Week

Mayor Thomas P. Koch, Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington, and Community Development Director Nancy A. Callanan announce the City of Quincy's recent participation in National Community Development Week 2012 was another great success.

Community Development Week provides an opportunity for Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) communities to showcase CDBG-funded projects and programs, and to educate residents, local businesses, and community groups about the programs administered by the city's Department of Planning and Community Development.

Locally, CDBG funds are used to support activities and services such as community center programs; emergency food centers; housing rehabilitation activities; code inspections; the creation of affordable housing units; and also supports economic activities such as public works projects and assistance to small businesses for jobs creation.

Last year alone, the city's administration of these block grant programs directly benefitted over 13,600 individuals. These programs also assisted thirty-two individuals and seven businesses with technical assistance and commercial loans; renovated two community centers; and provided housing for hundreds of formerly homeless individuals and families. Dozens of housing rehabilitation projects were completed, and five city streets were paved thanks to the CDBG program.

Nine events were held during Community Development Week to celebrate the positive impacts CDBG and other federal resources have had in Quincy.

was the celebration of an affordable housing project for families called "Winter Gardens," which is currently under construction at 45 Winter Street, and is partially funded by the City of Quincy through community development grants, administered by the city's Department of Planning and Community Development. The project is being developed by Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore (NHS), which is one of the city's community housing development organizations. The project consists of 24 energy efficient units, which will be offered to low and moderate-income families.

"The last few years have been a challenge nationally, in the Commonwealth, and in Quincy, and there's nothing more basic than those two pieces: having a job and having a roof over your head," said Mayor Koch. "And we, as a city, as a community, have been working together to provide more opportunity for those jobs, and on days like this we see those opportunities for housing, which are so important to our young working families."

"You have a vision and a plan for the future for the Adams Green and the new Quincy Center that is really second to none," said Cedric Kam, who serves as Quincy's new Community Planning and Development Representative at the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. "In my primary capacity, I work with cities all over New England...and what you have here in Quincy are dreams and goals and plans for the future that really are the best in our region of the country."

"Affordable housing development is always about providing high quality, safe places for individuals and families of all incomes and ages to live," said Robert Corley, Executive Director of NHS. "As the local market rents hit record highs once again, and homeownership underwriting continues to tighten, this must continue to be a priority in the development of strong, healthy, economically-diverse communities like the City of Quincy." Corley stressed that affordable housing is an investment in neighborhoods and families, that if done correctly, will yield countless city-wide benefits for years to come.

"It's very unusual to have a great number of agencies and institutions combine their assets to fund a project for affordable housing for families," said Harrington. "It is very difficult to bring a project like this to fruition and we congratulate NHS for doing so."

State Rep. Ron Mariano was presented with a Lifetime Achievement Award for his unwavering commitment and support of community development programs in the City of Quincy. Rep. Mariano's plaque read, in part, "During your years of service in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, the City of Quincy has received millions of dollars from the Commonwealth - funds which have been invested in countless housing and public works projects that have provided a better quality of life for all Quincy residents."

"This is a real testament to the good work that Neighborhood Housing Services and the CDBG program can do," Rep. Mariano said speaking about the Winter Gardens project. "This is going to bring back people into an area that was once a thriving community and rekindle that sense of community, and I, for one, am very grateful to the Mayor for paying attention to this little

250 Lincoln-Hancock School Students Participate In Woodsy Owl Poster Exhibit

More than 250 students at the Lincoln-Hancock School recently participated recently in the Woodsy Owl, conservation Poster Contest and Art Exhibit sponsored by the Lincoln Hancock School PTO and the Wollaston Garden Club.

The students with the assistance of their art teacher, Nicole Oliver, and their homeroom teachers, created posters using the U.S Forest Service's Woodsy Owl icon, portraying re-cycling activities and using the slogan "Lend a Hand - Care For the Land".

Posters were judged for their exact use of the Forest Service's icon and slogan, and the student's creativity and skill in portraying the natural world and conservation and re-cycling activities.

The contest judges from the garden club were Pat Ar-tis, Jo Costello and Colleen Lawlor. The judges were excited about the "wonderful over-all quality of the posters and how well so many students showed their understanding of both the beauty in nature, and how ordinary people can help to preserve the environment."

Winning entries were presented with ribbons for first, second and third place winners from grades 1-4. Winning posters were sent along to the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts Woodsy Owl Poster Contest Committee. All of the students will receive a Certificate of Participation and a small gift from the U.S. Forestry Service. WGC Youth Chair, Diane Hill said "The success of the event was due in large part to Nicole Oliver, the LH art teacher. Mrs. Oliver engaged the children to express themselves artistically while educating them about conservation and recycling."

The artwork can be viewed on YouTube under: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=SC9oBy48a0w>

QTMP Coordinator Janice Walsh Leaving A Legacy Of Love

"Back in the 1990s, we had 25 girls in the program with a waiting list of 12 for one year. Now, we have 12 girls."

The message of abstinence is preached by health educators to middle school students. That message is reinforced by the teen mothers who also speak to these younger students.

"Who are these eighth graders more likely to listen to? A teacher or basically one of their peers? They're going to listen to their peers," Walsh answers. "I think by having the teen mothers speak to the eighth grade students has far more impact than a teacher telling them every single day because a lot of times they know these teen-agers and they know a younger sister or brother."

What message do the moms convey?

"I love my baby but if I had it to do all over again, I would have waited 10 years. They want their same baby 10 years from now. That's the basic message," Walsh says.

"They go into the classes and they say how difficult it is, how they missed their teen-aged markers. They generally don't go to the prom or go to any sporting or extracurricular activity. They have no social life anymore. Their social life is their baby. One girl even said that her best friend now is her baby."

The financial hardship of teen motherhood is also a common theme.

"They also talk about the money and how expensive it is to have a baby," Walsh says. "They tell the eighth graders that if they have a birthday and get a $25 check, they can spend it on themselves whereas if the teen parents gets a birthday present, they spend it on diapers and shoes. It's not about you anymore; everything is about the baby."

"They love their baby, but they wish they had waited."

The teen moms are also challenged by the hard reality that it's unlikely the father of the child will be their "knight in shining armor."

Walsh said she conducted a survey that showed 50 percent of the teen moms are no longer with the father of the baby. By the time the baby is three, only 10 percent are still with the fathers of the

"Her biggest adjustment, in addition to having a child, is dealing with the emotions of thinking she is going to have a father stay with her and he doesn't and he leaves and she has the responsibility of the baby by herself," Walsh says.

Enter the QTMP. It's more than a life preserver for these teen moms. Walsh and her staff are surrogate parents for these young ladies. And many credit QTMP with providing the love and support and knowledge essential for transitioning to motherhood while receiving a high school education.

QTMP Advisory Board Chairwoman Kathy McCluskey offers this heart-felt testimonial:

"I met Janice 19 years ago when my daughter dropped out of high school: pregnant at 16. We found out about the QTMP and made an appointment to meet Janice and the rest of her staff, most of them are still there."

"Janice embraced my daughter Kelee and made her feel protected and safe. My grandson, Devin, who is now 20, was in the nursery when Kelee took classes. She graduated with a high school diploma."

"I'm not sure what Kelee would have done if the QTMP wasn't there to guide her. Janice tries very hard to help the girls be good mothers which is hard when you are in your teens and all your friends abandon you because you have a baby."

"The other mothers become your friends because you have something in common. The QTMP and Janice Walsh made a significant difference in our lives and many, many more babies and their moms."

"I love you Janice and the Quincy Teen Mothers Program."

For Walsh, that feeling of love and affection is mutual.

"I love the girls. They are teenagers and any parent of teenagers knows how difficult the teenage years are, but you still love your kids and this is kind of what this is. They're young, they're pregnant, it couldn't be a worst time in their lives but yet you can't help but love them and I always have. I really enjoy their enthusiasm and their interests in life."

Walsh says many graduates stay in touch with her and the staff.

"They tell me 'this is the best thing that's ever happened to me. I never would have been where I am now if it weren't for this program.' We have girls who come back every Christmas and give us chocolates - 10, 15 years later, they still bring us chocolates and come by to say thank you."

Walsh says the program's parenting classes are its hallmark.

"What we feel is our forte and our specialty is our parenting classes and incorporated into that is family education of nutrition, parenting, child growth and development."

"One of the big components of the program is that every mother has to spend 45 minutes a day in the nursery, even if she's pregnant so that she can learn the necessary skills to be a mother," Walsh notes.

"One of our best teachers is our nursery staff and they model the behavior of what these young mothers should be doing."

Walsh also says the program encompasses prenatal development, labor and development, health issues and legal rights.

"We have doctors come in and they talk about birth control and sexually transmitted diseases. We also had a woman from the Norfolk County Probate and Family Court who recently spoke to the teen-age mothers about child support and child custody and legal rights and issues that will help them be better mothers and make better decisions."

"We have a lot of guest speakers who cover the gamut of all parenting issues."

The Quincy Teen Mothers Program had its humble beginning back in 1974. Linda Shapiro, a school psychologist for Quincy High School, started a small counseling group in the basement of St. Boniface Church for girls who had dropped out of school. They met once a week and they were all teen mothers.

"The teen moms expressed to Linda that the one regret they had is that they wished they could still be in school," Walsh explains. "She went to Dr. Carol Lee Griffin (former assistant superintendent) and expressed their desire from the girls and they found that Bethany Church would give them the space. They had one teacher and one child care worker and they started a pilot program with four girls and four babies in March 1978."

The following September, it evolved into a program with additional teachers and more girls and staff.

Through all those years, the Quincy Teen Mothers Program has been about one thing: giving kids a second chance.

Speaking about the program, former Quincy School Supt. John Osterman once remarked: "We don't deny the teen fathers their education. Why should we deny the teen mothers their education?"

That philosophy has been taken to heart by Walsh and her staff who have fostered a loving, supporting atmosphere for teen mothers who, without the program, may have nowhere else to turn.

"By offering these teen mothers a chance to finish their education, then they graduate from high school, they either go on to college or they can work generally in a skilled job because they have the skills learned at the high school and they go on to support society instead of being a burden to society," Walsh says.

"It's a lot better and wiser to offer an alternative program so that they can finish their high school education than to deny it and they stay home and don't contribute to society."

She pauses and thinks back to those after-school days tutoring nearly 40 years ago.

"This was meant to be," she says of her tenure with the QTMP. "I tutored them when there was no teen mothers program not knowing if there ever would be (a program someday)."

With her days as coordinator winding down, Walsh adds: "I think it's time to let somebody else come in."

Janice Walsh will leave the Quincy Teen Mothers Program with a legacy of love.

Quincy Catholic Academy's Parent Association recently hosted its first annual Multicultural Night fundraiser.

Over 300 guests were treated to a large international food court and entertainment throughout the evening. Attendees also had the opportunity to purchase raffle tickets and bid on many auction items.

"What a fun night!" said QCA Principal Cathy Cameron. "The reflection of all the cultures represented at QCA was wonderful!"

Children traveled with their "passports" to seven different countries and regions around the world. They listened to music, tasted exotic food, examined artifacts, and enjoyed the richness of many different cultures.

Guests were entertained by watching the following performances: Forbes School Irish Step Dancers, QCA Irish Step students, Modern Taekwondo Center Performers, Zumba with Deirdre O'Connor, Velocity Dance Studio performing African Dance, QCA students performing Classical Indian Dance, Velocity Dance Studio Hip Hop, and an International Fashion Show with QCA students representing several countries.

Many local restaurants helped to cater this event, including Applebee's, Baby-cakes, Basta Pasta, Boston

Market, Burke's Seafood, Cake Spot, Captain Fishbones, The Chateau, China Pearl, The Commonwealth, Dunkin' Donuts, The Fours, Fratelli's Bakery, Fuji 1546, Indian Delight, Little Duck Thai, Maria's, Margarita's, Murphy's Twin Shamrocks, Ninety-Nine, Papa Gino's, Punjab Cafe, Rio's Brazilian Steakhouse, The Venetian, and Villa Rosa.

Funds raised will go toward Parent Association events and enrichment programs for QCA students.

Still Young At Heart: Senior Olympics Celebrate 30th Year

The most important thing in the Olympic games is not to win, but to take part;

Just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph, but the struggle;

The essential thing is not to have conquered, but to have fought well.

~ The Olympic Creed

By SEAN BRENNAN

Don Duggan pointed to his faded periwinkle blue t-shirt and flashed a smile.

In terms of quality, it was approaching vintage, but it was the black writing on front that told his story. It read: 1999 Quincy Senior Olympic Games.

That was the first time that Duggan competed in the Quincy Senior Olympics, an annual two-week period that begins its 30th year on May 14 when over 100 Quincy seniors will come together to compete in sporting events ranging from bocce and track and almost everything else in between in an environment of friendly competition and camaraderie.

Since 1982, the second week in May has become what Duggan refers to as a "mark down date." It is a time for residents' age 55-and-older to take back the athletic spotlight that shines on the younger generations the majority of the year in Quincy.

"It is a mark down date, the second week of May," said Duggan during an interview at the Kennedy Center on East Squantum Street. "It is a must do event."

"I have been taking part about ten years, as I took a couple of years off," added Duggan when reflecting on his experience. "I don't do any running or swimming, but it is the rotation field events like basketball (free throws), horseshoe, and bocce that I do. There is a friendly competition and you are out to win."

It is the type of competition - infused with social interaction - that brought Kay Schuetz into the Senior Olympic fraternity six years ago, following the death of her husband.

"I have been competing about six years, but my husband was doing it before me and then he passed away and I said I am going to do it to," she said. "It is a social event and it keeps you going. You are supposed to exercise (as you get older) and as you get older you cut out a few things you really can't do anymore. I don't do the walking now, I just do the bocce, darts and billiards."

Still Going Strong After All These Years

The late Don Strong was the Director of Elder Services at the Beechwood Community Life Center on Fenno Street when he walked into former Mayor Frank McCauley's office at City Hall in 1982 with an idea.

Strong's idea was straight and to the point.

He wanted to hold Olympic Games for the seniors in Quincy. McCauley, Strong

THE 30th ANNUAL QUINCY SENIOR OLYMPICS start on Monday, May 14. This two-week period is an opportunity for residents' 55-and-older to compete in a wide range of athletic events in an atmosphere of friendly competition and camaraderie. Pictured, left to right, are: Thomas Clasby, Director of Elder Services, Quincy Council on Aging; Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation; Senior Olympians Don Duggan and Kay Schuetz, and Recreation Supervisor Michele Hanly. Quincy Sun photos/Lisa Aimola and members of the Recreation Department met and, in May of 1982, the 1st annual Quincy Senior Olympics were held on a Saturday and Sunday at Faxon Field.

It was an instant success. "Don Strong was the director of the Beechwood Community Life Center on Fenno Street; he was the Director of Elder Services at that building," reminisced Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation. "Don went to Frank McCauley and said he wanted to do this Olympic Games. The original games were conducted on a Saturday and Sunday and they were at Faxon Field."

"I have said publicly, and I'll say it again," added Welch, "why anyone came back I have no idea. It just mushroomed and it was chaotic because we had more people than we thought, nowhere near the numbers we have now, and from there it has grown."

Thirty years is a long time for anything to remain the same. The Senior Olympics are no exception. The biggest shift according to Welch has been the increased participation of women.

"The biggest change is back then there were no women," Welch noted about the original 1982 field. This year the split between male and female competitors is expected to be 60/40 in favor of women. "If you go back 30 years ago, women who would have been sixty at the time had no opportunities. There were no women sixty that played sports except for Mary Pratt and five others."

"In the 1980s you saw a more health conscious movement among women even though there may not have been the athletic competitions," explained Welch about the rise in female participation. "There was more health consciousness among women and that built our numbers. So the growth of the Senior Games, that is how it started, and of course the movement has taken off."

Looking back in time you can make the argument that Don Strong's original idea was the springboard for Senior Games throughout the Commonwealth and the country today.

When the Games opened for business in 1982 it marked the start of something special.

"We were the first Senior Games in Massachusetts," said Welch, "and we led to the Mass Senior Games, and the Mass Senior Games led to the National Games, which are every two years. The National Senior Games are the largest single amateur games in the United States."

"We can trace back that there were no other senior municipal games in the state and we know that we precede the state games because I am on the charter board of the state games," added Welch. "We also know that in order to go to the national games you needed to hold two state games and they allowed the Quincy competition to serve as one of those."

Kennedy Center: A Perfect Partner

The City of Quincy has been an all-in collaborator with the Senior Olympics since the beginning. Over the last 30 years organizations, local businesses and countless others have made this event what it has become - not just an athletic venture but also a time when Quincy's seniors can get active in mind, body and soul.

According to Welch, the most recent boost to an active senior lifestyle has been the opening of the Kennedy Center and the work being put in daily by the Council on Aging.

SENIOR OLYMPIANS Don Duggan and Kay Schuetz sat down for an interview last Wednesday at the Kennedy Center on East Squantum Street. Duggan has been a participant for ten years while Schuetz has taken part the last six years. Both talked in length about the friendly competition that is a big part of the Senior Games.

The one-floor building, located at 440 East Squantum Street, opened on July 2, 2009 and has turned what had been a two-week period of coming together into a year-round destination for seniors looking to socialize and recharge the batteries.

"Our mission statement is to have a marking point each year to measure yourself on your year-round fitness," Welch said about the Senior Games before adding, "If you look at our events, they promote year-round fitness and practice. That is why we are heavy on walks and on swimming because what we want people to do is engage in year-round fitness. It gives them a goal."

"The one thing I know for certain is that the Kennedy Center has given us a boost because folks are here year-round."

Director of Elder Services Thomas Clasby, Jr., credits the Kennedy Center and his department's work with the Senior Olympics as a key to an increased healthy senior lifestyle.

"We are a natural fit to be involved with the Senior Olympics simply because we are a resource pool here," he said. "We are the premier agency that deals with seniors in Quincy, so it is just natural that we would get involved."

"In terms of the Kennedy Center," continued Clasby, "and we did see a spike (in numbers), it is because for the first time we had one place where people could come in on a daily basis. Our philosophy when we built it was mind, body and soul. What makes a person have longevity? There is many things and some are quite obvious; nutrition would be one and exercise would be the other."

"There are also things that aren't as obvious for longevity, like forming social networks," added Clasby, "and what we are seeing is (the Kennedy Center) has become a social network. Lasting friendships have been formed. We tend to believe that if we have longevity that our genes dictate it, but that is absolutely not the case at all. Only 30% of longevity is dictated by our genes and the other 70% is other things like keeping the mind sharp."

With a small crowd of women patiently waiting outside of the meeting room at the Kennedy Center to reclaim their daily 1:30 p.m. time slot to play Hearts, Duggan looked around following Clasby's remarks and praised the newest hot spot for Quincy's seniors.

"They really hit the jackpot when the mayor put this up," he said. "There are all kinds of activities; there are always luncheons and entertainment. Thanks to Tom Clasby and the Council on Aging, they really do a great job here."

Schuetz noted how the Kennedy Center helped her reconnect with old friends while also helping her and others form new friendships.

"All my neighbors, when we had little kids they all played together and then we all went our separate ways," she said, "and now we have a great little group of women and we come here and play cards and we all know each other. I came down here to do crafts and I have met a whole new group of people."

Citywide Support

The Mayor's Office and the Quincy Council on Aging, Department of Elder Services deserve adoration for the critical part that each play in the success of the Quincy Senior Olympics, but the citywide support is far-reaching.

This year's games are sponsored by Quincy Medical Center (a Steward Family Hospital) and River Bay Club, which hosts the popular Sportsmanship Luncheon on May 18, while Quincy Access Television plans to film most of the events and rebroadcast them in later weeks.

However, without the generous donation of time and space by places such as the Torre Dei Passeri Club (bocce), Olindy's Lanes (bowling and billiards) and Presidents Golf Course (golf tournament) the Senior Olympics would have never been able to continue to serve the seniors of Quincy.

"It is a triumphant," explained Welch about what makes the Senior Olympics run so smoothly every May. "It is a natural progression of businesses just stepping up and in many cases they volunteered the time and space."

Not to be overlooked in this process is the work that Supervisor Michele Hanly and the Quincy Recreation staff do before and during the Senior Olympics.

"There is a lot of magic that goes on behind the curtain," a humble Hanly said. "Our Recreation staff is wonderful."

Dealing 11 1/2 months of the calendar with youngsters, the Recreation staff, and their interaction with the seniors is one of the best parts of the year for Hanly and Welch.

"The kids like the Senior Olympics," said Welch. "Our kids aren't hired to work with seniors, but I think it works well. They are very gracious and patient with the seniors. The intergenerational thing is a clear component of the Senior Games."

THOMAS CLASBY, Director of Elder Services, Quincy Council on Aging, talked about how the Quincy Senior Olympics is a way for seniors in the city to improve their health in mind, body and soul. Quincy Sun photos/Lisa Aimola

The Monday After Mother's Day

To steal Duggan's phrase, the "mark down" day every year for the Senior Olympics is always the Monday after Mother's Day; this year will be no different.

Following a One-Mile Walk at 6 p.m. on May 14, all participants will help celebrate the opening ceremony of the Senior Games with the torch lighting at the Kennedy Center at 6:45 p.m. The always-popular Celebrity Exhibition Volleyball Game will close out the opening night festivities.

Events will continue throughout the week with a day off on Sunday, May 20.

The golf tournament will be played on Monday, May 21 and the 30th annual Senior Olympics end with an Awards Night on Thursday, May 24.

"The numbers so far are great," concluded Welch. "We always pick up (people) and we never drop. People will join in once it starts and we will register as long as it is happening."

For more information about registering for the Quincy Senior Olympic Game call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394 or the Quincy Council on Aging, Department of Elder Services at 617-376-1245.

Young Talent Excelling For Q/NQ Track

The annual Freshman-Sophomore Meet sponsored by the Mass State Track Coaches Association (MSTCA) at Newton South High School featured many great performances by Quincy athletes.

Quincy and North Quincy athletes picked up six medals including wins from North Quincy's Emily Bryson (2-mile) and Mike Mullaney (2-mile) while Quincy's James Lam placed third in the javelin establishing a new Quincy High record with the "new rule" javelin of 142'08." Maya Umoren of North Quincy took second in both the shot put and discus, and Camille Mullaney placed fourth in the high jump event.

Other performers included Chris Clare and Eddie Guinto in the boys' 200; Gabby Flaherty in the girls' 200, Brandi Parker in the 400 and triple jump, Angela McDonald in the girls' javelin and Aidan McMorrow in the boys' mile.

The highlights of the Quincy/North Quincy's performances were the wins in the 2-mile events. Bryson hung close to the leaders for six of the eight laps and then pulled even with the leader with a lap to go before unleashing a powerful finishing kick to win by ten seconds over the rest of the field in 11:24.4, a full 20 seconds faster than her second place performance at the 228 Invitational at Notre Dame Academy (Hingham) in mid-April. Bryson's final lap was done in a blazing 73 seconds.

In the boys' 2-mile, Mullaney did likewise staying with the leaders until the final lap before sprinting to victory in a best ever time of 10:04.5, which qualified him for the MIAA Division I meet on May 28 at Dilboy Field in Somerville.

Julia Bryson, also in the 2-mile, qualified for state for the first time with a finishing time of 12:13, which was a huge improvement from the 12:35 she ran at Notre Dame.

In the javelin, Lam was throwing in only his second track meet ever and only had a 113'00 seeding performance, which he did versus Hingham. On his first throw he unleashed a 142'08," which put him in third, the best freshman in Massachusetts to date. On the girls' side Angela McDonald improved eight feet over previous toss

In the high jump Mullaney cleared 4'11" on her third try but couldn't make the 5'1" next height and had to settle for fourth. She was however, the best freshman in the meet. Umoren threw the shot 37'7" just shy of her personal best of 38'0, which she set at State Relays last week but tossed a personal best 96'9" to take second in discus.

Head coach Geoff Hennessy was proud of his young tracksters.

"We really couldn't have done better," the longtime coach said. "We're training hard and learning every day. They're a great group of kids to work with. Credit goes to my staff of Lauren Brooks, Jim Hogan, Holly Madden and Nicole Kasanoff."

"With talent, preparation and opportunity come together," continued Hennessy, "and it's fun to email the Principals telling them of the wonderful things these kids do. Imagine what will happen when we have our new track next year."

Quincy/North Quincy will compete today (Thursday) in a dual meet with Pembroke.

Lunch With Dunkin'

IN HONOR OF "ADMINISTRATIVE PROFESSIONALS DAY," New England Revolution midfielder Kelyn Rowe personally delivered a Dunkin' Donuts lunch to Quincy native and Boston Children's Hospital employee Kerrilee Shea. The surprise was part of the Revolution's "Lunch with Dunkin'" online sweepstakes sponsored by Dunkin' Donuts, which asked fans to nominate their favorite administrative professional. Shea, nominated by her colleague Alison Armstrong, and eight other Department of Neurosurgery employees dined with Rowe at Boston Children's Hospital over a lunch of Dunkin' Donuts' new Bakery Sandwiches and freshly brewed Iced Tea.

Currently 7-6 Overall; Need Three Wins To Qualify For Tournament

Parry Shouldering The Load For QHS Softball

By SEAN BRENNAN

Quincy's Nicole Parry earned the keys to the ace starting pitching role this season following the graduation of star hurler Kori Sorenson.

Most pitchers would shrink under the pressure of stepping in for such a revered talent, but not Parry, and because of her equally impressive talent in the circle, the Presidents' pitching is once again one of the best in the Patriot League. Her steady performance game-to-game is the main reason that Quincy (7-6 overall) is within three victories of qualifying for the state tournament with three weeks left in the regular season.

"Nicole is the leader on this team," said QHS first-year head coach Greg Sommers following the Presidents' 6-0 loss to Silver Lake on May 2 at Welcome Young Field in North Quincy. "She pitches great every time out; she is experienced and it is usually her pitching that keeps us in a lot of games."

Quincy has needed every one of Parry's innings.

It is not that the Presidents don't have strength in the batter's box — they do — it is just that in several games this season the offense has struggled to keep up. There have been exceptions. The Presidents exploded for seven runs in a 7-0 blanking of rival North Quincy on April 13 (Parry fanned seven Raiders) and the offense broke out at the dish in a 12-0 shutout of Hingham back on April 27 (Parry struck out nine).

The offense also did enough in a 4-3 victory over nonleague Stoughton on April 20 and helped Quincy slip past Pembroke 1-0 on April 25. However, against the Titans, Parry tossed a complete game and mowed down nine batters.

The Presidents missed a golden opportunity versus Duxbury on April 10. Leading 2-0 entering the fifth, Quincy saw the Dragons rally for three late runs to win 3-2. Parry sat down 12 Duxbury batters but Quincy also fanned 13 times versus the Dragons' Michaela Lannon. Quincy also dropped a 4-3-nonleague decision to Milton and by a 5-2 score to league opponent Hanover on April 30.

Parry's best game may have been her last. Last Friday in a league matchup against a strong Middleboro team, she threw a complete game, striking out seven batters to help the Presidents to a 3-0 shutout win over the Sachems.

"If the bats don't come alive and (an opposing team) scores a couple of runs, it is not very good," said Sommers about his offense's streaky nature, "but if our bats get hot and we get a couple of runs it is going to be tough to beat us because Nicole can hold her own. As the game goes on she gets better and I think she throws better with the lead but the offense needs to help her out."

The best news for Quincy: The Presidents have outstanding senior leadership outside of Parry that should ignite a late-season push.

Centerfielder and clean-up hitter Caity Lowry, first baseman Erin Chiocchio and infielder Blair Hajjar are all seasoned veterans and have produced in spots this season. Chiocchio's seventh inning bases-clearing double open what was a close 3-0 game at the time and Lowry had the clutch RBI base hit versus Pembroke.

At the time in the year when the pressure is mounting, Sommers has the safety net of an impressive senior class to lean on. And he knows it.

"Lowry, Chiocchio and Parry are all captains," he said. "All four of them (Hajjar included) have been playing softball for a long time and I think that their leadership has been great."

Sommers also had a junior class that is improving daily. Led by catcher Devon Varmahmoodi, the third-year core also includes Ashley Faiella and Devin McMahon. At the tenth grade level, Quincy has a potential duo of all-stars on the left side of the infield. Shortstop Taylor Parry and third baseman Bethany Walker (two RBI versus Middleboro) have potential to be major parts of the program moving forward.

"There is a lot of nice talent," noted Sommers about his underclassmen. "Other than the four seniors we are a young team. We will be alright and competitive the rest of the season. We have to win the games we are supposed to win and have to squeak out a few that are going to be tough for us."

First of Many

Sommers wet his softball pallet the last two years as an assistant under former coach Roger Bacchieri and when Bacchieri decided to step aside after last season, Sommers jumped at the opportunity to take over the reins.

"I was coaching and helping out Roger the last two years and he decided to step away and I applied for the job," he said. "I really love coaching and working with the girls so it was a good fit."

"I plan on building on the freshmen team and will continue working on building the program," continued Sommers. "It has been really fun so far."

Dave Parry, Tony Chiocchio and Kate McCauley are assisting Sommers with the transition this spring.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

Chiropractor

LIKE SCIATICA, BUT NOT SCIATICA

Because the condition known as "piriformis syndrome" causes symptoms that are similar to those caused by sciatica (pain, numbness, and tingling along the sciatic nerve, which runs down the back of the leg and into the foot), the two are often confused. However, piriformis syndrome does not technically cause sciatica because the latter is caused by compression of the nerve root as it exits the spine. Piriformis syndrome develops when the piriformis muscle (a muscle in the lower buttock region that helps rotate the leg outward) becomes tight or spasms and places pressure on the sciatic nerve that runs beneath it. By stretching the piriformis, hamstrings, and hip extensors, it is possible to relieve painful symptoms along the sciatic nerve.

Are you in pain? Let us at the FAMILY PRACTICE OF

13 Freshmen & Sophomores On Varsity Roster This Season; First-Year Head Coach Michael Joyce

Lacrosse At North Quincy Ready To Take Off

By SEAN BRENNAN

You sometimes hear a coach refer to a season as being a rebuilding year.

What that means is despite some moderate success in previous years, that this season is the time to start over, reinvent and learn on the fly. The goal of a rebuilding year is to set a foundation for continued success during upcoming seasons.

This spring that is exactly what Michael Joyce is doing with the North Quincy boys' lacrosse team.

After coaching the last two years at the jayvee level, the first-year varsity coach has begun a rebuilding project — with the ultimate goal to make the sport of lacrosse, which has seen unprecedented growth in Massachusetts the last 15 years, as popular as such high school stalwarts as baseball, basketball, football and soccer.

"I have been involved with lacrosse my whole life," said Joyce who played high school lacrosse at Boston College High School (Class of 2002) and club lacrosse at Stonehill College, "and I jumped right in to this job when it became available."

His main goal is simple (in theory). Joyce has a vision of making lacrosse at North Quincy attractive to the younger kids in the city. He wants to legitimize the game similar to the way it has evolved in communities such as Hingham, Weymouth and Duxbury.

And that begins with player development.

"I want to develop lacrosse players," stated Joyce matter-of-factly. "Lacrosse is a game that requires intelligence and movement. Of course stick skills are important but these younger players are the future of the game."

"To get to where teams like Duxbury and Hingham are at you need a strong youth program and it seems like more younger kids are getting involved in Quincy," he continued. Joyce got his start in the sport with Quincy Youth Lacrosse back in 1997. "City kids sometimes look at lacrosse as a preppy sport, so most importantly I want to legitimize the sport and make it something kids want to play."

The youth movement at North Quincy is already in full-speed-ahead-mode. Joyce's team is greener than grass. Thirteen of the 20 varsity team members are either sophomores or freshmen but that hasn't slowed down progress. If anything, having so many inexperienced players on the field has given Joyce and his staff the perfect platform to really coach up the nuances and the ins-and-outs of the game.

"This year's team is young," he said. "We are building on this program, which has been around for less than ten years. There has been an excellent push to get younger players into the program. We have a bunch of freshmen and the goal is to get them to be knowledgeable about the game. Lacrosse is a sport that requires effort and fight. It has been good to see the younger players have that discipline and commitment to the game."

Joyce does have a dedicated — not necessarily experienced — senior class that has been willing to be the type of leaders a young team needs to succeed even when success is being defined not by victories but by daily improvement.

Team captains Mike Litif (goalie) and Johannes Harten (midfielder) are joined between the lines by Connor Clifford (defenseman), John Schwartz (defenseman), and PJ Gorman (midfielder), giving the Red Raiders solid leadership that feeds down to the underclassmen.

At the eleventh grade level, Rory O'Connor and Justin Nickerson add another layer of maturity on the field while the talent in the sophomore class includes Nolan Greene, Pat Janeiro, James Doherty, Brendan Halpin, Brendan Cox and Declan McGaffigan.

In the freshmen class, Cornelius Koch, Mike Finn, Evan Aimola, Will Bronski, Rob Hines, Chris Gorman and Benson Chau represent the newest wave of the lacrosse movement on Hancock Street.

Joyce is the right coach for this job. He is under no illusion that North Quincy will immediately become a state powerhouse. This rebuilding effort is going to take some time. But Joyce is ready to put in the work to see it through — he is exactly the type of voice the program needs at this moment in its short history.

"Lacrosse is a sport that is accessible to everyone no matter their size," explained Joyce about how the game can be played by anybody, no matter their physical stature. "It is a speed game, so even smaller players can excel. The number one thing is how much fun and athletic the game actually is. I don't know if people realize that right now (in Quincy). It is an aggressive game."

There are six games remaining on the schedule, including a season-ending tilt against Quincy on May 22, so the goal now for the Red Raiders is to keep fighting and keep improving. The wins will come. Joyce knows it and so do his players.

"We have to keep doing what we are doing," he said, "and get the word around the school that the sport is about to take off."

Lift off in 5, 4, 3, 2, 1...

ALL IN THIS TOGETHER — The North Quincy boys' lacrosse team is a work in progress but with thirteen freshmen and sophomores on the varsity roster the Red Raiders are a program on the rise.

Freshman Standout At Eastern Nazarene

Quincy's Kori Sorensen Named D3 Pitcher of the Week

The New England Intercollegiate Softball Coaches Association (NEISCA) recently selected former Quincy High softball standout Kori Sorensen and current freshman at Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy as the Division III Pitcher of the Week for May 1.

Sorensen compiled a 3-0 record as she allowed just one run in three complete games, while posting a 0.33 ERA in a 5-0 week for the Lions.

During her 3-0 week, Sorensen (12-9) posted victories over Wentworth, Regis and Nichols; her 3-0 shut-out win over Nichols came in the play-in round of the Commonwealth Coast Conference (CCC) Championships, where the No. 8 Lions upset third-seeded Bison to advance into the tournament quarterfinals.

For the week she struck out 21 batters, walked seven and allowed just ten hits.

In 2012, her first collegiate season, Sorensen ranked fourth in ERA (1.71) in the CCC, and was tied for second most wins. Additionally, she ranked second in strikeouts (150) and was among the leaders in total innings pitched. She also threw 18 complete games.

Sorensen was named Eastern Nazarene College's Rookie of the Year at the team's end of the year banquet.

'Buzz Off' For Kids To Raise Over $2,000; Softball Fundraiser Today At Fore River Field

Quincy's Amy Drinkwater 'Going Bald' For Cancer

By EMILY TAFT

Lifelong Quincy resident Amy Drinkwater will be receiving an over $2,000 hair cut come June 3rd as a part of the One Mission Kids Cancer Buzz-Off that will take place at Gillette Stadium.

Drinkwater — along with her husband Kenneth Drinkwater and Quincy resident Kayur Shah — have raised over $3,000 as a team to donate towards pediatric cancer.

"I am sure it will be a little shocking at first, but I will get over it," said Drinkwater about shaving her head. "It is just hair it will grow back."

With the help of parents, students, and the staff of both Snug Harbor Community School and Clifford H. Marshall School, Drinkwater will be holding her largest fundraising event, a softball game between the PTO and staff of each school. The game will be held at 3:30 p.m. today (Thursday) at the Fore River Field, and there is a suggested donation of $2.

Rain date for the softball game is Thursday, May 17.

"She is a brave person to be doing this, we are all very proud of her efforts and excited to help her," said Marshall School Principal Nick Ahearn. "We are all very proud of Amy and what she is doing. She has a lot of guts to go bald."

Drinkwater decided to join the cause after hearing a commercial on the Mix 104.1 radio station one day about the Buzz-Off.

Drinkwater decided that she wanted to help.

"I cried all the way home after hearing the stories of what families have to go through when a child has cancer," said Drinkwater. "I just think I am blessed to have three healthy children and to listen to those stories was just heart wrenching."

"Some of the families that come from other states get split up. There is maybe a mom staying at Children's Hospital, housed there with a sick kid, and the husband lives in another state."

"It's very sad, so a hair cut is nothing. It's small beans."

One Mission is a Massachusetts registered 501(c)(3) foundation that provides help, hope, care, and support to children and their families touched by pediatric cancer. All of the programs that are funded directly benefit children and adolescents diagnosed with cancer, the families who support them, and the medical community who compassionately cares for them.

In the United States, cancer is the number one disease related cause of death of children infant to 19, and each year approximately 12,500 children and adolescents are diagnosed with cancer; 20 percent of them will not survive.

After deciding to make the cut, Drinkwater told her husband what she planned on doing. He immediately wanted to partake in the fundraiser, too.

"My husband was totally supportive. He said 'if that is something you want to do, I am in,'" said Drinkwater. "While telling the people I work with at the Y (Quincy YMCA) what I was doing, one of my co-workers, Kayur Shah, said he wanted to participate as well. The three of us now make up the team A.W.A.K.E."

Drinkwater created the team name A.W.A.K.E., after staying up late one night signing up for the fundraiser. Each letter in the name stands for a member of her family; her three kids, herself, and her husband.

After hearing of the fundraiser on the radio several times, Shah already had intentions of donating to One Mission. Then after hearing what Drinkwater was doing, he decided to sign up for the Buzz-Off as a part of her team.

"I have been married for two years to my wonderful wife. While we do not have any children as of yet, we both are excited for the opportunity to begin a family," said Shah.

"The thought of having to go through what the families of pediatric patients live each day is unimaginable. If a simple gesture of shaving my head will ease the pain the slightest bit, then so be it," Shah added.

Before starting her fundraising efforts Drinkwater had to tell her three children, who are three, six, and nine years old, that their mom would look a little different come June.

"My kids get it. I pulled up the website and showed them a video on there that talks a little about the cause and where the money goes," said Drinkwater. "I told my kids that these are kids that didn't have a choice; they don't have a choice to lose their hair."

"They go through a treatment that is so strong it makes their hair fall out and I'm doing it to just show support for them, and raise money for them to help them get better."

Drinkwater set a goal of $1,500 to raise individually for, which she surpassed after only four weeks in.

"This is my first fundraiser I have ever participated in," said Drinkwater. "I do fundraising for the schools all the time. I am always doing it for everyone else but this time I am more invested in it."

After being inspired by what Drinkwater will be doing Snug Harbor Principal Dan Gilbert decided to raise additional funds by selling raffle tickets to students for a chance to be able to shave his head.

"I just took her lead in holding the raffle. It will be a great way for our kids to become involved and give back in a way that instantly pays dividends to the kids suffering from childhood cancer," said Gilbert. "We are in the business of helping children, so why not help raise money for this charity?"

Drinkwater has had donations from over 50 different donors, one of which was a complete stranger who overheard a conversation while in line at CVS.

"A total stranger donated to me, I didn't even know who she was," said Drinkwater. "I was so emotional about it when she came up to me in CVS parking lot and donated what she could, just because she overheard what I was saying to the cashier."

For Drinkwater all the attention, and all the support is something that was unexpected when she first signed up to participate.

"It has definitely created a huge buzz around Quincy. I didn't think this would get any attention at all. I knew I would get support from my family and a few friends but it definitely exploded into something bigger than I have ever expected," said Drinkwater.

"I am pleased at how far it has gone and the attention it has gotten, I feel really good about this and every time I think about it I get emotional about it. I am very proud and feel really good about what we are doing."

SENIOR NEWS LINE

Don't Just Sit There

Numerous studies have shown us two things: It's never too late to start being active, and a small amount of activity is better than none when it comes to better health.

Now there's an additional benefit: Being active helps keep depression and other psychological issues at bay. Not only that, but a recent study shows that those with "psychological distress are four times more likely to be functionally limited." The study, done on 91,000 adults age 65 and older, indicates that one-third of us don't get regular exercise, and the number goes up even more for those 75 and older.

Another study on the same topic came to a serious conclusion: Those who have depression had better results from exercising three times a week than those who took drugs for their symptoms. All it took was getting 20 minutes of moderate-intensity exercise.

Other researchers have approached senior health from a different angle: A Psychological Bulletin news release from the Harvard School of Public Health reported on a study that compared psychological well-being to heart health.

It found that psychological well-being reduces the chance of heart attack and stroke. Specifically, being optimistic, happy and satisfied with life can reduce the risk of a cardiovascular event. Somehow those emotions not only protect us, but can slow down existing disease.

How then do we use this information? A simplistic look might be this: If we elevate our mood with exercise and gain a sense of emotional well-being, we're also helping our heart. And looking on the bright side of life gives an additional benefit: Those of us who are optimistic cut our risk of heart attack in half.

Tips for Picking the Right Mover From The Better Business Bureau

The Better Business Bureau has teamed up with American Moving & Storage Association (AMSA) to offer tips on how to select the right mover and how to avoid the scams.

Here's checklist for finding a trustworthy moving company:

Research the company thoroughly. While state regulations vary, all interstate movers must, at minimum, be licensed by the federal government and are assigned a motor carrier number you can verify on FMCSA's website, protectyourmove.gov.

Get at least three written in-home estimates. Not all price-quotes online or over the phone are legiti-mate. Keep in mind that the lowest estimate can sometimes be an unrealistic low-ball offer, which can cost you more in the end.

Know your rights. Research your rights as a consumer with either FMCSA for interstate moves or the state in which you reside for moves within that state. Also, enlist the help of BBB or local law enforcement if the moving company fails to live up to its promises or threatens to hold your belongings hostage. FMCSA requires interstate movers to offer arbitration to help settle disputed claims.

Consider accepting full value protection. It may cost a few dollars more up front, but it can provide some peace of mind and eliminate headaches after your move. Purchasing full (replacement) value protection means any lost or damaged articles will be repaired or replaced, or a cash settlement will be made to repair the item or to replace it at its current market value, regardless of age. It's important to note that the required minimum coverage of 60 cents per pound would not cover the replacement cost, for example, of a flat panel

TV if damaged in transit. For your protection, a new interstate regulation effective May 15 requires the cost of full value protection to be included in the estimate you receive.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, April 30, at approximately 12 noon, Detective Tom Pepdjonovic was working a private detail at the intersection of Hancock Street and Chapman Street when he was approached by citizen Kevin McBride, (with permission) who pointed out two males walking north on Hancock Street.

The citizen told the detective that he followed the two suspects from Kemper Street and believed that they just broke into a neighbor's house there. The citizen further stated that the two suspects left through a side door with full backpacks on their backs, adding that he knows the owner of the house and has never seen these two suspects before. Based on this information, Detective Pepdjonovic radioed to dispatch the information and then caught up to the two suspects.

Sergeant Buonaugurio arrived on scene moments later, followed by Officer James Cassidy. Officer Cassidy then responded to the house in question to determine if a breaking and entering occurred. Detective Pepdjonovic questioned the suspects, who stated that they were coming from the beach. Officer Cassidy checked the house and found numerous paint chips and small pieces of splintered wood at the foot of the basement door. The window to the basement door was missing. The window was found in two pieces on the side of the basement entrance.

The officer checked the door that the witness saw the two suspects exit from and observed it to be unlocked. No one was inside the home. While in the main bedroom on the first floor, Officer Cassidy noticed an open pocketbook with contents strewn about. On the dresser were items knocked over and an open space where something might have been. The officer found a cell phone number and made contact with the residents, who were in Newport, RI celebrating a birthday. They confirmed that no one should be in the house and they secured the entire home prior to leaving.

Officer Cassidy informed Detective Pepdjonovic of this information, who then searched the suspects, finding a leather man knife and a black and gray IPOD. A call to the victims confirmed that they owned a gray IPOD. A search of the backpacks revealed a jewelry box, electronics, credit cards and pills. Numerous credit cards had the victim's names on them.

Both suspects were then placed into custody and Officer Steve DesRoche transported them to the station for processing. The victims returned to Quincy and arrived at the station to identify most of the property found in the backpacks as theirs. The remaining items are believed to be stolen elsewhere and BCI will attempt to locate the owners.

Each backpack contained a bag with a number of orange pills identified as Suboxone. Neither suspect had a prescription.

As Officer DesRoche pulled into the station, he observed that suspect #1 was now slumped over in the backseat, unresponsive to verbal commands. Suspect #2 yelled out, "He is overdosing - help him." The officer asked if they used heroin earlier and he said, "Yes, about 20 minutes ago."

Officer Ryan Donnelly removed suspect #2 and Fallon Ambulance was dispatched to the station. Officer DesRoche then retrieved the Narcan from the glove compartment of the cruiser. He then opened the rear door of the cruiser to check suspect #1's vital signs. Officer DesRoche then applied a sternum rub to the suspect, which seemed to awaken him enough to walk inside the booking area.

While in the booking area, the suspect again showed signs of overdosing (unresponsive and shallow breathing) and the Narcan was used on him. With the assistance of Fallon EMT's and numerous officers, Narcan was administered, which resulted in a violent outburst and physical confrontation by suspect #1.

seat, troopers hid in a nearby undercover van and were able to complete their sting operation and determine the identity of the criminals and arrest them.

The Alfred P. Malaney Award went to District Attorney Michael Morrissey for his dedication to fighting crime in Norfolk County. A 1972 North Quincy High graduate, and alumnus of Suffolk Law School, Morrissey thanked the city of Quincy for his many years of legislature service.

Having spent 34 years in the state legislature as a state representative and state senator, Morrissey expressed his thanks for the opportunity to "make a difference" in the D.A.'s office. A dinner to honor Morrissey will be held at the Adams Inn on June 7.

In presenting the James R. McIntyre Humanitarian Award, Clerk Magistrate Arthur H. Tobin described McIntyre — a former mayor and state senator — as a "proud son of a Quincy Police captain, a decorated officer who served the community, the state and the nation — a constitutional scholar who advocated for the betterment of his fellow man."

This year's award was presented to Nannette Canniff, a Quincy housewife and mother of 10 who has worked tirelessly for St. Boniface's Haiti Foundation, which is dedicated to improving the impoverished lives of Haitians and bringing proper health care to them.

Born in Wollaston and having spent most of her life in the Germantown section of Quincy, Canniff and the parishioners of St. Boniface saw to it that one half of funds raised in their Walks for Hunger went to Haiti, which now boasts a 30-bed hospital and outreach clinics throughout the area.

Expressing gratitude for having lived in Quincy and dismayed at the lack of opportunity to improve one's life in Haiti, Canniff expressed pride that the hospital there can now treat thousands of patients yearly.

"I couldn't have done this without the help of my husband...he helped me so much with the children," Canniff said.

The Mark S. Charbonnier Award is named for the state trooper who was fatally shot by a convicted killer on parole during a traffic stop in 1994 on Route 3 in Kingston. Charbonnier's father, himself a retired police officer, attended the day's events. This award is presented for meritorious service, outstanding professionalism and dedication in the line of duty.

An 11-year veteran of the Massachusetts State Police, recipient Trooper Alyson Powell had come upon a tractor trailer engulfed in flames. She dragged a male who was slumped over the jersey barrier on a bridge 150 feet to safety. Last year this same, petite officer had pulled another operator to safety and received a life-saving award.

The Timothy J. Spillane Outstanding District

Court Prosecutor Award was presented to Adam Lally whom Michael Morrissey described as being "cut from the same cloth" as Spillane himself. This award is presented to prosecutors who act as inspiring mentors to young prosecutors.

The Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award was accepted by Walter J. Skinner, supervisor, Trial Court Community Service Program. Through this program, just in January through March, 8,100 hours of community service have been performed, benefiting groups like Little League teams, the Quincy Food Bank, and the Quincy DPW.

Feldman was a prominent Quincy businessman, actively involved with community issues. Working with the Quincy Court Probation Department, he reached out to friends in the business community to assist struggling young people recognize their responsibilities.

The Rabbi Jacob Mann Social Justice Award was named for the late Quincy rabbi whose commitment to the Quincy Court and to Law Day was notable for his never having missed a ceremony in 48 years. The award is presented to honor Mann's commitment to the court and to the ideals of justice.

Robert Brown, Clinical Director of a recovery home, who also runs a relapse prevention group, received the Mann award and was cited by First Justice Mark Coven for "having worked with thousands of people seized by drug addiction. He has been an integral part of our drug court." Brown humbly expressed his gratitude to the court's judges, staff and officials, without whose help he said he could not do his job.

Keynote speaker U.S. Congressman Stephen F. Lynch of the 9th Congressional District supported the event's theme.

"Every aspect of our lives is affected by the law," Lynch said, and he spoke of how his early advocacy for the safety of iron workers was what sparked him to move into the law.

Lynch worked for 18 years in many cities as an iron worker and after being elected the youngest president of a local iron workers' union, labor law "became his passion."

Upon graduating Harvard Law and the Kennedy School of Government Lynch says 'pro bono' work was encouraged as part of his internship.

"My first case I represented my neighbors regarding asbestos on pipes and lead paint on windows in the Old Colony Housing Project," the congressman said.

Lynch was convinced that he could most help people by doing what he could to enforce the law. He spoke of his travels to Iraq as a congressman and the opportunity that provided to examine the laws and courts of another country.

Lynch described the legal system there as a modified Napoleonic code, with no defense bar and no serious rules of evidence. "What I saw over there make me so grateful for our legal system. Those experiences abroad make you wanna kiss the ground back here in the U.S."

Quincy district Court is one of the busiest trial courts in the state, handling upwards of 40,000 cases per year and continues to lead the way in the number of involuntary substance abuse commitments.

He was then subdued and placed on a stretcher for transport to the hospital.

Suspect #1, a 29 year-old homeless person, and suspect #2, a 37 year-old Everett resident, were charged with "Malicious Destruction of Property over $250, B&E Daytime with Intent to Commit Felony, Larceny Over $250, Receiving Stolen Property Over $250, Possession of Class B Substance (Suboxone) Subsequent Offense. (suspect #1 prior Guilty in Plymouth District Court in 2006 and suspect #2 prior guilty in Boston District Court in 2012) Suspect #1 was also charged with "False Name at Booking and Non-Bailable Default Warrant out of Malden District Court for Felony Property Crimes/False Name.

Nice Work!

In this case, the witness, without a cell phone, followed the suspects at a safe distance and was able to make contact with a Police Officer, which led to the arrests. Confronting suspects is not a good idea, especially when the suspects are under the influence of heroin and unpredictable.

ANOTHER JOB WELL DONE

On Saturday, April 28, at approximately 1:20 a.m., Officer Edward Bagley and several other Quincy Police Officers were dispatched to Yaz's Place on a numerous calls of gun shots fired in the parking lot. As the officers were attempting to collect physical evidence as well as testimony, a fight between four female patrons started in the parking lot. Officers made their way through the large crowd to stop the fight.

A male (suspect) then broke through the crowd and jumped on top of the four females who were already on the ground fighting. Officer Bagley focused on this male as he pulled him off the four females. As the officers attempted to disperse the crowd, the suspect came out of nowhere and jumped on the back of Officer Bagley. Concerned that the suspect was going to cause injury or grab for the Officer's gun, Officer Bagley dropped to the ground and was able to get the suspect off.

Sergeant Mark Foley came to Officer Bagley's assistance and they were able to handcuff the suspect, who continued to squirm and struggle to get free as he provoked the crowd with taunts and profane language. Additional officers were able to bring the situation under control.

The suspect, a 24 year-old Brockton resident, was charged with "Assault and Battery on a Police Officer and Disorderly Person."

city to immediately collect what it is owed, while avoiding the time and expense involved with tax foreclosure proceedings.

The City of Quincy has retained Braintree based tax title auction experts Strategic Auction Alliance to conduct the sale. In April, Strategic Auction Alliance assisted the Town of Weymouth in collecting $800,000 in revenues from tax title assignments, redemptions and tax possession sales.

Firm principal Tom Weibrecht said, "We're pleased to have been retained by the City of Quincy and look forward to assisting in its efforts to collect outstanding property taxes. Given the current economic climate, municipal resources are stretched to the limit. A growing number of cities and towns are seeing tax title assignment auctions as a win-win scenario for municipalities and investors. Our firm has a thorough understanding of the process and an extensive following of motivated and capable investors."

On Tuesday, May 15 at 7: p.m., Strategic Auction Alliance will conduct a no cost seminar for prospective investors at The Lantana, 43

Scanlon Drive, Randolph. Boston tax title attorney John Finnegan from Tarlow, Breed, Hart & Rogers will be present to answer questions. There is no cost to attend the seminar, intended to assist potential investors. However, pre-registration is required.

little corner of my district."

Rev. Sheldon Bennett was presented with the Mayor's Sixth Annual Community Service Award in recognition of his "dedicated service over the past twenty-five years in recognizing and honoring the inherent worth and dignity of every person" and for his service throughout the years on municipal and regional boards and committees.

"Quincy is a city that works," said Bennett. "It's a city where people come together, share a vision for what the future might be and then bring the dreams that we hold as a community to fruition for the well-being of the whole community, of the common good, and each of our lives."

The final award was presented to Paula Newcomb — the city's former Community Planning and Development Representative at HUD. Newcomb recently moved to Quincy and was recognized for her partnership with the city during her years as the city's "HUD representative."

"I'm thrilled to be a citizen of Quincy now," said Newcomb, who also commented on the Winter Gardens development. "This project is really meaningful. This project is a credit to the work of the staff and the leadership of this community."

Other Community Development Week events included neighborhood center programs in North Quincy, Germantown, and Houghs Neck, and a celebration of the Red Sox home opener at the Kennedy Center on April 13, which featured baseball trivia, popcorn, hot dogs, and of course, the live telecast of the big game.

The city's participation in Community Development Week concluded with a "Walk-Shop" in Wollaston and North Quincy. The walk-shop was an interactive event through which thirty participants walked from Wollaston to North Quincy, taking pictures of various sites which will ultimately be uploaded into a virtual reality game called Community PlanIt, which is being developed in an effort to increase civic engagement for future planning and community visioning in these neighborhoods.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You Ewes and Rams will find your ideas cheered by a mostly receptive flock. Those few dissenters could well be turned around by your charm and powers of persuasion.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's time for the bold and beautiful Bovine to shake off the dust of the past and shape up with new ideas for the future. This could surprise some folks, but they'll soon adjust.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Those nagging new doubts about an upcoming decision should alert you to step back (at least temporarily) so you can reassess its potential impact from a new perspective.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) That unpleasant situation you hoped would go away by itself needs immediate attention before it affects an upcoming decision. Expect your supporters to rally around your cause.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're moving up and away from that recent setback. But remain cautious about finances. An exercise in thrift today helps cushion a possible end-of-the-month money squeeze.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You're still dealing with overtones of pessimism that cause you to doubt your ability to make some needed changes. But the negative pressures will ease up by week's end.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) There could be some fallout from the way you handled a recent family problem. But those who know that you were in the right won't hesitate to step in on your behalf.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Financial strains ease by week's end. Meanwhile, focus on cultivating that new relationship if you hope to have it blossom into something more meaningful.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Health matters once again dominate the week. Be careful not to ignore recurrences of an old problem. An almost-forgotten commitment resurfaces.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The emergence of an unusual selfish streak could dismay those close to you. Defy it -- don't justify it -- so you can become your gracious self again.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Reassess your decision to stay with the status quo. It might seem like the sensible thing to do right now, but changes around you could make that choice a risky one.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Move decisively but cautiously when dealing with a delicate personal matter. The fewer mistakes you make now, the less likely it is that the problem will recur later on.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can find beauty where many cannot. And you enjoy sharing your discovery with others.

Keohane Donates Free Plants To Volunteers

Who Agree To Grow Produce For A Local Food Pantry

Harvest Helpers Kicks Off New Planting Season

Keohane Funeral & Cremation Service and Interfaith Social Services are kicking off their Third Annual Harvest Helpers fruit and vegetables for the needy program.

During the week of May 14th, Keohane Funeral & Cremation Service will be distributing free seedlings to anyone in the community who is willing to grow those plants and then donate the produce to Interfaith's Food Pantry when harvested.

Last year, the program benefitted from two committed "backyard" gardens, one at Keohane Funeral Home and one at Interfaith's offices, both in Quincy. Many South Shore residents also participated in the program and donated a portion of the harvest from their gardens. As the program continues to grow, another great harvest is expected this summer.

"We had a robust harvest last summer of tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, beans, bush cucumbers and herbs. We are planning even more this year!" said John Keohane, funeral home co-president.

Rick Doane, executive director of Interfaith Social Services, commented, "Each year our Food Pantry feeds over 17,000 hungry South Shore residents. The high cost of fruit and vegetables makes it difficult for us to give them the fresh produce that they want and need. Many of those served are families with young children; they desperately need healthy and nutritious food."

Interfaith Social Services calls the Harvest Helpers program "... a sustainable community-based endeavor that uses locally grown food to alleviate the hunger that exists within our community."

Both Doane and Keohane recognize that the Harvest Helpers program not only feeds people but nourishes them with healthy, home-grown produce. They hope that this will motivate more people to start a backyard garden for themselves and their neighbors.

Keohane Funeral and Cremation Service and Interfaith Social Services are both very proud of the success of this program. They believe that it is a wonderful collaboration between two entities with long histories of serving the community.

Keohane Funeral and Cremation Service has been caring for South Shore families for 80 years. They currently operate locations in Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham.

JOHN KEOHANE of Quincy, Claire Hagan of Hingham and Sandy Johnson of Quincy help prepare the food pantry garden for planting.

Interfaith Social Services has been feeding, clothing, and comforting South Shore residents since 1947. They have become a well-known resource for local families and individuals in need.

"Our food pantry serves families from all over," said Doane. "From Quincy to Cohasset families are struggling to put food on their table, we are so grateful for community partners like Keohane who help us provide healthy food to impoverished individuals. We hope that this program will inspire more backyard gardeners to donate vegetables to local food pantries."

Keohane will be distributing free seedlings at Interfaith's office, located at 105 Adams Street, Quincy, or at Keohane Funeral Home 785 Hancock St., Quincy from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday, May 14 through Friday, May 18.

Those who don't have the room to grow a garden can help by volunteering to help tend the Keohane Harvest Helpers garden or Interfaith Social Services' Food Pantry garden. A donation to support the Harvest Helpers Food Program can also be made at www.InterfaithSocialServices.org.

To volunteer, or for more information, contact Joe Reardon 617-773-3551, joe@keohane.com or Rick Doane at 617-773-6203, rdoane@InterfaithSocialServices.org.

Facilities In North Quincy Will Be Expanded Manet Community Health Center Receives $5.5M In Affordable Care Grants

Manet Community Health Center has received two major grants totaling $5,500,000 from the Affordable Care Act to expand its facilities in North Quincy for seniors, and residents of public housing and for seniors in Hull.

The awards are part of an announcement May 1 by Health and Human Services (HHS) Secretary Kathleen Sebelius that $728 million in grants from the new health care law will help build, expand and improve community health centers nationwide.

"Today's awards from the Affordable Care Act will help us to enhance access to primary care along the South Shore, in particular for low-income residents and a growing elder population," said Henry N. Tuttle, CEO of Manet Community Health Center. "This funding is the culmination of a lot of hard work by our board, our staff, and our legislative representatives."

Community health centers in Massachusetts received a total of $33.7 million in grants from two capital programs, one for longer-term projects to expand facilities and improve existing services, and a second for pressing facility and equipment needs. Manet received grants in both categories. Manet received the maximum funding in each of the two grant categories.

"Community Health Centers are a vital part of our health care system, providing services to over 600,000 Massachusetts residents," said Cong. Bill Keating, a member of the Congressional Community Health Centers Caucus. "When I communicated with representatives at HHS about Manet, I noted the invaluable services the funding would provide our community. These grants will translate into real results and solutions for many residents in our area, and I applaud the Obama Administration for awarding Manet these funds."

In the longer-term grants, Manet received $5 million to create in North Quincy, a Center for Older Adults, and a Center for Health in Public Housing which will include 25 new exam rooms for primary care, specialty services including behavioral health, vision services and an on-site 340B pharmacy. Manet's service area has a population of 322,107 with 47,558 (14.9%) low-income residents. These low-income residents include 5,969 residents of public housing and approximately 10,100 poor elders. Transportation will be provided as needed for residents of public housing. The expansion in North Quincy will make room for 5,286 additional patients for 24,200 new patient visits annually, and the projected completion date is March 2015.

In the pressing needs category, Manet received $500,000 for renovations in Hull. The proposed renovation would create a Center for Older Adults which would make room for 1,508 additional patients for 4,524 visits, annually. This grant will allow for the addition of 3 new exam rooms and will capacity allow for a full-time geriatrician and for part-time specialty care in community areas of need such as behavioral health, oncology, orthopedics, and cardiology. Project completion is anticipated for April 2014.

"We are extremely excited about the ways in which this new federal funding will enable us to fulfill our dedication to provide accessible, quality health care for all," said Joseph Reardon, president, Manet Community Health Center. "As we serve more people in need, we can begin to create a stronger, healthier South Shore."

Manet will put its new federal funding to good use. Public health data for the North Quincy area points to a high rate of chronic disease. Older adults (ages 60+) die of coronary heart disease at 6.7 times the Healthy People 2020 target rate, of lung cancer seven times the target, and of colorectal cancer at 6.2 times the target.

In Hull, public health data also reveals a high rate of chronic disease, particularly among senior/elder residents, who experience 20.2% more heart attacks than the state average and 18.6% more hip fractures than average. Hull-area seniors die of coronary heart disease at 6.6 times the Healthy People 2020 target rate, of lung cancer 7.2 times the target, of colorectal cancer at 5.7 times the target, of prostate cancer five times the target, and breast cancer 3.7 times. The incidence of melanoma of the skin is 37.7% higher than the state average.

Manet Community Health Center is a not-for-profit health and social services provider and it exists to be your partner for a healthier life. Founded in 1979, it serves the broad health needs of South Shore residents. In 2011, it handled 52,000 patient visits for nearly 14,000 individual patients. Manet has been accredited by The Joint Commission since 1999, demonstrating it meets the highest standards of quality. In 2011, Manet's Diabetes Program (all five locations) received accreditation by the American Association of Diabetes Educators (AADE).

Bell-Ringing Ceremony To Mark Church Rehab On Tuesday Night

The City of Quincy and the First Parish Church will celebrate National Preservation Month with a ceremonial first ringing of the newly installed bell atop the restored Church of the Presidents bell tower at 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday at the Church, officials announced.

The nightfall ceremony will provide the first showcase for a new lighting system that will shine upon the restored tower, bell and clockface - which were all renovated as part of a joint project between the Church and the City using Community Preservation Act funding.

The City of Quincy owns the bell and the historic clock face, on the tower of the iconic church, where founding fathers and Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams are buried together with their wives. The bell and clock restoration project fell into place as part of the larger tower restoration undertaken by the Church parish.

The last bell that sat atop the Church was last rung with a full swing in 1980, shortly after an 18-inch crack was discovered in a bell originally installed in the Church in 1859. A replacement bell - weighing 3,000 pounds - was purchased by the City from a church in Chicago.

Proposed Financing Plan Altered For Renovations To City, Coddington Halls

order for construction of the city's new track so that it would need to be placed at Faxon Field.

But Walker said the bond order already mandated that it only be used for the City and Coddington Hall project.

"On this specific order there is included in the order as it exists right now," Walker said, "specific language that ties it to the renovation/restoration of City Hall and the Coddington School. Whatever discretion is within this bond order, I would respectively suggest that it's in fact limited to these two buildings."

Councillor Joe Finn, the chair of the Finance Committee, was even more vocal than Gutro. He ripped Walker because the administration didn't seek council approval for closing Old City Hall for renovations, despite assurances they would.

"The assertion was made that in terms of the final decisions relating to the funding," Finn said, "that you we're going to come back before this body before there was any action."

When Walker tried to explain that the poor conditions of the building necessitated a move, Finn accused the administration of suspending the law.

"So I'm understanding this right - essentially it was appropriate to suspend law because it was some sort of emergency measure," Finn asked Walker.

Walker responded that the city had the authority to move. He also said it was a failure by the administration to communicate with the council, which he said was his own fault.

Not all councillors were critical of the plan, however.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said it was time for the city to stop buying open space - which he called "scrub land" - and instead use CPA funds for historic renovations such as the proposed City Hall/Coddington Hall project. He also said the 30-year life of the bond paled in comparison to the age of the buildings, and the amount of time the city would be able to use them.

"We mentioned the bonding, 30 years," McNamee said. "Coddington School is over 100 years old. It's served us very well and it's in very, very good shape for a building of that age. So to engage in any borrowing to renovate it for 30 years is just a very, very short period of time. I know as an accountant very few things short of railroad stock have these kinds of useful lives. These buildings have served us well and they deserve a reinvestment."

FinCom OKs Restored Sunday Library Hours

By SCOTT JACKSON
Mayor Tom Koch's proposal to restore Sunday hours at the Thomas Crane Library's main branch won the approval of a key City Council committee Monday. The council's Finance Committee held its first of three scheduled budget hearings Monday night. During the hearing, they approved a 6.6 percent increase in the library's budget by voice vote.

Included in the 6.6 percent increase is a $800,000 increase in the library's budget. Cont'd On Page 15

Middle School Seen Opening September 2013

New Central School Project Within Budget

Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday that the new Central Middle School is moving forward with construction subcontracts submitted within budget to City Hall and a September 2013 opening date still on target.

Subcontractor work for various components of the project -- such as electrical, plumbing and HVAC work -- were opened last week at City Hall. The bids fell within the school plan's construction budget, Koch said, and bids for the General Contractor on the project are scheduled to be opened next week.

"The bids were competitive, we had a lot of participation, and we remain within budget and on schedule for this vitally important new school building," said Koch.

The project lost a measure of its scheduling flex-

Adams Green Plan: Wider Sidewalks, Raised Crosswalks, Bike Lanes

Major thoroughfares in Quincy Center would get wider sidewalks, raised crosswalks and bicycle lanes as part of transportation improvements related to the Adams Green project. But turning restrictions and a ban on some trucks in a portion of Quincy Center were what drew the attention of a City Council committee.

The Adams Green project will create a park between the United First Parish Church (the Church of the Presidents) and City Hall, closing the portion of Hancock Street that currently separates the buildings. As a result, changes will be made to Hancock, Temple, Washington, Coddington, Granite, and Maple Streets at a cost of $6 million, fund-

West Quincy Man Arraigned On Drug, Weapons Charges

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy Police arrested a West Quincy resident on drug and weapons charges Monday afternoon.

John LeClair, 46, of 102 Hall Place, was arrested following a months long investigation by the Police Department's Drug Control Unit. Police allege that LeClair was selling drugs at his residence and at other locations throughout the city.

On Monday afternoon, police say detectives watched George Green of Plymouth exit LeClair's property, and stopped and arrested Green without incident. He was charged with possession with intent to distribute a class B substance (oxycodone) and conspiracy to violate drug control laws.

LeClair left his house a few minutes later, and police stopped and arrested him, also without incident. They subsequently executed a search warrant on his property, and say they confiscated 37 oxycodone pills, with a street value of $800. They also say they seized a Walther 9mm handgun, two ammo magazines, 20 rounds of ammunition, a 2007 GMC Yukon, $8,230 in cash, two safety deposit keys and $31,000 in cash inside the safety deposit box. The serial number of the handgun indicates it was reported stolen on Martha's Vineyard.

LeClair was charged with possession with intent to distribute class B substance (two counts - oxycodone and suboxone), possession with intent to distribute class C substance (clonazepam), unlawful possession of a firearm, possession of ammunition, improper storage of a firearm, use firearm while committing a felony, and receiving stolen property over $250.

LeClair was previously convicted in 1997 for unlawful possession of a firearm.

Quincy Police Det. Lt. Patrick Glynn praised Quincy residents who called the city's drug hotline for giving information that aided the investigation and arrest.

"The arrest demonstrates the success of the collaborative efforts of the police and citizens working together," Glynn said. "Information supplied via the drug hotline and other tips assisted in leading to this arrest. We are grateful for the continued support demonstrated by the community. When drugs, cash, vehicles, and a handgun are seized it's a good day for the police and the citizens."

LeClair was arraigned Tuesday morning at Quincy District Court. He pleaded not guilty and was released on $3,000 cash bail. His next hearing is June 6.

According To Analysis Of State DOR Figures Quincy Property Tax Increases Lowest In Greater Boston

The City raised property taxes for the average single-family home less than any city or town in all of Greater Boston over the last three years, according to a new analysis of state Department of Revenue figures.

The analysis, conducted by the Municipal Finance Department, shows that the tax bill for the average single-family homeowner in Quincy increased a total of $95 in Fiscal Years 2010 through 2012. In that same period, bills increased an average of more than $400 statewide, and no communities east of Worcester or north of New Bedford other than Quincy limited tax increases to under $100, the analysis shows.

"We've taken extraordinary steps during extraordinary times to protect our homeowners, and we are setting a statewide standard for limiting property tax increases while at the same time protecting our core services," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "Our work is far from finished, and we will continue to keep this City moving in the right direction."

The analysis, taken from statewide property tax information, shows that only 14 of more than 300 cities and towns had lower average home increases than Quincy. With the exception of New Bedford and the Cape Cod town of Dennis, all the towns with lower increases than Quincy are in Western Massachusetts, including towns like Sterling and Leyden.

Closer to home, the analysis showed that the towns of Braintree and Weymouth increased taxes on the average home by more than $300 during the three-period.

Cities similar in population and demographics to Quincy also increased property taxes at substantially higher rates than the City, according to the analysis. For example, the average single-family bill in Framingham increased by more than $1,000 and the bill in Medford increased by more than $400. The average home tax bill for Brockton and Plymouth also increased by more than $450.

"This City's property tax trends are nothing short of remarkable considering what other communities are doing and the heavy reliance on the property tax that is necessary to sustain all municipal budgets," said Municipal Finance Director Mark Cavanagh.

For Fiscal Year 2013, the City is anticipating that bills for the average single-family home of about $325,000 will increase by about $110, about $50 less than the anticipated state average and more than $600 under the limit allowed by state law.

The City's tax policies have created a substantial reserve in what is called "excess levy capacity," which is essentially property taxes that the City chose not to charge homeowners. The City currently holds $19.5 million in excess levy capacity, compared to the statewide average of under $1 million.

There are 351 cities and towns in Massachusetts, and about two dozen communities were not included in the analysis because either the DOR does not keep comparable tax records or because information was not included in most recent databases.

Rice Road Sewer Line Project Moving Forward

The first step in replacing the sewer line under Rice Road will begin soon.

At last Monday's City Council meeting, the council unanimously approved spending $39,064 to test soil conditions under the road. Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi told the council the drilling was necessary because manholes on the street had settled below street level, leading to concerns that poor soil conditions underground could damage any new sewer installations.

"That was a concern for our engineers," Raymondi told the council. "We did not want to proceed with repairs costing about $1 million not knowing if the existing soil conditions beneath the existing sewer line were so poor that the same result would happen even if we put another million dollars onto the roadway."

The boring will be done by CHG Geotechnical Engineering. They will bore in 24 separate holes - 15 within six feet of existing manholes and nine beneath the current sewer - and work is expected to take eight days, according to the bid CHG submitted to the city. After that, CHG will prepare a geotechnical report outlining recommendations to fix the settlement problem along the road, as well as solutions for controlling groundwater during the sewer line installation.

Raymondi said the testing won't delay the sewer's replacement, which is still in the design phase. The commissioner said he expects the new sewer to be completely installed by the end of this year's construction season. Rice Road would then be repaved next year.

Quincy Celebrating Nat'l Public Works Week May 21-25

Activities Include Open House May 23

By EMILY TAFT

The week of May 21st will celebrate National Public Works Week, but the students of the Quincy Public School system are already learning and celebrating how the Department of Public Works (DPW) affects their community, by writing essays and making banners that are being displayed in Quincy center.

"The week is to allow students to be able to get a sense of what the DPW is all about," said Executive Director of Career & Technical Education and Instructional Technology Keith Segalla. "We are excited about what is being done, and we hope it will continue in the future. It is a great opportunity for the students to see how the DPW affects our community."

The week will highlight the importance of public works in community life. The week-long celebration will include an open house at the DPW headquarters on Sea Street Wednesday, May 23. The event is open to the public.

A dozen different exhibits will be at the open house and will include science students from the Quincy public schools and a number of different vendors including the MWRA Massachusetts

Municipal Association, and demonstrations from sidewalk crews, water and sewer crews. The open house will also include an appearance by Curby the robot, and an awards ceremony to recognize the winners of the essay, banner, and beautification contests along with recognizing the employee of the year and the employee for longevity.

The theme of the numerous projects being done throughout the elementary schools and some middle schools is to express what the DPW means and how it affects the community. The DPW in collaboration with the school system came up with four different initiatives to get students involved in the week and to have the opportunity to learn how important the public works department is to a community.

"Every aspect of our day to day lives is public works," said DPW Commissioner Daniel Raymondi. "We do it all. If you walk on the sidewalk, that's public works, you get a glass of water, that's public works. It is important to have the citizens of Quincy recognize how valuable public works is to the community."

Of the 18 public schools 11 were chosen to receive mini grants to beautify a portion of the outside of their schools. Each school submitted a proposal describing how they would like to redecorate part of the outside of their buildings, with flowers, bushes, mulch and whatever else came to their minds. According to Segalla around $5,000 in mini grants were awarded to Quincy public schools for the projects they each proposed. Raymondi said that they received over 35 applications from various PTO groups, schools, civic groups, and individuals. The department handed out around $8,000 in grant money, ranging from $200 to $500, to over 30 different groups and individuals to beautify various traffic islands, school areas, and even fences throughout the city, according to Raymondi.

"This being our first year of doing this, in over a decade, we had no idea what to expect," said Raymondi. "We ended up funding a lot of great projects through a public improvement area grant. As long as their proposal was improving upon a public area they were funded."

Fifth graders participated in designing banners in their art classes that are now hanging in front of City Hall and the Church of the Presidents. Three of the 11 banners will be chosen for top prizes, but all 11 will be on display for six weeks according to Segalla. Fourth graders participated in an essay contest in their schools following the same theme, and the top three from each school were sent into the DPW to be chosen for top prizes. According to John Sullivan the Manager of Energy, Waste and Recycling, the department received 52 essays to choose from for the top three prizes.

Over 450 third grade students will take a tour of the DPW grounds, which will allow them to ask questions and learn first hand the ins and outs of the DPW. The third graders will be visiting the DPW during the open house.

For each contest done students researched and discussed the theme of their projects. First, second and third prizes for the banners, essays, and best uses of the mini grant will be announced at the May 23rd open house and the prizes for the schools will be handed out during the June 13th school committee meeting, the winners will be chosen by DPW employees.

Raymondi said the hope is to continue to hold the week in the years to come.

Merrymount Beach Erosion Meeting Topic May 22

A Shining New Centerpiece

Its symbolism shines as bright as the lights themselves.

And they are a sight to behold.

The new exterior illumination at the United First Parish Church - officially dedicated at a ceremony Tuesday evening - is more than just lights on the clock faces and bell tower.

For city and church officials, the lights culminate restoration work that began more than a dozen years ago and now symbolize hope for the city's future and the beginning of the downtown's rebirth.

The $550,000 restoration project was a joint endeavor between the city and church. The city owns the bell and the historic clock faces of the iconic downtown landmark. Funding sources included the city's Community Preservation Act, grants from the National Park Service and "Partners in Preservation Program; and $250,000 from the church congregation.

The new lights - and refurbished bronze bell in the church tower - were officially dedicated Tuesday evening as the city and United First Parish Church celebrated National Preservation Month with a ceremonial first ringing of the newly installed bell atop the restored bell tower.

The new exterior lights illuminate the four refaced clock faces as well as the bell tower and refurbished bronze bell. The lights are LED or light-emitting diodes that are longer lasting (up to 20 years by some estimates) and use less energy than standard bulbs.

Four lights are positioned below each clock face. The tower is lit by recessed lights arranged along the rounded belfry railing in between the new mahogany pillars that were installed as part of the restoration project. The lights shine straight up (uplighting) into the ceiling of the tower casting a soft, warm light above the shiny bronze bell.

Both the bell and lights will be on timers. Initial plans call for the bell to ring on the hour from about 6 a.m. in the morning to as late as 11 p.m. or midnight. Tolling will count the hours; the bell will also strike once on the half hour. It's the first time a bell has been rung in the church tower in 32 years.

The precise hours the lights will be illuminated have not yet been determined. They may shine from dusk to dawn or be turned off during the early morning hours.

Mayor Tom Koch said the new bell and exterior lighting does more than celebrate the steeple's rebirth. He says the bell and clock tower illumination symbolize the planned revitalization of Quincy Center and how the downtown historic areas tie into the city's future.

"We're celebrating the rebirth of the steeple," Koch said gazing at the church from his third floor City Hall office on a clear afternoon. "The bell has been dealt with, the clocks refurbished, the bell tower project completed and now the final piece is the lighting. This is an historic icon of the city. It's probably the most identifiable structure in the city.

"I think it's symbolic of what's to come. It stands in the middle of what will be the Adams Green and the front door to the whole development that should be underway next year. I think it sends a clear message that we're a city that cares about our history and our past but we're also forging ahead into the future."

The lighting and new bell also mark a significant and proud moment in the history of United First Parish Church, said Rev. Sheldon Bennett, the church minister.

"The congregation and I have looked forward to this celebration for at least the last five years from the time we began planning our tower restoration.

"We are glad for the city's participation to replace the city bell and restore the clock faces at the same time so that we could share the scaffolding and coordinate the belfry work as a savings to the city. This project shows what can be achieved when the church as a national historic landmark and the city as developer of the Adams Green work together in partnership for the public good."

Rev. Bennett, who is retiring as church minister next month, added:

"We are thrilled at the success of this project. To see the sunlight gleaming from the golden dome, to hear the bell ringing as it swings back and forth, and to see the belfry illuminated at night gives a wonderful lift to the spirit. The newly restored bell tower, clock faces, and working bell will be a centerpiece of the Adams Green of which we can all be proud."

This is not the first time there have been lights in the belfry. But it's been quite some time since the structure was last illuminated.

"Somebody brought me an old photo at Christmas time that showed the clock faces were lit and the steeple was not lit but there was evidence that at some time there may have been some lighting up there," Koch said.

Koch is also a big fan of the bell that replaced a similar bell that was damaged with an 18-inch crack. The city purchased the 3,000-pound bell from the Verdin Bell Co. of Cincinnati for $38,000. It had one time tolled at a church in Chicago before it was brought to Quincy.

"The bell was in perfect condition. We just shined it up. We also added the quote from the Rev. John Hancock," Koch said.

Rev. John Hancock was the father of John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Rev. Hancock served as a minister of United First Parish Church.

The quote reads:

"Above all things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness. This is the bond of union, the cement of societies."

There's a big difference between the refurbished bell and the old bell. The bell located in the tower today is mounted in a way that allows it to be swung. The old bell because it was damaged was permanently mounted to the belfry and therefore could not be swung.

The sound difference between the two bells is like night and day. On Monday evening, as officials went through dry run of Tuesday's ceremony, a passerby stopped in front of City Hall and remarked how wonderful the bell sounded as it swung in the belfry.

Koch is also a big fan of the new bell.

"I love the sound of the new bell. It's not like the old bell because that had a crack in it. There is something about bell ringing," the mayor said while noting he's recorded the bell sound to his cell phone.

As a courtesy to church neighbors, the bell will not toll into the early morning hours.

"We may shut the bell ringing down at 11 p.m. or midnight. We don't have to be ringing the bell during the early morning hours. We're just trying to be courteous to the people who live around here," Koch says.

The bell will also ring for various civic and church ceremonies, such as on the birthday anniversaries of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams. On those two important dates, White House wreaths are placed on the tombs on the Second and Sixth Presidents in the church of the crypt.

The city has owned a bell in the church since colonial times. The city used the bell to summon its residents to important meetings and also to inform them of any emergencies such as fires.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1930 postcard reproduction showing one of the fleet of prized horse-drawn milk wagons of the White Brothers Milk Company on French Street in Norfolk Downs. Adam and Edwin White, who grew up in Atlantic, founded the company in 1914. They built this modern milk processing and bottling factory in 1928. They were widely known for their high quality "Creamy Milk" and they sold it in cream-top milk bottles as shown on the wagon. The company was also very proud of their carefully selected horses. Shown here is Sandy, probably their best known Clydesdale, who was an undefeated

New England horse show champion. In 1940, the company was forced to abandon its horse-drawn wagons in favor of faster motorized trucks and Sandy and their other blue ribbon horses were retired to Edwin's farm in Marshfield. The company was sold to the Whittings Milk Company in 1961 and this building was demolished in 1967 to make way for the Quincy Commons apartment complex now on the site. 500 Increase In School Enrollment School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard announced that nearly 1,700 first graders will be starting school in the fall of 1953, bringing the total enrollment to more than 13,300, an increase of 500.

Dr. Gossard said some of the crowding in the Quincy schools is expected to be relieved when the new four-room wing of the Snug Harbor School is ready for occupancy, probably at Christmas time.

Until then, he said, three classes from Snug Harbor would be bused to the Hunting School and the basement library at the Wollaston School and the auditorium at the Merrymount School would continue as classrooms.

BROAD MEADOWS TITLE CLOUDY

Assistant City Solicitor Douglas A. Randall stunned city officials when he gave the opinion that the city's title of 136 acres of land in Broad Meadows is in doubt.

The city was entertaining two proposals to purchase part of the city-owned land in the area.

One was an offer of $500 an acre for 55 acres by Grossman Enterprises, which was planning to move to more spacious headquarters from its current location at 130 Granite Street.

The other was from Frederick Bailey and Gilbert Mason, who were offering $2,500 for 11 acres of land on which they operated a golf driving range under a lease due to expire in May, 1962.

Meanwhile, John Marshall of the State School Building Assistance Commission was in town to investigate the Broad Meadows area as the possible site for a proposed new junior high school.

COUNCIL VOTES PARKING

The City Council instructed City Manager William J. Deegan, Jr., to apply for authority to borrow $275,000 outside the debt limit to acquire land for an addition to the east side parking lot.

The Council vote was 6-1 with Councillor David J. Crowley in opposition.

Church Tower A Shining New Centerpiece

restored the belfry cupola, dome, and weathervane. Work included replacing the eight wood column casings with new mahogany casings; replacing rotted structural elements, belfry railing, and ceiling; restoring the original column capitals and wood trim; replacing the copper stepped tiers at the base of the dome; re-gilding the copper dome; restoring and gilding the original weathervane; structural repairs inside the tower; and painting the exterior wood elements.

The work commenced in July, 2011 and was completed last December.

The church restoration project was part of a long range program for building restoration begun by the congregation in the mid 1990s, Rev. Bennett pointed out.

Major work was done in 1999 and 2000 to install 16 new steel trusses to rebuild the roof structure, install a new slate roof, and restore the interior of the main sanctuary, including its magnificent coffered plaster ceiling for a cost of $1.7 million. In 2001, the church sold 11 pieces of historic silver to help finance the roof structure and sanctuary restoration.

Now that the bell is in place and the lights are set up, the next significant step downtown is the Adams Green project slated to start next year.

The Adams Green will offer expanded green space and walkways of brick and cobblestone connecting City Hall, United First Parish Church, McIntyre Mall and the Hancock Cemetery.

It also calls for traffic patterns to be reconfigured along Hancock Street, Temple Street, Washington and Coddington Streets from Granite Street to Dimmock Street.

Many believe the Church of the Presidents deserves a more dignified profile than just a traffic rotary. The Adams Green project, Koch says, will do just that.

"The Adams Green project will allow people to pause and perhaps look at the church, look at City Hall, look at Hancock Cemetery. Right now people are just driving through and I don't think they realize what they are driving through and what history is here."

"It certainly gives the church the dignity it deserves. There are two Presidents and their wives buried there. We are saying it is worthy of so much more than that. It's worthy of more than being a traffic rotary."

The mayor also calls the Adams Green project area "the front door" to the $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center.

"The way I look at it the downtown is in many ways from public transportation this is the front door to the development. You want to make your best impression at your front door... I think that's a huge message."

"The downtown is built on these public spaces. It's built on the connection to the T and this becomes a beautiful spot that people will walk through and can enjoy the walk rather than running down the pathway behind City Hall along a barbed-wire fence.

"When it's completed, we'll have a town green feel."

There's no question that when the project is all finished, the city's footprint in the epicenter of the square will have changed significantly for the first time in generations. There's also the refurbishing of old City Hall - also known as the James R. McIntyre Government Center - and the renovation of the former Coddington School into usable government office space.

"Every generation has talked about a rehab or a remodel of old City Hall and it has never received the proper attention it deserves. If anything else, City Hall is the people's house and it should be a shining star for people to come and visit our city or attend a meeting and we should take great pride in that.

"Work was done to the Council Chamber a number of years ago and it cleaned up the Chamber but we never dealt with the whole piece."

Koch added the Coddington Building, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places, also deserves some much-needed attention.

"Once that building is restored to its original look with its slate roof and appropriate windows and the old Quincy High School comes down, that building is going to stand out in a wonderful way with a practical use."

"Each of these projects in of themselves most communities would be proud to have. When you put them all together, it's incredible."

Koch gazes again at the bell and the church tower.

"We are committed to our future," he adds.

'ART IN BLOOM' - Ruth Griffin, designer, and Cynthia Lewis, design assistant, with "Basket" sculpture and their hot/cold floral design of scarlet anthuriums and curly willow at Museum of Fine Arts.

Floral Designers Ruth Griffin, Cynthia Lewis

Wollaston Garden Club Designs For 'Art In Bloom'

Two floral designers from the Wollaston Garden Club recently participated in "Art in Bloom" at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston again this year.

The garden club's arranger was Ruth Griffin and her assistant, Cynthia Lewis. Both women are past presidents of the garden club and currently serve as Horticulture Chairwoman (Lewis) and Special Projects Chairwoman (Griffin). Both have exhibited at "Art in Bloom" in the past.

The art object interpreted was, "Basket", a flame-worked Pyrex sculpture by the American artist, Brent Kee Young. Young, born in 1946, began his Matrix series after becoming intrigued with the chaotic snarls of metal reinforcement bars left behind when a concrete building near his studio was demolished. He used a hand-held torch to meld Pyrex rods, creating "organic interconnected structures of which almost any shape might be realized." Still it would be very difficult to hold anything within the ghostly web of this basket, which looks almost as if it were scribbled with wavering lines of glass.

Club designer Griffin commenting about the container and the mechanics of the design said that she chose "to create a double layer of glass - painted to resemble a block of ice." For flower choice curly willow was spray painted grey/white and used to mimic the gnarly ice-covered vine pattern on the basket and scarlet anthuriums to resemble the red hot rods used in the process of blowing the glass basket.

Part of the mission of the garden club is to promote and encourage the love of gardening, and the study of floral design. The club offers many opportunities and workshops to help members improve their floral design skills.

The Wollaston Garden Club has provided designers for the Museum of Fine Arts' biggest fundraiser for the past seven years. The Wollaston Garden Club is a member of the National Garden Clubs, Inc. and the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc.

Walk Saturday To Benefit Cure For SMA

In an effort to help develop a treatment and ultimately a cure for Spinal Muscular Atrophy (SMA), a large contingency from Quincy and other towns will walk 1.5 miles at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 19 at Wompatuck State Park, 204 Union St., Hingham.

Currently there is no treatment or cure.

The 12th annual cure SMA, is sponsored by the New England Chapter of Families of SMA.

Spinal Muscular Atrophy is the number one genetic killer of children under the age of two. It is an inherited and often fatal disease that destroys the nerves controlling voluntary muscle movement, which affects crawling, walking, head and neck control, and even swallowing.

One in every 40 persons carries the gene that causes SMA, which means that there are more than seven million carriers in United States alone.

The families of SMA is an international non profit organization founded in 1984 with the goal to find a treatment and cure. It is made up of 85,000 members and supporters and has funded more than $53 million in leading research programs since its inception.

During the scenic, paved paths through the beautiful park, walkers may also enjoy wonderful raffle items, refreshments, children's games and fun entertainment.

Open registration can be made at the park from 9 a.m. until 12 noon.

For more information about SMA, visit <http://www.fsma.org/AboutFSMA>.

Marie's Kitchen

Creamed Ham With Butternut Squash And Peas

Have you ever wondered what you can do with leftover small pieces of ham?

I decided one day to make a cream sauce and then went on from there using some leftover veggies. When I finished adding the other leftovers, it turned out to resemble a tasty healthful creamed soup.

CREAM SAUCE WITH HAM AND VEGETABLES

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk (I used skim)

Leftover ham (about a cup or so)
1 cup butternut squash
½ cup peas
1 teaspoon curry powder (optional)

Melt butter and add the flour making a roux. Stir in the milk and cook until sauce is thickened. Add the ham, butternut squash and the peas. Cook until well blended. Add the curry, which gave it a distinctive flavor with zing which I found very tasty.

P.S. Other leftover meats can be used in place of the ham.

Sweet & Sour Meatloaf

One of the staples to cook when my family was growing up was a traditional meat loaf dinner that I would make and serve it with mashed potatoes, and creamed peas.

I still like cooking it, and recently found a different recipe—a sweet and sour meat loaf. I couldn't wait to try it and enjoyed it so much. Just a few simple added ingredients to give it a zip.

SWEET & SOUR MEAT LOAF

1 pound of ground turkey (beef if preferred)
½ cup of chopped onion
1-tablespoon fresh parsley or a favorite herb

1 egg
½ cup seasoned breadcrumbs
Salt and pepper
Sauce
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup ketchup or tomato sauce (I used ketchup)

1/8-cup cider vinegar

1 teaspoon yellow mustard

Mix the meat with the onion, bread crumbs, herbs and egg. Add half the sauce and mix. Prepare the meat loaf in a slightly greased baking pan, and pour the rest of the sauce over it. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 35-40 minutes or until done.

Garden Club Offers Hardy Perennials To City's Middle And High Schools

The Wollaston Garden Club will be providing hardy perennials at "no cost" to a representative, designated by the principal, from each of the city's middle and high schools at the end of their annual Plant Sale Saturday, May 19.

The sale will take place from 10 a.m. to noon at the Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave. (corner of Lincoln and Winthrop Avenues), Wollaston.

A knowledgeable garden club member will be assigned to each school representative to advise them in plant selection. The garden club seeks to support schools that wish to beautify their school grounds.

During the past week an information packet, including a "voucher for free plants" was delivered to each principal, asking them to choose a staff member, club coordinator, or PTO member, to select plants for their schools.

Schools included this year are the middle schools (Atlantic, Broad Meadows, Central, Point Webster, and Sterling) and both Quincy and North Quincy high schools; along with the Clifford Marshall and Snug Harbor School.

Over the past three years, the Wollaston Garden Club has supported nine elementary schools in beautifying their school grounds (Beechwood, Bernazzani, Clifford Marshall, Lincoln-Hancock, Merrymount, Montclair, Parker, Wollaston, and Snug Harbor).

"We are encouraged by the really beautiful school grounds that now border our city's elementary schools," said Garden Club President Pat Artis. "Beautiful school yards show the pride that principals, staff, parents and students have for their school community, neighborhood, and their city."

Science, Religion Scholar Offering Free Lecture Series At Crane Library

Dr. Karl Giberson, an internationally recognized expert on the conflicts, collisions, and missed opportunities between science and religion will be offering three consecutive weekly lectures at the Thomas Crane Library in Quincy, beginning Tuesday, May 29 at 7 p.m.

His topics include "Superstition vs. Enlightenment," "Can Science Replace Religion?" and "Why the Controversy Won't Go Away."

The Thomas Crane Library, in partnership with Quincy's St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, will sponsor the lecture series.

The lectures are informal and will be held in Main Library Community Room. Each event is free and open to the public.

Dr. Giberson will be addressing questions like: Is there room for religion in a world of science? Why are science and religion always at war in America? The talks promise to be both educational and entertaining, as Giberson has gained a reputation as an engaging lecturer. He has lectured at many venues including Oxford University, MIT, and the Vatican.

For more than 20 years, Dr. Giberson taught science at Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, before resigning just over a year ago to pursue writing opportunities. He was the founding editor of Science and Theology News, the leading publication in its field until it ceased publication in 2006, and editor-in-chief of Science & Spirit magazine from 2003-2006. In 2008, he and Francis Collins co-founded the BioLogos Foundation—an organization focused on reconciling Christianity and evolutionary creation. He has published over 200 articles, reviews, and essays, both technical and popular, and written 9 books. His most recent book, published in March, is titled "The Wonder of the Universe."

Water Department Honored For Providing Clean Drinking Water

Gov. Deval Patrick and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection recently awarded the Quincy Water Department with a special recognition for its work in providing reliably safe drinking water to Quincy residents.

The Quincy Water Department, overseen by the Department of Public Works, was one of a small number of water departments to be awarded the Public Water Systems Award from the DEP and a citation from Gov. Patrick as part of National Drinking Water Week.

"The men and women of our Water Department work hard every day not only to ensure the safe delivery of water to our residents, but also in responding to water main breaks and other emergencies in a way that is a great credit to this community," said Mayor Tom Koch. "Too often, their work is overlooked and I congratulate them on this important recognition."

Since 1991, MassDEP has annually awarded these citations to acknowledge the silent, hard-working, and mostly invisible, accomplishments provided by those systems that help provide safe, reliable and clean drinking water to Bay State citizens every day.

"We rely on the protection, treatment and distribution of water by public water systems, and the constant attention to these tasks by these systems is worthy of special commendation," said MassDEP Commissioner Kenneth Kimmell. "These systems were chosen from 1,477 public water systems in Massachusetts, because their effort was particularly noteworthy."

The 2012 Public Water Systems Awards Day was held last week at the Waterworks Museum, located at the historic Chestnut Hill High-Service Pumping Station. This site was chosen based on its role in the history of Boston's water system, one of the country's first such systems. The historic architecture and pumping stations denote the marvel of engineering, and pivotal role this building played in ensuring public health in providing drinking water to the state's largest city and surrounding community.

All of the state's 1,477 public water systems were nominated simply by serving as a public water system. The following is a list of the 30 award recipients chosen by MassDEP.

This year also marks the 38th Anniversary of the Safe Drinking Water Act that forms the core of our national efforts to provide quality drinking water and protect the health of our citizens. During May 6-12, 2012, we also celebrate National Drinking Water Week - a national observance that highlights the value of water to each of us in our everyday lives.

National Drinking Water Week recognizes the importance of water source protection and conservation, as well as the value, importance, and fragility of our state's water resources. MassDEP works with drinking water utilities to make sure that the water delivered to consumers meets all federal and state standards and is clean and abundant. These efforts are vital to the Massachusetts economy and to the public health of our citizens.

The tasks facing state drinking water programs and public water systems continue to be extremely challenging - especially in an era of scarce resources. The drinking water infrastructure in many cities is aging and presents daunting resource demands. As a nation, we continue to be challenged by new and emerging drinking water contaminants associated with our industrial society.

Drug Take Back Day Collects Over 400 Pounds Of Substances

Over 400 pounds of substances were collected at this year's Drug Take Back Day hosted by Mayor Tom Koch's Substance Abuse Task Force.

The event is a partnership between the Drug Enforcement Agency, the Task Force and Impact Quincy.

More than 80 residents dropped off thousands of doses of medications, ranging from aspirin to OxyContin. All medications were then collected and disposed of by the DEA.

The City has partnered with the DEA to coordinate the Take Back Day three times since 2011.

Disposing of unused or unwanted medications is the easiest way for residents to help fight against substance abuse.

"Oftentimes we hear of young people experimenting with drugs for the first time simply by opening the medicine cabinet at home," Koch said. "It seems like an innocent thing to do because these pills are legally prescribed, but they are incredibly dangerous when taken improperly. Participating in the Take Back Day is the best thing a resident can do to help us reduce substance abuse in the City."

The Task Force extends its gratitude to the volunteers who helped make the event a reality: Arlene Goldstein from Impact Quincy, Det. Lt. Pat Glynn from the Quincy Police Department, John Sullivan, Paul Williams, Nancy Holler, Susan McGoldrick, and Lynn Pierce.

Residents are reminded that the Quincy Police Department houses a permanent drug disposal kiosk at One Sea Street.

The kiosk is open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

To drop off medications at the Police Station, simply deposit unused or unwanted medications into the drop box in the lobby.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

FILLINGS THAT ARE AS GOOD AS GOLD

Aside from being rare, gold has a number of qualities (including purity and malleability) that make it such a highly regarded precious metal. Not only is it the oldest dental filling material, it is also the most reliable and long-lasting. Additionally, gold is less likely to compromise the color of the surrounding tooth than traditional amalgam filling material, and it does not chip or crack. Filling cavities with this high-quality material involves first eliminating any decay, just as with any cavity-filling procedure. Then, small bits of gold are pressed into the prepared area until its surface is level with the surrounding enamel. Gold is comfortable to chew on, will not deteriorate, and is completely biocompatible.

Now, no matter how many cavities you have filled, your

ibility due to a lawsuit filed by non-union contractors who challenged Quincy's local labor law that requires contractors to give Quincy residents a hiring preference on public projects within the City, officials said. The schedule, however, has a built-in cushion that allows for unforeseen circumstances such as the Federal lawsuit.

The case is still pending, but is no longer holding up bidding for the project because the City was ordered to suspend its labor law while the case moves through the legal process.

"I still have no problem standing up for a law that provides Quincy jobs for Quincy people, and I am looking forward to having the full case heard on that principle," said Koch. "At the same time, we are not allowing this vital project to be held hostage by lawsuits, and we are moving forward."

The $50 million school will be built at the highest state reimbursement rate possible of 80 percent after the Koch administration worked with the Massachusetts School Building Authority to involve the project in the state's Model School Program.

Central will be the first middle school in the state to be built under the model school program. The MSBA's Model School Program adapts and re-uses the design of successful, recently constructed schools; simplifying the design process, reducing the amount of time projects are in the design phase and lowering design fees, officials said.

Using elements of a previously designed Model School allows projects to begin construction faster and reduces construction costs for the project. As much as a year has been saved by using a Model School, officials said.

Mayor Koch also noted that the City saved substantial money by negotiating the purchase of the four Hancock Street land parcels needed for the school without using costly and time-consuming eminent domain proceedings.

To Purchase 300 Computers At Middle Schools, NQHS Koch Plans $800,000 Technology Boost

Mayor Thomas Koch presented his School Committee colleagues with an $800,000 technology upgrade that will be enough to purchase more than 300 computers at the City's middle schools and North Quincy High School.

The plan will be paid for by license fees paid to the City by its cable television provider, Comcast.

"Technology must be a centerpiece of our schools, and it is my hope that this investment will go a long way toward keeping our schools at the forefront of computer-based learning and accessibility to information," Koch said.

The mayor said he has met several times with School Supt. Richard De-Cristofaro and his leadership team relative to technology plans. While he committed to the funding, the ultimate plan will be determined by principals working with Dr. DeCristofaro, he said.

Under the current proposal, the technology initiative will pay for computers at all of the City's middle schools, as well interactive white boards, network upgrades and necessary software.

The Middle School program follows a similar initiative two years ago, in which Koch provided $250,000 to create five new state-of-the-art technology labs at North Quincy High School.

"As we continue to move forward, the elementary schools will be next," he said.

HAVE SOMETHING TO HIDE?

When is a woman's wristwatch seemingly not a watch at all? The answer is: When a watch face has an elegant cover that gives the impression that the piece is more bracelet than watch. These elegant timekeeping pieces are usually studded with diamond covers that transform watches into jeweled art that is perfect for formal evenings out. When checking the time, a simple flip of the hinged, gemstone-encrusted cover reveals a watch face that is as beautiful as the outer casing. Other watch covers ingeniously slip aside or rotate before snapping back into place. When it comes to the finest expression of time, few watches compare with these hidden treasures.

Come into our store, located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, to uncover the exact watch that is perfect for accenting your modern wardrobe. Why Young Workers Should Care About Social Security

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Summer will be here before we know it. That means millions of high school and college students will be searching for jobs. Whether a new worker is beginning the career of a lifetime or just earning some extra money for the school year to come, there is one question that is likely to be on each new worker's mind when they see their first pay stub: Where's the rest of my money?

Generally, employers are required to withhold Social Security and Medicare tax from a worker's paycheck. The amounts you pay in Social Security and Medicare taxes are matched by your employer. Usually the money that is withheld is referred to as "Social Security taxes" on the employee's payroll statement. Sometimes the deduction is labeled as "FICA taxes," which stands for Federal Insurance Contributions Act. So let us tell you how that money is being used, and what's in it for you.

The taxes paid now translate to a lifetime of protection, when you eventually retire or if you become disabled. In the event that you die young, your dependent children and spouse may be able to receive survivors benefits based on your work. Today you probably have family members — grandparents, for example — who already enjoy Social Security benefits that your Social Security taxes help provide.

You may be a long way from retirement now, so you may find it hard to appreciate the value of benefits that could be 40 or 50 years away. But consider that your Social Security taxes could pay off sooner than you think. Social Security provides valuable disability benefits — and studies show that a 20-year-old has about a three in 10 chance of becoming disabled sometime before reaching retirement age.

Another bit of helpful advice for young workers: be wary if you're offered a job "under the table" or "off the books." If you work for any employer who pays you only in cash, understand that you're likely not getting Social Security credit for the work you're doing.

Want to learn more about Social Security and what it means to young workers? If so, we invite you to enjoy a webcast: Social Security 101: What's In It For Me? The webcast will fill you in on the details you should know to get the most out of Social Security. Check it out at www.socialsecurity.gov/webinars/social_security_101.html.

Quincy High School Engineering Technology Student Kevin Mullin Honored As Outstanding Career Vocational Student Of The Year

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy High School senior Kevin Mullin was recently recognized by the school committee for receiving the Quincy's Outstanding Career Vocational Student of the Year award.

Mullin was also recognized — along with other students across the state — at the 26th annual Outstanding Vocational Student of the Year banquet in Worcester.

"Kevin is a great product of the Quincy public school system. He should be recognized because he stands out as one of the great ones," said Quincy High School Engineering Technology Instructor Paul Tully. "Kevin is a very intelligent and giving human being that has greatness in his future."

Mullin, an Engineering Technology student at the high school, has a 4.6 GPA (grade point average) and is fifth in his class of 332 students.

"It feels really good to receive this award. I was pretty nervous during the interviewing process," said Mullin. "I knew there were a lot of other worthy candidates so nothing was sure. I was really nervous about what they (the Quincy school community partners) had decided so it was a great relief when I was told I had been chosen."

Mullin was chosen out of 15 students who were nominated throughout Quincy high schools by their career and technical education teachers. Mullin was nominated by his engineering technology teacher Tully who said in his nomination letter that Mullin has all the tools to be successful, and a lot of the credit for that has to go to his parents.

"The people who deserve the credit for how this young man has turned out are his parents," said Tully. "Kevin's greatest characteristics are his honesty and his integrity; he is truly a credit to his upbringing."

One student from each program offered in the schools was nominated and then they were cut down to seven candidates. Those seven students were then interviewed by six members of the Quincy school community partners.

"Each candidate did an exceptional job making the selection process an extremely difficult one," said Keith Segalla, the executive director of Career and Technical Education and Instructional Technology.

"We had such a great caliber of students that we wanted to make it a fair process, so we decided to interview for the first time."

Each candidate was rated on a scale of one through five in five different categories, one being poor and five being excellent. The five different categories were presentation of self, summary of career choice and skills, contributions to QHS and/or community, team engagement, and post-graduate plans.

"We interviewed seven candidates, and Kevin was the last one to walk in. He just wowed us with his demeanor and the presentation that he gave," said Segalla. "He was elaborate on answering the questions; there was no question on our mind that he was certainly the candidate for outstanding technical student of the year."

Tully said to school committee members that Mullin is a student that other students strive to be and teachers hope to have.

"Kevin is a young man, who works very hard, obtains high levels of success in his pursuits and at the same time seems to be truly enjoying the journey," said Tully. "Kevin leads by example in the classroom always the student who responds well to the challenges presented holding the bar high he makes the classroom better for his teachers and his classmates."

Working hard and building things with his hands is something Mullin has done his entire life, and Mullin said his family has always been there to help support him to do his best.

"Ever since I was a little kid, I liked working with my hands. My family has always kind of been there to push me to do really well," said Mullin. "My only regret looking back is that I didn't start my engineering major freshman year; instead I took a full year of keyboarding. Not exactly an exciting start to high school."

Mullin also said that it was a pivotal part in his education when he decided to major in engineering technology at the high school.

Mullin has a resume filled with accomplishments that show he is an asset to the Quincy community and a leader in and out of the classroom.

"A wow factor for the committee was when Kevin spoke about how he volunteered as a coach for the younger students," said Segalla. "That community involvement was a huge part of the decision that we made."

Mullin participates on the school's varsity soccer and baseball teams, coaches youth baseball and soccer and has also volunteered for a number of different organizations throughout the city.

"Kevin Mullin is an exceptional student, and we are very proud of him at Quincy High School," said Principal Frank Santoro. "We wish him good luck and we will hate to see him leave Quincy High."

Mullin said he was accepted to six of the eight colleges he applied to. He said that he isn't sure of where he will go to school but what he is sure of is what he will be doing for work once school is over.

"I would like to do something that allows me to work and build with my hands, but also something that allows me to work with the software we use in engineering where we can model things from the computer," said Mullin. "I haven't yet made a decision as to where I am going but I have been accepted to six great schools in which to choose from. No matter where I end up going I am confident that the Quincy public school system has prepared me to be successful in college."

Adams Green Wider Sidewalks, Raised Crosswalks, Bike Lanes

ed by a federal earmark.

The project's 25 percent plan was submitted to the state Department of Transportation (MassDOT) in April. Last Wednesday, city Planning Director Dennis Harrington, Howard/Stein-Hudson project manager Keri Pyke and Halvorson Design president Bob Uhlig — HSH is responsible for the traffic work and Halvorson is designing the park — presented he plan to the City Council's Downtown and Economic Growth Committee.

The plan calls for widening, or bumping-out, the sidewalks along Hancock Street both north and south of Adams Green. That would allow restaurants to offer outdoor tables if they chose to do so and also help tie the area together with Adams Green.

"When you think of Adams Green," Uhlig said, "don't think of Adams Green as stopping at the street. We've tried to extend the experience of Adams Green so that it...encompasses all of Hancock Street and Temple Street so that the whole experience is that experience."

Two 25-30 foot wide raised crosswalks would also be installed, one crossing Hancock Street on each side of the new park. The idea is to highlight them so drivers are more aware of where pedestrians will be crossing. Pyke noted that Quincy Center currently has one of the highest rates of pedestrian-related incidents in Massachusetts, something the improvements are intended to curb.

"We know that there are pedestrian safety issues in Quincy Center," Pyke said. "Quincy Center is actually number eight on the list of the Commonwealth's top pedestrian crash locations. There's a pedestrian safety problem here so we want to do everything we can."

Bicycle lanes would be added to Hancock, Temple, Washington, and Coddington Streets. Councillor Doug Gutro — chairman of the downtown committee — asked if the bike lanes would extend past the project's scope, or if they would just end. Harrington said it would be easy for the lanes to be extended, but they would need to be funded separately.

Because the Adams Green project calls for closing Hancock Street in front of the Church of the Presidents, both Temple Street on the church's south side and Washington Street on the church's north side will be two-way streets. To accommodate this, changes will be made at the intersection of Washington, Coddington, and Temple. Left turns won't be allowed from Coddington onto Washington or from Washington onto Temple. Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest questioned the effectiveness of those restrictions, noting that drivers along the Walter Hannon Parkway often ignore a no left turn sign on that road.

"We're having significant problems on the Mayor Hannon Parkway and that no left and people just absolutely disregarding it," Laforest said. "It's really causing problems down the line at [the intersection of] Washington and McGrath Highway — there just having a lot of problems putting Hannon Parkway online and I know that's one of the biggest problems...as you contemplate that, these left turn options, I'm not seeing them as successful options."

Pyke defended the left turn restrictions, saying a traffic study done before the projection showed few people would be affected. Harrington also pointed out that there will be three roads allowing access to Quincy Center from Washington Street. One of those is Maple Street, currently a one-way road flowing from Hancock to Washington that will be reversed to create another way for drivers to enter Quincy Center.

Another part of the plan calls for banning trucks larger than 2.5 tons from a corridor in Quincy Center, including all of Temple Street, part of Hancock Street south of Adams Green, and part of Granite Street leading into Hancock. Pyke said her firm, with support from the mayor's administration, petitioned the state for the restriction citing pedestrian safety.

ARTIST RENDERING shows a northbound view of Hancock Street from Granite Street after construction of Adams Green. Hancock Street would have one northbound lane and

"We want this to be pedestrian friendly," Pyke said. "We know there are issues with pedestrian safety today and big trucks just add one more complication in that equation. There are other routes into the downtown for those kinds of vehicles and we think that this [area] is not the place you want them to be."

While Laforest agreed with the sentiments behind barring trucks from that area of downtown, she questioned how businesses, particularly restaurants, would be able to continue to receive deliveries.

"I agree conceptually with how that works — taking that element out," Laforest said. "I just know there's Acapulcos on the corner, there's couple pubs on the corner of Temple — one on Temple, one on the corner of Washington. I just know, for example, the Budweiser delivery truck is very large — it would be one of those that would be restricted."

"Dunkin Donuts on Sea Street," Laforest continued, "it never fails at 7:30 in the morning, all the traffic's going to school and there's the Dunkin' Donuts 18-wheeler blocking a lane on Sea Street. So it's definitely a problem, I can understand you're looking to address it, I do appreciate that, I just want to be sure [about] those businesses."

In response, Harrington said the truck ban was geared more towards fuel tankers than trucks delivering to businesses along the corridor. "Do I expect a Budweiser truck to be parked in front of President's Pub after this is built? I certainly do," he explained. "But I hope gasoline tankers don't try to circle around."

Gutro used the committee meeting to press Harrington for information about a traffic study that was due to be completed as part of the city's land disposition agreement (LDA) with Beal/Street-Works. Harrington said the study was submitted on April 30, and a member of the Planning Department handed Gutro a copy after he asked why he or no one else on the Downtown Committee was informed about the study.

Gutro also allowed members of the public to comment at the meeting. Rev. Sheldon Bennett, the outgoing pastor at the United First Parish Church, said the completed project should two southbound ones. It also includes wider sidewalks, which could be used for outdoor dining, and new trees on each side of road. Rendering Courtesy Howard/Stein-Hudson Associates allow better access for tour and school buses that frequent the church.

"School groups come to visit the church on a regular basis," Bennett said, "and at the present time it's a terrible situation that buses park in front of the church and discharge passengers into the middle of Hancock Street, which is a very unsafe situation. But I didn't hear any presentation tonight any comment about how tour buses are to be accommodated."

Pyke said she knew parking for buses was an issue at the church, and said that as the design progressed they would look into designating some of the proposed parking spaces adjacent to the church along Temple and Washington Streets as spots for buses.

Germantown resident Robert Ross was another of the residents who spoke at the meeting. He voiced support for the project, but was concerned about potential traffic problems and interested in having experts look at results of the traffic study submitted to the council earlier.

"It makes a big difference as to quality of life in Quincy," Ross said, "as to how this project in particular will impact quality of life for people in the center and also in the peninsulas and in between. Dennis Harrington I know lives in the Merrymount section and he has to cross just like I do to go to the other side of the city and we have to get through the city center and if it's a roadblock we have to know about it."

Harrington noted that according to the study, a copy of which is available at the Thomas Crane Library, traffic was down 25 percent in Quincy Center since the Hannon Parkway opened.

A formal public hearing conducted by MassDOT on the traffic improvement plan will be held Wednesday June 13 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Library. It's expected that work on the project will begin next year and be completed in 2014. More information on the Adams Green transportation improvement plan, including abridged portions of the 25 percent plan and ways to submit comments, are available online at adamsgreen.info.

QCAP Recognizes Extraordinary Community Service At 47th Annual Meeting

At its 47th annual meeting on Tuesday, April 24, the Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc.'s (QCAP) Board of Directors celebrated the organization's successes and honored the achievements of community members who were exemplary in their support of QCAP's mission.

Among the honorees were Quincy Mayor Thomas P. Koch, Donald P. Uvanitte of Eastern Insurance, and Ed Hohmann, owner of A. Hohmann & Co., Inc.

The ceremony was held at the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

Among the year's accomplishments, QCAP opened the new Rosemary & Archie Wahlberg Head Start Early Center in January and completed its 2012-2014 Strategic Plan, a comprehensive community needs assessment conducted every three years to gauge the priorities of our clients and the community, and to shape how QCAP develops its programs to meet those needs. And, last October, QCAP hosted its first fundraiser in decades, raising nearly $100,000 to benefit QCAP programs.

"We are very proud of our achievements this past year," said Beth Ann Strollo, QCAP's executive director. "We couldn't have accomplished what we did without the great support and commitment of QCAP's Board, our hard-working staff, the community, and our elected officials."

The Board recognized Quincy Mayor Thomas P. Koch with a 2012 Extra Mile Award, given to community members who go above and beyond in their support of QCAP's mission and its clients. Dedicated to QCAP's mission of helping disadvantaged residents improve their lives, Mayor Koch is an active leader in responding to the urgent need of low-income residents. Most recently, Mayor Koch supported the organization's efforts to develop the former St. Joseph's school into the new Rosemary & Archie Wahlberg Head Start Early Learning Center.

"I am honored to receive this award," Mayor Koch said, "We are more than a city - we are a community. And QCAP is one of the best organizations in our community."

The Board also honored Quincy resident Donald P. Uvanitte, a senior vice president at Eastern Insurance, with an individual Extra Mile Award.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, Uvanitte has worked with QCAP to ensure struggling families could get the help they needed. He was instrumental in helping the organization to embark on its Head Start capital campaign four years ago, and stepped up his efforts to secure support for QCAP's fundraiser last October.

Uvanitte is chairman of the South Shore Workforce Investment Board, serves on the Quincy Medical Board of Trustees, and is active in many Boards and organizations along the South Shore.

"I am honored and humbled to receive the Extra Mile Award," Uvanitte said. "The programs of Quincy Community Action including Early Childhood Education, Energy Programs and Assistance, Housing Programs, and Adult Education and Workforce Development all speak volumes of the good works this agency does in helping build stronger communities. When businesses can assist struggling families, there is a bond that is solidified that benefits all citizens in our communities and that instills pride and achievement for all."

An organization Extra Mile Award was presented to Ed Hohmann of A. Hohmann & Co., Inc. for providing fuel assistance and heating system repairs and installations to low-income residents. Working with QCAP's Energy Programs, A. Hohmann & Company repairs and replaces inefficient heating systems, saving clients on their fuel costs and freeing up much-needed income for the basic needs of their household. The company also supports QCAP by donating to the organization's Emergency Food Center and to its fundraiser.

"The work we do with QCAP is very rewarding," Hohmann said. "We get to see first-hand the impact of QCAP's work in the community, helping seniors and families stay warm every winter."

In addition, Nancy Dean, Head Start Enrollment Specialist, was presented the Lois Craig Memorial Employee Award, for her exemplary service to QCAP Head Start families and children, and the community. Donna Brennan, Lead Certifier in QCAP's Energy Program, was honored for twenty years of dedicated service to QCAP's clients. This year's meeting was dedicated to Edna Young, Head Start Lead Teacher since 1997, who passed away after a short illness in January 2012.

The annual meeting was also marked by the recognition of Kathryn M. Murphy, Esq. of Quincy law firm, Murphy, Hesse, Toomey & Lehane, who retired from the Board after 10 years of service. Among her many contributions, Murphy was instrumental in guiding QCAP through the process of purchasing its 1509 Hancock St. main building and the new Head Start Center.

"Kathy Murphy provided us with invaluable guidance over the years," Strollo said. "She was a truly remarkable board member who gave generously of her time and shared her expertise willingly. She will certainly be missed."

Board officers elected include: President Josephine Shea; Vice President Jean Kenney, Treasurer Tim McAloon, Esq., Assistant Treasurer Janet Crowley, and Secretary Grace Raymondi. Other Board members include: Maureen Ayers, Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Judith Barry, Michael Berry, Paul Connolly, Judith Farmer, Kevin Glennon, Kevin Matta, Barbara Morris, James Murdoch, Linda Perry, Jean Pike, Frank Poon, and Geoffrey Wermuth. New Board member Douglas W. Moseley, representing Weymouth Mayor

Susan M. Kay, was inducted at the annual meeting.

Notable guests included: state Sen. John Keenan; Norfolk County Register of Probate Patrick McDermott; Quincy City Councillors Michael McFarland, Kevin Coughlin, Douglas Gutro, Kirsten Hughes, Margaret Laforest, Brian Palmucci; School Committeewoman Barbara Isola; and Joseph Rich representing U.S. Senator Scott Brown.

cent increase in funding is $152,502 for opening the library for four hours on Sunday year-round. Also included is an additional $5,000 for new books and periodicals, bringing that total to $304,134. Before the committee voted, Library Director Harry Williams said the mayor's decision to restore Sunday hours came as a surprise to him.

"I have to confess I was pleasantly shocked when Mayor Koch put it in his proposal," Williams told the committee, "only because it's a big step. We're not rolling in money yet in this economy, but we will spend it well and I think the people in the community will take incredible advantage of it. I know in past years when the library was open four hours on Sunday, we did more business in those four hours than in any weekday of 12 hours."

Finance Committee Chairman Joe Finn said he was pleased that taxpayer money would go towards something everyone in the community could use.

"I think it will be something that will be, again, much accepted by the citizens of Quincy," Finn said. "I can't think of one thing that I heard as much about as I did about those particular hours. It is nice when the tax dollars actually can benefit something that benefits the community so well."

The committee also approved raising the Legal Department's budget by 3.9 percent to $500,912. The increase went entirely towards increasing the amount of money available for hiring outside counsel by $20,000 to $95,000 total. City Solicitor Jim Timmins said the all the money in that line item could be used by the council to hire an attorney for SPGA matters, something several councillors requested in April.

"The thought is if there were a need to hire an attorney for a PUD (planned urban development) or a particular issue," Timmins said, "then we could do that and it would be paid out of this money but there are occasions when other departments need an attorney and in discussing with the mayor we wanted to try this amount this year and we think it's realistic."

Councillor Doug Gutro was one of the three councillors who sought an outside attorney for SPGA issues. He expressed support for the increase, but said he'd rather the money be placed in the council's budget and not with the Legal Department.

"A half loaf is better than no loaf...while I'm disappointed it doesn't reside in the City Council budget and we don't have the authority to bring them in on our own," Gutro said, "I'm grateful to the mayor and to you for allowing it to be in your budget."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee - who was forced to recuse himself from future SPGA hearings on a proposed C-Mart supermarket as a result of a settlement the city reached - said Gutro was wrong to call it a half loaf.

"We're not getting a half of loaf here," McNamee said, "we're getting a full loaf with some oversight, some management of the account. I don't want to look at this as a concession, I want to look at it as getting what we need."

The committee also voted to keep the judgments budget - used primarily to pay small-claims like damage caused by potholes - at $200,000 as had been proposed. But Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked Timmins why that would be at $200,000 when Quincy paid more than that on average in judgments over the past five years.

"I'm just curious if the five-year average is $273,000, with a high of $475,000, what the justification was for the $200,000," Palmucci asked. "Why did you come up with that number?"

Timmins explained the judgments vary each year, and that deficit spending is allowed on judgments because of their unpredictable nature. The solicitor also added that if the city lost a major decision, such as the Woodward School case, it would be more likely to pay that by taking out a bond than from the judgments account.

Timmins also explained why the mayor requested an increase in funding for worker's compensation, a number which increased from 11 percent to 12.15 million. Timmins said it was reflective of higher medical bills the city was seeing. The committee did approve that increase as proposed.

The committee okayed the hiring of a "floating clerk" to work at City Hall. That will be funded by a 4.4 percent increase in the treasurer/collector's budget which brings that budget to $832,199. The budget for the tax title fund, a separate item also overseen by Treasurer/Collector Deborah Coughlin will stay level-funded at $50,000.

The Finance Committee also approved raising the Assessors budget by 9.4 percent to $655,308. Peter Moran, head of the Assessors Board, said the extra would go towards the hiring of specialists used to appraise high value properties, such as Quincy Medical Center.

An increase in of 28.5 percent of in the Planning Department's budget was approved, bringing the department's total budget to $304,797. That extra money will be used to pay an employee whose position was previously funded by a now-eliminated federal grant.

Another department seeing a significant increase is Human Resources. Their budget will increase by 30.2 percent to $319,523. HR Director Stephen McGrath said the extra cash, $75,000, will be used for hiring an outside counsel who will work on updating language in employee contracts. The Finance Committee approved the increase, and another health insurance - which also falls under McGrath's purview - level funded at $41.4 million as requested.

The Finance Committee approved a 2.7 increase in the IT department's budget, which will be for upgrade the city's communications.

The committee approved increasing the Recreation Department's budget by 1.5 percent, the Council on Aging's budget by 1.3 percent, and the Health Department's budget by 0.5 percent, all as proposed. The heads of the Purchasing and Veterans' Services Department's were scheduled to appear Monday but did not.

The next budget hearing will be held Tuesday, May 29 at 7 p.m. in the New City Hall Council Chambers. Department heads scheduled for that night included Fire Chief Joseph Barron, Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi, and Inspectional Services Commissioner Jay Duca.

A third hearing is scheduled for Monday, June 11. The council would then need to approve the entire budget before it could be signed into law by the mayor.

Flood Relief Projects Meeting Topic May 24

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci and members of the Koch Administration will host a community meeting Thursday, May 24 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at City Hall.

Project engineers will be on hand to discuss the various projects, totaling over $5 million, and efforts the City is currently making with respect to neighborhood flood relief. Progress has been made in the past year in the design and engineering phase and several projects are scheduled to break ground in the coming months.

The projects included in the CIP, and which will be discussed at the meeting, include the inspection and cleaning of Furnace Brook, creation of a flood control station at Cross Street & Furnace Ave, reconstruction of the Alrick Road pumping station, improvements to drainage in the Alrick Road area, and improvement to the Black's Creek tide gate and capacity.

There will also be discussion on efforts to coordinate with the Town of Milton and Mass Highway to pump water into their drainage systems during storms, as well as the City's progress on using St. Moritz Pond as a natural retention basin during major storms.

Quincy High School Fashion Show Smashing Success

*Event Raises
Over $1,000;
70 Students Participate In Annual Show*

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy High School fashion students modeled to a packed Lloyd Hill Auditorium during their annual Fashion Show on May 3rd. Over 70 students organized and participated in the event that raised over $1,000.

"The fashion show displays to the students, faculty and parents what the students have been working diligently on all year," said Quincy High School junior and fashion show coordinator Maggie Mahoney. "My hope and goal was, as the fashion show coordinator, to fill the audience. Nothing is worse than performing to a small audience."

The show takes what the students from classes such as fashion tech 1 and 2 along with fashion tech majors have created throughout the school year and showcases their finished products. According to Mahoney, a third year participant, this is the first year the show has had such a large crowd.

"The crowd this year surpassed the crowd we had my freshman year and last year combined," said Mahoney. "Naturally I was giddy with excitement to see that. My hope for next year is to fill the balcony, I want people to walk up to the ticket table and we have to tell them 'Sorry, we're full.'"

Students got creative when it came to what their designs were made out of, there was everything from skirts made out of tissue paper to dresses made out of neckties. Fashion Technology Teacher Lorraine Walsh said that last year was the first time that students made outfits out of recycled products, and it is not a requirement to design something from recycled products but many choose to do so.

"It is a somewhat voluntary thing to make their design out of recycled products," said Walsh. "I usually place the girls in groups of either three or more and they come up with the design first, and then they choose the recycled product they want to use."

Walsh added the recycled designs became a part of the program after the national organization Project Green Schools asked the program to make some outfits for the Miss Massachusetts contestants. This year, they were able to submit six entries into a fashion show for the same organization.

The show also featured outfits, jackets, dresses, and business ware that could be found in any clothing store and many in the crowd seemed to be in awe of the clothing the students designed. The students are required as a part of their curriculum to help organize the event and show off their designs and collections.

"The students get a whole lot out of the show and they work very hard to hold it," said Walsh. "I believe it is important for the students to understand the dynamics and procedures to hosting an event."

The show displayed over 85 different garments and was one of the largest and most difficult shows Walsh said she has ever done in the five years she has organized it.

"This was the largest and most trying show we have done," said Walsh. "We had little experience when it came to running the show. There were very little seniors, along with third year students involved in this year's production. I don't think it showed during the show, but it defiantly showed behind the scenes."

Many students had a collection of three or more outfits that they designed modeled during the show. Mahoney said she designed five different outfits, one of which was a dress made out of Capri Sun juice boxes, and her favorite was a black racerback dress with a circle skirt.

"I love the way you can have something so two dimensional on a piece of paper and suddenly you can make it into a three dimensional thing and put it on a person," said Mahoney. "That is my favorite part of it all - changing something from paper to real life."

Walsh said that many of the students who take the three year major go on to do something in the fashion world, whether it is fashion design or fashion merchandising, Walsh is confident that the program helps prepare them for both avenues. According to Walsh, two students from last year's graduating class went on to attend one of the best known fashion design schools, Parsons The New School for Design in New York, and about a quarter of the students in the major go on to be a fashion design major in college.

"The program has been revamped in the past five years, from being more of a home economics class to now a pathway to a fashion career," said Walsh. "This program gives the students a very basic education and understanding of what the fashion industry is all about."

For Mahoney being a fashion designer is something she has hoped to become since she was a little girl.

"I remember watching award shows and design shows and knowing I wanted to be some type of designer. Eventually I realized that fashion design was the route I myself wish to take," said Mahoney. "It is something I want to do for the rest of my life. Although it is a difficult business, I do know that the people in it whined up setting a solid path for their future and that is exactly what I want."

For now, both Mahoney and Walsh are focused on next years show, and they both are in agreement that the goal will be to fill the auditorium and hopefully display more outfits, and allow for the designers to step out on stage and receive the recognition they deserve.

"I would like next year to be able to show more mini collections, and to have the designers come out on stage after their collections have been modeled," said Walsh. "I am also hoping next year we will get an earlier start on selling tickets, and be able to sell out."

Volunteer At Interfaith Social Services 20 Years Shirley Poore - 90 Years Young And Still Volunteering

If you've ever stopped by Interfaith Social Services' Bureau Drawer Thrift Shop you've probably been greeted by Shirley Poore. Whether she is sorting clothes or helping customers Shirley has been serving at Interfaith for over twenty years. Surrounded by fellow volunteers Shirley celebrated her 90th birthday last week.

"When I started volunteering in the fall of 1991 the shop was only open a few days a week," said Shirley. Now open Monday-Friday Shirley works at least two shifts a week and covers for other volunteers who may be out sick or on vacation.

Interfaith's Bureau Drawer Thrift Shop provides the community with an affordable option for clothing and household items. The Shop is run entirely by volunteers. Dozens of individuals give their time each week to sort thousands of bags of clothing and assist shoppers. All of the proceeds from the shop help support Interfaith's various programs.

"I used to do other things besides the thrift shop" said Shirley. From sorting files, answering the phones, stocking food in the Pantry Shelf, and helping as a crossing guard at the South Shore Walk; over the years Shirley has volunteered in virtually every program at Interfaith Social Services.

Shirley was introduced to Interfaith Social Services by one of her friends from church who was a volunteer at the time. She asked Shirley to help her transport some donated clothes to the shop. As soon as Shirley found out that she could volunteer in the thrift shop she was hooked on helping wherever she could.

Since recovering from a broken hip, which she fractured while on a cruise in 2002; Shirley has had to slow down a little. She no longer golfs every Thursday with fellow volunteer Martha Chase, and she can't do as much as she'd like to around the shop. However, she is still a very active lady, every year since 1991 Shirley has walked or volunteered in Interfaith's annual South Shore Walk. Also, each week Shirley transports the donated food from her church, Quincy Community United Methodist, to Interfaith's food pantry.

"Many people really love and care for Shirley and I am one of them," said Bureau Drawer Thrift Shop manager Cindy Lee. "Shirley is an important member of Interfaith's family of volunteers."

On May 9th Interfaith's

FOR OVER 20 years Shirley Poore has volunteered in Interfaith Social Services Bureau Drawer Thrift Shop in Quincy. Shirley celebrated her 90th birthday last week.

volunteers threw a special party to celebrate her 90th birthday.

"Shirley is an example of real dedication," said Volunteer Coordinator Paula Daniels. "We are blessed with an amazing group of volunteers here at Interfaith; our programs depend on these great people. Every week over 80 dedicated volunteers staff our food pantry, career closet, thrift shop and front desk."

According to Daniels many of Interfaith's volunteers become a surrogate family for each other. "We have fun. Whether they are feeding hungry people or throwing the occasional birthday party we are always looking for compassionate people to join our team."

Interfaith's Bureau Drawer Thrift Shop is open to the public Monday - Friday, 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Tuesday nights until 7 p.m.

Located at Interfaith Social Services' office at 105 Adams St. in Quincy, Interfaith relies on volunteers from the community to staff their front desk, distribute food through their food pantry and operate the Thrift Shop.

Anyone interested in donating their time at Interfaith should contact Volunteer Coordinator Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28.

Bettyanne Lang Presented Quincy Lions 'Frank McCauley Community Service Award'

For more than two decades, Bettyanne Lang has assisted local residents in need through Interfaith Social Services, overseeing the non-profit's volunteers, food pantry and "Career Closet" program that provides clothing to job seekers.

Last week, Lang was honored for her dedication to helping South Shore residents when the Quincy Lions Club presented her with the 2012 Frank McCauley Community Service Award.

Presented at a luncheon held at The Neighborhood

Club, the award honors a local resident, activist or businessperson who has demonstrated a commitment to being of service to others and the community consistent with the Lions motto, "We Serve."

"Bettyanne is well known across the South Shore," Quincy Lions Club President Donna Muller said. "From the tens of thousands of people who receive food each year through Interfaith's food pantry to the countless volunteers who consider her a friend and surrogate mother, she epitomizes the commitment to service for which the Lions Club is known around the world."

A Weymouth resident, Lang joined Interfaith in 1990 after having worked for many years with local churches and businesses, including eight years as the administrative secretary for Hingham Congregational Church. In 1997, she became coordinator of Interfaith's Pantry Shelf and was promoted to manager of material assistance in 2001.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, May 8, at approximately 2:10 a.m., Officer Dave Cooper was working in the West Quincy area when he observed a male with a large back pack, traveling north on Copeland Street on a bicycle.

Due to the time of morning, recent car breaks and tagging incidents, the male drew the officer's attention. Officer Cooper turned his cruiser around to question this male, but once he did this, the suspect made a U-turn and starting driving towards the cruiser.

LT. DAN MINTON

The Officer turned his blue lights on and stopped the male at the intersection of Crescent Street and Hall Place. The male appeared nervous and sweating when asked where he was headed. The male said he was headed home, however he was traveling in the wrong direction. When confronted with this, the male suspect said, "Yeah - I'm just taking a ride." Officer Cooper observed that the suspect had fresh spray paint on his fatigue shorts and a white towel around his neck that also had some blue paint on it.

When asked what he had in his backpack, the suspect said it was a computer and gave permission for the Officer to take a look. As the suspect handed over the backpack, the officer noted that the suspect had paint on his finger nails.

At this time, Officers Steve O'Donoghue and Tom Gaeta Jr. arrived on scene. Inside the bag were several spray paint cans, a pair of gloves with fresh paint all over them and 4 sharpie markers. Other items found were a silencer which minimizes the sound of the spray can, numerous spray caps, a small light covered in paint (which goes on your hat to see at night), and paper drawings of the word "SIZE" or "SIZER."

Inside a clear container was a green leafy substance believed to be marijuana. On the bottom of the bag was a camera, which, based on training and experience, the officer knew was used by taggers to take photos of their tags/graffiti. There were approximately 500 photos saved on the camera. Many involved tagging and defacing property along transit property and possibly commercial areas throughout Boston.

At this time, Officer Cooper did not have any physical evidence of tagging or proof of a crime, so the suspect was sent on his way. As the officer drove to the station to file a report, he observed the word, "SIZER" on a billboard on Water Street. It appeared to be done in black marker and was fresh.

As Officer Cooper returned to the area where the suspect was last seen, he observed at the intersection of Furnace Brook Park way and Copeland Street a tag on the utility box, matching the sketches that the suspect had in his possession. At 332 Copeland St., Officer Cooper observed the word "SIZER" painted on the mail box.

It should be noted that all tagging was within approximately one mile from where the suspect was originally detained and the closest tag was within 60 yards of the stop. Officer Gaeta spotted the suspect, who was placed under arrest on West Street.

A further search by Officer Cooper resulted in 13 structures being tagged with the name "Size" and these appeared to be fresh and with some paint still running. Back at the station, Officer Cooper seized the suspect's backpack and placed the items into evidence, however, the camera was missing. Officer Gaeta returned to the arrest location and found the camera. The marijuana was placed in drug locker for destruction.

The suspect, a 32-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with "Defacing Property."

2012 Outright Patriot League Champions; Winning Streak Stands At 16 Games North Quincy Volleyball Finishes Perfect Season

By TOM LAYMAN

The banner year for North Quincy boys' volleyball continued this spring when the Red Raiders stretched their unbeaten streak to 15 with a 3-0 blanking of cross-town rival Quincy on the Presidents home court last Friday.

Aris Bega had 16 kills and eight aces, Mike Tran had 10 kills and Sebastian Francois added eight kills and six blocks in the middle of the Red Raiders' attack. Oresti Bega, who took over as the setter this season as a sophomore, got the rest of his teammates involved with 29 assists on the afternoon.

The Red Raiders already captured their second Patriot League title since 2009, while the Presidents dropped to 4-9 on the season and were eliminated from MIAA tournament consideration.

The two teams may share friendships and pleasantries with one another after the game, but Aris Bega said once the first serve goes over the net all bets are off.

"We know the players personally and we are friends with them," said the senior outside-hitter. "But during the game we are not friends with them. After the game we are friends, but during the game we try to pretend like we don't even know them."

Their records might look a little different in the standings, but the Presidents were hanging tight, down 15-10, in the first game. But the Red Raiders got eight straight points, seven off the serve of Oresti Bega to pull away. Aris Bega got things started with back-to-back kills and his brother Oresti put the Red Raiders up 22-10 with an ace.

The Red Raiders took the first game 25-14.

"(North Quincy) plays together really well," said Presidents head coach Lok-Tin Yao. "Both times we faced them they played really well and they go after the ball. It's a lot of team-effort out there."

There were eight ties in the second game, but again the Red Raiders started storming away with some good team volleyball. The Red Raiders took advantage of some unforced errors from the Presidents in the run, as they were able to hold on to a 25-17 victory.

"We came into the game positive," said Aris Bega. "There were a couple of lapses in the game, but we got right back up."

The Presidents knew that they needed a last ditch effort to keep their slim playoff hopes alive and they showed some grit in the final game before falling 26-24. The Presidents got the serve back with a kill by Coleman McCarron to pull the score to 23-16. Zerick Fadairo served an ace and got two more service points to get the Red Raiders thinking. Danny Vo blocked for a kill and Francois was long with a shot to tie things up at 24.

The Red Raiders went right back to Tran, who was all over the court for the entire game, to grab a big kill for a 25-24 lead, and he served up the final point to hold off the scare.

"He's a guy who can do it on the offensive end," said Red Raiders head coach Jason Cai. "Tran is one of my best all-around guys. He can hit, pass and jump. He can block and do it all."

Cai knows that in order to be successful in the MIAA tournament the Red Raiders are going to have to treat every opponent as a potential threat to derailing a post-season run. At times against Quincy, the coach didn't see that effort.

"Sometimes we just weren't executing," said Cai. "They were a little off today. Velocity wasn't there and we weren't hitting the ball as hard as we should be."

"They are undefeated and they are getting a little cocky, a little conceited. They came in thinking that they were automatically going to win. They weren't working hard and I didn't like what I saw in the first two games. Nobody was into it. Nobody was talking. But they pulled out a win, so that's a positive."

The Red Raiders ran their winning streak to 16 following a 3-0-match win over Taunton on Monday for the completion of the undefeated regular season.

Cai has been putting his team through more conditioning and plans on using a few different techniques to get his team fully ready for a playoff run. Before the tournament seedings come out, the head coach plans on bringing in some more experienced players to get his team in shape.

"I'm trying to get some higher level kids in here to play against us, so we play at a higher level than what we've been playing now," said Cai. "Maybe get some college kids and some people who play all-year round.

Maybe get some older guys to get them to work a little bit harder and get ready for the playoffs to bring them back to reality."

Notes: North Quincy's starting roster against rival Quincy included seniors Aris Bega (outside hitter) and Mike Tran (outside hitter), juniors Sebastian Francois (middle hitter), Matt MacPhail (middle hitter), Felix Mann (outside hitter), Andrew Sok (libero), and Peter Nguyen (setter), and sophomores Oresti Bega (setter) and Efthim Butka (outside hitter)... Quincy's roster included Tim Murray, John Bottary, Zerick Fadairo, Phu Tang, Daniel Mongo, Danny Vo, Jerod Lin, Coleman McCarron, Brian Sullivan, Jackson Le, Christian Fuller and Joan Palo.

SENIOR ARIS BEGA returns a volley versus Quincy. Bega and fellow senior Mike Tran lead a young North Quincy team into the state tournament next week.

2011 Quincy High Graduate Succeeding In Three Sports At The Collegiate Level

Sorensen Right At Home At Eastern Nazarene

By SEAN BRENNAN

Kori Sorensen was used to dominating opposing batters during her four-year reign as arguably the best pitcher to play for Quincy High softball.

As a freshman hurler this spring for Eastern Nazarene College, Sorensen quickly discovered that pitching at the collegiate level was going to be a completely different beast.

"The first game I pitched we got run ruled," said Sorensen, who just finished her freshman year at ENC, a year in which she made an immediate impact on the Lions' volleyball, basketball and softball teams. "In high school, to be honest, I don't think we ever got run ruled, so that was depressing. I went back to my dorm room and cried and asked myself what was I doing wrong."

"I was shaking that first game and with softball I never really get nervous. But after that I got right back into it and I was fine."

It would be safe to say that the next twenty-four opponents Sorensen faced this season wished that first game had been her last.

She flipped the switch and just dominated the way only Kori Sorensen can.

In 22 games started (she pitched in 25 overall), the powerful right-hander led ENC in wins with 12; her ERA was a team-best 1.91; her 19 complete games were a team high, and in 136.2 inning pitched Sorensen struck out 157 while walking just 36. Her performance in the circle helped ENC advance into the second round of the Commonwealth Coast Conference tournament before the Lions were eliminated by Endicott College.

"Just to put it in perspective," said ENC head softball coach Leah Hampton, "last season ENC's team ERA fluctuated around 7. You can easily look at this year's team ERA and see what Kori has brought to the program. Not only did she contribute to the betterment of the pitching staff by throwing an impressive 1.91 (ERA) herself, but you can look at the returning pitchers on staff and see how she pushed each of them to make improvements."

"I believe that what she's done for this team is outside of her own personal accomplishments," added Hampton, "she has pushed others to improve because of how hard she is willing to work and how truly humble she is while always giving the game her all. She is already a true leader and I am excited to watch her grow over the next three years."

A three-sport star at Quincy High, Sorensen made the decision, despite the rigors of a full academic slate (she is majoring in Biology), to give it a go in volleyball and basketball, as well as softball, at ENC.

Beginning late last August, Sorensen began preseason workouts for volleyball, and as the team's starting libero, she helped the Lions to an 11-17 record as ENC finished a game short of qualifying for the CCC tournament. On the year, Sorensen led the team with 361 digs.

"We missed the tournament by one game and honestly we should have made it," she said. "I didn't expect to start but I tried to work as hard as I could during the preseason and I ended up getting a starting spot. We are a young team and we have some good recruits coming in, so we should only get better next season."

According to head volleyball coach Kathryn Hart, the improvement that Sorensen spoke of should continue in large part because of the work ethic and leadership that she has brought to the program.

"Kori brought the level of hustle and work ethic to a new level on the volleyball team," said Hart. "As our starting libero, Kori was always willing to do whatever it took to get her hands on a ball defensively, always had a great attitude, and was just an overall great addition to our team. She is extremely coachable and I know she will only continue to improve as a player and as a leader."

Once the volleyball season ended, Sorensen's athletic journey rolled right into basketball season. There was no rest for the weary.

But playing hoops was not a sport that she had necessarily planned on doing, however her competitive juices wouldn't let her sit idly by. It also didn't hurt that she saw in head coach Sacha Santimano a leader that she had to go to battle for.

"It was more so the coach," Sorensen said when asked why she decided to play basketball, "she is awesome. I really wanted to play for her and that is what pushed me to play this year. I had heard such great things about her."

Sorensen earned herself playing time and by the end of the season had made herself into a solid contributor for the Lions. In 26 games played (two starts), Sorensen averaged 18.9 minutes a game at shooting guard, while leading the team in three-point shooting (36-for-101) at .356%. ENC finished the year at 13-13 overall and 10-8 in the CCC.

"It went pretty well," she said about her first season on the hardwood. "I didn't really see much floor time at the beginning but then I did (later in the year). Coach Santimano, who was named CCC Coach of the Year, gave me multiple opportunities to play and, the adjustment to the pace of the game was difficult at first, but once I got used to it, I fit right in."

Santimano is excited to watch Sorensen develop as a player and is looking forward to the contributions she will bring to a young team that is on the rise.

"Kori brought a lot of energy to our team this year," Santimano said. "She worked very hard, helped set a standard for our program, and became a true outside shooting threat a lot of teams had to deal with. In the next three years, I expect Kori to continue what she has established this year. I'm excited to coach her for three more years and look forward to helping her grow and develop."

For most college freshman that first year is the time to discover where they fit in among the rest of the campus community. Sorensen could have treaded lightly. Her family still lives in Quincy, which meant she could have stayed home and played it safe, but that would have been too easy. She wanted to experience college the way kids do when they leave the comfort of home, so that is what she did.

"It was a little overwhelming at first," Sorensen said about leaving home even though she stayed home. "All the classes take up so much time and your teachers don't treat you like they do in high school. That was a big adjustment, but the cool thing (about living on campus) is that all your friends are right there."

"I told my parents, 'I love you guys,' but I am living on campus," added Sorensen. "I wanted the college experience. I hardly went home, which sounds terrible, but I just didn't have the time. The nice thing about playing (so close to home) is that my parents could come to most of my games."

HOMEGROWN TALENT STAYS HOME – Eastern Nazarene College freshman Kori Sorensen, a graduate of Quincy High, starred in volleyball, basketball and softball this past year for the Lions. On the softball diamond, Sorensen finished the season with a 12-10 record; a team-best 1.91 ERA, 157 strikeouts and 19 complete games.

Kori Sorensen rewrote the record books as a three-sport star at Quincy High.

ENC better hope that the records it keeps are written in pencil because if her first year is any indication, Kori Sorensen is about to make them her own.

His Finish Of 22:09 Seconds Fastest Time Since The Early 1960's Harris Sets New QHS Record In 200

During a day of standout performances by Quincy and North Quincy tracksters at the annual Massachusetts State Coaches Association Invitational at Dilboy Stadium in Somerville, Quincy High junior Jaquan Harris shone brightest.

The highlight was Harris winning the 200 meters, and as great as that was, it almost didn't happen according to Head Coach Geoff Hennessy.

"He false started in the 100 meters and was despondent," said Hennessy. "He went back to the team tent and didn't hear the call for the 200 check-in. When he got there, heats had been formed for the 200 trails and he had to get stuck in lane 8, way on the outside. Yet, despite that he won his heat."

Harris was the second seed going into the finals, but held even on the turn and pulled away over the final 100 meters to win in a time of 22.09, the fastest Quincy High time since the early 1960s when the 200-meter was run as a straightaway race at White Stadium.

Harris is ranked second statewide behind Catholic Memorial's Donovan Henry who recently changed his verbal commitment to play football at Boston College to accepting a track scholarship to Northeastern University. According to Hennessy, Henry is looking to opt to the 400-meter, leaving open a chance for Harris to win at States in the 200.

In the field events, North Quincy sophomore Maya Umoren placed eighth in the shot put with a 36'06" toss and her sister, senior Olivia Umoren tossed an all-time personal best of 36'05," missing the finals by one inch (to her sister).

In the javelin, Sam McNally placed ninth with a 105'09" despite slipping and falling on her first throw.

"The throwing area is soupy and doesn't drain well," explained Hennessy. "We're right on the banks of the Mystic River here in Somerville and the recent rains made foot lousy."

This week the Q/NQ team has a makeup meet at Pembroke and with other rain-outs throughout the league being moved to Tuesday, the League Championship meet had been canceled.

"We're disappointed, but will bring a bunch of kids to the Last Chance Invitational at Notre Dame (Hingham). Then we go to states," said Hennessy. "We have 12 athletes in the state meet so far and we keep getting better every week, so we're psyched for the competitive opportunities."

HEADING FOR TROUBLE?

Soccer is an excellent sport that confers many health benefits. However, there is increasing concern that younger players (in particular) who "head" the ball may be injuring themselves as a result. According to a recent small study, heading the ball leads to changes in the white matter of the brain (the fibers that make up the brain's network wiring) that are similar to those experienced with traumatic brain injury or concussion. As yet, researchers have not assessed whether these changes in the brain correspond to changes in cognitive performance. The more a player uses his or her head to strike the ball, the greater the degree of changes in the brain. Players are therefore advised to minimize heading the ball.

At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we can offer a treatment plan that is organized around what you can do and what we can do to help prevent injury. We are located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we will only accept you as a patient if we feel we can help you. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Heading the ball in soccer places stress on a player's cervical spine, which poses potential consequences of its own.

HOCUS-FOCUS

BY HENRY BOLTINOFF

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

© 2012 King Features Synd., Inc. All rights reserved.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A stubborn refusal to go ahead on a project mystifies colleagues who expected more flexibility. But once you explain your position, they'll understand and even applaud you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A relationship seems to be stuck in the same place. Now it's up to you, dear Bovine, to decide how far you want it to go and how intense you want it to be. Choose well and choose soon.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A relationship progresses more slowly than you would prefer. Best advice: Insist on a frank and open discussion. What is learned could change minds and, maybe, hearts.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's all right to be grateful to a workplace colleague who has done you a good turn. But gratitude shouldn't be a life-long obligation. The time to break this cycle is now.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's going to be especially nice to be the King of the Zodiac at this time. A recent money squeeze eases. Plans start to work out, and new friends enter Your Majesty's domain.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Before you make a commitment on any level (personal, professional, legal), get all the facts. There might be hidden problems that could cause trouble later on.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Personal relationships improve. Professional prospects also brighten. A job offer could come through by month's end. An old friend seeks to make contact.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your senses detect that something is not quite right about a matter involving a workplace colleague. Best advice: Follow your keen instincts and don't get involved.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A prospect offers rewards, but it also demands that you assume a great deal of responsibility. Knowing you, you're up to the challenge, so go for it, and good luck.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A favor you did a long time ago is repaid, as a trusted colleague steps in to help you with a suddenly expanded workload. A family member has important news.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new job offer could require moving across the country. But before you let your doubts determine your decision, learn more about the potentials involved.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your sense of fair play doesn't allow you to rush to judgment about a friend who might have betrayed you. Good! Because all the facts are not yet in.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a romantic nature that allows you to find the best in people. You would excel at poetry and drama.

In Loving Memory of DENIS P. CRONIN on his Birthday

May 5, 1928 - October 14, 2004

You can only have one father,
Patient, kind and true;
No other friend in all the world,
Will be the same to you.
When other friends forsake you,
To father you will return,
For all his loving kindness,
He asks nothing in return.
As we look upon his picture,
Sweet memories we recall
Of a face so full of sunshine,
And a smile for one and all.
Sweet Jesus take this message,
To our dear father up above;
Tell him how we miss him,
And give him all our love.

"Ar dheis De go raibh a anam"
May his soul be on God's right hand side.

Lovingly remembered and Sadly Missed by: Margaret, Jerry, Jack, Dan, Denise, Eileen, Peggy, Denis, Mike, his 17 grandchildren and many friends.

In Connection With Illegally Selling Their SNAP Benefits

Six Individuals Charged In State EBT-Fraud Investigation

Six additional individuals were recently arrested or arraigned in connection with the fraudulent use of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), known commonly as "food stamps," Attorney General Martha Coakley's Office announced.

On April 19, a total of 21 individuals were charged in connection with illegally selling their SNAP benefits at certain Massachusetts locations. Among the 21, 6 arrest warrants and 15 summonses were issued.

All six individuals facing warrants have been taken into custody, arrested or arraigned in connection with this case.

Each defendant is charged with one count of Larceny over $250 and one count of Procurement Fraud. The 15 individuals summonsed to court are expected to be arraigned at a later date.

The individuals taken into custody to date are:

Benjamin Ruiz, age 34, of South Boston:

Charged with Larceny over $250 and Procurement Fraud. He was arrested May 9 and was set to be arraigned in Boston Municipal Court at a later date.

Jason Little, 31, of Weymouth:

Charged with Larceny over $250 and Procurement

Fraud. He was arrested on May 8 and arraigned May 10 in Boston Municipal Court. At arraignment he pleaded not guilty and was released on personal recognizance with the condition that he report to probation officers at the Boston Municipal Court once a week. He is due back in court on July 11 for a pre-trial conference.

Stephen Byrnes, 24, of Quincy:

Charged with Larceny over $250 and Procurement Fraud. He was arrested on May 5 and will be arraigned in Boston Municipal Court at a later date.

Audrey Amaro, age 34, of Waltham:

Charged with Larceny over $250 and Procurement Fraud. She was arrested on May 8, and arraigned in Boston Municipal Court May 9. At arraignment she pleaded not guilty and was released on personal recognizance. She is due back in court on June 6 for a pre-trial conference.

Kenneth Babij, age 21, Quincy:

Charged with Larceny over $250 and Procurement Fraud. He surrendered to police and was arraigned in Boston Municipal Court yesterday. At arraignment he pleaded not guilty and was released on personal recognizance.

Steven Rigby, age 31, of Milford:

Charged with Larceny over $250 and Procurement Fraud. He was arrested on April 23 and arraigned at Boston Municipal Court on the same date. He is due back in court on June 1 for a pre-trial conference.

The AG's office has conducted investigations into the fraudulent use of EBT SNAP cards at certain Massachusetts locations and the investigation remains ongoing. The AG's office alleges these defendants knowingly accepted cash in lieu of groceries, defrauding the food stamp program. The SNAP program does not allow cash to be exchanged in lieu of benefits.

This case began with a referral from the Quincy Police Department which led to an investigation into the fraudulent use of EBT SNAP cards at Lotto Luck (D/B/A Pat Mini Mart) in Quincy. As a result of that investigation, Pat Lu, age 48, of Quincy, the owner of Pat Mini Mart, was charged with Larceny by Continuous Scheme, Procurement Fraud, and Access Device Fraud.

Lu was arraigned in Quincy District Court on April 19, where he pleaded not guilty and was held on $100,000 bail. Lu is due back in court May 14 for a pretrial hearing.

The case is being prosecuted by Assistant Attorney General Michael Pine of AG Coakley's Public Integrity Division, and Gabe Thornton from AG Coakley's Insurance and Unemployment Fraud Division, with assistance from Financial Investigator Brian Bukuras, also of the AG's Office. The ongoing investigation is being handled by Massachusetts State Police assigned to the Attorney General's Office.

Investigators from the Quincy Police Department, Department of Transitional Assistance (DTA), and the U.S. Department of Agriculture - Office of Inspector General assisted in the investigation.

Arbella Donates $114,000

To Walk for Hunger

For the fifth year in a row, the Arbella Insurance Foundation served as a major corporate sponsor for Project Bread's annual Walk for Hunger May 6.

A record number of "Team Arbella" walkers, including 492 employees, family members and friends, turned out for the annual hunger relief and prevention walk, which covers 20 miles through the streets of Boston, Brookline and Newton.

"Team Arbella" raised $64,000 for the cause, making the company the Walk's top corporate organization. Combined with the Arbella Insurance Foundation's $50,000 sponsorship, the company's overall donation totaled $114,000. This year the Tim Thomas Foundation, led by Arbella spokesman, Boston Bruins goalie and hunger-relief advocate Tim Thomas, generously matched up to $5,000 for employee donations to Project Bread and the Walk for Hunger.

Earlier this spring, Arbella hosted its annual Walk for Hunger kick-off event to encourage employee participation. This year's celebration included special guest Tim Thomas, who is personally committed to the issue of hunger relief. After announcing his Foundation's generous matching funds, and holding a raffle for Bruins tickets, many Arbella employees signed up for the walk, leading to the record number of participants.

Employees from Arbella's Boston, Bridgewater, Randolph, Quincy, Springfield, Wakefield and Connecticut offices participated in the Walk for Hunger.

Quincy Catholic Academy Coin Drive Raises $1,500 For Cystic Fibrosis

Quincy Catholic Academy (QCA) in Quincy recently sponsored a coin drive to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, raising $1,500.

Students were asked to donate pennies, quarters, dimes, and nickels.

"May is Cystic Fibrosis Awareness month," said QCA Principal Cathy Cameron. "With many thanks to our Grade 1 Teacher Mrs. Jill DiTomaso who coordinated this effort and to the generosity of our families, we are proud to help spread awareness of cystic fibrosis and raise funds toward this cause."

Mrs. DiTomaso and her family are participating in the Great Strides Walk on Sunday, May 20 that will benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Cystic Fibrosis is an inherited, life-threatening genetic disease that affects the lungs and digestive system. It affects about 30,000 children and adults in the United States (70,000 worldwide).

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is the world's leader in the search for a cure for cystic fibrosis. The Foundation funds more CF research than any other organization, and nearly every CF drug available today was made possible because of Foundation support. Based in Bethesda, Maryland, the Foundation also supports and accredits a national care network that has been recognized by the National Institutes of Health as a model of care for a chronic disease. The CF Foundation is a donor-supported nonprofit organization.

The Quincy Sun

A Special Supplement

Thursday, May 17, 2012

City of Quincy, Massachusetts Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy!

We cherish our history in this great City, and it is once again my distinct pleasure to introduce The Quincy's Sun's special "Historic Quincy" supplement celebrating the great heritage and proud history of our City of Presidents.

Inside the pages of "Historic Quincy," you will find a helpful guide to Quincy's rich past – The Adams National Historic Park and presidential homestead; the First Parish Church, home to the crypts of John, John Quincy, Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams, the Hancock Cemetery; the Adams Academy and the Quincy Historical Society; our granite and shipbuilding history and so much more.

The pride we share in our unmatched history is proven regularly by the investments this community makes to preserve and enhance that heritage. This summer, we are celebrating the completion of a major renovation to the First Parish Church bell tower and clock.

This joint effort between the City of Quincy and the Church will see the bell atop the Church ring regularly for the first time in more than 30 years. The Church, which sits atop the presidential crypt, is perhaps the most well-known symbol of Quincy's heritage, and I am incredibly proud of this majestic restoration and grateful to the many people who worked hard to make it happen.

I hope you will take the time to visit the Church this summer, and I encourage you to discover all that Quincy has to offer, from our 27 miles of coastline to our award-winning restaurants and of course, to our history.

First Father And Son Presidents Birthplaces Of John And John Quincy Adams

They could be called two of the oldest houses in America, although no one knows exactly when they were built and they have been restored and patched so many times in the past 300 or so years that it's doubtful how much of the original material remains.

When the cottage at 133 Franklin St. was restored by the Daughters of the Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1661 was discovered under the southeast corner and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the one at 141 Franklin St. as early as 1663 when it was little more than a one room shack with a fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

Together, the modest buildings are the birthplaces of John Adams, the Second President of the United States, and John Quincy Adams, his son, the Sixth President of the United States.

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and shoemaker, and his wife, Susanna, 26, residents of what is now 133 Franklin St.

THE ADAMS BIRTHPLACES, where John Adams and his son, John Quincy Adams, the Second and Sixth Presidents of the United States, were born, is the only location in the country where two Presidential birthplaces stand side-by-side. It is a National Historical Site under the supervision of the U.S. National Park Service.

He was a pillar of his rural community, a deacon in First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia, a town constable and hard-working farmer who worked in leather in the wintertime and was acknowledged as the maker of the best cider in town.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabiel Boylston, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735 (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door, now 141 Franklin St., along with its 9 1/2 acres of farmland from the Billings brothers, for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great-grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the Sixth President of the United States.

Until George W. Bush was sworn in as the 43rd president in 2001, John and John Quincy Adams were the only father and son combination to achieve that office. George H. W. Bush was the 41st. The Harrisons, William Henry and Benjamin, were grandfather and grandson.

According to Henry Adams, grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U. S. National Park Service on May 1, 1979.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill but research launched by the National Park Service turned up the fact that Abigail wanted them "stone" and white in color and what Abigail wanted Abigail got.

In the summer of 1980, during a six year $175,000 reconstruction project, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white, mixed especially from a late 18th century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white, but later research indicated it was unpainted.

The houses are furnished with precise reproductions of those that were in the them when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historical Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution on which the U. S. Constitution was modeled.

'The Old House' at Peace field Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith, "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two Presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams National Historical Site at Peace Field.

The Old House at Peace field, 135 Adams St. is open from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour is at the Old House at Peace field is 4:05 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults and youth 16 and over, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days. Tours must be arranged at the Visitors Center, 1250 Hancock St. The last full tour of the park leaves the Visitors Center at 3:15 p.m. Tours are on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Hancock Cemetery

Where Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Rest

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there.

So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Colonel John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-Workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

HANCOCK CEMETERY

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

Among the belongings found in the Elm. St. lodgings were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and downtrodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends.

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternity.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later, in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock Street in Quincy Square, next to City Hall (1305 Hancock St.), is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

We live next door, but you'll always find us behind you.

John And Abigail: A Unique Historic Team

The note from the young housewife, struggling to survive with her four children on the farm in the North Precinct of Braintree (now Quincy), to her husband participating in momentous events so far away, was both playful and serious.

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make," she wrote, "I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favourable to them than your ancestors."

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

"If particular care and attention is not paid to the ladies, we are determined to foment a rebellion, and will not hold ourselves bound by any laws in which we have no voice, no representation."

The husband, of course, could not fulfill his wife's desires for it was the nature of the times that the woman was destined to be subordinate to the man. Nor did his feisty wife foment any rebellion.

But, on a personal level, the husband and his young wife were to be caught up as equal partners in one of history's most significant turning points — the American Revolution and the founding of the first great and lasting republic.

They seemed to be mismatched at first, the lady and her would-be tyrant.

Abigail Smith, known to friends as "Nabby," the unschooled but well-read minister's daughter from nearby Weymouth, granddaughter of Col. John Quincy, selectman, speaker of the Massachusetts House and commander of the local militia.

John Adams, the son of a Braintree farmer and shoemaker, grandson of the affluent Boylston family of Boston, Harvard-educated, sometime school teacher and a rising attorney at law.

Yet together they formed a team, each supplying something lacking in the other, a union that propelled John into the role of second president of the United States and produced a son, John Quincy Adams, who became the sixth.

The couple came together, John once said, "like magnet and steel."

They married in 1764 when Abigail was 19 and John was ten years older and just beginning to earn a reputation as a colonial malcontent by arguing against taxation without representation in court before the royal governor.

Later, John, who placed justice above expediency, disappointed the firebrands among them, including his cousin, Samuel Adams, by defending in court Capt. Thomas Preston and the British soldiers charged in what came to be known as the Boston Massacre. All but two of them were acquitted.

John was called to Philadelphia in 1774 as a Massachusetts delegate to the First Continental Congress and Abigail and her four children, Susannah, John Quincy, Thomas and Charles, were left to run the 100-acre farm at the foot of Penn's Hill. It turned out to be a long job.

For most of the Revolutionary War, John was in Philadelphia helping to found a new nation — it was he who recommended George Washington as commander-in-chief and Jefferson to write the Declaration of Independence — or in France and Holland, seeking loans and recognition from foreign governments.

Once, during a prolonged absence in the darkest days of the fighting, the long-suffering Abigail wrote to her husband:

"Difficult as the day is, cruel as this war has been, separated as I am, on account of it, from my dearest connection in life, I would not exchange my country for the wealth of the Indies, or be any other than an American."

At one point in their marriage, after the war was won and John was in Paris seeking to cement relations between the fledgling United States and French court of Louis XVI, he sent for Abigail and she made the exhausting Trans-Atlantic trip to meet her husband.

They hadn't seen each other in five years.

Even when he was home briefly on the farm, John had things to do and people to see that took him away from Abigail's side. He joined with his cousin Samuel and James Bowdoin in 1779 to write the Massachusetts constitution, a model for the American document, in his home in Braintree. Then it was off again to Europe.

John returned home, for good, he thought, in 1788 after serving a term as the first American ambassador to Great Britain only to find that his country still had need for his talents. He was chosen as the new nation's first vice president, a poor choice on his part.

"My own situation is almost the only one in the world today in which firmness and patience are useless," he poured out his restlessness to Abigail. "(It is) the most insignificant office that ever the invention of man contrived or his imagination conceived."

When the first president, George Washington, decided two terms were enough, John was elected the second president by three electoral votes over Jefferson, who became vice president of a country that was dividing into two political parties, Federalist and Democratic-Republican.

John and Abigail were the first presidential couple to live in the yet unfinished White House, which was known then as the Presidential Palace, and Abigail won a special spot in White House folklore by hanging her laundry in the East Room, where warmth gave it a better chance of drying.

The Adams administration was marked by the threat of war with France, whose bloody revolution had helped divide the nation into pro-French Democratic-Republicans and pro-British Federalists, and passage of the unfortunate Alien and Sedition Acts, drastically curtailing free speech and immigration.

Jefferson, the Democratic-Republican, defeated Adams, the Federalist, the second time around in 1800, and the political rivalry between the two Founding Fathers was so bitter that John refused to stay in Washington for Jefferson's inaugural.

Finally, John's service to his country came to an end and he and Abigail were able to return to a new and larger home, which they named "Peacefield," in the North Precinct, which had now broken away from Braintree to become the town of Quincy (population 1,081), named for Abigail's grandfather.

When Jefferson left the presidency after two terms, Abigail assumed the role of peacemaker between the two old friends and, thanks to her efforts, the two former presidents were reconciled in their later years.

Abigail died of a stroke in 1818 after 54 years marriage and it was as if John himself had departed with her.

"The bitterness of death is past," he wrote. "The grim spoiler so terrible to human nature has no sting left for me."

Both John and Thomas Jefferson, his fellow Founding Father and rival, died on July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson a few hours before Adams.

John and Abigail, along with their son, John Quincy, and his wife, Louisa Catherine, are entombed in the crypt of United First Parish Church.

The story of Abigail and John was recounted by HBO television in a seven-part mini-series in the spring of 2008. The mini-series, based on the book John Adams by David McCullough, starred Paul Giamatti (John Adams) and Laura Linney (Abigail). It won 13 Emmys and 4 Golden Globes.

Designed By Henry Hobson Richardson Thomas Crane Library Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite-cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy heard of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial — preferably a library — to his father.

"My father always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy," was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English scientist Dr. Joseph Priestly and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I cannot guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees.

It was Adams who gave the library its name. Albert Crane wanted it to be "The Quincy Free Public Library." Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

"You are, but you wouldn't have if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism — "Food will win the war," they said — the area was planted with potatoes, tended by an expert brought in from Maine. The experiment failed.

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1938.

A new $18 million addition that almost doubled the size of the existing library was completed in the spring of 2001 with money from the Crane endowment used to purchase the property and the rest paid for with a city bond issue.

The new wing was dedicated in 2005 as the Mayor James A. Sheets Building.

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day, for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Streets., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body—25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 from 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar school" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Everett, an amiable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett, who signaled the passing of Adams Academy—and many other 19th Century classical prep schools—at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did. On June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

UNITED FIRST PARISH CHURCH, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center, was built of granite donated by John Adams. It was designed by Alexander Parrish and completed in 1828.

United First Parish

Only Church Where Two Presidents Entombed

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chapel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56—which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate—and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of his benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington, D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards, who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.—the first Quincy—was named in 1792."

Colonel Quincy was the great grandfather of sixth President John Quincy Adams.

Apparently, all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-see."

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it.

Seems like a sound argument.

FLAGS AND WREATHS adorn the last resting place of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and their wives, Abigail and Louisa, in the crypt of United First Parish Church. It's the only church in the United States where two presidents are buried side by side with their wives.

John Quincy Adams: 6th President And A Lot More

When he was 14 years old, John Quincy Adams was dispatched to St. Petersburg, Russia, to translate the official French spoken at the court of Czarina Catherine the Great for the American ambassador, Francis Dana.

In a way, the eldest son of John Adams was already a veteran diplomat, having served two tours of France and Holland with his father and Benjamin Franklin as they sought European aid for the American colonies in rebellion.

The Revolution was won by the time he returned home to old Braintree and the fractured education he received in France, Holland, Russia and England allowed him to enter Harvard as a junior and graduate in 18 months.

He was named minister to the Netherlands by President George Washington in 1794, beginning a long career in public service that carried him through the presidency in 1825-29 to his death on the floor of Congress in 1848.

Like his father before him, John Quincy Adams was defeated for a second term as president, each having the misfortune to represent the Old Guard at a time when American democracy was embracing the new.

One of John Adams' first moves as president was to name his son to the more important post as minister to Prussia amid cries of nepotism that embarrassed the 30-year-old John Quincy dreadfully but he took the post anyway.

And he took a bride, too, Louisa

Catherine Johnson, the vivacious and highly educated daughter of an American father and an English mother, his second choice, after his mother, Abigail, had torpedoed his first love, Mary Frazier of Newburyport.

His father fired him as minister to Prussia to spare him another embarrassment of being fired by his successor, Thomas Jefferson, and John Quincy was able to return home to a new town named for his great grandfather.

He ran for and won a seat in the state legislature as a Federalist, his father's old party, but he showed such a strong streak of independence that his fellow Federalists urged him to stand for the US Senate to be rid of him.

Since it was the legislators themselves who voted for senators in those days, John Quincy was elected and promptly alienated both Federalists and Democrat-Republicans by speaking up for the Louisiana Purchase and voting against creation of the Louisiana Territory.

He finally emerged as a Democrat-Republican in 1808 after the British frigate Leopard attacked the American frigate Chesapeake in search of what the Brits thought were deserters from his majesty's navy and the Federalists sought to appease them.

Federalists were outraged and even John and Abigail, living in retirement in Peace Field, their estate in Quincy, found the words to chastise their son, who responded, "I could wish to please my parents — but my duty must do."

Rather than face dismissal by his home state, John Quincy resigned his Senate seat but the ink was hardly dry before President James Madison nominated him to be minister to Russia and he liked it so well that he turned down a Supreme Court appointment to keep it.

In fact, he and Tsar Alexander I, the one who halted Napoleon's march on Moscow, hit it off so well that the Russian ruler offered to be godfather to John Quincy's first daughter, Louisa Catherine, but the offer was refused.

Always available, Adams the ultimate negotiator was next called on to chair the American delegation to Ghent in Belgium where the final peace treaty with Britain was drawn up ending the War of 1812, what some call the second American Revolution.

A new president, James Monroe, meant a new job for John Quincy, who was named secretary of state in 1817 at a time when their colonies in Latin America were declaring independence from Spain and Portugal.

When President Monroe delivered to Congress on Dec. 2, 1823, the message that those Latin colonies can no longer "be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European Power" he was speaking Adams' words and it became the Monroe Doctrine.

The Americans' ace negotiator also worked out the so-called Adams-Onís Treaty, under which Gen. Andrew Jackson's attacks on the Seminole Indians in Spanish Florida were justified and the whole peninsula ceded to the United States in exchange for a settlement of the boundary between Mexico and the Louisiana Purchase.

Five strong candidates — all Democrat-Republicans — emerged for the 1824 presidential race.

There was Henry Clay, speaker of the House; William Crawford, the secretary

The Wife Of John Quincy Adams Only First Lady Born On Foreign Soil

Louisa Catherine Adams' Adventures As 'A Nobody'

When she was 65 years old and a member of the famous and not always sensitive Adams family for 43 years, Louisa Catherine Adams penned a brief, unpublished memoir.

She called it "Adventures of a Nobody."

Louisa Catherine, the wife of John Quincy Adams and the only first lady born outside what became the United States, never quite fit in with her in-laws until late in life when Abigail finally acknowledged she was worthy to be an Adams wife and John grew to enjoy her letters and his conversations with her.

She was born Louisa Catherine Johnson on Feb. 12, 1775 in London to Joshua Johnson, an American merchant from Maryland, and his wife, Catherine, an Englishwoman. The family fled to Nantes, France, when the American Revolution made life untenable for Johnson in England.

In Nantes, Louisa attended a convent school run by nuns and thought of herself as Catholic and French in culture. She spoke French fluently and had to learn English all over when the family returned to London after the war in the colonies ended. Becoming an Anglican confused her so much that she fainted in her first visit to the altar.

Louisa first met her future husband in Nantes when she was 4 and he was 12. They met again at a party in the Johnson home in London and this time John Quincy was old enough to take notice of her literary, musical and conversational skills. They became engaged, much to the consternation of John Quincy's folks back home.

John the elder, now the president, was concerned that his son was about to marry "a foreigner," and Abigail felt called in to remind her son that the choices he made now might interfere with his political future. She even sent letters to Louisa pointing out the importance of economy and lack of frivolity required of an Adams wife.

Nevertheless, John Quincy and his Louisa were married July 26, 1797, in London. The ceremony called for little more than a paragraph in John Quincy's voluminous diary.

"At nine this morning, I went, accompanied by my brother, to Mr. Johnson's, and thence to the church of the parish of All Hallows Barking where I was married to Louisa Catherine Johnson, second daughter of Joshua Johnson and Catherine Johnson, by Mr. Hewlett.

"We were married before eleven in the morning."

They barely had time to set up house-keeping in London before John Quincy was off to the continent as minister to Prussia. Louisa was in her element in Europe. She made friends with the Prussian royal family. But she miscarried their first child and was subject to fainting spells and fevers. Her husband, engrossed in diplomacy, ignored her needs.

She came to the United States for the first time in 1801, landing in Quincy, the very heart of Adams country. John, now an ex-president, found that he rather liked her but Abigail still doubted her qualifications to be an Adams wife.

LOUISA CATHERINE ADAMS

"To a woman like Mrs. Adams, equal to every occasion in life, I appeared like a maudlin, hysterical fine lady," wrote Louisa.

A year later, John Quincy was elected to the U.S. Senate as a Federalist and the family was on the move again, this time to Washington. Out from under Abigail's thumb, Louisa blossomed, turning her home into a social salon for politicians and diplomats. But all that ended when her husband broke with the Federalist party and resigned his Senate seat.

John Quincy was immediately offered the post of minister to Russia by President James Madison and, without consulting his wife, he accepted. The family included three children by now and it was decided by John Quincy and Abigail that the oldest, George and John II, would remain in the States for their education while the youngest, year-old Charles Francis, would go to St. Petersburg with his mother.

She found the winters in the Russian royal capital cold and dark but there was social life and she became a favorite dance partner of Tsar Alexander I.

A daughter was born in St. Petersburg but died before her first birthday. In all, Louisa was pregnant 14 times with nine miscarriages and one still born. Her oldest, George, drowned at 28 when he fell or jumped from a boat in New York Harbor; John II died of alcoholism at 31; only Charles Francis survived to become a diplomat and author.

For once, John Quincy heeded his wife and asked to come home. Instead, President Madison assigned him to Ghent, Belgium, to help negotiate the treaty ending the War of 1812. When his duty to his country was concluded, he sent for Louisa to join him in Paris, touching off one of the great adventures of her life, even impressing her mother-in-law, Abigail.

For 40 days and nights in the dead of the fierce Russian winter she and Charles Francis, age 7, accompanied by a small escort, were driven by a carriage on a sled, thawing their frozen food over candles, crossing frozen rivers on quaking ice, hurrying past old battle fields still littered with dead soldiers. It was in relief that they arrived in friendly Berlin. But there were still perils ahead.

Napoleon had escaped from exile on the isle of Elba and was in Paris collecting his Grande Armee to confront the Duke of Wellington and the Prussian General von Blucher at Waterloo. There were French troops everywhere. A group of them spotted Louisa's obviously Russian carriage and surrounded her, shouting: "Kill her! Kill her!"

Louisa's escort convinced them she was Napoleon's sister. She addressed them in fluent French and they allowed her to proceed, cheering her as she went.

John Quincy was next assigned as minister to London and Louisa spent two happy years in her old hometown. Better yet, her oldest boys, George and John II, were permitted to join her. She hadn't seen them in more than six years. Neither parent recognized their sons, now 14 and 12 respectively.

The peripatetic Adams clan was on the move again when President James Monroe named John Quincy his secretary of state. Back in the states, Abigail greeted her daughter-in-law with new respect. Louisa enjoyed life in Washington, too, turning her home into a social center for diplomats and others with an open house every Tuesday night.

When it was apparent that her husband would be a candidate for the presidency in 1824, Louisa threw a ball honoring Andrew Jackson on the 10th anniversary of his victory over the British at New Orleans. She tried and failed to get the popular Jackson to support John Quincy. Instead, the war hero ran against him.

Jackson actually won the election with 99 electoral votes to 84 for Adams, 41 for William Crawford of Georgia and 37 for Henry Clay of Kentucky. But he failed to get a majority, throwing the election into the House of Representatives. After some wheeling and dealing, Clay threw his support to Adams and John Quincy became president. Clay became his secretary of state.

Louisa was depressed by the bitterness of the election and disappointed in her husband's backroom maneuvers to win election. Son George fathered an illegitimate child by a chambermaid. Son John II was thrown out of Harvard. Son Charles became "addicted to depraved habits." She spent much of her White House years in seclusion, eating chocolates and writing poetry.

But when John Quincy asked Congress to appropriate funds for a billiard table in the White House and pro-Jackson newspapers suggested it was for Louisa because "gambling furniture is common in the castles of the European rich and great," it was Louisa herself who answered back in the pro-Adams press.

She was relieved when John Quincy's single term ended in defeat by his old nemesis Jackson and they could retire to a quiet life in Quincy. But it was not to be. It took a year for her husband to catch his breath, then once again duty called and he ran and was elected to the House of Representatives, first as a candidate of the National Republican Party and then as a Whig.

John Quincy's great cause was anti-slavery and Louisa worked closely with her husband for the cause, even branching out to women's rights, equating the status of American women with that of American slaves and keeping up a lively correspondence with advocates of women's rights.

John Quincy served in the House for 17 years before he was stricken on the floor of Congress and died Feb. 23, 1848. Louisa remained in Washington, suffering a stroke a year later. She died May 15, 1852 at the age of 77 and was buried along side of John Quincy, John and Abigail in the United First Parish Church in Quincy.

Congress adjourned in mourning, a first time tribute for the First Lady who thought of herself as a nobody.

First To Sign Declaration Of Independence

John Hancock's Bold Signature Symbol For Liberty

He was the least likely of all the Founding Fathers to revolt against the status quo of the late 18th century, the last man expected to affix a bold signature to a declaration of independence that has become a symbol for defiance to totalitarian rule everywhere.

His folks were certain he would be a minister, following in the footsteps of his grandfather, who was called "the Bishop of Lexington," and his father, the gentle minister of the First Parish Church in the North Precinct of Braintree (now Quincy.)

When Patrick Henry's call for "liberty or death" went out, he was said to be the wealthiest man in the wealthiest town (Boston) in the 13 colonies, a man who owned a Beacon Hill crowned by his mansion, whose merchant ships plied the seas, whose warehouses bulged with the world's treasures.

John Hancock was born in Quincy on Jan. 12, 1737, on the site of what became the Adams Academy, now the headquarters of the Quincy Historical Society, little more than a stone's throw from the church served by his father, the Rev. John Hancock.

When he was 7, his father died, leaving his mother, Mary, with three children under 10 to raise, a formidable task in those days. Fortunately, his uncle, Thomas Hancock, the Merchant King of Boston, childless and yearning for a son, adopted John as his own and his future was secure.

When Thomas died in 1764, young John Hancock, then 27, became head of the House of Hancock, a colonial conglomerate of real estate, shipping, warehousing, banking and anything else that could be converted into cash to fill the Hancock coffers.

John was living the good life of a merchant prince when taxes imposed by a far away parliament began cutting into his profits, the Hancock sloop Liberty was seized when most of its cargo of wine from Madeira slipped in untaxed and Hancock was accused of smuggling.

With the aid of his attorney, John Adams, Hancock was able to beat the smuggling rap but the court ordered Liberty forfeited and a short time later her former owner emerged as a member of the Sons of Liberty.

A newspaper of the time, The Massachusetts Spy, in its report of the Boston Tea Party, suggested that John Hancock "was the first man that went aboard the vessel to destroy the tea," but the claim is doubtful and the men who, disguised as Indians, threw the tea into the sea have never been identified.

By 1775, Hancock was so deeply involved in the spirit of revolution that the British attempted to arrest him and Samuel Adams in Lexington and confiscate the rebel arms and munitions in Concord erupted into the first battles of the American Revolution at Lexington green and Concord bridge.

He was chosen one of five delegates from Massachusetts to the first Continental Congress in Philadelphia but he preferred to stay behind in Boston to lead the local patriots and, not incidentally, mend his political fences while his rivals were away.

He did attend the second Continental Congress, however, and with the support of George Washington himself, he was chosen its president, a role he filled when he signed the Declaration of Independence first in script so large that King George "can read my name without his spectacles."

Since he was president of the Continental Congress when the Declaration was signed and that created the United States and there was no other president at the time, some say Hancock can be referred to as the first president of the United States.

In his one display of military prowess, Major General John Hancock and his Massachusetts Militiamen, 3,000 strong, suffered a humiliating defeat in their attempt to capture Newport, R. I., from the British and Hancock went back to doing what he did best.

Hancock's Father A Rebel Leader

The Rev. John Hancock, father of the future first signer of the Declaration of Independence, was a rebel leader in his own right.

He was the minister of the Congregational Church in Cambridge's North Precinct in 1713 at a time when church and state were one in the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

The Rev. Hancock was in the forefront when the North Precinct successfully revolted against the taxes levied by Cambridge town, 10 miles away.

The North Precinct eventually became the town of Lexington and the good reverend ruled his little community with such an iron hand that he became known as "the Bishop of Lexington."

And he was at his best in January, 1788, as president of the Massachusetts state convention called to ratify the U. S. Constitution, a process that was stalled in several states for want of adequate protections for the individuals, which the Revolution was all about.

Hancock, suffering from the gout and carried into the hall by servants, proposed and guided to a 187 to 168 victory a series of nine "conciliatory amendments" which later evolved into the Bill of Rights and assured ratification of the Constitution by all.

Hancock was elected the first governor of Massachusetts in 1780 but he resigned five years later. He was elected again in 1787 and was still in office when he died in 1793 at the age of 57, the end of his line.

Unlike the Adams and Quincy clans, he left no direct descendants. His marriage to Dorothy Quincy, produced two children, a daughter, Lydia, who died in her first year, and a son, John George Washington Hancock, who was killed in a skating accident when he was 9.

He had spent most of his fortune financing the Revolution.

City Hall

Seat Of Government For 168 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House and for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 168 years, the nerve center of government for the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a President of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard — who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months — the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a three and a half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

Josiah Quincy House

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great-uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct. 10, 1775, General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquillia" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex-President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family — Col. John Quincy, the great-grandfather of John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States.

The house, which was painted yellow for many years, recently underwent a conversion to beige to more accurately reflect how it looked in the 1880s when another Eliza Susan Quincy, a historian, began to

Hancock's Other Declaration: 'I Love You And You Alone'

Dorothy Quincy Homestead

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with the blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You Alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

It is for those reasons, and its combined Colonial, Georgian and Victorian style, that the old house was elevated in 2005 to the status of a National Historic Landmark possessing "national significance in commemorating the history of the United States."

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line, two nephews).

The house was the social center of old Braintree during the regime of the fourth Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy Homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British regulars on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later vice president of the United States and slayer of Alexander Hamilton in a duel) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it to the state with the proviso that the Dames continue to run it.

The Homestead is recognized as a National Historic Landmark.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead, corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road, will be open for tours of the house and gardens to the public Saturday, June 2, July 7, Aug. 4 and Sept. 1 from 1 to 5 p.m. and June 23 and Sept. 15 from 1 to 4 p.m. Tours start on the hour and half hour and special arrangements may be made for group tours. City Named For Him But: Col. John Quincy Something Of A Mystery Man Few men have served the public good longer or as well as Col. John Quincy.

He was Speaker of the Massachusetts House, a governor's councilor, a selectman and perennial moderator of the town meeting in Old Braintree, commander of the local militia regiment and guardian of the rights of the few Ponkapoag Indians who survived the plague.

And through his granddaughter, Abigail Adams, nee Smith, he was the grandfather-in-law of the second president of the United States and the great grandfather of the sixth.

Small wonder then, that when the North Precinct broke away from Old Braintree in 1792 they named the new town "Quincy."

Col. John Quincy is something of a mystery man, even in the city that bears his name. It is not known for sure when he came to Old Braintree. Nor is there a picture of him extant or even a physical description of him in the words that have been left to us by his contemporaries.

During celebration in Quincy in 1908, the main speaker, the Rev. Daniel Munro Wilson, noted that "in his day, he was one of the most trusted and influential public characters of the province; but for a hundred years or more, he has now been buried in oblivion."

"For example, I once mentioned John Quincy to a lifelong resident, a man of affairs and influence in the town. The response was: 'John Quincy? John Quincy? I never heard of him before!' Another in the group then exclaimed 'You mean John Quincy Adams, don't you?'"

John Quincy was born in Boston. His father, Daniel, died when he was a year old and his widowed mother, Anna, married the Rev. Moses Fiske, minister of the First Parish Church in Braintree.

He graduated from Harvard in 1708, obtained a master's degree in 1711 and inherited, through his mother, a good-sized farm in Mount Wollaston and lived there for the rest of his life.

John Quincy's rise in public life was meteoric.

He married Elizabeth Norton, the daughter of a Hingham minister, in 1715 and was named justice of the peace the same year, moderator of the town meeting a year later and began 22 years of service in the House a year after. He was Speaker of the House for 12 years, starting in 1729.

In 1741, he was manipulated out of his posts as commander of the Suffolk militia regiment by a wealthy Boston lawyer named Joseph Gooch, who is described by some as an "opportunist," and by others as an "unsavory demagogue."

Gooch arrived in Old Braintree determined to launch a political career. Beer and cider, supplied by Gooch, flowed freely in the taverns. The strategy prevailed and Quincy was dismissed as militia commander.

JOHN QUINCY TANKARD is on display in the foyer of Quincy City Hall glass annex, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Colonel John Quincy, for whom the City of Quincy was named, was the grandfather of Abigail Adams and the great-grandfather of President John Quincy Adams. Quincy attorney and former City Council President George Burke paid $200,000 for the tankard at auction in 2001. It was the only piece in a collection of colonial silver put up for auction by United First Parish Church to remain in Quincy. Burke has provided in his will to gift the tankard to the city.

But his banishment was short-lived. Captains and lieutenants refused to serve under Gooch. They would serve only under Quincy. Demoralized, the people of Braintree turned Gooch out and returned command of their militia to Quincy.

Quincy's reputation was such that he was named by the legislature to be trustee of the funds of the Ponkapoag Indians, survivors of a devastating plague. He held the post for 20 years at the insistence of the Indians themselves.

Whenever there was a civic job to be done, it was the practice of the people of Old Braintree to appoint Col. John Quincy to do it. Thus it was that he was called on to chair the committee that first recommended the North Precinct become a separate town. That was in 1728.

It took 64 years but finally it was done, and when it was, they named it for John Quincy.

MONUMENT was placed on Col. John Quincy's grave in the Hancock Cemetery by the Quincy Historical Society in 1904. Plaque reads: "Here was buried Col. John Quincy of Mount Wollaston 1689-1767 from whom Quincy was named." His gravestone is at the lower right. (Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth)

Richmond served as the capital of the Confederate States during most of the Civil War. Welcome To Quincy, 'The City Of Presidents'

'THE GAZING BALL,' a shining sphere of Quincy granite and the centerpiece of Constitution Common outside City Hall, is a reminder that the famous Quincy stone was once one of the world's most cherished building materials. The Bunker Hill Monument is among the many structures built of it. For 69 years the ball was half-hidden in the shrubbery at the Fore River Rotary but was returned to its original site in 2007. Adjacent to the Gazing Ball is a bronze statue (right) of John Adams. The statue was commissioned by the Quincy Partnership and is the work of noted sculptor Lloyd Lillie. Located across the street from the Adams Statue is another bronze statue of Adams' wife, Abigail and their son, John Quincy (depicted as a 10-year-old boy) - photo below.

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far-off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year-old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children: Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth

President of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin Street) meets Viden Road atop Penn's Hill, a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public and free of charge.

John Adams 'Father'

Quincy, birthplace of John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock, also has claim to the birth of the U.S. Constitution.

The seed for this precious document was planted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in Adams' law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant: butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of death, privation and horror.

Like many Braintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, June 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three, John and Samuel Adams; and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams wound up in the law office of his home at the foot of Penn's Hill, paired with his firebrand cousin, Sam, and his ailing friend, James Bowdoin, to write a Constitution for Massachusetts.

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee—by the Committee upon the subcommittee—and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee—so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780:

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admission in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw."

USS Lexington Led Search For Amelia

When Amelia Earhart, once the part owner of Dennison Airport in North Quincy, vanished over the Pacific on the around-the-world flight in 1937, it was the Quincy-built carrier Lexington (the first) and its 90 planes that led the three-week search for her.

She has never been found.

First Competitive Aeromeet Here In 1910

Amelia Earhart, Harriet Quimby Pioneers

By SHARRON BEALS

Quincy plunged into the new and challenging world of aviation less than seven years after the Wright brothers proved, on a windy Carolina beach, that heavier-than-air craft could fly.

The site was a 500-acre tract of former farmland called "New Squantum," leased by the Harvard-Boston Aero Association and opened Aug. 8, 1910, as the Harvard Aviation Field.

Most of the great ones of the early days of flying showed up at Squantum at one time or another, including the Wright brothers themselves, Claude Graham-White, Richard E. Byrd and the First Ladies of the Air, Harriet Quimby and Amelia Earhart.

Quimby was the first American woman to qualify for a pilot's license in 1911 and the second in the world (Helene Dutrieu of France was the first) and the first woman to fly across the English Channel.

Earhart, who once had a financial interest in a private airport at Squantum, was the first woman to solo across the Atlantic and was trying to be the first around the world when she vanished over the Pacific in 1937.

The first competitive air show in the United States was organized by the Harvard Aero Society Sept. 3-10, 1910, and it drew 22 flyers and 17 aircraft as competitors and President William Howard Taft as one of 150,000 spectators.

Star of the meet was the Brit, Graham-White, who brought two airplanes, a Bleriot monoplane and a Farman biplane, and won $10,000 offered by the Boston Globe for a hazardous double round trip to Boston Light. He also sweetened the pot by taking passengers on short flights for $500 each.

The 1913 Harvard Meet was to have featured a competition between Quimby and Blanche Scott, the first American woman to fly a plane, for the honor of flying the first air mail flight to New York. Instead, it ended tragically.

Quimby, showing off her new two-seat Bleriot monoplane, took Meet Director William A.F. Willard for a flight around Boston Light. Returning, the plane suddenly nosed over and Quimby and Willard fell out, dropping to their deaths in Dorchester Bay 1,000 feet below.

Only then was it revealed that Quimby had already been chosen to fly the mail to New York for the first time.

The Navy took over the field in Squantum in 1917 and established the US Naval Training School, with Lt. (jg) Earl Spencer in command, to train young men in the fast developing art of flying airplanes.

Spencer and his wife, the former Wallis Warfield, the Belle of Baltimore, lived on Davis Street in Wollaston, where neighbors thought she was a bit stuck up and snobbish and nicknamed her "the Duchess."

Twenty years later, twice divorced, she gained a real title, the Duchness of Windsor, when she married the former King Edward VIII of England, who gave up his throne "for the woman I love."

Squantum's first reign as a training field didn't last long once the Navy discovered that the best use of the land was as a shipyard for the building of destroyers to break the German U-Boat blockade of the Atlantic during World War I.

It wasn't until 1923 that the Squantum Naval Reserve Station was established, commanded by Lt. Richard E. Byrd, with one old weather-beaten hangar and one ancient seaplane, held together, they said "by wire, curses and prayers."

Thus, Naval Reserve Aviation was born.

Later, as Admiral Byrd, the young lieutenant became renowned for his flights over the North and South Poles and the establishment of the Little America research station on the Antarctic continent.

Of the many officers who served at Squantum, none stand out more than Commander John J. Shea, executive officer from 1931 to 1940, when he went to war as air operations officer aboard the aircraft carrier Wasp.

Wasp was sunk Sept. 15, 1942, and Jack Shea was last seen "fighting the fire on the flight deck displaying great courage and devotion to duty, and disregarding the danger of exploding ammunition and debris filling the air and rapidly spreading the fire."

His last letter to his 5-year-old son, Jack Jr., written just before he was lost, became a classic in wartime literature, read in part:

"When you are a little bigger you will know why your daddy is not home so much anymore. You know we have a big country and we have ideals as to how people should live and enjoy the riches of it and how each is born with equal rights to life, freedom and the pursuit of happiness.

"Unfortunately, there are some countries in this world where they do not have these ideals, where a boy cannot grow up to be what he wants to be with no limit on his opportunities to be a great man such as a great priest, statesman, doctor, soldier, business man, etc.

"Because there are people in countries who want to change our nation, its ideals, its form of government and way of life we must leave our homes and families to fight. Fighting for the defense of our country, ideals, homes and honor is an honor and a duty which your daddy has to do before he can come home and settle down with you and mother.

"When it is done he is coming home to be with you always and forever. So wait just a little while longer. I'm afraid it will be more than the two weeks you told me on the phone.

"... Last of all don't ever forget your daddy. Pray for him to come back and if it is God's will that he does not, be the kind of a boy and man your daddy wants you to be."

Shea received the Navy Cross for his action aboard the dying Wasp. The field at Squantum NAS was named Shea Field. And his name is memorialized in the Quincy street called Commander Shea

AMELIA EARTHART

Boulevard.

Even while the Navy was training its reserve flyers, it leased a portion of its property to Quincy architect Harold T. Dennison to open a commercial airport in 1927 with Amelia Earhart as one of his five backers.

Quincy Stories, Images From The Civil War

By ED FITZGERALD
Quincy Historical Society

When we think of Quincy and the Revolutionary War, names and images immediately come to mind: John and Abigail Adams, John Hancock, Josiah Quincy, Jr., the Siege of Boston, and Abigail and the young John Quincy Adams viewing the smoke and fire of Bunker Hill from atop Penn's Hill.

When we think of Quincy and World War II, we again have an immediate cluster of images and ideas: Blue Star flags in every window, Fore River building great war ships at a prodigious rate, Winnie the Welders, and everyone pulling together to win the war.

When we think of Quincy and the Civil War, the images are less vivid, more fragmentary and the story, less clear. The 151st anniversary of the Civil War provides a once-in-a-generation opportunity to sharpen those images, amplify the story, and deepen our understanding.

Four individuals have received most attention in accounts of Quincy and the Civil War.

Charles Francis Adams, like his father and grandfather before him, served as United States Ambassador to Great Britain. In that position he had to counteract significant and powerful voices in England who wanted their country to recognize the Confederacy. He did this largely through patient, calm diplomacy. He was particularly good at calming British outrage at perceived insults by the United States, when Secretary of State Seward sent an intemperate message early in the war and when an American Navy ship seized two Confederate agents from on board a British mail steamer.

HANCOCK LIGHT GUARD - Quincy's militia - responded to President Abraham Lincoln's call for 90-day volunteers in the first days of the Civil War in 1861. The members of the Light Guard became part of the 4th Massachusetts Regiment.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

FRANCIS SOUTHER

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr.

PAUL JOSEPH REVERE

In a more active vein, Adams repeatedly urged the British government to prevent the delivery of the Laird Rams, two powerful warships being built for the Confederacy, under false identity, in Liverpool. The British appeared reluctant to intervene and Adams' language turned uncharacteristically sharp. But he succeeded: on September 5, 1863 the government refused permission for the ships to sail.

Adams' son, Charles Francis, Jr., served in the Union Army, entering as a Lieutenant in December, 1861. The younger Adams always insisted that he did nothing notable during the war. However, he was present at the Battles of Antietam and Gettysburg. And in the last year of the war, he commanded the 5th Massachusetts Cavalry, a regiment of African-American soldiers. The 5th Massachusetts was the first Union regiment to enter Richmond on April 3, 1865.

Francis Souther is the best known of Quincy's ordinary soldiers in the war. Souther was a member of the Hancock Light Guard, Quincy's militia. In the first days of the war, members of the Light Guard and numerous other Quincy men responded to President Lincoln's call for 90-day volunteers to put down the insurrection.

The members of the Light Guard became part of the 4th Massachusetts Regiment, which was sent to join other Union troops at Fort Monroe on the Virginia coast. On June 10, the Union troops made an ill-conceived advance on Confederate forces at nearby Big Bethel and were badly beaten. The Union lost 76 men killed or wounded. Souther was shot in the chest and died that night. He was the first Quincy man to die in the war and the first Massachusetts soldier in the war to die from wounds in battle.

Paul Joseph Revere, the grandson of the Revolutionary hero, was an adopted son of Quincy. Revere married Lucretia Lunt, daughter of Rev. William Parson Lunt, minister of Quincy's First Parish Church. An officer in the 20th Massachusetts Regiment, Revere was taken prisoner at the Battle of Ball's Bluff in October, 1861 and was sent to Libby Prison in Richmond. There he received assistance from Elizabeth Van Lew, a member of Richmond society who was a spy for the Union. Eventually exchanged, Revere returned to service. He was wounded at the Battle of Antietam and was fatally wounded at Gettysburg. After his death, his widow and children made their home in Quincy. The Quincy post of the Grand Army of the Republic—the Union veterans organization—was named in his honor.

There are, however, other stories to be told. These include the collective story of the town itself. Even if we accept Photo Courtesy Quincy Historical Society the highest count of 954 Quincy men having served in the Civil War, the total of deaths of Quincy men from all causes of 105 is a much higher percentage of fatalities than in any other conflict. Quincy's total population was no more than 7,000. It was still a town where the patrician Charles Francis Adams, Jr. knew Francis Souther. How must the townspeople have felt when news came from the second Battle of Bull Run that, for the first time in the war, there were significant Quincy casualties?

Quincy men died or were wounded in the terrible major battles of Grant's advance towards Richmond: the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Petersburg. But they also suffered in less well-remembered battles such as the Confederate counterattack on Galveston, Texas on New Year's, 1863. Throughout the war, numerous Quincy men returned to duty when they did not have to, suffered multiple wounds, reenlisted where there terms were up, and performed deeds of heroism.

Also important are the stories of the homefront and of the perceptions and the activities of Quincy's women in support of the war. There is also the tantalizing story of how, years after the war, the Revere family befriended the former Union spy Elizabeth Van Lew and how an American flag that Van Lew had kept all through the war wound up in Quincy.

At Quincy Historical Society we are working to learn and to tell as much as we can about Quincy in the Civil War. We've undertaken this project with the great collaboration of Quincy Public Schools' 8th-grade social studies teachers. We also have the good fortune to be the conservers of the rich collection of artifacts gathered by the Quincy G.A.R. veterans themselves. We seek to tell both the familiar and unfamiliar stories through a variety of means: through a major exhibit currently on display at the Historical Society's home, the Adams Academy; through programs; and through electronic and digital media. However, there is much more to be learned, and the subject of Quincy and the Civil War leads in many directions. This will be an unfolding process over the next four years. We hope not only for people's interest, but for their participation. We invite everyone to contribute any knowledge, information, or insight he or she may have to an ongoing conversation.

The Granite Railway

First Commercial Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, six and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Colonel Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the

Quincy 'Capital' Of The United States

For eight months during the presidency of John Adams, Quincy could have been called the capital of the United States.

Adams spent that time running the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed country from his desk in the Old House, the Adams Mansion, while a yellow fever epidemic raged in Philadelphia, then the official capital.

VISITOR CENTER OF the Adams National Historical Park is located at 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Tickets for tours of the birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams, the Old House at "Peace field" and the Stone Library, can be obtained at the Visitor Center, where free validated parking is available in the Galleria Parking Garage. The Park's trolley leaves from the Visitor Center for the historic homes every 30 minutes throughout the day; the last trolley leaves the Visitor Center at 3:15 p.m. For more information, call 617-770-1175.

where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year around, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

John Adams' July 4th Toast: 'I Will Give You Independence Forever'

The centerpiece of the display in the second floor study at the Old House is John Adams' favorite armchair in which he was stricken with his final illness and offered his last testament as a Founding Father.

On June 30, 1826, four days before the nation was to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, the Rev. George Whitney and his Quincy Committee of Arrangements called on Adams.

The 90-year-old former president, who played such a vital role in the composition and passage of the Declaration, was asked to join the committee at dinner. Regretfully, the ailing old patriot declined.

Then he was asked to propose a toast for the dinner.

"I will give you: 'Independence Forever!'" he said.

Would he like to add to that?

"Not a syllable," said the old man.

Four days later, at 6:20 in the afternoon, as cannon roared and bells rang out to celebrate a half century of independence, John Adams was dead.

On the morning of July 4, a letter went off to John Quincy Adams in Washington that his father was at death's door but, due to the slow communications of the day, he did not get the message for several days.

The Sixth President of the United States was en route home to Quincy July 9 when he got word of his father's death.

JOHN ADAMS

Ancestry Traced To Magna Carta

The first member of the Quincy family – for whom the city is named – came to Boston from England in 1633, claiming descent from Baron de Quincy, one of the noblemen who forced King John to sign the Magna Carta at Runnymede in 1215.

GENERAL DOUGLAS MacARTHUR in a visit to United First Parish Church July 25, 1951, placed flowers on the tombs of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and their wives, Abigail and Louisa Catherine. With him are Mrs. MacArthur, Mayor Thomas Burgin and City Historian William Edwards. While stopping by the Adams family pew in the church, MacArthur said: "I am certain that John Quincy Adams must have prayed in this pew for divine guidance before he wrote the Monroe Doctrine."

'Kilroy Was Here' At Quincy Shipyard

"Kilroy was here!"

It seemed like the words were everywhere 69 years ago.

They greeted the first American GIs to arrive at the Imperial Palace in war-torn Tokyo in the late summer of 1945 and they mystified Stalin in the men's room at Yalta.

"Kilroy was here!"

He really wasn't but in a way he was.

It all began in 1942 in Bethlehem Steel's Fore River Shipyard in Quincy where James J. Kilroy was employed as a checker whose job it was to count the number of holes filled by a riveter.

Kilroy's job was important to the riveters since they were paid by the number of last chalk mark. Another checker would count the rivet a second time and the riveter would get paid twice for the same work.

One day, Kilroy overheard his boss ask a riveter if Kilroy had checked a certain rivet. No, said the riveter. That made Kilroy mad because he knew he had checked that particular rivet.

He grabbed a piece of chalk, went over to where the two men were standing and scribbled "Kilroy was here!" in large, bold letters right next to the check mark. It soon became his standard practice.

Ordinarily, the chalk mark would be covered up by paint. But this was wartime and some ships left the Yard too fast to be fully painted.

The enigmatic "Kilroy was here!" began appearing all over the world, joined by a drawing of a long-nosed character peering over a wall.

The mysterious message fascinated GIs. Soon they began writing it themselves on walls in the most unlikely places, like the Imperial Palace in Tokyo and the men's room at Yalta.

"Who is Kilroy?" asked Stalin as he came out wiping his hands.

Eventually, as "Remember Pearl Harbor" stood for America's fighting men in World War II and the men and women who built the war machines for them, so did "Kilroy was here!" come to stand for them too.

Adams Last Survivor

John Adams, who died only a few hours after Thomas Jefferson on July 4, 1825, outlived all but one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

The last survivor of the signers was Charles Carroll of Carrollton, Maryland, who died in 1832 at the age of 95. Adams died at 90.

Thomas Morton's Merry Time At Merrymount

It was a strange tableau that took place that May day in 1627 on the hill over looking Boston Bay in a land where the righteous Pilgrims ruled.

There were the English adventurers (don't ever call them colonists) from across the sea, and the local Indians, or what was left of them after a visit from the plague, curious to witness this strange white man's way.

Together they stripped an 80-foot pine tree of its bark, hauled it to the top of the hill, attached a rack of buckhorn to its peak and raised it on the hill called Ma-re Mount (hill by the sea) or more commonly Merrymount.

Then they broke out the beer and cider and, Englishman and Indian together, they danced around their Maypole in a hedonistic ritual that was guaranteed to leave the Pilgrims, 40 miles away in Plymouth, aghast.

"Drinke and be merry, merry, merry boyes," wrote their leader.

"Let all your delight be in hymen's joyes...uncover thy head, and fear no harme, for here's good liquor to keep it warm."

"Lasses in beaver coats come away. Ye shall be welcome to us night and day."

The leader was Morton of Merrymount, a man whose name, rightly or wrongly, has lived on in infamy.

Thomas Morton of Clifford's Inn Gent., as he signed himself, first arrived in the area that became known as Old Braintree and later Quincy in 1622 as secretary to Andrew Weston, founder of the Wessagusset colony in nearby Weymouth.

The Wessagusset colony did not survive but Morton, a lawyer and sportsman as well as a merrymaker, could not forget the clear streams that teemed with fish and the forests that abounded with game in the new land.

He was back again in 1625 as a minor partner in a trading venture led by a Captain Wollaston, a man so obscure that his first name has been lost in nearly 400 years of history, although modern research by historian Hobart Holly has indicated it was probably Richard.

Captain Wollaston was so disappointed by the lack of business opportunity in New England that he packed up his partners and most of their indentured servants and left for greener fields in Virginia, leaving Lieutenant Fitcher in charge.

Morton stayed behind, too, and it wasn't long before Fitcher was ousted and Morton, who was described by the Pilgrim's Governor William Bradford as a man with "more craft than honesty," became The Man, and immediately proclaimed himself "Lord of Misrule."

In the words of Governor Bradford, he maintained "a school of atheism," his people spent their time "quaffing and drinking - in great excess" and they were "inviting Indian women for their consorts, dancing and frisking together - and worse practices."

And, worst of all, Morton and his men were trading guns and rum to the Indians in exchange for pelts and were training said Indians in the use of firearms so they could hunt for more pelts, a move that frightened the wits out of the Pilgrims.

Could it be that, far from the "Lord of Misrule" as he claimed, Morton was just a sharp businessman, the Sam Walton of his day, who cut into Plymouth's profits by treating the Indians more or less like equals and joining in their fun and games. Either way, it was plain that Morton had to go.

Thus it was that in the spring of 1628, Captain Myles Standish - an angry little man of unimposing stature whom Morton derided as "Captain Shrimpe" - and an army of eight men were dispatched to Merrymount to solve the problem once and for all. It turned out to be an easy task.

Morton knew they were coming and prepared to resist. But the night-long preparations soon turned into a party and when Standish and his soldiers arrived at dawn, the defenders of Merrymount were too drunk to resist and surrendered without firing a shot.

That was the Pilgrims' version. In his memoirs, Morton insisted he was ready to fight but his men turned out to be a cowardly lot and he had to give up the struggle in order to avoid bloodshed and was beaten up for his pains by the victorious Pilgrim army of eight.

Whatever, Morton was arrested and taken to Plymouth where Standish wanted him hanged. But gentler heads prevailed and he was put aboard a ship for England, and action that so enraged the captain that he had to be restrained.

Back in London, Morton was charged with disturbing the safety of the Plymouth colony but the charges were dropped when he presented himself to the Crown as a good Anglican who was persecuted by those dissenters from Plymouth.

The trading post at Merrymount was allowed to remain but, in 1629, a sterner opponent arrived on the scene in John Endicott and the Puritans, who established the Massachusetts Bay Colony in Boston, a scant 10 miles from the hill beside the bay.

Endicott ordered Morton's Maypole cut down, which it was, and the name of his trading post changed from Merrymount to Mount Dagon after the Biblical sea god of the Philistines, which it wasn't.

Morton's brief episode of saturnalia is recalled today in a section of Quincy and a park called Merrymount.

Used For Bunker Hill Monument, King's Chapel, Other Landmarks Quincy's Granite Was Famed The World Over

There was a time, more than 100 years ago, when the old Quincy granite quarries – many of them filled today – swarmed with workmen hacking out stone that was sought as prime building material around the world.

Like Topsy, the granite industry in Quincy “just grewed.”

The earliest settlers used the surface boulders found on the North and South Commons to build the foundations of their homes and the fences that separated them from their neighbors.

At the industry's height in the late 1800s, there were more than 30 operating quarries.

The first known use of Quincy granite as a building material was the town's second meeting house in 1666, a scant 41 years after the first settlement at Mount Wollaston.

The stone building served a dual purposes. Sometimes it was a church where the community worshipped; other times it served as a fort in case of an Indian attack.

Quarrying in general was in its infancy, an inexact science in those days.

The process of cutting a rock to size was simple — build a fire around it, then drop an iron ball or cold water on the rock, which would break at approximately the desired spot.

Later, the quarrymen used wooden wedges which expanded when wet to split the stone, then sledges and hammers introduced by German immigrants, finally iron wedges.

These were the methods used to obtain granite to build King's Chapel in Boston (1753), the State Prison

GRANITE WORKERS, many of them immigrants who learned their craft in Italy and the Scandinavian countries, are memorialized with a statue of Quincy granite in the Granite Workers Park on Copeland St., West Quincy. in Charlestown (1815), the Dedham jail (1817) and St. Paul's Church in Boston (1820).

That was the situation when Solomon Willard decided to commemorate the Battle of Bunker Hill (actually Breed's Hill) by building a monument out of Quincy granite.

The problem was that no one had ever built with such large pieces of stone before and no one knew how to quarry it or work it or transport it to the building location.

Willard, who quit his job as an architect and moved to Quincy to direct quarrying operations for the Bunker Hill Monument, had to devise new methods for obtaining and working the stone.

The new method of transportation, devised by Gridley Bryant, involved the construction of the first commercial railroad in the United States to carry stone from the quarry to the Neponset River.

Willard's inventions and new methods inaugurated what is known as “the Stone Age” of American architecture and the Quincy granite industry flourished along with it.

Quincy granite, known for its durability and its ability to take a high polish, was shipped all over the world under the trade names “Quincy Light,” “Quincy Dark,” and “Quincy Extra Dark.”

The demise of the granite industry started after World War I when lighter and more malleable building materials were developed with which to construct stronger and less costly buildings.

The last operating quarry, Swingle's, went out of business in 1963.

QUARRY – For over 100 years, beginning early in the 19th century, Quincy's leading industry was centered on its vast deposits of very unique and high-grade granite. The granite was prized for use in building and large structures and later for monuments. Over 50 quarries were opened – this one provided granite for the Bunker Hill Monument.

SOLOMON WILLARD GRAVE SITE (right) is located in Hall Place Cemetery, off Crescent Street in West Quincy. The monument made from Quincy granite reads: “A public spirited and patriotic citizen, an accomplished architect whose memory will always be associated with the monument on Bunker Hill.” Willard designed the Bunker Hill Monument in 1825, and construction began in 1827. Willard discovered satisfactory granite quarries for the stone in Quincy, and the granite for the monument came from there. Willard revolutionized the techniques to cut and handle the slabs of stone in what became known as the Bunker Hill Quarry, which evolved into a major industry for the town. Willard also the architect for Quincy's “Town Hall” which today is the Mayor James R. McIntyre Government Center.

Quincy Quarry And Granite Workers Museum

For years it has been talked about having a museum to preserve the rich granite history of Quincy and the surrounding towns, which also had quarry operations. There have been several attempts, but all have faded in the past. There was a glimmer of hope to establish a museum when the capping operation of Quincy's land fill and the construction of Granite Links Golf Course moved forward. A portion of the tipping fees for allowing Mass Highway to bring in fill from the Big Dig Tunnel Project was to be set aside to construct a museum. Unfortunately these funds evaporated into the construction of Ricciuti Drive and the golf course project.

In 2009, the Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum was formed and incorporated in Massachusetts and received its 501c(3) designation from the Internal Revenue Service as a non-profit organization and has received all the state required certificates for a non-profit. What started as a small group of Quincy residents has grown to a membership of over one hundred seventy five all dedicated to saving the history of the granite industry. Membership ranges from Maine to Florida and west to Ohio, with most having a connection through generations of family members who had some part in the granite industry.

The Museum has received many family artifacts connected to the granite industry including tools, equipment, photos, drawings, maps, books, granite salesman samples, and extensive written information and family photos of individuals who worked in the industry.

At the turn of the century a large portion of the inhabitants of Quincy worked in the granite industry or worked supporting the industry in transportation, in tool making and in the manufacturing of machinery for the industry. The granite industry played a large role in the growth of Quincy bringing many ethnic groups to the city. The first group of immigrants who worked in the granite industry were the Irish followed by the Finnish and Swedish and then the Scottish and finally the Italians. The ethnic history, cultures and customs that were brought to Quincy will be an important part of the Museum.

Many descendants of these granite workers have donated family photos related to the granite industry. These photos are not found in any collection of historical photos of Quincy. Two examples are shown here. The first is an original photo of the Clark & Pearce Granite Company stone shed. Owner, George Clark, far left. Photo was donated by George Clark's granddaughter, Marion Colclough of Quincy. The second photo is another original photo of the Sampo Granite Company stone shed that was owned by Andrew Nisula. $600,000 Restoration Project Also Restored Bell Tower, Gilded Dome, Weather Vane New Bronze Bell At United First Parish Church

UNITED FIRST CHURCH Bell Tower $600,000 restoration project was completed earlier this year. The project included new mahogany columns, restored capital columns, and a fresh coat of gold leafing gilded to the copper cupola and weather vane of the historic church. A refurbished bronze bell – owned by the City of Quincy – was also placed in the bell tower. The bronze bell that was installed in the church in 1859 was replaced because of an 18-inch crack. The 3,000-pound replacement bell was cast in 1856 for a church in Chicago. It is from the same famous foundry – Henry N. Hooper on Boston – that cast the original bell in the church. Hooper was an apprentice of Revolutionary War hero and famed American silversmith Paul Revere.

First Significant Restoration Of 168-Year-Old Quincy Granite Landmark In 100 Years

Monumental Makeover For Quincy City Hall

By JIM EDWARDS

Quincy Historical Society

Quincy City Hall was built in 1844 and constructed of Quincy granite. The architect for the project was Solomon Willard (1783-1861) who is considered one of the fathers of the Quincy granite industry. Mr. Willard was also the architect for the Bunker Hill Monument in Charlestown. Old City Hall is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and is at the heart of the historic district. Mr. Willard is buried in Hall Place Cemetery in Quincy.

Old City Hall was erected at the time as a Town Hall and is described by scholars as being an excellent example of academic Greek Revival architecture. One of the more distinguished architects of the early 20th century, Ralph Adams Cram, described Old City Hall as "one of the outstanding specimens of mid-century classical American design in the country." As far as current records are able to corroborate, this building is the oldest functioning City Hall in the United States.

Despite its stature, Old City Hall has come onto hard times in terms of its physical condition. With the exception of the restoration work performed in the City Council Chamber in the mid 1990's, relatively few improvements have been made to the building in approximately 100 years. The slate roof leaks badly and must be replaced. The granite blocks comprising the exterior walls are in reasonably good condition; however the mortar joints in these walls are either in poor condition or missing entirely. New mortar must be installed in all stone joints. The wood windows and trim are also in poor condition and require replacement. Further, the unattractive and not original to the building, stucco-clad addition at the rear of Old City Hall is in extremely poor condition. It is also of inadequate size and should be replaced with a more appropriate building addition.

The interior of Old City Hall is in a decidedly decrepit condition. Many issues require attention. It should also be noted here that because of the building's significant historic status, all restoration work will have to be accomplished in concert with the requirements of the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

All egress stairways within the building are of an older vintage and not enclosed in a manner that would prevent smoke or a fire from moving to the various floor levels of the building.

Electrical wiring within the building is old with much of it in poor condition and of a potential hazard.

The fire alarm system is old and undependable and therefore presents a potential danger to workers or others visiting the building.

The steam heating system is in terrible condition and delivers uneven and inadequate heat to the various rooms in the building. There is also no ventilation of spaces, as required by law.

There is no fire protection system (automatic sprinklers) within either Old City Hall or City Hall Annex.

Plumbing systems are of ancient vintage, are inadequate in number and provide no toilet facilities for the public.

Hazardous materials exist within the building.

There is little legal handicapped access to or within Old City Hall and there are no handicapped accessible toilets located in the building.

Insect infestation is also a problem. Powder post beetles and termites are damaging the building's roof and floor framing structural systems.

With the exception of the Council Chamber, the finishes in all rooms in Old City Hall are worn, unsightly and unfitting for a municipal building representing the seat of Quincy City government.

Remedial efforts will be significant and careful consideration of building code issues critical. All egress within Old City Hall must be made safe. New electrical and state of the art fire alarm systems will be installed. A new fire protection system for Old City Hall and City Hall Annex will be a very important part of the upgrades. A revised structural system must take seismic design into account. Updated energy efficient heating, ventilation and air-conditioning systems will be installed to provide comfortable and healthy conditions for workers and visitors alike. All mandates of the State's Architectural Access Board will render the building user-friendly to all handicapped individuals.

One of the primary objectives of the restoration effort is to restore the City Council Chamber to its original "Great Hall" configuration which before the 1920's ran the length and breadth of the building. Included in that work will be the recapturing of the Great Hall balcony, parts of which remain entombed in other walls, ceilings and finishes. The prospect of returning the Great Hall to its original, majestic proportions, with heroically proportioned windows to allow light to enter the space on two sides as originally designed is exciting to consider. And with historically appropriate interior finish upgrades, the entire 1844 structure will be transformed into a first class City facility, one which echoes its exceptional past history within a more modern framework.

Old City Hall is a wonderfully prominent building for the City of Quincy and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. It is directly across the street from another historically significant treasure, the United First Parish Church, also constructed of Quincy granite. This architectural masterpiece also designed in the Greek Revival style was constructed in 1828 mainly from funds donated by John Adams, second President of the United States. Within the Church are the crypts of President Adams, President John Quincy Adams and their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine.

Old City Hall, constructed when Quincy was still a "Town," is an extremely important building to the City, in its function as a continuous seat of government for almost 170 years, and for the citizens of Quincy who recognize this architectural icon as a symbol of "their" City. For many in the City, the presence of historical buildings in the downtown is one of the reasons Quincy is such an interesting and inviting place to live and work.

It is past time to begin work to revitalize the great Quincy treasure that is Old City Hall. Mayor Koch and the City Council deserve credit for addressing this important restoration project at this time.

Well-Known Businesses Began Here, Too Quincy's Celebrity Claims Are Famous

Teachers dubbed the Class of 1914 the "worst class" ever at Quincy High School because no one made the honor roll. Too bad they couldn't have looked ahead to the future of Ruth G. Jones.

A year later, armed with a new name, Ruth Gordon, she was on a train bound for New York with a year's tuition to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts and $50 in spending money pinned to her corset.

Ruth Gordon went on to fame and fortune as an actress on the Broadway stage and the Hollywood movie studios and as a writer of short stories and plays with her husband, Garson Kanin.

She won an Academy Award as best supporting actress in 1969 for her role as a Satanist in "Rosemary's Baby," and an Emmy in 1979 for her one-time role in the sitcom "Taxi."

Ruth Gordon never forgot her roots in Quincy, returning frequently to attend class reunions. Her last visit was in 1984 for the dedication of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in Merrymount Park.

She died in 1985 at the age of 88.

His name too was Jones, William Andrew Jones, and, as a teen-aged usher in the old Quincy Theater, where vaudeville persisted into the 1920s, he used to dream of performing himself.

But Billy Jones was such a common name, he thought, so he borrowed the name of the Quincy Theater manager and as Billy DeWolfe he became a dancer and comic in movies on TV.

He visited his old home town almost yearly and when he died in 1974 at the age of 67, he was buried in the Jones family plot in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

The year was 1925 when 27-year-old Howard Johnson, a failure as a cigar salesman, took over a rundown drug store with a newspaper franchise and a marble soda fountain on Beale Street in Wollaston.

Soon he began making his own ice cream — 28 flavors eventually — and then he had a seaside snack shack on Wollaston Beach Boulevard and a restaurant in the tallest building in downtown Quincy.

Just then, by coincidence, Eugene O'Neill's latest play, "Strange Interlude," was banned in Boston so the producers moved it to the Quincy Theater, just up Hancock Street from the Howard Johnson restaurant in the then Granite Trust Bank.

It was a long play, so the sellout audiences were given an hour and a half dinner break at intermission so the place to go was Johnson's restaurant where the special, chicken pies, were $1 apiece.

Eventually, Howard Johnson-franchised restaurants and motels, with their familiar orange roofs, spanned the continent, truly, in their own words, "a landmark for hungry Americans."

Bill Rosenberg was just shy of his 30th birthday when he bought a used delivery truck, invested $5,000 in a modest kitchen in an old butcher shop and opened the Industrial Luncheon

Service.

He stocked the truck with coffee, sandwiches and doughnuts and made his first stop at the Boston Gear Works in North Quincy, where he sold his first cup of coffee for a nickel.

He had 144 canteen trucks by 1950 when he decided a retail store would be more profitable so he started a shop called the "Open Kettle" on Southern Artery in Quincy.

That name didn't catch on so Rosenberg called a brainstorming session. "What do you do with a doughnut?" asked the architect, Bernard Healy, rhetorically. "You dunk it."

And the name "Dunkin' Donuts" was born.

For years, her father, Frank, ran an upscale men's clothing store in downtown Quincy but it remained for his daughter, Lee Remick, to spread the family name far and wide.

She burst into Hollywood as the nubile drum majorette with Andy Griffith in "A Face in the Crowd," and followed it up as the alcoholic wife with Jack Lemmon

She died in 1991 at the age of 55.

His real name was William Szathmary but he changed it to an easier-to-remember Bill Dana when he appeared on the scene as a writer and sometime performer on the old Steve Allen Show.

The 1942 graduate of Quincy High School later gained a measure of fame in the entertainment world as the comic with the thick Spanish accent, 'Jose Jimenez.'

John Quincy Adams: 6th President And More of the treasury; John Calhoun, the secretary of war; Adams; and Jackson, the Tennessean hero of the Battle of New Orleans and the spokesman of the great unwashed.

Jackson won the popular vote, 155,872 to 105,321 for Adams and the electoral vote with 99 to 84 for Adams, 41 for Crawford and 39 for Clay but, since no one had a majority, the election was thrown into the Congress which selected Adams.

Reaction to his first message to Congress, a bid to expand the presidential powers far beyond what some saw as their Constitutional limits, showed clearly that the so-called Era of Good Feeling in the Madison and Monroe Administrations was over.

His most virulent opposition came from the South whenever one of his proposals was thought to impinge upon the "peculiar institution" of slavery and his early opposition to the removal of the Creek Indians to land west of the Mississippi.

By the time the four years of his administration had passed, the Democrat-Republicans had split into Democrats and National Republicans and Jackson, "the people's president," had trounced Adams in the electoral college 178 to 83.

Although Adams tried to steer clear of the worst parts, the 1828 campaign was so dirty, chiefly in its attacks on Jackson's wife, Rachel, that the president-elect refused to meet with the outgoing president before his inauguration.

Consequently, Adams, like his father before him, refused to attend his successor's inauguration, the only two presidents to do so.

He took a year to rest, then ran for the House from the South Shore District. Now running as a Whig, he easily defeated a Democrat and a Federalist for the post, which rejuvenated his interest in public service.

Some say John Quincy's best work was done in the interests of human rights after he left the White House in 1829. It included a vote of censure in the House of Representatives, which was defeated by a vote of 105 to 80.

At the age of 74, he took on the case of 35 Africans, kidnapped in their homeland and bound for slavery in Cuba, and waxed so eloquent before the Supreme Court that they were freed and sent home over the protests of the new president.

His particular target was known as the Gag Rule which said that "all petitions, memorials, resolutions, propositions or papers relating . . . to the subject of slavery shall be laid upon the table and that no further action whatever shall be had thereon."

It was passed in 1836 and he fought it tooth and nail until it was rescinded in 1844.

On Feb. 21, 1848, as he rose to his feet to speak against a commendation for those who had won the war with Mexico, which he opposed, 80-year-old John Quincy Adams suffered a massive stroke. He died two days later in the Capitol.

Battlefields Of Quincy

Although it furnished fighting men and leaders in the Revolution, Quincy (Old Braintree then) escaped without a pitched battle being fought on its shores.

The Minutemen of Quincy, however, did take part in a number of local skirmishes, harassing the Redcoats even after most of them had left Boston March 17, 1775.

On Sunday morning, May 21, 1775, three British sloops dropped anchor in the Fore River not far off Germantown.

The Quincy company, under the command of Elihu Adams, John Adams' brother, drove them off as they raided Sheep Island in nearby Weymouth.

On the night of July 9, 1775, a

Quincy company of 300 men put out in whale-boats from Germantown and seized cattle, sheep and enemy soldiers from Long Island, under the noses of the British troops.

A few days later, another company of men, leaving Moon Island off Squantum in whale-boats, set fire to a house and barn on Long Island under fire from the British fleet.

On Sunday evening, July 29, 1775, a group of men left Squantum in whale-boats, overpowered a guard and burned Boston Light, the beacon that guided ships into Boston Harbor.

The British fleet left Boston Harbor Oct. 10, 1775.

Quincy Ships Played A Major Role In WWII

USS Quincy Took FDR To Yalta

The President and the Prime Minister met on the ship's deck and went on from there to the conference that would decide the future of a world at war.

The President was Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Prime Minister was Winston Churchill and the ship was the Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Quincy, the second of that name to perform heroically in World War II.

The first time was 67 years ago – Feb. 2, 1945 – and the place was the island of Malta in the Mediterranean, where the President met the Prime Minister and together they flew on to the Yalta Conference in the Russian Crimea.

After that brief respite for diplomacy at Yalta, it was back to war for Quincy, supporting carrier strikes on Okinawa and the Japanese home islands, finally entering Tokyo Bay on Sept. 1 in time to be present when the Japanese surrendered aboard the battleship Missouri, ending World War II 67 years ago.

The second Quincy, launched June 23, 1943, with great fanfare, was one of scores of warships built by Bethlehem's Fore River Shipyard, which employed 32,000 men and women in its Quincy and Hingham locations at their peak Jan. 15, 1943.

The first Quincy, launched June 19, 1935, was on peacetime convoy duty between Capetown, South Africa, and the Caribbean island of Trinidad, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor and virtually destroyed America's Pacific fleet.

She was dispatched to the South Pacific in the summer of 1942 to shell Japanese installations on the Solomon Island of Guadalcanal and offer protection to the Marines who landed there in the first American offensive of World War II in August.

She was on patrol in the channel off Guadalcanal in the early morning hours of Aug. 9 when she was attacked by a large enemy force and sunk after taking many direct hits in what became known as the Battle of Savo Island.

The final message from the stricken ship was one of defiance:

"We're going down between them – give 'em hell!"

News of the sinking struck hard at the men and women of the Fore River Shipyard, who had just begun work on a heavy cruiser to be called St. Paul.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

CHESTER NIMITZ

They petitioned Washington to change the name to Quincy and it was done.

The historic shipyard in Quincy Point was founded two miles up river in Braintree in 1884 as the Fore River Engine Company by Thomas A. Watson, the same man who heard Alexander Graham Bell's first words on the first telephone: "Watson, come here; I want you."

The company was formed to make marine engines but the demand for private yachts was so strong that Watson was forced to move downriver in 1900 to Quincy where the river was wider, the channel deeper and more suited to launch ships.

As early as 1898, the yard began building ships for the U.S. Navy, with keels laid for the destroyers Lawrence and MacDonough, a contract in hand for the cruiser Des Moines and tow more pending for the battleships Rhode Island and New Jersey.

Another one of those early ships was Nevada, delivered in 1916, which fought its way through two world wars, survived Pearl Harbor and the A-Bomb test at Bikini Atoll, and finally had to be sunk by a friendly torpedo.

An adjunct facility called the Victory Plant had to be built to handle the U.S. Navy's over-

THE USS QUINCY, built in 1943, the second heavy cruiser to bear the name, had a prominent role in World War II, including shelling the Normandy coast during D-Day in 1944 and bombarding the Japanese homeland. In between, she took President Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Yalta Conference in 1945. The first USS Quincy was sunk in the Battle of Savo Island in 1942.

flow during World War I and together the yards turned out 35 destroyers in 27 months, more than all the other shipyards in the country combined, including USS Reid, built in a record 41 and a half days from keel-laying to delivery.

A Naval officer named Chester Nimitz was briefly a resident of Quincy in 1913 while waiting for his submarine to be fitted at the yard. He remained long enough to marry a Wollaston girl – Catherine Vance Freeman – daughter of a former city councillor.

When, shortly after Pearl Harbor, Nimitz was named commander of all American naval forces in the Pacific, Catherine congratulated him on taking over the fleet.

"But, my dear," he replied. "The fleet's at the bottom of the sea."

That was the Quincy shipyard's cue once again to roll up its collective sleeves and get busy. Starting on Dec. 7, 1941, for the next three years, its workers turned out 88 ships, ranging from LSTs (landship ships tanks) to CVs (aircraft carriers), an average of one every 12 and a half days.

It was in a shipyard annex in Hingham, five miles away down the coast, that workers set the world records by building the destroyer HMS Reynolds in 24 and a half working days and delivering five ships to the Navy in 50 hours.

The battleship USS Massachusetts, "Big Mamie," delivered May 12, 1942, took part in some 35 engagements during the war, including the sinking of the mighty Vichy-French battleship Jean Bart at Casablanca before she could be turned over to the Germans.

The aircraft carrier Wasp, launched from the Fore River ways April 4, 1939, was escorting transports of Marine reinforcements to Guadalcanal on Sept. 16, 1942, when two torpedoes from the Japanese submarine I-19 struck her in the vicinity of her gas tanks and magazines.

Another carrier, already abuilding at the Quincy yard and designated USS Oriskany, was renamed Wasp and sent off to war Nov. 24, 1943, taking part in the Battle of Leyte Gulf and the assaults on the Marianas, Iwo Jima, Okinawa and the Japanese home islands.

The carrier Lexington, laid down as a battle cruiser but completed as the U.S. Navy's second aircraft carrier in 1925, was at sea when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor but, less than six months later, she fell to an enemy torpedo in the Battle of the Coral Sea.

As with Wasp, a carrier already on the ways in Quincy and ready to be dubbed USS Cabot, was renamed Lexington and commissioned Feb. 17, 1943, in time to fight through the central Pacific and launch its planes into the action that became known as "The Great Marianas Turkey Shoot."

From the heights in World War II, the once busy Fore River Shipyard fell on post-war hard times, building mostly tankers and freighters with an occasional Navy contract for a submarine, destroyer or frigate. But every now and then it was called on to construct something new and interesting.

Like the world's heaviest ship – the 106,500-ton tanker Manhattan – launched in 1962, the fastest and most powerful supertanker, which was later converted into the world's largest ice-breaker for a trip through the Canadian Arctic with one barrel of oil to prove that oil from Alaska's North Slope could be transported by sea.

Or the fleet oilers Redstone, Vanguard and Mercury, converted into instrumentation ships in 1966 to track missiles on the firing range, but also used to follow the progress of the Apollo spacecraft as they circled the earth in orbit and raced to the moon.

Or the world's first nuclear-powered surface combat ship, the cruiser Long Beach, launched in 1961, and the world's second, the frigate Bainbridge, in 1962. They were among the last ships built by Bethlehem at the shipyard before it was sold to General Dynamics.

The most notable ship construction contracts undertaken during the 13 years General Dynamics operated the shipyard were the ten 436-foot liquefied natural gas (LNG) tankers with their great bulbous tanks that were built elsewhere and hoisted aboard the ship by the Goliath Crane that became a landmark at the yard but was dismantled in 2008.

For the record, the last ship built by General Dynamics at the 86-year-old Quincy shipyard was the maritime prepositioning ship Sgt. William R. Button. That was in 1986. Then General Dynamics shut the door.

Centerpiece Of U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum

USS Salem Flagship Of The Sixth Fleet

Although she never fired a shot in anger, the heavy cruiser USS Salem at the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum stands for all the ships that were built at Bethlehem Steel's Fore River Shipyard, a mighty armada that helped beat Hitler and Tojo.

Salem was ordered during World War II but launched in 1947 after hostilities had ceased and commissioned in 1949 to become the flagship of the U. S. Navy's Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean during the Cold War years in the 1950s.

At 716 feet, six inches in length and 17,000 tons displacement with a crew of 109 officers and 1,690 enlisted men and eight-inch/55 caliber guns in three triple turrets, she was the bulwark of democracy in the Mediterranean and Caribbean Seas.

Salem and her crew earned the praise of the king and queen of Greece for their work in providing relief supplies and humanitarian aid for four days as the first ship on the scene after an earthquake ravaged the Greek islands in 1953.

She was at sea bound for a new billet in Villafrance on the French Riviera in 1956 when fighting broke out between Israel and Egypt and she was diverted to the islands of Rhodes to assure safe passage of American and other ships through the Suez Canal.

Salem was on active duty for 10 years, decommissioned in 1959 and berthed in the Atlantic Reserve Fleet in Philadelphia; then brought back to its birthplace in Quincy and recommissioned in 1995 as a member of the Historic Naval Ships Association.

She features tours of the main deck, the number three turret, the admiral's and captain's bridges, the quarters on the second deck where the crew lived and worked, an extensive model ship collection and the region's only Navy SEAL display.

The ship is also home to the Cruiser Sailor Museum as well as museums dedicated to the USS St. Paul and USS Newport News, sister ships of Salem. The museum's archives are open for research and viewing an extensive collection of armaments, uniforms and memorabilia.

Earhart was one of the passengers on the first official flight out of Dennison Airport and, as a resident of Medford and a social worker in Boston, she visited the field in Squantum frequently to hone her own flying skills for aviation feats yet to come.

Instructors at Dennison taught flying during the week and took passengers joy riding on Sundays. It wasn't unusual for 1,000 persons to show up for a short hop at 50 cents and a longer one at $2.50 to $5 on a good weekend. But even that wasn't enough.

Dennison, as president of the Dennison Airport Kennel Club Inc., tried to open a dog track on the site in 1935 but it was turned down. Said City Councillor John R. Shaughnessy: "There is nothing lower than a dog track. Three of the six operated in Illinois were controlled by Al Capone."

The coming of World War II meant a revival of training at the Squantum Naval Air Station and the demise of commercial aviation at Dennison Airport as the Navy cancelled its lease and added a concrete surface to the runways and extended them until they were a half a mile long.

After the war, on July 1, 1946, the Squantum Naval Air Station became a Naval Reserve Training Base where for the next seven years thousands of officers and enlisted men and women — the Weekend Warriors — came each weekend for training.

Squantum's glorious aviation history came to an end in 1953 due to the rapid expansion of Logan Airport which placed Quincy in the path of jetliners approaching the East Boston field for a landing. Clearly, one of them had to go and, just as clearly, it was Squantum.

The national ensign was hauled down for the last time on the morning of Dec. 23, 1953, and the training of Weekend Warriors moved to the South Weymouth Naval Air Facility, home base of anti-submarine blimp patrols since 1942.

Reserve Capt. Harry Sartoris, the last commander of the NAS Squantum, flew the last plane out of the old base and landed the first plane at the new NAS South Weymouth, where he was to become the first commander.

The NAS South Weymouth was an operational U.S. Navy airfield for 55 years. It closed in 1997.

Adams' Crucial Nominations

John Adams, the farmer's son from Old Braintree, not only had a hand in writing the U.S. Constitution but he made two nominations to posts that proved to be critical to the future of the new republic.

As a member of the Continental Congress, he eschewed intercolonial rivalries and nominated George Washington, a Virginia planter, as commander in chief of the Continental army.

As president, he nominated John Marshall as chief justice of the U.S., where he served 34 years and established the basic principle that the Supreme Court can invalidate an act of Congress.

'He Served Quincy With Integrity'

City Mourns Loss Of Former Mayoral Chief Of Staff Thomas Largey

By SCOTT JACKSON

City officials past and present mourned the loss of former mayoral Chief of Staff Thomas L. Largey, Jr.

Mr. Largey, 59, served as chief of staff under former Mayor William Phelan before joining Norfolk County Sheriff Mike Bellotti's office. He died Sunday after a years-long battle with cancer.

Phelan, now Holbrook's

"I just would say he was a wonderful father, husband, and friend," Phelan said in a phone interview. "He served the citizens of Quincy with integrity."

Phelan pointed out how Mr. Largey's work benefited the city, because of his understanding of complicated issues. The former mayor

Council Hears Financing Details For Improvements To Center's Infrastructure

Public Hearing May 31 At 7 P.M.

Details of the Quincy's proposal to finance core improvements in Quincy Center were revealed at Monday's City Council meeting.

The city is applying to use up to $50 million in bonds from the state's infrastructure investment incentive (I-cubed) program to pay for those improvements, which include restoration of Town Brook, creation of Adams Green, and building the Cliveden Street Bridge. Quincy's preliminary application for the program was approved, but the council must approve the final proposal before the state greenlights the bonds.

The state projects that the Quincy Center redevelopment will generate $179.4 million in "net new" state revenue over the course of the bonds' 30-year repayment period, according to the proposal. That money would be used to pay off the bonds, which would cost an estimated $148.6 million, assuming the full $50 million was bonded.

highlighted the lease for Quarry Hills Golf Course and rezoning of Quincy Center as two major contributions which the city still benefits from today.

"He was the lead negotiator for the Quarry Hills Golf Course Lease, resulting in considerable benefits to the city," Phelan said. "And he assisted in the re-zoning of downtown, the creation of the district finance zone for the downtown — the first in the state."

But above all else, Phelan said Mr. Largey's would be remembered for being a role model to those who knew him. "He was truly an example of being a father, husband, friend, and role model," he said.

Members of the City Council also mourned Mr. Largey's death, who as chief of staff represented Phelan at council meetings. Council President Mike McFarland dedicated Monday's council meeting in his honor, and asked that those in attendance keep Largey, and his wife and children in their thoughts.

Near the meeting's end, Councillors Doug Gutro, Brian McNamee and Joe Finn took time to praise Mr. Largey for his service, perseverance, and for being a great family man, respectively.

"He was a fierce advocate for the administration," Gutro said. "But more importantly he was a fierce advocate for the City of Quincy. He really loved the city as a lifelong resident. I think public service was an unexpected, mid-career path in which not only he relished, but frankly he flourished and they should be extraordinarily proud, his family. And I know that he leaves three sons that he absolutely adored — Thomas, Robert, and Aidan — and loving wife Kelly, and I just want to say you Mr. President for dedicating this meeting to Tom Largey because he served in many meetings with this body and did extraordinary work for the City of Quincy."

"Tom was very sick and he faced his health challenges with tremendous courage," McNamee said. "He sets for all of us such a unique example of how to face such a health crisis. Hopefully in the future I won't have to draw strength from the example that he set, but I hope if I ever am that I can meet the challenges like he did. It was such a long fight that he had but he fought valiantly and leaves a great legacy of how to live one's life and he'll be sorely missed."

"Tom was a great guy — bottom line," Finn said. "Whether it was here, and I'm very sad being here as late as we are tonight and I recall many late nights he was engaged in. But I also have memories of him in the Squantum School on the ball fields with his sons or in school concerts. He was a great father, great dad, great family person and again all of us should keep his family in our prayers and our thoughts."

Sheriff Michael Bellotti said he will miss Mr. Largey professionally and personally.

"I was lucky to have him as my chief of staff because he could do it all," Bellotti said. "He had an incredible ability for legal analysis, writing and problem solving."

"Tom brought great political and personal skills and most importantly he was a man of great integrity."

"It's a major loss for me personally and for the Sheriff's Department professionally. He was a great friend," Bellotti added.

Census Bureau Workshop June 6

The U.S. Census Bureau's Data Dissemination Specialist, Alexandra Barker, will be at Quincy City Hall Wednesday, June 6 to explain how to use the Census website tools successfully to find the most current and relevant data for grant writing and strategic planning needs.

The event will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the Foy Conference Room on the second floor of the City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

As service and funding agencies are forced to make decisions with reduced budgets, reliable and comparable data becomes crucial for effective plans and grant proposals.

The American Fact Finder is the key source for population, demographic, economic, social, housing, and financial data.

The Department of Planning and Community Development is coordinating the event which is made possible with funding from the Community Development Block Grant program of the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. The training is open to organizations that serve the needs of the extremely low to moderate income residents in Quincy and the Quincy HOME Consortium (Weymouth, Holbrook, Milton, and Braintree). Bocce A Ball At Senior Olympics

It's 9:15 a.m. and the bocce games are about to begin.

Seniors settle into chairs and socialize over a "re-game spread" of coffee and donuts inside the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club on Washington Street.

Many of the Quincy Senior Olympic competitors are dressed in blue t-shirts with black lettering. Competitor numbers are pinned on either side of the shirts.

John Boyle, an 82-year-old volunteer with the Quincy Council on Aging, stops to greet a reporter.

The proud Scot is wearing a green shirt and a Celtic hat. He hopes it brings him luck during the men's bocce competition that's about to begin.

But he's already a winner because he and so many other local seniors have banded together in the true spirit of the games. It's about the camaraderie, not so much the competition.

"This is the best Senior Olympics event by far," Boyle says before heading outside last Thursday to the two stone-dust bocce courts bathed in brilliant sunshine behind the club.

"The people are so generous and courteous. They make the seniors feel so welcome."

That's the essence of what make the bocce competition the most favored among the competitors as well as the volunteers who have put the games together year-in and year-out for three decades.

"It's a great day for the Club and the City of Quincy does a great job on the entire Senior Olympics the whole week," says Club President Bob Pettinelli standing in the club's kitchen where members will cook a full lunch of roasted chicken, potatoes and ziti and meat sauce for all the competitors after the men's and women's gold medal games are decided.

While the seniors appreciate what the club does for them, it's the club that takes pride in rolling out the red carpet for some of the city's elderly citizens.

"The club has been in Quincy for 90 years. We'll be celebrating our 90th anniversary this October. We have a number of elderly members who are retired police officers, firefighters, city workers, politicians who are part of this club," Pettinelli points out.

"On a day like today, we enjoy and appreciate the senior citizens of the City of Quincy and we enjoy doing this for them because we have so many elderly members and that's what the club stands for."

Recreation Director Barry Welch says the bocce competition underscores the true spirit of the Senior Olympics because of the hospitality, socialization and the game itself.

"We make the teams for this event and it is teams so the seniors get to meet other seniors and the socialization is phenomenal because that's all part of the our goals - to get people together and perhaps pursue healthy lifestyles together."

Another reason for its popularity is the support from the Torre Dei Passeri Club. The club reached out to the city 18 years and asked if it could host the bocce event. That simple request has blossomed into a devoted partnership that's a win-win for both the city and the club.

Welch also said bocce is something that anyone of any skill level can play. The game entails two teams of four players rolling balls inside a court. The object of the game is to roll the balls closest to a smaller ball or jack. Points are awarded to the team that rolls closest to the jack.

There's certainly some strategy involved but it doesn't take long for a novice to pick up the essentials to bocce.

"The skill level can be from beginner to advanced and everyone can still play. It's a simple game to play and it can certainly get complex. All of those things added up - the hospitality, the socialization and the game - it truly brings together the most competitors in a single day," Welch says.

This year's bocce event attracted 94 men and women ranging in age from age 55 to 92.

Among those returning to this year's Senior Games is 80-year-old Ken Williams. He's participated in 29 out of the 30 Senior Olympics. The lone time he sat out was when the minimum competition age was raised from 50 to 55 - he was only 54 years old the year it was adjusted higher. He still turned out to help out at the events that year as a volunteer.

Williams is among the most decorated of Quincy's Senior Olympians. He's won gold in a myriad of events including horse shoes and the walking events. But he's made his mark in the basketball free-throw shooting competition a multitude of times. He also enjoys the distinction of defeating former Boston Celtic rookie and UMass Amherst sharp-shooter George "Trigger" Burke at the free-throw line.

"George Burke used to come all the time and the very first year I beat him in the free throw contest. A few years ago, George spoke at one of the events and said, 'I want everyone to know I have never beaten Ken Williams in a foul-shooting contest.'"

"We had a lot of fun. He'd be behind me and rabble rouse me and I'd turn and tell him 'look George, I'm going to get them in anyway.' One year, I had to put in nine in a row and I did it. I beat him by one basket. But he's good about it and laughs about it the same as I do."

Still, bocce remains one of Williams' favorite competitions.

"It's difficult because you don't play bocce all the time. You do this once a year. But it's a lot of fun and I've met a lot of great friends. I have a lot of great memories, too."

In one of the morning's first matches, Williams and his teammates compete against another team. Good rolls are rewarded with shouts and high-fives - from both teams and spectators alike. Fans also include some senior ladies who cheer the men on with colorful pom poms from the sidelines.

After a close match, Williams and his team is eliminated.

But there's no disappointment. There are smiles and handshakes among the players.

Williams and the other seniors enjoy seeing the friends they've made over the years. And the new friends they'll make this year.

"I look forward to this week," Williams says. "It's tremendous to see all these people. I know most all of them but there are some new people. The sad part about most everything is that there used to be three times as many people here as there are now. Many have passed away. And people don't play this sport like they used to."

Williams has a saying: old age is old age, but old age doesn't last.

"Every morning I take my cell phone and I look at it and it reads 'fully charged.' The way I look at it I'm going to be happy all day. I'm going to try to be nice to somebody, and I'm going to make sure that I go to church and take care of my wife."

"That's the way I'm living out my life. When you think of it, I'm not going to live 20 or 40 more years. It's going to be a short time."

"When I come here I'm as happy as I can be that I'm here and that I see all these nice people and see some of the younger people who are here, too."

For Quincy's Senior Olympians, bocce is a lot like life.

They just roll with it.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1913 POSTCARD is a view of the old Quincy Reservoir as it looked almost 100 years ago. Also known as Braintree Dam, it is located in Braintree next to the South Shore Plaza. In 1883, Quincy's only water company was authorized by the State Legislature to buy the land here and use the brook flowing through it to supply Quincy with water. A privately-owned company, they built a dam 600 feet long to hold the water in a valley for this artificial reservoir that holds 180 million gallons. Nine years later, the city bought out the company so it could control its own supply. But it soon realized it needed more water and in 1899 joined what is now the MWRA from which it has been buying water ever since. The city still owns the reservoir but doesn't use the water. Over the years, it has been a favored swimming hold for youngsters. And for a few years the city sold water to the Old Colony Laundry and Fore River Shipyard. Quincy and Braintree have dickered over the years about buying and selling the property but nothing ever happens. The reservoir is fed from streams and wetlands in the Blue Hills and is the source of water for Quincy's much in the news Town Brook that flows through Quincy Center to the Town River. Questions For The DPW

The critical work of the DPW is beyond question.

Other aspects of the Quincy DPW raise a lot of questions. Ironically while a banner celebrating Public Works hangs from their office on Sea Street, the DPW held a bidder's conference to privatize management of the DPW Yard.

Is this directly related to the allegations of dumping in Town River?

Does anyone wonder why the DPW is conducting a multi-faceted PR campaign?

How much did it cost to remove all that fill from Faxon Field?

Why is the DPW Commissioner seeking a fund not subject to city council approval?

Why did the water & sewer department hire private contractors from Rhode Island to install new water meters?

Why were meters selected that will only last six years?

What exactly did the Water & Sewer Department do to deserve the Public Water Systems Award from DEP?

I toured the DPW Yard with the bidder's conference Wednesday and want to thank the workers for the difficult job they do. It's a dirty job but someone has to do it.

During National Public Works Week and every week the hard-working staff at the DPW deserve our gratitude.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Wartime Rules Restrict Sailors

Quincy's first wartime yachting season in nearly a quarter of a century faced the traditional Memorial Day opening burdened by new Coast Guard and Navy restrictions that included personal identification cards and boat licenses.

Licenses for Zone C entitled the owners to sail their boats only in the waters of Quincy Bay. Other licenses were issued for Zone A, Winthrop Bay; Zone B, Dorchester Bay; and Zone D, Hingham Bay.

Enemy aliens, revolvers, explosives and cameras were not permitted on board and radio transmitters were required to be sealed at all times.

"It is desirable that owners put their boats in the water in order that they may not only be used for recreation but kept in condition for possible employment for war needs," said Rear Adm. W.T. Tarrant, commandant of the First Naval District.

GORE HONORED AT MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES

Albert E. Gore of Quincy Point, 85 years old and a veteran of the Indian wars and World War I was an honored guest at Quincy's Memorial Day services. The featured speaker was Thomas H. Buckley, a prominent legionnaire from Abington.

"We go forward proudly behind the men from this community and every other part of the United States who will again furnish the glorious pages of history with exploits of heroism, of sacrifice, of glory for their nation and its success and progress," said Buckley.

SCHOOL CLOSINGS

The School Committee voted to close the Washington School in Quincy Point in the wake of a $28,000 budget cut by the City Council and Vice Chairman Heslip E. Sutherland said closure of the Pollard and Point Junior High Schools is possible in the future.

Quincy Chamber's Discover Quincy Days Spotlight Local History

Discover Quincy, the tourism agency of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, announces a new "Discover Quincy Days" program being offered this summer.

On four Saturdays (June 2, July 7, Aug. 4, and Sept. 1), visitors and residents can experience Quincy and all of its rich history with three different planned itineraries for one admission price.

Participants may purchase a Discover Quincy wristband for $5 that gives them admission for the day. Wristbands may be purchased in advance at the Adams Academy, Best Western Adams Inn, Coffee Break Café, and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

They may also be purchased on each Discover Quincy Day at the Adams Academy.

"Many visitors to Quincy are familiar with the Adams story and the National Historical Park tour of the birthplaces and the Old House at Peace field," said Donna Mavromates, Vice President and Director of Tourism for the Quincy Chamber. "Fewer are familiar with the 'Quincy' story, one of Massachusetts' leading families, and the Dorothy Quincy Homestead and Josiah Quincy House."

"We wanted to bring that inclusive experience to all visitors and residents alike and make it easy and affordable for them to enjoy more of Quincy's rich history this summer."

With the purchase of a wristband, visitors can enjoy one, two or all three planned itineraries in the same day. With the "Adams Experience," visitors embark on a trolley at the National Parks Visitors Center for a guided tour of the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, as well as the Old House at Peace field.

Upon their return, they will stroll down to the United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) for a guided tour of the church and the crypt, which is the final resting place of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, and First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine.

With the "Quincy Experience," visitors will begin at the Adams Academy/Quincy Historical Society for a guided tour of the museum. From there, provided transportation will take them to the Dorothy Quincy Homestead for a guided tour of the estate, which was the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy, wife of John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence and first governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Upon completion of the tour at the Quincy Homestead, provided transportation will bring visitors to the Josiah Quincy House. Built in 1770 as a country estate by revolutionary patriot Colonel Josiah Quincy, this colonial home served as a lookout point from which the patriots observed British ships traveling in and out of Boston Harbor.

The third itinerary is the "Walking Quincy Experience." Participants can explore Quincy's history by walking in the footsteps of John Adams.

A Walking Tour map will guide visitors from the Adams Academy/Quincy Historical Society down Hancock Street. Along the way, a variety of statues and markers, such as the John Adams and Abigail Adams/John Quincy Adams statues and Granite Ball are highlighted.

At the Hancock Cemetery, located across the street from the United First Parish Church, a historical interpreter will be on hand to guide visitors through the town's earliest cemetery.

The walking tour ends with a visit to the Thomas Crane Public Library and its magnificent Richardson Reading Room.

Religion And Science Series

Internationally-known author and speaker Dr. Karl Giberson will present an educational and entertaining lecture and discussion series that explores the conflicts, collisions, and missed opportunities between science and religion.

This free three-part series will be held Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. It is co-sponsored by St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church.

At the first session on May 29, the topic will be "Superstition vs. Enlightenment."

Popular culture contains a "metanarrative" about science and religion being at war. This story can be found in pulpits, on radio, or on less heady fare like television sitcoms. Dr. Giberson suggests that this popular picture is driven more by propaganda than history.

The second session, on June 5, will address the question: Can Science Replace Religion?

The final session, on June 12 will discuss Why the Controversy Won't Go Away.

Dr. Karl Giberson has lectured at many American venues and around the world and has published more than 150 articles, reviews, and essays, both technical and popular, written or co-authored eight books, and contributed to many edited volumes.

From 1984 to 2011, Giberson was a professor at Eastern Nazarene College where he created distinctive interdisciplinary courses and programs and taught courses in the history of science, critical thinking, contemporary issues, science & religion, as well as specialty seminars.

DA Morrissey Supports Prom Safety With Grants To City's Two High Schools

Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey has awarded Quincy two "Project Prom Sense" grants of $250 each again this year, helping to fund food, entertainment and supplies for the post-prom events organized to keep high-schoolers safe the night of the dance.

"We know that providing prom-goers with alcohol- and drug-free activities after the dance cuts into the pressure to drink that night, and increases the odds they will avoid taking chances on the road or elsewhere," Morrissey said. "I am pleased to support Quincy's commitment to making this a safe night again this year."

In addition to the two $250 Prom Sense grants Morrissey also awarded Quincy the same amount for last year's prom party. He awarded Quincy a $3,000 2011 School Safety Grant to install security systems at multiple schools. All five grants were drawn from money forfeited by drug dealers his office has prosecuted.

Police officers Lisa Devine and Thomas Gaeta, school nursing coordinator Jane Kisielius, NQHS nurse Mary Jane Callahan and Sterling nurse Dianne Coletti also attended the Underage Drinking Prevention Conference DA Morrissey hosted in October, which included sessions on prom and graduation season.

"Quincy obviously takes the well-being of our students seriously and is strong in seeking all the resources

Roasted Asparagus With Lemony Breadcrumbs

Years ago my mother bought a magazine called "You Are What You Eat" that I really enjoyed reading. And on the cover was a fresh bunch of asparagus.

A favorite of our family, we usually had creamed asparagus on toast, something I still make and enjoy.

Recently, I found a great recipe for roasted asparagus that hopefully you will enjoy as much as I did. And quite simple to prepare.

ROASTED ASPARAGUS WITH LEMONY BREADCRUMBS

2 pounds of asparagus (one or two bunches)
1-tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
Salt and pepper

½ cup Panko bread crumbs (Japanese bread crumbs)
Juice of ½ lemon and the zest

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Asparagus that are roasted on a high temperature guarantees a tender instead of a mushy texture.

Place asparagus on a rimmed baking sheet. Drizzle with olive oil, salt and pepper. Roast until tender (15 to 20 minutes). Transfer to a platter.

For the crumbs, melt the butter on medium heat. Add the Panko and cook until deep golden brown. Remove from heat.

Stir in the lemon juice and zest and blend with the crumbs. Drop over the asparagus when ready to serve so the crumbs will be crunchy and delicious. Enjoy.

Butterscotch Bread

While preparing for this column, I am always on the look-out for something new and different.

And so it was last week when I found a delicious recipe for butterscotch bread. Just the aroma alone while it was in the oven convinced me that it would be delicious.

And it went so well with my morning cup of coffee.

BUTTERSCOTCH BREAD

2 cups flour
1 ¼ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt

½ cup walnuts (I used pecans)
1 egg (slightly beaten)
1- cup brown sugar
1- cup buttermilk
1 tablespoon melted butter

In a bowl, add the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Add the walnuts and mix well.

Combine the egg, brown sugar, milk and melted butter and pour into the flour mixture. Stir enough to moisten the dry ingredients. Do not beat.

Turn the mixture in a greased loaf pan and bake in a 350 -degree oven for 45-50 minutes. Enjoy.

Fundraiser For Garrett Sapienza June 3

A fundraiser for Garrett Sapienza, 26, of Weymouth, who has been diagnosed with Hodgkin's Lymphoma, will be held Sunday, June 3 from 2 to 6 p.m. at Emerald Hall 120 Bay State Dr., Braintree.

Sapienza has lived in Weymouth all his life and graduated from Weymouth High School in 2004. He is currently employed at the Weymouth Post Office.

Sapienza attended Eastern Nazarene College and also worked at the Quincy YMCA.

Sapienza has recently been out of work battling this disease and will most likely be out for several more months with treatments. Because he is a full-time temporary employee at the post office, he has no disability benefits and his medical expenses are steadily increasing.

Hodgkin's Lymphoma is a type of cancer that originates from white blood cells called lymphocytes and can occur in young adults ages 15-35. Treatment for Hodgkin's Lymphoma requires high doses of chemo and/or radiation treatments over a long period of time.

To help Sapienza out during this difficult time, his family, friends and loved ones are holding the June 3 fundraiser.

Benefit tickets are $30 each and includes a buffet catered by the Fox & Hound Restaurant in Quincy, DJ, raffles and cash bar.

For tickets, contact Karen Lea at 781-331-4082.

Monetary gifts can be made directly online at garrettsapienza.bbnw.org or donations can be mailed to Garrett Sapienza Hodgkins Fundraiser, c/o Nicole Lea, 117 Norton St., North Weymouth, MA 02191.

Committee members are also seeking donations of company gift cards, products or services that can be raffled at the benefit. All donations are appreciated.

All contributions, gift certificates, donations must be in by Sunday, May 27 to ensure sufficient time to organize the event.

Divas Dance Raises Over $40,000 For Domestic Violence Ended

DOVE, Inc., (Domestic Violence Ended) recently held its second annual Divas Dance for DOVE at the Wollaston Golf Club in Milton.

More than 250 women from the South Shore and greater Boston area attended the event in support of ending domestic violence.

Through the support of event sponsors, Divas Deal Card sponsors, and the "dancing divas" who attended, the event raised more than $40,000, doubling the set goal of $20,000.

Sponsors included Linda Hooley, Lussier Family Foundation, South Coastal Bank, South Coast Dermatology and Cosmetic Center, Dr. Susan DeCoste and Dr.

Teresa Degiacomo, Granite Links Golf Course, Marr Charitable Foundation, South Shore YMCA and Germantown Neighborhood Center, and Roche Brothers.

All proceeds from the event will support DOVE's critically important domestic violence services and prevention efforts within the communities of Norfolk County, including Quincy.

DOVE is the only domestic violence organization and shelter based in Norfolk County. DOVE's essential programs include an emergency shelter providing a safe haven for victims and their children, 24-hour hotline, supportive counseling and information, legal services, community-based family advocacy services, educational and support groups, services through the Quincy, Randolph and Holbrook police departments, and training and education for service providers and community members.

Over the last three decades, DOVE has sheltered more than 4,600 families and answered more than 40,000 crisis hotline calls.

DOVE recently relocated its main office and opened the DOVE Community Advocacy and Prevention Services office in Wollaston.

DeCristofaro Presents $91.3M School Budget - Up $1.8M

By EMILY TAFT

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro spoke with school committee members at the May 16th meeting about a proposed budget plan for next year. DeCristofaro presented a budget of $91.3 million, which is up $1.8 million from last year's budget.

The proposed plan suggests a number of different changes, including the addition of five academic classroom teachers, 10 special education aids, two new office aids, and two new sports trainers at both high schools. The five new teachers will include a new English Language Learner (ELL) teacher, a new literacy teacher, and two special education teachers. There will also be two new positions for nurses and 1.3 new positions for guidance.

"When you build a budget you go from the students and academic classroom teachers, looking at class size, and then going out to the end of the chart (Non-Academic Expenses)," said DeCristofaro. "When you are reducing, you protect those students, those teachers, those programs, and you go from your expenses in.

"Fortunately, this year, we are building so we are looking at the inside, looking at the students and the academic classroom teachers to see where we go."

The proposed budget also calls for additional funding to allow student athletes to play a 20-game schedule instead of 15 games, which adds an additional $35,000 to the budget. The five extra games were originally paid for by the booster clubs of the major sports teams, but now with the plan for the additional funding they will no longer have to rely on boosters to get those extra games in each season. The additional games also allow the teams to participate in tournaments.

DeCristofaro said that the suggested money is not to bring back freshman sports.

The superintendent said they looked at eight different areas in the school system, first and foremost the students, then the academic classroom teachers, academic programs, academic support, non-academic support, subsidized programs, academic expenses, and non-academic expenses.

Funding for this year's budget comes from three main sources: the Mayor's appropriation of $88.88 million, projected circuit breaker funding of $2.46 million and the elimination of the Education Jobs Grant Funding, which is a decrease of $1.29 million.

The funding allows for an additional $500,000 to address class size, academic programs, and academic support, along with meeting contractual obligations. DeCristofaro said that the most important thing in the budget is maintaining the class sizes.

"The most important thing in our budget right now is the class sizes," said DeCristofaro. "Fortunately we will be within those guidelines."

Mayor Thomas Koch also provided $828,000 in additional funding for technology upgrades and purchases in all five middle schools and North Quincy High School. The budget for electrical costs went up by $81,400 to meet the demands of new technology.

The recommended budget plans also asks for an increase in overtime funds for bus drivers. An additional $50,000 has been added to reflect actual overtime usage of bus drivers for contractual, athletic, and other uses. The proposed budget also asks for decreased funding for gasoline by $50,000 in maintenance, special education transportation, and transportation.

Also included in the proposed budget is a request for $3.025 million for custodial duties in all schools, and $1.04 million for general maintenance. The two proposed amounts are no different from last year but come June 13th the budget for the maintenance department will be very different if the committee members vote in favor of combining the school maintenance with the city maintenance department. The school maintenance department right now has a staff of 17 and if combined with the city, 15 of its members along with the department head and secretary will no longer be included in the school budget.

Even though most of the school maintenance staff will be handed over to the city, the plan is to keep two bus mechanics as a part of the school budget, which will be an estimated $97,187 in the budget instead of $1.4 million. According to James Mullaney, the Director of Business Affairs for Quincy Public Schools, if the school committee votes through combining the city and school maintenance departments the school system can take over $1.3 million out of their budget, after a full year of only having the two mechanics on the school staff. That extra money being saved does not go back into the school system, but will be transferred to the city at some point.

The next meeting of the budget and finance subcommittee is today (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. on the second floor of the NAGE building.

A public hearing on the budget will be held Wednesday, June 6th at City Hall.

Many school committee members agreed that although the future meetings on the budget will be heated, the proposed plan by DeCristofaro is a good start.

"I think we are moving in the right direction, I think it is a solid start. We have 43 percent of the budget concentrated on adding teachers," said committee member Dave McCarthy. "There is still a lot of communities out there that are struggling and going in the opposite direction, Quincy has held itself together. I look forward to our spirited budget subcommittee meetings."

Velocity Dance Company Performs At QCA Multicultural Night

Dancers performed an energetic choreographed dance based on an African tribal initiation of a chosen tribal queen.

The owners of the studio, Vincent and Erica Famador, were very excited and honored to be part of this night of sharing wonderful cultures around the globe organized by Tracey Dooley and Noelle Spear.

Other performers put on a great show such as local Irish Step Dancers, Modern Taekwondo, Zumba, Shamoyita Mukherjee, and students from Quincy Catholic Academy performing traditional Indian dance in celebration of the Multicultural Night.

After the performances, the audience was treated with an International Fashion show put on by the students. Cassidy Mullin, age 4, was one of the favorite models of the night donning a Vietnamese New Year's dress.

The night also featured other educational experiences that took guests "around the world" by visiting booths that offered interesting information about each country such as China, Italy, India, France, and Africa.

The Italy booth offered a tasting of Pizzelle, a traditional Italian cookie and Bruschetta, and the China booth treated guests with their name hand-written by a stroke of a paint brush in Chinese characters.

There was a silent auction that featured items such as Red Sox tickets, autographed pictures by professional sport players, products and services offered by local businesses.

Velocity Dance Company opened its doors on Billings Road in North Quincy in September 2009. Dancers have performed in many events throughout the city of Quincy.

"We have been honored by many local schools, charities, church organizations, and senior communities have welcomed us to share our love in dance by performing and putting smiles to our local community," said Vincent Famador.

cludes breakdowns of how the square footage in each redeveloped would be used. Paul Hines, the assistant city solicitor working on redevelopment issues, said that those numbers were still subject to change, and had actually changed after the initial proposal was given to the state last May.

"This is one of the latest iterations, but admittedly not the latest," Hines said. "This is a project that one of the reasons it was rather fluid in the LD and continues to be is that it reacts to market demands...it's constantly evolving."

Hines went on to explain that those numbers would be formalized in an infrastructure development assistance agreement (IDAA) between the city, state, and Beale/Street-Works that would be signed prior to the bonds being issued. In response to that, Councillor Doug-Gutro asked if the council would have any input if the usage of space in the parcels changed.

"Do we get a do-over here," Gutro asked. "If these projections for the 17 parcels aren't accurate, and things change because of market demand, will it come back before the council? Is there one more vote for us to take after this vote where we have perhaps more solid square footage figures from which calculation will be derived, or is that solely based on data that the executive branch has at that moment?"

Hines said that the state would re-run the numbers based on the IDAA. If at that time the state projected a greater financial risk to the city than it currently projects, the City Council would need to take another vote on the plan.

"There is flexibility in the regulations and the statute to allow the plan to be implemented in the real world - to shift buildings around, square footage, usage, whatever it takes," Hines said. "The numbers will be run by DOR (state Department of Revenue) and if the risk or the exposure to the city is changed to negative, they can scale-back...but nothing can go to the bad without council authorization."

During the meeting, it was also revealed that the council would need to approve the creation of a municipal liquidity reserve when they approve the final proposal. The reserve would be used to pay off any shortfall in state revenue. It needs to equal two years worth of debt service payments, which would be $6.7 million if $50 million in bonds were taken out - though it's expected less would be needed to be bonded because of about $10 million in grants received for Town Brook work.

Hines said the city is weighing different options to create the reserve. He said it could be funded by buying a letter of credit from a bank, purchasing insurance, or even by using bond money. The city would choose a method before the council votes, and Hines said following the presentation that the intent is to fund the reserve with income generated by the redevelopment.

Under the city's land disposition agreement, the city has until the end of this June to secure the financing, or else Beale/Street-Works would have the option of delaying its purchase of the Ross Garage. Hines said the whether or not the developer chooses to extend their deadline, the core improvements need to take place.

"They could opt not to extend," Hines said, "but in effect the project can't happen. We need to have Adams Green and we need to have the bridge...whether they actively opt to extend or not, the city still has the obligation to perform and provide those infrastructures."

A public hearing on the I-cubed application will be held Thursday, May 31 at 7 p.m. in the new City Hall Council Chambers.

Copies of the full proposal are available for public viewing in the City Clerk's office at 1245 Hancock St., the Planning Department's office inside City Hall at 1305 Hancock St., the Thomas Crane Library's main branch at 40 Washington St., and online at quincy.gov.

Croall: 1-Day Suspension Of Bar Didn't Go Far Enough

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall criticized the License Board's one-day suspension of a Quincy Point bar, saying it didn't go far enough.

The board unanimously voted last Wednesday to force Yaz's Place, located at 132 East Howard St., to remain closed on Saturday, June 2. The suspension was handed after an incident on April 28, when neighbors called the police to report they heard gunshots. When police arrived at the bar's parking, an officer was assaulted.

Croall, who spoke at the License Board meeting, said the nature of the incident merited a harsher penalty. He said he'd have preferred either a longer suspension, or a rollback of the bar's hours.

"The penalties were certainly not stiff enough," Croall said in a phone interview Monday. "I would like to see them leave Quincy Point - It could have been a harder punishment."

License Board Chairman Joe Shea defended the board's decision. He said that in most cases violators receive a written warning notice, but they suspended the bar for a day because gunshots were involved. Shea also added that the city would be keeping closer tabs on the bar as a result of the incident, which could include an additional police presence in the area and city inspectors to ensure the bar isn't breaking Quincy's noise ordinance.

"We'll be monitoring them very, very closely," Shea said Monday.

Any problems at Yaz's Place before June 2 will result in a return to the Board, commissioners ruled at their May 15th meeting. The board also said any further incidents found to be against rules and regulations or Massachusetts state law would be dealt with accordingly.

Croall said he's heard numerous complaints about the bar from residents in the neighborhood, adding that it was one of the first issues he heard about once he took office. Those residents have voiced their displeasure at the one-day suspension to their councillor.

"They were disappointed," Croall said. "How would you feel about a bar in a residential area where they're shooting and frisking their customers?"

Croall also felt the board's February decision to upgrade the bar's cabaret license to an entertainment license didn't help clear up problems at the bar. He said the bar's owner Yaser Mohammad had promised the bar would transition to a blue's club, something Croall said hasn't happen.

"It became a black and blue on the neighborhood," Croall said, "not a blues club."

BLACK BEAUTIES

They may be popularly referred to as "black pearls," but dark-colored pearls actually come in a spectrum of colors, from piano-key black to silver-gray. The most desirable and highly valued of these black beauties go by the names "fly wing" and "peacock," which refer to pearls with a green iridescence. Most black pearls come from French Polynesia, where they are produced solely from a species of oyster known as the "black-lipped" pearl oyster (Pinctada margaritifera). First introduced to the European market in 1845, black pearls got their first boost in popularity from Empress Eugenie, the wife of Napoleon III. It wasn't until the 1970s that the black beauties became popular in the United States, where they have remained so ever since.

These unique black pearls are the perfect accessory for any outfit; you will radiate a timeless elegance. Our professional and knowledgeable staff will work with you to make sure you have the best buying experience possible. With so many colors to choose from, you'll want one of each. Serving Wounded Warriors And Survivors Of Fallen Heroes

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

It's an American tradition to pay tribute to the men and women of the Armed Forces each Memorial Day — especially honoring those who have made the ultimate sacrifice while serving our country.

If you are a military service member who was wounded and needs to apply for disability benefits, it's important to know that you will receive expedited processing. Our wounded warriors initiative is for military service members who become disabled while on active duty on or after October 1, 2001, regardless of where the disability occurs. Depending on the situation, some family members of military personnel, including dependent children and, in some cases, spouses, may be able to receive benefits. Learn more about it at www.socialsecurity.gov/woundedwarriors.

Did you know that May also is National Military Appreciation Month? Even more reason to let members of our military know how much we value what they do for us and our nation.

To learn more about the Social Security benefits for those who have served in the military, read our publication, Military Service and Social Security. You can find it online at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10017.html, or send us an email at OPI.Net.Post@ssa.gov, or call us at 1-800-772-1213 (TTY 1-800-325-0778) to ask for a free copy to be mailed to you.

Memorial Day also is a good time to remind families of fallen military heroes that we may be able to pay Social Security survivors benefits. If the person you depended on for income has died, you should apply for survivors benefits. Learn more about Social Security survivors benefits at www.socialsecurity.gov/pgm/survivors.htm.

The men and women of the Armed Forces serve us each and every day. At Social Security, we're here to serve them too.

Quincy Salvation Army Losing Its Captain Heather Odom Heading To Army's School For Officer Training

By EMILY TAFT

After only a year of running the Quincy Salvation Army, Captain Heather Odom will be moving on to work for the Salvation Army's School for Officer Training Salvation Army in Suffern, N.Y. next month.

"I think I will miss the people here the most," said Odom who departs Quincy for New York June 27.

"The Quincy community has been very welcoming and loving. I just love the people here. It is very bittersweet."

Odom, who moved to Quincy from her hometown of Tennessee, said she will be heading to New York to help at the Salvation Army's School for Officer Training where she will be teaching social work courses, along with overseeing the preschool and after school programs.

"It will be nice to be able to teach again," said Odom. "I will be getting the new officers ready to go out into the community."

This will be the third time Odom will be working in New York, but the first time she will be helping at the school. She received the call recently about the move and has yet to have time to wrap her head around leaving. "I am still trying to wrap my head around moving," said Odom. "I am going to miss all of the people in Quincy. They have made me feel at home here. I have fallen in love with this community, it has been a real joy to be here."

Although it has only been a year, Odom has accomplished a lot while serving the Quincy community, and she will continue to up until her very last day, by organizing a kids camp for this summer. Odom has helped coordinate a number of different events throughout the year including the holiday kettle drive and the senior women's lunch group, which she says she is most proud of.

Odom said she started the senior women's group, which is held during the day, because she believed it was something the organization and Quincy needed.

"I think it was a need that we had, to start the senior women's group," said Odom. "It's more of an activity group than anything. We have lunch, that I cook, and we have activities and themes for each Thursday meeting."

Odom added that they have around 12 to 14 women come to the meetings and that there is no cost to attend the meetings.

One of Odom's biggest accomplishments was the kettle and bell fundraiser during the holiday season, which raised over $147,000 that went towards different needs in the Quincy community. Odom helped to serve over 450 families during the holiday season, along with handing out many scarves, gloves, winter hats, and toys for those in need. Odom also helped to start a youth band for the church, which is a new addition this year. Other projects Odom has managed throughout the year include giving out toys and meals during the holidays, having a rental and utilities assistance program, and providing an after school program.

For Odom, moving around is something she has done since she was a little kid. She grew up in the military and decided to join the Salvation Army because she was able to help people spiritually as well as through her experience in social work, which she has her master's degree in.

"I just started laying down ties here and meeting people, but this is what I signed up for," said Odom. "I grew up military, and I knew when I signed up for this job I would have to move whenever and where ever they needed me to. You always know going in that you could be at that place for a year, you could be there for two years; you can be there for six. I have two more months to serve this community, it's a very bittersweet thing."

On June 27th a husband and wife team, Lt. Tim and Nicole Ross, will arrive to pick up where Odom will be leaving off. She said the one thing she would tell them is to "just love their people." A farewell service and reception for Odom will be held Sunday, June 24th at the Quincy Corps, 6 Baxter St., Quincy.

All are welcome to attend.

"I will certainly miss all of her community interactions," said Don Uvanitte, chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

"She was a nice person to work with, and had a great outreach to the community. I think that is one of the things I will miss most; she was able to touch people young and old in such a positive way. She not only made an impact in the Quincy community but in the ministry as well."

Salvation Army Camp For Children June 22-27

The Quincy Salvation Army is offering a week long camp from June 22nd to the 27th for children ages 6 to 12.

Around 30 kids from Quincy will enjoy a week full of activities and sports at Camp Wonderland in Sharon. Parents are required to pay a non-refundable $25 application fee and $7 canteen fee; the rest of the cost is covered by donations made to the Salvation Army by the citizens of Quincy.

"We want every child to have a chance to go to camp this summer," said Captain Heather Odom. "The camp offers three well balanced and nutritional meals a day, two snacks, and there is always a registered nurse on site."

The camp has been providing affordable over night, summer alternative solutions for over 75 years. It is located on 110 acres of land in Sharon on Lake Massapoag. Activities include nature walks, arts and crafts, a ropes course, water activities, recreation, pioneering, and a camp store.

Spaces are limited and those chosen are on a first come first served basis. Campers must have a physical signed by their doctor and dated within a 12-month period of going to camp. Application deadline is June 8.

An open house for parents and children will be held at the camp June 17th from 4 to 7 p.m. For more information, 617-472-2345.

Quincy Medical Center Renovations OK'd

The Quincy Planning Board last Wednesday approved the renovation and construction of a new entry lobby at Quincy Medical Center, located at 114 Whitwell St., with conditions issued by Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington.

The plan, submitted by Stantec Planning and Landscape Architecture, P.C., calls for the construction of a new entry lobby and exterior canopy to be used as a patient drop off area, additional handicap parking spaces, and landscaped islands to be added for aesthetic purposes.

Before any construction can begin, a regrading of the parking lot will need to be conducted to ensure that an effective stormwater management plan is put into place.

Additionally, a parking study will be executed and presented to the board, and consultants for approval. The study will include vehicular and pedestrian circulation improvements, and parking improvements focusing on demand. Consideration will be paid to ensure pedestrian access and safety at roadway crossings, and a painted crosswalk will be created from the "Doctor's Lot" to a nearby sidewalk.

Sketches will be provided illustrating snow storage locations on paved locations. In lieu of sketches, an operation plan to remove snow from the hospital site may be provided.

It is expected that a total of six, non-handicap parking spaces will be eliminating due to the anticipated renovations.

The above conditions come at the request of Beals + Thomas, Inc., an environmental engineering consulting firm, the Department of Public Works, and Vannasse & Associates, Inc., a traffic engineering and transportation planning firm.

Committee Postpones Vote On Community Service As Graduation Requirement

By EMILY TAFT

After careful consideration and much debate, the Quincy School Committee decided to put making community service a graduation requirement on the back burner until sometime next year.

The committee did not vote on the potentially new requirement due to the many missing pieces in the proposed plan.

"It is more complicated than I anticipated," said School Committeeman Paul Bregoli. "We are respectful of the input that we are getting from our colleagues, and we are taking into consideration all our your concerns. We are hoping that possibly, fingers crossed, implementing it sometime in October of the upcoming school year."

Bregoli said that he has been working with School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro since the last school committee meeting on May 2nd to figure out the best way to implement the plan and to also figure out the nuts and

MacRitchie's Contract Expiring

Search Begins For New Housing Authority Director

By KRISTINA KALABOKAS

This month's meeting of the Quincy Housing Authority wasn't business as usual, as discussion focused on the search for a new executive director.

Current executive director Joseph A. MacRitchie stirred up controversy after accusing the city of overcharging the housing authority almost $2 million in water and sewer fees.

According to MacRitchie, proper meter reads were not performed for 24 accounts at the Snug Harbor Residences between 1995 and 2009, leading to incorrect estimates and erroneous rate increases.

City officials opposed his claim with reports of difficulty accessing water meters which, at times, were allegedly found to be broken or even disconnected.

Additionally, MacRitchie has made allegations stating the housing authority has been improperly charged an 80 percent sewer rate, as opposed to the 70 percent rate which is commonly applied to property owners who don't pay taxes.

"We do step up and we try to make strides but, you know, I suppose the city would be happy if we said we'll give up on the multi-million dollar overcharges of the water bills," said MacRitchie. "The financial viability of the housing authority depends on us pursuing those matters and I don't apologize for pursuing the matters."

"We're very concerned about our relationship with the city on a number of issues," said Commissioner Deacon John Menz, who stressed the importance of repairing the strained relationship between the two government bodies.

MacRitchie said he feels the frustration resulting from his accusations has been improperly cast. "I think a lot of it has to do with the message, and not the messenger," he said.

MacRitchie's contract ended in early May, however he will retain his position until mid-2013, when a replacement executive director will be instated.

The evening's agenda also called for representatives of the Mayor's Commission on the Family to address the board regarding the placement of seven families as part of the Transitional Housing Program, which provides short-term housing to families facing eviction who have children in the Quincy Public School System.

The program, which was started in 1998 by the city of Quincy, obtained permission from the Department of Housing and Community Development, or DHCD, to utilize apartments at the Snug Harbor Development for the expressed purpose of housing families temporarily, who would then be expected to vacate the units, and find housing independent of the housing authority.

The DHCD eventually went on to create its own transitional housing program, which allowed for participants to integrate into public housing, as opposed to its city-established counterpart. The housing authority and Mayor's Commission on the Family joined forces with the DHCD in providing housing units and counseling to those residents, respectively.

Problems arose in 2011, when the Mayor's Commission on the Family ended its participation in both transitional housing programs. Nine families which were part of the original, city-sponsored program were unable to be placed on the wait list for family housing and as such, failed to meet state regulations to be placed in public housing.

To prevent homelessness of the affected families, the housing authority requested a waiver of state regulations on eligibility, so that seven of the nine suitable families could be placed in public housing.

Two families who did not pass the screening process were served eviction notices. One has since left, however one tenant refuses to vacate her unit. The conditions by which the city, and the housing authority agreed upon state that the ineligible families must vacate housing authority property before a binding tenant-landlord relationships can be formed with the remaining seven families.

As it stands, the seven families do not pay rent, as they have no one to pay it to.

"It's almost backwards to think that we should waste time trying to relocate [the one tenant] while we could be leasing up these seven right now," said a representative for the Mayor's Commission on the Family. "We are not opposed to sharing the cost of evicting that tenant," she said. "She's basically a squatter of the housing authority."

"We can't send them a notice [yet] that says we're terminating the lease because we never signed a lease with them," said MacRitchie, who plans to proceed with the eviction process once clarifications are made with the DHCD.

Complaints made by Regina Jones-Jenkins of the Harborview Residents Committee, Inc., at last month's meeting regarding inadequately heated units at the Snug Harbor and West Acres developments, were addressed in a memo distributed to board members.

According to a thermal study conducted by an engineer acquired by the housing authority, the heating systems "provide adequate heat to the units and can distribute the heat appropriately to all rooms within the unit."

'Landlubbers Cruise' Benefits Quincy Teen Mothers Program

The Quincy Teen Mothers Program recently held its 21th Annual Fundraiser, titled "The Landlubbers Cruise," at the Tirrell Room in Quincy.

The event was attended by 175 supporters and friends of QTMP.

Mayor Tom Koch presented citations to Janice Walsh from the House of Representatives and from the City of Quincy for her 38 years of service to the Quincy Public School System.

Music was donated by "Musical Menu," with DJ Brian McCluskey.

Many attendees enjoyed the donated raffle items and had fun participating in the Silent Auction which was organized by Janice's mother, Ellen Leahy.

Approximately 20 alumni attended, representing classes from as far back as 1990.

The Board Members spent many hours preparing decorations, gathering donations, and selling tickets. The staff work tirelessly every day in the classrooms and nurseries of QTMP, and then continued to work at the event selling raffle tickets and working the Auction Tables.

Over $7,000 raised during the evening will be used

Large Turtle Stumps Walkers But It's A Snapper

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy native George Miller and his daughter came across an impressively sized turtle in the area of Moswetuset Hummock during a recent stroll through the historic wooded area near the northern end of Wollaston Beach.

Miller, who now lives in Vancouver, and his youngest daughter, Mary Margaret Miller, saw what appeared to be a large sea turtle or tortoise in the Hummocks area near where he played as a kid.

"I used to hide in the well (now filled in) when we played cowboys and Indians during the war years," Miller said, now 75 and a retired clerk magistrate living in Vancouver.

"He or she was just sitting there," Miller said referring to the turtle. "At first I thought it was a statue. Then he started to move."

Miller e-mailed the Sun a few photos of the turtle.

We, in turn, sent the photos to Tony LaCasse, the media relations director for the New England Aquarium.

The turtle, it turned out, is a large female snapping turtle. The fresh, loose dirt on her shell is indicative of digging a nest.

"It is definitely an impressive looking snapping turtle," LaCasse said. "It was positively identified by Scott Dowd, our long-term and prominent freshwater biologist from Weymouth. He said it was most likely a female out laying eggs."

"They often cross roads and ask for people to be aware of turtles at this time of year when driving near lakes, ponds or rivers."

LaCasse said snapping turtles in Massachusetts will be laying eggs until mid-June. "The state record weight for a snapper is 75 pounds. Snapping turtles can be aggressive on land as they are very vulnerable, which is a reasonable response. In the water, they will avoid people."

Here is some information from Massachusetts Audubon that can keep both snapping turtles and people safe:

often believe there is something wrong because it is out of water. They mistakenly attempt to return it to water, or worse, take it home or even worse, take it somewhere that seems to be safer and release it. First educate the caller and explain the reason for the turtle's journey.

A Day Of Bocce And Friendly Competition

FACES IN THE CROWD – The most popular event in the annual Senior Olympic Games is the bocce tournament, which was held last week at the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club. The men's competition ran from 9 a.m. to noon and the women's competition was held in the afternoon.

67 Competed In Bocce Tournament Last Week It's A Women's World This Year At Senior Games

By SEAN BRENNAN

In the earliest years Olympians taking part in the annual Quincy Senior Games were majority male. Since the mid-1980s, the ten-day period of friendly competition has seen an upswing in the number of participants competing each year, and the number one reason for this increased rate of competitors has been the influx of women.

The 2012 Senior Games are no different.

According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, the breakdown of male-to-female ratio is 60/40 in favor of women. Women are competing in high numbers in events ranging from swimming, bowling, darts, billiards, track & field events and golf, but the one event that has recently become the be-all-end-all for women to compete in is bocce.

Last Thursday at the Torre Dei Passeri Club on Washington Street, 67 women (16 teams of four plus an additional three) took to the two 90-foot courts at the back of the club to participate in the Senior Olympics' bocce tournament. After a full slate of matches in the afternoon, the team of Genevieve Berton, Linda Queripel, Joyce King, Janet Powers and Ina Williamson took home the gold medal, but as is the case with every event during the Senior Games, it isn't who wins, but instead it is about getting out and remaining active while meeting with new friends and getting reacquainted with old friends along the way.

"I have been competing in the Senior Games for four years," said Olympian Evelyn Sodec over a lunch of chicken and pasta at the Torre Dei Passeri Club. "I didn't know how to play bocce until I started doing it at the Senior Olympics, but it is a large amount of fun. The people are very nice and we have a lot of fun. The number one reason I compete is because it is a great get-together and a great way to meet new people."

Sodec, like most of the women competing in the Senior Games, circles the ten days, starting the Monday after Mother's Day, on her calendar as a mark down date to come together and enjoy some friendly competition. But when it comes to bocce, she is out to win.

"I love coming here," she added, "but I am definitely looking to win. I am also entered to do the darts, the billiards, bowling, the horseshoe throw, and the basketball (free throw). I look forward to this all year long; it is so much fun."

Sitting at the same table as Sodec, Olympian Ellen O'Brien started competing in the bocce tournament in recent years but she competed in other events once she turned 55 (the earliest age competitors can compete in Quincy). She hasn't missed a Senior Games since.

"I have been doing the bocce and the Senior Games only since I retired, which is about 12 years," O'Brien said about her Olympic docket in recent years.

"But when I turned 55, that's the age you can come," she added about her first foray into the Quincy Senior Olympics, "I took a day off from work and I did the basketball and the horseshoes, and until I retired that is what I used to always do. I am doing the bocce this year and I'll do the horseshoes and the basketball free throw, and on Saturday (May 19) I'll do the field events and the softball throw."

Like every competitor, O'Brien uses the Senior Games as a way to stay active in mind, body and soul.

"It is a good way to stay active," she said. "You get to see people every year and meet new people when they turn 55. It is very interesting and a lot of fun."

The silver medal team included Olympians Phyllis O'Leary, Margaret Goselin, Helen LaRose and Marilyn Masciulli while the bronze medal team included Susan Dargan, Diana Bates, Yvonne Tang, Nancy Cirillo and Barbara Thomas.

The 2012 Senior Olympic Games conclude tonight (Thursday) with an Awards Night beginning at 6 p.m. at the Kennedy Center on East Squantum Street. A half-hour refreshment period will be held from 6-6:30 p.m. with an awards ceremony set for 6:30 p.m.

North Quincy Walks Off With 5-4 Over Quincy

By SEAN BRENNAN

Senior Joe Alibrandi's eighth inning double scored Chris Kerin with the game-winning run as North Quincy (6-12 overall) finished off rival Quincy, 5-4, in walk-off fashion last Thursday at Adams Field.

Quincy had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the eighth off North Quincy senior Tim Liuzzo (eight innings, four strikeouts) on a run scoring single by Bobby Salvucci (two RBI), but the Red Raiders rallied in their last at-bat. Junior Patrick Gould tied the contest at 4-4 with a RBI single as Kerin moved into scoring position on the play. Alibrandi then sent everyone home with his clutch knock.

But the story of the game was the pitching duel between a pair of grizzled seniors. Liuzzo, North Quincy's ace, went all eight innings, as did Quincy's ace Adam Nazzaro who finished with six strikeouts.

Quincy got on the board in the first inning when John Marsinelli drove in sophomore Matt Davis with the game's first run. However, Liuzzo tied it at 1-1 in the bottom of the frame as his single plated Gould.

North Quincy's Andrew Currie gave the Red Raiders their first lead of the game in the bottom of the fifth. The speedy sophomore came around to score on a passed ball, which gave the home team a 2-1 advantage. But the young Quincy squad answered right back in the top of the sixth.

Nazzaro helped his own cause with a game-tying sacrifice fly, which scored Davis and Salvucci drove in his first run with a hit that scored John O'Callaghan that gave the Presidents a 3-2 lead.

Down to their last at-bat, the Red Raiders rallied in the bottom of the seventh to send the game to extra frames. The biggest hit came from Liuzzo. His line shot down the third base line tied the score at 3-3. Nazzaro, to his credit, escaped any more damage, stranding the winning run at third base.

Salvucci responded with a RBI hit in the top of the eighth, but Alibrandi and North Quincy rallied in the bottom of the frame to take a second decision over the Presidents this spring.

The Red Raiders defeated Quincy, 1-0, back in early April.

North Quincy and Quincy warp up their regular seasons this week and both will miss out on the state tournament, but the future looks bright for two up-and-coming programs.

Note: Several members of North Quincy and Quincy will join forces starting in early June when they suit up as members of either the Morrisette American Legion Senior or Junior teams. A preview of these programs will appear in an upcoming issue of the paper.

Friendly Regatta Set For June 3 In Hingham

Q-NQ Rowing Team Finding Sea Legs

By SEAN BRENNAN

A spitting rain did nothing to dampen the spirits of the Quincy-North Quincy rowing team's afterschool practice at the Bay Pointe Marina in Quincy Point early last week.

The team, made up of boys and girls, some more experienced than others, seemed to take the weather in stride. Getting wet was nothing new to them.

In its infancy, rowing in the Quincy Public Schools is slowly gaining traction. It appeals to athletes of all sizes. But it is not for the faint of heart. The sport requires its athletes to bring forth total dedication and resolve; for a program that seems a perfect fit in a city with 27 miles of shoreline, this group of die-hards are the pioneers for the future of the newest venture in high school athletics.

Discovering one's ability to reach deep within, rekindling old friendships and making new ones, while working together in a team atmosphere to achieve success are the driving forces for those involved.

"This is the second season we have done it, and I have been here since the beginning," said QHS tenth grader Cecilia Theberge. "I didn't have a sport that I was already doing, but crew really attracted me because no one had ever really done it before, so I joined and I loved it."

"When I first joined it was a wide-variety of people that I didn't know very well," added Theberge. "It was such a small group when we started and we became like a family."

Theberge and her teammates practice Monday thru Thursday and during the first two weeks of each season the team focuses their efforts on improving cardiovascular endurance and muscular strength through exercises that hit major muscle groups including quads, biceps, triceps, lats, glutes and abdominal.

Very quickly it becomes apparent which participants can take it and which ones bow out.

"We do a lot of strength training and circuits," Theberge said. "The first two weeks (of the season) is just working out. Rowing is your whole body; you row with your arms and legs and you bend your core, so we have to make sure that everybody who joins the team is up to those physical standards."

"That two-week period is the trail period and we lose a lot of kids in that time because they don't want to do the exercise; what they don't realize is that once you are done with that you get right into rowing."

A Family Circle

Rowing is not a sport for someone looking for individual fame.

At Quincy-North Quincy it takes a family of four rowers and a coxswain to guide a boat from Point A to Point B. If even one rower is off with their stroke, the potential for the boat to tilt or even flip is increased.

Therefore, communication and trust are paramount for a successful ride, which is exactly what draws different types of student-athletes to the sport.

"I had friends in another town that did crew and they told me it was really fun," said NQHS sophomore Emily Mottolo. "I like how it is a team sport and how it is really important that everyone work together because otherwise the boat could flip."

Tim Nazzaro, a junior at QHS, joined the rowing team this spring after spending his fall afternoons as a member of the Presidents' football team. For him, rowing and football, though different in obvious ways are also quite similar when it comes to teamwork and effort.

"I got involved (in crew) because I heard it was good exercise and I thought it would be fun," he said. "There are a lot of similarities (between football and crew). Crew is more cardio while football is more lifting, but the camaraderie is really important in both sports."

"In crew there is no one real superstar," Nazzaro added, "it is a group effort. I hope the sport doesn't (fade) out because it is a really great sport to get involved in."

Nazzaro's concern that rowing may be a flash in the pan in Quincy isn't lost on coach Alicia Golden, herself a former rower at the University of New Hampshire. But for Golden it isn't so much that the sport may come and go, instead she hopes that more and more Quincy and North Quincy students come out and give the sport a try.

"Retention is really important because if we are starting from scratch every season, we are starting from scratch every season," she said matter-of-factly when asked the No. 1 way rowing in Quincy can thrive. "There is no youth program so these kids don't even know the terminology (when the first come to practice). The first few weeks, it is very basic and unfortunately it is slow paced and that turns a lot of kids off, but it has to be that way."

"As we get more and more kids who know what they are doing, they can lead by example instead of (the coaches) having to explain it every single day because if you miss a day, you are behind," Golden added. "It is a lot easier to learn by watching other kids do it and the nice part about being a brand new sport is that they are all on the same level. All these kids are starting from a basic level."

The anticipated success of crew in the QPS extends beyond the family circle of North Quincy and Quincy. Rowing is an expensive sport.

Quincy Sun photos/Emily Taft

The boats and maintenance needed cost a lot of money, so Golden and Coach Matt Conso give a ton of credit to the members of the Thayer Academy crew team and its coaches who have generously donated boats and equipment to assist Quincy-North Quincy's maiden voyage. But their goal is to become self-sufficient; it just may take some time to do that.

"Having Thayer's support has been huge," said Golden. "The program wouldn't exist without them but obviously we don't want to have to rely on them forever. The equipment is very expensive and I feel like we are in that limbo stage where we don't know what that next season holds."

"This is a unique sport for the high school level and ideally we would like to grow the program," added Conso, who also rowed at UNH. "We want to expose kids to other sports besides football, basketball, etc. Eventually we want our own boats and ideally we would like it to be a Quincy team and a North Quincy team."

Sunday, June 3

The Quincy-North Quincy rowing team is getting to where they can begin competing in competitive races with other local programs. They are not there yet; however, on Sunday, June 3, Quincy-North Quincy, along with at least five other schools will be taking part in a friendly regatta at the Lincoln Maritime Center, 23 Summer Street, Hingham Center.

"We are just getting a hang of the whole rowing thing," said Nazzaro, "and on June 3 in Hingham we are going to get the opportunity to compete against some other schools. It should be a fun time and we are all really looking forward to that."

For Golden and Conso, the June 3 regatta allows their team to get a taste of competition against some good programs, and it hopefully will spark a fire for the team to continue to put in the exercise and work hard in preparation for the 2012 fall season.

"It is nice to give the kids something to look forward to," Golden said about the regatta that will feature teams from neighboring Milton, Hingham and several Cape Cod communities.

Team Note: In an effort to increase funds for the Quincy-North Quincy rowing program, the team is holding a Cash Day Raffle throughout the month of June. For $10 a ticket, you will have the chance to win money each day throughout the month. If you would like to support the growth of Quincy's newest high school sport by purchasing a ticket, email Matt Conso and Alicia Golden at quincy-rowing@yahoo.com.

Presidents Improve to 10-6 Overall

Parry, Quincy Blank North Quincy, 1-0

By CHRIS McDANIEL

Starting pitching was the story in Quincy's 1-0 victory over North Quincy on Senior Day Monday night in a cross-city softball showdown at Mitchell-McCoy Field.

Quincy High senior Nicole Parry was dominant, pitching a complete game shutout, while striking out 13 batters and not allowing a walk. She also came through with the bat going 2-for-4 with a towering double to left field.

"Nicole's been doing that all year," said Quincy coach Greg Sommers about the strong season his senior hurler has put in this spring. Parry is 10-6 overall with a miniscule 1.01 ERA.

She was hot from the start. Parry had a perfect game going in the first three innings after striking out seven of the first nine North Quincy batters. Her bid for the perfect game was eventually ended by a line drive right back up the middle by North Quincy junior captain Liz Kelly. However, throughout the seven inning contest, Parry display such command of her entire arsenal of pitches that she never threw three balls in one at-bat, and only threw two ball one time, and that came in the final inning.

On the other side, North Quincy sophomore pitcher Natasha Sautter tossed a gem. She pitched a complete game, allowing just one run. Sautter wiggled her way out of jams in each of the final five innings.

The Presidents scored the lone run of the game in the second inning. Senior captain Erin Chiocchio hit a one-out single over Kelly's head at shortstop to start the rally. Freshman Saxon Bresnahan followed by reaching on an error on a hard hit ball that allowed Chiocchio to advance all the way to third base.

Bresnahan was then thrown out attempting to steal second base by North Quincy senior captain Taylor McKay (catcher) for the second out, but sophomore Bethany Walker drove in Chiocchio with a perfectly placed two-out bunt that ended in no-man's land between the catcher, the pitcher and the first baseman.

The Red Raiders would threaten later in the game, with no threat bigger than the one in the top of the fourth.

In that frame, North Quincy had the bases loaded with no outs, but Walker got the first out by jumping out of her catcher's stance and corraling a foul ball ten feet to her right. Parry struck out the next batter and North's Madison Hally ripped a line drive that deflected off Chiocchio's leg at first base, but the ball landed near second base and Hally was called out on a close play at the bag to end the threat.

In the bottom of the fourth it was the Red Raiders' defense that stepped up. After a pitch hit Chiocchio, Bresnahan hit a hard grounder to third baseman Christine Kelliher who threw out the lead runner from one knee at second base.

Parry finished the game as strong as she started it. She sat down North Quincy 1-2-3 in the seventh, striking out the final two batters.

For Quincy it was the last rivalry game for seniors Blair Hajjar, Nicole Parry, Caitly Lowry and Erin Chiocchio. Hajjar played well in the game. She had a nine-pitch at-bat in the first inning and an infield single in the third.

"I couldn't ask for a better group of seniors my first year coaching," said Sommers who took over on the bench this spring at QHS.

For North Quincy seniors Rachel Chu, Julia Murphy and Taylor McKay all played for the final time versus Quincy.

Notes: Quincy improved to 10-6 overall and 7-4 in the Patriot League... North Quincy fell to 1-14 overall... The Presidents have qualified for the Division I South Sectional tournament... Quincy defeated North Quincy, 1-0, back on April 13.

Jaquan Harris Wins 100 & 200-Meter Events

Track Team Shines At Last Chance Invitational

It was another banner day for the Quincy-North Quincy track team as individual members took home personal bests and top honors at the 9th annual Last Chance Invitational at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham over the weekend.

The star of the day was Quincy High junior Jaquan Harris who took gold in both the 100 and 200-meter events.

This meet was billed as a chance to get state MIAA qualifying time and some came oh-so-close. Danny Tran was in second place in the 400 hurdles only to catch his foot on the last one, going off stride and missing the state standard by a second in a time of 62.1. Other personal best were turned in by Aidan McMorrow in the one-mile in 5:10 and Brianna Mullaney in the girls' one-mile in a time of 6:01.

Sam McNally took third overall in the girls' javelin with a throw of 103'09."

Other top performers included Eddie Guinto in the 200, Angela McDonald in the javelin, Vanessa Bolden in the shot put and Danielle Mullaney in the one-mile.

Other top distance runners who have made states were not entered to remain fresh for next Sunday's Division I State Meet at BMC Durfee High School in Fall River. Athletes expected to compete in that event include Harris (100 and 200-meters), North Quincy's Mike Mullaney in the two-mile, North's Emily and Julia Bryson in the two-mile, North's Danielle Mullaney in the mile, North's Maya and Olivia Umoren in the shot put and discus, North's Sam McNally in the mile and North Quincy's Camille Mullaney and Rose Bennett in the high jump.

"This is an increase in the number of athletes qualified for states from recent years," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "We have others who were close too, but unfortunately didn't make it. Division I standards are the most difficult in the four Eastern Mass state divisions. It will be interesting to see how things shake out."

The top-four in each division (and event) automatically advance to the All State Meet, which will be held at Fitchburg State - the goal is to have 24 athletes in each event at All States.

North Quincy v. Pembroke

In a dual meet with Pembroke North Quincy and Quincy lost both ends of a tri-meet to the Titans but many athletes ran their best.

Harris won the 100 and 200-meters; Danny Tran won the 400 hurdles; Mike Mullaney ran his best mile time in 4:48, and Viet Doan threw his best in the javelin at 131'05."

On the girls' side, Danielle Mullaney matched the state qualifier in the mile in 5:35 despite it being her first-ever attempt at the event. Mullaney finished a few strides behind Emily Bryson who ran in a time of 5:29. North Quincy's Mary Zheng also ran a fast time of 6:10 in her mile debut.

Angela McDonald threw her best javelin of the year with a toss of 82'09." The Quincy High freshman is a multi-sport athlete (volleyball and basketball) and was last year's State Middle School champion in the turbo javelin.

The highlight of the dual meet was the final event. In the high jump both Camille Mullaney and Rose Bennett turned in personal bests. Mullaney cleared 5'00" for the win and Bennett qualified for state for the first time in any season with a 4'11" clearance. Bennett is also a three-season standout at North Quincy in volleyball and swimming.

Track Fundraiser Saturday at NQHS

The Quincy-North Quincy track team is holding a carwash fundraiser on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. in front of North Quincy High School.

All proceeds benefit the Quincy-North Quincy track program. The team would appreciate any support from the Quincy community.

Cub Scout Pack 21 Pinewood Derby Night

Quincy Cub Scout Pack 21 gathered with dens and families for one of the best activities in scouting - the Pinewood Derby - back on March 2 at St. Mary's Hall.

Each scout anxiously awaited each race to see whose car would succeed; it was an exciting and fun event, but of course it's not all about winning the race. Scouts learn craft skills, the rules of fair play, and good sportsmanship - things they will remember throughout life.

The winners (first through third) were: Tigers - Thomas O'Neil, Quinten Van Dam and Ben Dawe; Wolves - Harry Gaudiano, Patrick McDonald and Maxton Golden; Bears - Loick Marion, Matthew Leonard and Jack O'Driscoll; Webelos - William Farrell, William Brown and Cody Maloney.

First, second and third place in the championship round went to William Farrell, Harry Gaudiano and Patrick McDonald.

VOICE FOR HEALTH
 by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
 Chiropractor

REACHING OUT TO THOSE WITH ARM PAIN

When a disc in the cervical (neck) region of the spine herniates (bulges), it may exert pressure on a cervical nerve that results in pain that radiates along the nerve's pathway down the arm. This problem, which is popularly referred to by a number of names ("slipped disc," "ruptured disc," "protruding disc," "pinched nerve," etc.) is often caused by trauma or injury, but it may also arise spontaneously. Cervical herniated disc, which usually develops among those in the 30-50 age range group, produces symptoms of arm pain, muscle weakness, and tingling/numbness that extends down the arm into the fingertips. To alleviate these symptoms, the chiropractor may work to realign vertebrae in the neck and reduce pressure on the affected disc(s).

There are many different reasons why neck pain exists; neck pain can result from sleeping the wrong way or it can be experienced due to a pinched nerve. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we are uniquely qualified to restore the health of your spine. Chiropractic works! Call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Spinal discs are round, pliant "shock absorbers" that are attached securely between vertebrae to absorb the load of the body.

A Job Well Done

On Sunday, May 13, at approximately 3:20 p.m., Officer Michael Brandolini was dispatched to Quarry Street for a "medical issue."

While en route, the dispatcher told the officer that the caller stated that his "brother" suffers from psychiatric issues and was out of control. With this information, Officer Tom Ford was also dispatched to the address.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer Brandolini arrived on scene and was met by the caller, who brought the officer into the kitchen where a male was sitting.

This male seemed detached and in a trance like state, perspiring and breathing heavily. The caller said that the male was his brother and suffers from mental illness, adding that their father gives him the medication daily.

At this time, Fallon ambulance and Officer Ford arrived on scene. As the Fallon EMTs aided the male, Officer Brandolini spotted a female standing in a bedroom doorway immediately off of the kitchen area. She was crying and looking back into the bedroom.

The officer suspected something was wrong based on her body language, so he entered the bedroom and found a small child, approximately two years old standing in the bedroom. The child had blood on his face. The bedroom was ransacked with items thrown about the room.

Officer Brandolini attempted to converse with the female to determine what happened, but the caller said that she didn't speak English — only Mandarin Chinese. No one on scene could speak her language and there were no officers working that spoke the language, so Officer Brandolini exited the house and found an Asian family in a nearby yard. A female said that she spoke the language and offered to help. The translator learned from the female that she is married to the male being attended to by the EMTs and the little boy is theirs.

The female said that she and her son were playing in the yard when her husband came out of the house and told them to get in the car. She said that as she was talking to her husband, their son was playing in the backseat.

For no apparent reason, her husband turned to the back seat area and pushed their son forcibly from the seat. The husband then exited the vehicle and ran into the house. The mother and son exited the vehicle and stayed in the yard area.

The husband then entered the bedroom area and tossed clothes about and emptied bureaus. He then exited the house and went directly to his son and attacked him by picking him up and body slamming him twice onto a grassy area of the yard.

The mother, upon seeing this, ran over but could not get there in time to stop the second slam. The mother then grabbed her son and fled into the house. The husband/now suspect stayed outside.

The suspect's brother, the caller, heard a commotion, so he headed to the kitchen area where he found his sister in law and her child. The husband then entered the kitchen too and his brother/caller recognized that he was off his medication and needed help, so he called the Police and requested an ambulance. Since he did not speak Mandarin Chinese, the caller did not know that an assault had occurred.

Fallon EMT's examined the boy and observed that he had bruises and bumps on his head. The blood appeared to be coming from his nose area. Fearing a possible brain injury, Fallon EMTs immediately transported the child and mother to Quincy Medical Center.

Based on the information provided by the interpreter via the mother of the child and the bruises and bumps on the child's head, Officer Brandolini placed the 29 year-old father of the child under arrest for "Domestic Assault and Battery, Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon (the cement ground), Assault and Battery on Child under 14 resulting in injury and Reckless Endangerment, of a Child."

'A Man Walks Into A Police Station ...'

So a man walks into a police station and says, "I want to fight a Police Officer" and then points at the Officer. There is, however, no punch-line.

On Thursday, May 17, at 11: p.m., the suspect entered the lobby of the station with a wooden plaque in his hands and made this remark to the officer at the window.

The suspect then handed the officer his license and made his intentions very clear by pointing to one of the Officers inside the glass enclosed area and stating, "I want to fight him."

Three officers walked out to the lobby and confronted the suspect, who then took up a fighting stance while bouncing around and said, "I am going to start swinging." He then came at the officers and was quickly pepper sprayed.

The suspect then grabbed items in the lobby and threw them at the officers. He then charged at the officers and was struck by the officer's baton in the front and back of the legs, which forced him to the ground.

The suspect, a 39 year-old Weymouth resident, was charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and assault and battery on a police officer (three counts).

The wooden plaque contained a religious passage. There was no known motive for the suspect's actions.

Jack Conway Honored By South Shore Hospital

Jack Conway's years of dedicated involvement with South Shore Hospital, both personally and by his firm, were celebrated at the recent Luminaria evening at the Boston Marriot Quincy.

Crystal goblets, sparkling chandeliers and a sumptuous surf and turf dinner were on the agenda as the founder of the 56-year old Jack Conway Real Estate firm, took home "the gold." Conway was one of four honorees to receive gold medals recognizing their contributions in "lighting the path" for health care in Southeastern Massachusetts.

The fundraising gala celebrated the 100th anniversary of the hospital's home care division, which includes visiting nurse, hospice, and private duty home health services. Receiving the Luminaria awards along with Conway were Victoria Kennedy, attorney and health care advocate and widow of Sen. Ted Kennedy, Dr. David Halle, MD, associate director of the South Shore Medical Center, and Frank Lagroteria, Sr., who was honored posthumously for his community involvement.

Conway, 88, a longtime South Shore Hospital Trustee, accepted his gold medal proudly as it was slipped over his head on the ballroom stage.

"My father is a worthy recipient of this honor," said Conway CEO Carol Bulman, who co-chaired the event. "Over the years, he has played a leadership role in planning and supporting hospital initiatives and he is a huge advocate of hospice and home health services. My Dad has received outstanding care at the South Shore Hospital as have many of our Conway Country employees. We are so lucky to have this wonderful facility right in our own backyard."

Mold Is Hazardous to Home and Health

Q: For a few months now, I've noticed a mildew odor in the downstairs bathroom. I keep the bathroom clean, and I even pour a cup of vinegar down the drains once a month, but the odor comes back. For now, I'm using an air freshener to mask the smell, but how can I locate and get rid of it? - Gaia M., Baton Rouge, La.

A: That mildew smell is most likely from mold growth. If you can't visually locate a patch of mildew or mold in the bathroom, such as in lower corners of the wall or the shower, contact a plumber. It's very likely that a water leak somewhere behind the wall is causing the mold problem.

Even a small amount of mold in a home can trigger allergies or breathing problems in many people. It's also a warning signal that water is damaging important parts of your home - not just the drywall but the wood framing, sheathing, foundation and more.

A leaky supply or drain-pipe can mean water is dripping behind the walls. A plumber can inspect these pipes without causing damage to the rest of the bathroom. The plumber will then recommend the best action to take to stop the moisture damage and remove the mold. If mold is affecting carpet or wall-paper in the area, you'll need to replace those items as well.

If dampness is a constant problem in the bathroom, make sure the room is getting adequate airflow, even if the original problem is repaired. An exhaust fan is fairly inexpensive and quickly removes humidity from the bathroom - for example, after a hot shower. In many states a fan is required by building codes, and the plumber likely will recommend you install one if there isn't one already.

HOME TIP: Clean up mold with a mild detergent rather than bleach, which can irritate your lungs.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might have to turn your Arian charm up a few degrees if you hope to persuade that persistent pessimist to see the possibilities in your project. Whatever you do, don't give up.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A "tip" about a co-worker's "betrayal" might well raise the Bovine's rage levels. But before charging into a confrontation, let an unbiased colleague do some fact checking.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although a relationship still seems to be moving too slowly to suit your expectations, it's best not to push it. Let it develop at its own pace. You'll soon get news about a workplace change.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A continually changing personal situation makes you feel as if you're riding an emotional roller coaster. But hold on tight; stability starts to set in early next week.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Believe it or not, someone might dare to say "No!" to the Regal One's suggestion. But instead of being miffed, use this rebuff to recheck the proposition and, perhaps, make some changes.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might find it difficult to make a decision about a family matter. But delay can only lead to more problems. Seek out trusted counsel and then make that important decision.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Concentrate your focus on what needs to be done, and avoid frittering away your energies on less-important pursuits. There'll be time later for fun and games.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Although the conflicts seem to be letting up, you still need to be wary of being drawn into workplace intrigues. Plan a special weekend event for family and/or friends.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your quick wit helps you work through an already difficult situation without creating more problems. Creative aspects begin to dominate by the week's end.

May Procession Held At Star of Sea

The Friends of Star of the Sea held a May Procession in front of Star of the Sea Church this past Sunday afternoon. This was the second year in a row that such a procession had been held at the church since it was suppressed in October 2004.

May is a month both named for and dedicated to Mary, the Mother of God. A May Procession is a way for faith communities to celebrate and honor the Blessed Mother through spirit and song.

The celebration began with a greeting and overview by Kate Monahan, a longtime parishioner of Star of the Sea and organizer of the procession.

The procession began with the recitation of the Magnificat - also known as the "Canticle of Mary."

The crowd then circled around the island in front of the church while praying a decade of the rosary, led by Mary Grace Montalto and several neighborhood children who recently made their First Communion, including Catherine Boylan, Zack Donaghue, Brendan Glynn, and Aidan White.

The children participated in the procession wearing their communion outfits and held signs that read, "YES", in honor of Mary who accepted God's plan for her to bear a son and to name him Jesus.

The assembly then proceeded over to the statue of Mary on the church lawn for the singing of "Bring Flowers of the Rarest," during which time each participant was invited to place a flower under the statue of Mary.

Monahan then led the crowd in the Litany of the Blessed Virgin Mary, in which the participants called out, "Pray for us" in response to invocations such as, "Mother of Christ," "Seat of Wisdom," "Mystical Rose," and "Queen of Peace". Not surprisingly, the most thunderous response came after the invocation of "Star of the Sea."

The Friends are grateful to the kids who came straight from a feis in their Brady Academy attire because the procession meant so much to them.

The Friends also thank Melissa Newton of Creed's Crossing for providing the children with books on the Mass, the Rosary and rosary beads.

Sterling Students Reach Out And Collect Children's Books For Soldiers, Health Centers

Sterling Middle School's seventh annual Reach Out And Read Children's Hospital book drive was a big success, collecting some 1,100 books.

Fifth grade students and their reading teacher Gina Joyce developed and implemented a Community Service Learning project that reaches local health centers and soldiers overseas.

Students spread the importance of literacy and the personal connection between parents and their children as young as infants to six years old.

Students worked with Community Partner, Alison Corning Clarke Massachusetts Programs Director of Reach Out and Read, to promote literacy and make a difference in the Quincy community. Clarke gave an educational and inspirational lesson to the fifth grade students about early literacy and how the reading aloud connection and bond created between parents and their children is so important to their growth. Babies start to connect to pictures, colors, shapes, and parent's voices become imprinted in their children.

A love of reading is developed at an early age as young as infancy. Children who have parents serving in the military, read to their children from overseas through technological devices like skype and the internet. Children can see and hear their parent's read to them from far away and parents can record these precious moments to play for their children, who are missing their mom or dad.

Sterling students collected about 1,100 books this year, bringing the seven year total to approximately 3,500 books.

Half the books were dropped off at Quincy Pediatrics, Manet CHC and South Cove CHC, and the other half were delivered to Stacie Fredriksson, who supports the school's military Reach Out and Read Sites. She ensured that they get to Hanscom and Newport military families.

A special thank you to Thomas Crane Public library, health teacher Christine Prendeville and the student council for raising $200 and purchasing 176 books toward the book drive.

Vote Postponed On Requiring Community Service For Graduation

bolts of how it will all be organized and run.

The requirement would ask students in both high schools to complete ten hours of community service each year. The pilot program idea came to the school committee table by former committee member Jo-Ann Bragg, who submitted a resolve before leaving last year. Bragg's initial ideas into the program suggested that it be phased in, but after talking with student leaders in each school Bregoli found that the consensus was to implement the program in to all grades from the beginning.

"We are trying to frame a suggested policy for the school committee to act upon," said Bregoli at the May 16th meeting. "What we have been doing is gathering information, more information, regarding QEA's (Quincy Educational Association) input."

Bregoli added that they would continue to look at some of the policy questions regarding the program along with other concerns regarding guidelines for students, staff, and parents, management pieces, and students who may not finish the requirement. Bregoli said that the discussion could possibly be extended over the summer and that in September re-presenting the program to the school committee for a vote.

Town Brook Plan Upheld Again

Department of Environmental Protection allowing for the improvements to Town Brook which currently flows beneath Quincy Center in a degraded culvert.

This most recent decision adds to the growing list of environmental regulators and agencies, including the Division of Marine Fisheries, the Department of Environmental Protection Northeast Office, the Massachusetts Environmental Protection Act (MEPA) Office, DEP Waterways Regulation Program and the Quincy Conservation Commission, who have made similar determinations allowing for the work to proceed in accordance with applicable law, in the wake of appeals by a group of eleven citizens apparently intent on trying to stop the improvements to Town Brook and, in turn, the $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center.

The decision by Pamela D. Harvey, a Presiding Officer in the Department of Environmental Protection, is based on careful independent evaluation of the evidence and testimony provided in connection with the project and is called a "recommended final decision," which is expected to serve as the foundation for a final ruling to be made by the DEP Commissioner next month.

In her recommendation to uphold the original DEP permit for the project, Harvey wrote that the evidence presented during the appeals hearing showed that the project would not harm the rainbow smelt habitat or exacerbate flooding problems as the group of eleven opponents of the project have claimed. In fact, Harvey determined that, based on the record, the project would do the opposite.

"Indeed, the project offers a much improved habitat for spawning smelt," Harvey wrote.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the decision was the direct result of work performed by the City's Town Brook team, especially engineering and design work by Jon Stephenson of the Stephenson Design Group, as well as proactive intra-agency collaboration to ensure the project met all design and environmental objectives.

"The restoration of the Town Brook culvert is one of the most meticulously designed, expertly-engineered, and environmentally-beneficial public works projects contemplated anywhere at any time in Massachusetts," Koch said. "The Town Brook is coming back, and it's because of the work a great team that has worked countless hours to make it happen."

He added:

"The project has also benefitted from the proactive involvement and thoughtful comments of a multitude of agencies in the review process. We look forward to the final decision by the Commissioner."

The recommendation upholds the expansive Superseding Order of Conditions issued by the DEP earlier this year that allows the City and its Quincy Center development partner, Street-Works Development, LLC, to transform a 1,700-foot section of the Brook's long-degraded downtown culvert into a dramatically improved waterway that will daylight more than 200 feet of the Brook, improve degraded smelt habitat, and create several new "pocket parks" in the Quincy Center area, according to Mayor Koch's office.

The original DEP Superseding Order included 47 detailed special conditions, specifying how the new daylight Brook culvert realigned on the Southern side of the Walter Hannon Parkway will provide for enhanced flood control and significantly-improved areas for smelt habitat.

The DEP conditions also detailed requirements of ongoing monitoring, construction standards and the ultimate performance of the Brook within the newly aligned culvert.

The Recommended Final Decision does not make any major changes to the original Superseding Order, and instead includes only revisions described as clarifications that the City had supported.

As it flows today, the Town Brook culvert, which had already been relocated at least twice historically, meanders beneath Quincy Center almost entirely enclosed within an aged underground culvert marked by illicit sewer connections and poor water quality. In addition to the significant new "daylit" section, the new alignment of Town Brook will eliminate the identified illicit discharges into the Brook, implement stormwater management improvements, and significantly improve the spawning habitat for smelt.

At several times during the past design and permitting efforts for the project, at the request of the group of opponents, the City has evaluated the potential of realigning the Brook to flow directly through the heart of downtown. However, such a design was ultimately ruled out as impractical, due to countless design and property-related constraints. In its prior decision, the DEP agreed that the City's design was the most feasible of any of the alternatives studied.

Stuart Schrier, an attorney representing Arline Goodman on Revere Road, who had filed an appeal to the plan, said:

"It's not a surprise," Schrier told The Sun. "The DEP is the judge, jury and executioner."

"Whatever happened to common sense? You know that old saying 'if it walks like a duck and talks like a duck, it's a duck?' If you turn that brook so that it turns towards (Goodman's) house instead of next to her house, it's going to flood."

Goodman filed the appeal because she is concerned that the brook would turn too close to her property and at a sharp angle causing flooding.

"We just don't point a gun at a person and say it's unloaded, and you can't aim a brook at her house and say it won't flood," Schrier said.

He added:

"We have to wait for the final decision. It's possible the DEP won't accept the recommendation."

"You get what you pay for, she can only afford to pay so much. She can't win against them and if she does they'll just take it by eminent domain. She's already gotten that letter in the mail."

Army National Guard Sgt. First Class David Petrie's Keynote Address:

'Memorial Day Is Our Nation's Most Solemn Holiday'

Army National Guard Sgt. First Class David Petrie was the keynote speaker at the city's annual Memorial Day ceremonies.

SFC Petrie, a Quincy resident since 1986, joined the Army in 1978 after graduating from high school in New York and served in Bamberg, Germany with the 82nd Engineer Battalion. He joined the Massachusetts National Guard in 2001, and was originally assigned C Company, 101 Engineers and was re-assigned to the Recruiting and Retention Battalion in 2004.

In his address from the World War II podium at the Mount Wollaston Cemetery, SFC Petrie praised service members and their families. He also said that while combat in Afghanistan yielded progress over the past decade years, the events of the next decade are just as important.

"I am proud to be with you here today," Petrie began. "It is on this day, once a year that we as a nation pay our respects to those that gave their lives so that we may continue to live ours. No other organization has contributed with such a human toll as our military.

"Memorial Day to some means the backyard barbecues begin, the day the pools open, or the kickoff to the summer season even though the calendar still reads May. But we know today as our nation's most solemn holiday and with remembrances like these shared around the country we help to keep the memories alive, memories of those men and women who with pride and courage so willingly gave their lives.

"It was in 1866, when the people of Waterloo, N.Y. dipped their flags to half-staff and decorated their village to remember the soldiers who had died during the Civil War. From that time on, our nation has paid tribute to those lives of all service men and women who have fallen in the line of duty.

"And since 1948, Arlington National Cemetery has decorated each of its graves with our nation's flag. Thousands of service men and women plant the flag at the base of the gravestone in order to lift up the lives of these heroes. As we share the remarkable site before — all these flags paying respect to those in graves beneath — we are reminded of the cost of freedom. The soldiers now at rest fought to support the lives and values that create the backbone of our nation.

"Those men and women share a special heritage, a common bond with today's armed forces. If we could look into their lives, whether privates or generals, we would see practiced the same values of loyalty, duty, respect, selfless service, honor, integrity, and personal courage. These were men and women who came from all walks of life, who rose to meet seemingly impossible odds and did extraordinary things.

"They left the safety of their homes and families to help defeat an enemy and ensure justice and fulfill the promise of safety and security — for our nation and the global community. Their lives were dedicated not to conflict or death, but to compassion and to a life of freedom and the ability to pursue happiness.

"We have all been touched by the ultimate sacrifice soldiers have made in service to our country and the suffering it has brought to mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, spouses, and friends. The new soil on the freshly opened grave, the mournful sound of Taps being played, and the tears that flow down their cheeks — it is part of their memory. For each day, their grief, their sorrow, their loss continues.

"Their dedication and commitment to their fallen loved ones continues to shine as beacons through their darkest hours for the rest of us. We should take the opportunity in a less final, less heroic way to be willing to strengthen ourselves for what lies ahead.

"For nearly 10 years we have been engaged in a long-term struggle against violent extremism. Iraq is on a path toward a more stable democracy. Everyday we and our coalition partners make advances to ensuring a more stable Afghanistan. But our job isn't done. Though we have been resilient in meeting the challenges of war, we must prepare for the challenges of the next 10 years as well.

"It is our actions in the present that shape the outcome of our future. If we honor and remember those who gave their lives, compassion will prevail, justice will triumph, and freedom will remain ours to keep.

"I ask you to remember those who stand shoulder-to-shoulder against terror and oppression [as] they carry freedom's torch in foreign lands. Remember those in the armed forces, support their families, never forget the missing, and always honor the fallen ones.

"As I close this address, I would like to share with you some words spoken by our 14th president, Abraham Lincoln. He said while addressing a crowd in 1864 the following: 'All that a man hath will he give for his life, and while all contribute their substance, the soldier puts his life at stake, and often yields it up in his country's cause. The highest merit then is due to the soldier.'

"Those few words he spoke two years prior to the very first Memorial Day, those few words still ring true today some 46 years later. So may it be."

Parade, Fireworks Display Highlights Tradition

Flag Day Celebration Set For June 15

The city's 61st annual Flag Day Parade and Celebration, a tradition that has grown into one of the largest of its kind anywhere, is set for Saturday, June 16 with a 7 p.m. parade and a fireworks display launching at about 9:15 p.m.

"It is truly one of my favorite days of the year - you actually feel the entire city is together at Pageant Field to watch the fireworks," said Mayor Thomas Koch, who is chairman of the Flag Day Committee and whose dad, Richard, started the event six decades ago.

The parade steps off on Coddington Street and proceeds along Hancock Street and then turns right onto Merrymount Parkway before ending at the entrance to Pageant Field anchored by the annual parade highlight: nearly 2,000 city young people from groups across the city marching with American flags.

The parade culminates into a celebration at Pageant Field with a flag-raising of an impressive 30-foot by 60-foot version of Old Glory, the presentation of the Richard J. Koch Memorial Youth Service Award, and a patriotic performance and sing-a-long.

The evening will be capped off by a spectacular fireworks display over Black's Creek that will kick off roughly around 9:15 p.m.

Mayor Koch said the continued success - and growth - of the Flag Day event would not be possible without the commitment from the city's business community, specifically highlighting major donations from auto dealer Dan Quirk, Keohane Funeral Home, the Quincy Partnership, Street-Works Development, Eastern Bank and the Koch Club.

Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association Meeting June 7

The Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will meet Thursday, June 7 at 7:30 p.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum Streets.

Students from the Wollas-ton and Montclair Schools will present a musical performance for their families and the membership.

The annual performance has become a tradition which gives the students an opportunity to show their appreciation to the association for its many years of support and sponsorship.

An ice cream social will follow.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On June 8, 632, in Saudi Arabia, Muhammad, founder of Islam, dies in the arms of Aishah, his third wife. In 610, in a cave north of Mecca, Muhammad had a vision in which he heard God command him to become the Arab prophet of the "true religion." He began having religious revelations, which he collected as the Qur'an.
- On June 5, 1933, the United States goes off the gold standard, a monetary system in which currency is backed by gold. The Great Depression of the 1930s had frightened the public into hoarding gold. Roosevelt ordered all gold coins and gold certificates in denominations of more than $100 turned in for other money.
- On June 4, 1942, the Battle of Midway – one of the most decisive U.S. victories against Japan during World War II – begins. During the four-day sea-and-air battle, the U.S. Pacific Fleet succeeded in destroying four Japanese aircraft carriers while losing only one of its own.
- On June 9, 1956, one of the world's top-selling crime novelists, Patricia Cornwell, best known for her forensic pathologist character Dr. Kay Scarpetta, is born in Miami. Cornwell's first novel, "Post-mortem," was released in 1990.

• On June 7, 1962, the banking institution Credit Suisse opens the first drive-through bank in Zurich, Switzerland. The drive-through featured eight glass pavilions and a sensor on the ground that activated a light trail that directed drivers to the next available bay.

• On June 6, 1981, more than 500 passengers are killed when their train plunges into the Bagmati River in India. The rail accident was caused by an engineer who braked too hard to keep from hitting a cow that was crossing the tracks over a bridge. Seven cars derailed into the river.

• On June 10, 1979, actor Paul Newman roars into second place in the 47th 24 Hours of Le Mans, the famous sports-car endurance race held annually in Le Mans, France. In 1969, Newman starred as a race-car driver in the movie "Winning," performing many of the high-speed scenes himself without a stunt double.

History, Honor At 'Church Of Presidents'

Arthur Ducharme used to say visiting United First Parish Church in Quincy Center was more than a tourist attraction.

It was an honor for guests to learn the history of the "Church of the Presidents" and pay their respects to two U.S. Presidents and their wives who are entombed in the church crypt.

Mr. Ducharme – known for his outgoing personality and affable nature – served as the director of the visitors program for 15 years. He died Jan. 10. Arthur left a presence and a legacy that will be missed by the program's volunteers, church visitors and many others.

This year, there's another honor at the church.

And it belongs to Gary Haynes who succeeds Arthur as the program's new director.

Haynes, a Hanover resident, called Arthur a "great mentor. He says he's honored and privileged to follow in Arthur's footsteps and freely admits he has big shoes to fill.

"I thought a great deal of Arthur," says Haynes, who joined the interpretive program three years ago. "He was a great mentor to me. I learned quite a bit from him. We would have conversations when it was quiet; he was always inspiring and uplifting.

"We still miss him and we miss his presence very much," Haynes adds. "He was a great teacher. You could observe how well he could communicate with the visitors that would come in (the church). He excelled at communicating with the visitors and I learned from that."

Arthur was known for his admiration and respect of the Adams family – exceeded only by his love for his own family.

"You could see and feel the passion Arthur had for the visitors program," Haynes continued. "It was what I would refer to as a labor of love. And he enjoyed it. I'm hoping that following in his footsteps I can provide that to the visitors who visit the church now."

United First Parish Church is the only church in the country where two U.S. Presidents – 2nd President John Adams and 6th President John Quincy Adams – and their wives – First Ladies Abigail Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams – are buried. Their Quincy-made granite tombs are located in the crypt of the church.

Haynes says he is both happy and privileged to be the new director.

"I know I have big shoes to fill because Arthur was such a respected person. I feel this is going to be a tough act to follow. He just shined in that capacity."

If love of history and a fondness for the Adams family are pre-requisites for the director's position, then Haynes is a superb choice.

He grew up near Fredericksburg, Virginia about 50 miles south of Washington, D.C., an area surrounded by the presence of some of this country's greatest Founding Fathers like Washington and Jefferson. He's visited Mount Vernon and Monticello in Virginia – the plantation homes of Washington and Jefferson respectively – "many, many times."

But Haynes is quick to answer whether Quincy – with its rich history and home to two U.S. Presidents – deserves its rightful place alongside those other historic sites.

"Absolutely. Arthur used to say it's an honor when you can go in to the church, pay your respects to two Presidents and two First Ladies who were so instrumental in the very early days of this nation. It's very moving," Haynes says.

One of the main reasons the church stands out – and the visitor experience is unique – is public access to the crypt where Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives – Abigail Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams – are entombed. People are surprised to learn they can actually go into the crypt and touch the Quincy-granite tombs.

That's quite different than Mount Vernon where George and Martha Washington are buried. The First President and first First Lady are entombed in a mausoleum but there is a gate restricting access. Visitors can only see through the gate.

"The church may be a smaller venue than Monticello or Mount Vernon but the fact is one can actually go in the crypt. For me it's the same feeling as the Lincoln Memorial when it's illuminated at night because that's when I think you really feel the presence of a great figure like Lincoln,"

Haynes explains.

"I think it's very similar that one can go in the crypt and actually place their hands on the tombs of John and Abigail Adams and know that these are a Founding man and woman of this nation and they left us such a wealth of history from not only their letters but also their diaries."

Haynes says even Quincy residents are surprised to learn the crypt is open to visitors.

"They are just expecting to be able to see the crypt from a distance because a lot of them have been perhaps to Lincoln's tomb or they expect to look through a gate similar to Mount Vernon. They're very surprised when we open the gate and say, 'please go in.'"

"They'll stop – even though we've invited them. They say 'we can go in?' and we say, 'yes, please.' That's when you see them very moved. Many are moved to tears or they get choked up because they can place their hands on a historical figure that they've either admired or they just recognize as such a great leader, especially John Adams and the founding of this nation."

He sees similarities and differences between the church and other national historic sites.

"The church is similar in that I grew up surrounded by Founding Fathers and John Adams is also considered a Founding Father. From my experience, it's also similar because my interest has always been the founding of our nation and these men and women who were brave enough to defeat a world power – Great Britain – at the time.

"I think the difference is when you tour Mount Vernon or Monticello, the culture is different," Haynes points out. "You are touring plantations and experiencing what plantation life was like for these people."

"You don't have a plantation when you tour Peace field (at the Adams National Historical Park) and I think there is some difference there. Also, with John and Abigail, there is such a wealth of knowledge – their letters, their diaries. Yes, Jefferson was an avid writer himself but I don't think he wrote that much about his personal life and things of that nature."

"Washington wrote a great deal, too, but I don't think you get that personal feel as you do with the Adamses just for the fact that you not only can tour where they born and lived and where they were entombed, but you can also read about their lives."

Haynes, 57, who worked in the hospitality industry for 26 years, has experienced a lot of history – and the world. He started working for hotels in Washington, D.C. then worked his way up the corporate offices for two major hotel companies and for years was in charge of telecommunications.

"I've had the opportunity to travel to over 20 countries in Europe, South America and Asia putting in cable and other telecommunications equipment," Haynes points out, noting he spent 10 months living in London in 1990. On his day off, could be found visiting an historic site in that great city.

United First Parish Church draws visitors from around the state, nation and world every year. Since opening in April for the tourist season, more than 600 tourists from

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of the Quincy Mansion School for Girls that was on East Elm Avenue in Wollaston. The mansion on the right was built in 1849 by Josiah Quincy, Jr. when he completed his term as Mayor of Boston and returned to Quincy. After he died, the property was purchased in 1882 by Dr. Horace Mann Willard who wanted to establish a refined and modern Christian college preparatory school for girls. Dr. Willard was one of the best known educators in the state. He soon built two new halls for use as dormitories as the school was a boarding school attracting girls from throughout New England and beyond. Canterbury Hall is still in use. In 1894, the Woodward School for Girls opened and provided Quincy girls with three local educational choices including choices including the public high school. Dr. Willard died in 1907. And his wife, Ruth, succeeded him, but the school without him as principal lost its appeal. It soon closed and the property was purchased by the Eastern Nazarene College in 1919. The College used the old mansion building for 50 years but reluctantly demolished it in 1969. This site is now home to the college's Angell Hall. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Remembering The Sacrifice On Memorial Day

Back during my childhood, I once lived next door to a World War I United States Army veteran who would often pass on historical tidbits from that war he served in as a young man and of his time even earlier with Col. Teddy Roosevelt and his Rough Riders.

My elderly neighbor was an actual member of that elite group that charged up hill during the Spanish-American War. He was so proud of his service to his country because he said it is our job to defend this land of ours from its enemies. When I knew him he was in his early eighties and looked back with pride at his double duty service to his country.

Every Memorial Day, I remember him and his sacrifice and the sacrifice of all who risked their lives for their country and for all those who sacrificed their very lives for it. I march every year here in Quincy in the Memorial Day Parade and attend the ceremony at Mount Wollaston Cemetery that follows.

Too many have forgotten the significance of this national holiday. It is not just the official start of summer season. It is not just about grilling on a barbecue. It is about remembering whom we are and what we are called upon to do to pass this country on to the next generation. As I stand observing all the flags on those gravesites, I know each flag represents one American story of service to country.

As a post-World War II boomer, I was lucky enough to know and talk with veterans from World War I and World War II as well as the Spanish-American War. I also knew survivors of the infamous attack on the United States Navy at Pearl Harbor.

When I enlisted in the United States Air Force following high school graduation in 1966, I took that action for the same reason my old neighbor signed up with the Rough Riders. I did it because we owe it to our country to serve in the defense of freedom when called upon.

Today, most of the marches who participate in Memorial Day parades are veterans of the Vietnam War era. My generation is now the bulk of older veterans. There are no more World War I veterans alive; the last doughboy was Frank Buckles from Kansas who passed away about a year ago.

I always return to Quincy on this important holiday and march with my friends in honor of all those who are no longer here to march themselves. The crowds grow smaller as the years go by. Traditions like Memorial Day parades seem to be vanishing.

However, for those who march the size of the crowd is not as important as for the reason they march. When the parades end and the crowds walk away from the cemeteries, the flags remain at those graves and the sacrifices made stay remembered for as long as we make them remain.

Old Colony Line Near The End

Many schemes were afoot to provide mass transportation to the South Shore as the New Haven Railroad's Old Colony Division approached the financial point of no return.

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce recommended a formula for assessing $750,000 in public service payments on 37 communities in order to keep passenger trains running.

All cities and towns served by the branch would pay $375,000 on a population basis and the 22 with direct rail connections would ante up an additional $375,000 on the basis of patronage.

Quincy's share would come to $204,000, equal to $1.21 on the tax rate.

The Greater Boston Economic Study Committee also recommended a temporary area subsidy to keep the Old Colony running until it could be replaced by the Metropolitan Transit Authority to Hingham.

BROAD MEADOWS PLANT SOUGHT

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced plans to open negotiations with the federal government for return of 11.6 acres of land in Broad Meadows that was sold 15 years ago for $1 as a spoilage area.

The land was appraised for $2,500.

The Quincy Electric Co. had offered the city $75,000 for about 100 acres of Broad Meadows, including the federally owned land, as a site for a generating plant costing $30 to $50 million.

BACK HOES COSTLY TO CITY

Mayor Della Chiesa said the City Council refusal to buy two back hoes for $13,000 would eventually cost the city more than $60,000 in rentals of the digging machines at $64 a day.

CM Senior Paul Mulvey Of Quincy Produces Independent Study In Music

Catholic Memorial School senior Paul Mulvey of Quincy is no ordinary high school senior with a fondness for Pink Floyd.

Mulvey is a music aficionado and talented guitar player who wished to use his independent study in music this year to focus on one Pink Floyd album's guitar tracks in particular.

Entitled "Shine on," Mulvey's senior study, recited recently in the school's seminar room to the delight of his peers, family, teachers and friends, played the entire Pink Floyd Album "Shine on You Crazy Diamond."

As a tribute to his grandmothers, Mulvey's work at times produced soul-searching solos, electric dissonance and touching collaborations.

Joining him for "Wish you were here" was his guitar teacher of many years, Quincy based Adam Aufiero. Classmates Joe Tedesco and Mario Taddeo also joined him on bass and drums for a few songs, and fine arts chair Craig Spaner accompanied Mulvey on piano.

Mulvey approached

Spaner with the idea of producing the show last year. "He'd hardly even heard of Pink Floyd" recalled Mulvey. "But he was a great help."

"Paul did a miraculous amount of work surrounding a very difficult subject matter," said Spaner. "In theory, it's a rather simple concept, but from that simplicity he created much complexity. Paul handled very tricky rhythms and styles with a seasoned maturity. He should be extremely proud."

Nancy's Lamb & Beef Meatballs

I was at dinner at my daughter Nancy and son-in-law Jed's house and the aroma when I walked in the house was coming from the most delicious tomato sauce bubbling away on the stove.

The reason was that she made the sauce with a combination of ground lamb and beef meatballs together. What a great flavor it gave the sauce over the pasta.

Her recipe for the meatballs didn't include the usual ingredients, and that's what made it so special.

LAMB AND BEEF MEATBALLS

- 1 pound of ground lamb
- 1 pound of ground beef
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup stuffing mix

Salt and pepper to taste

- 1 1/2 teaspoons dill
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- 1 1/2 teaspoons garlic powder
- 2 tablespoons ketchup (or the same amount of the sauce)

In a bowl, beat the eggs, stuffing mix and the seasonings. Add the ketchup or the sauce. Mix well and then add the meats and blend together. Shape into meatballs and bake on a greased cookie sheet for 15 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

When done, place them in the sauce and cook for about an hour or until done. Serve over a favorite pasta.

We had it over wide noodles and grated Parmesan cheese.

Panzanella Salad With Toasted Bread

There is nothing better to enjoy like a salad. And salads have changed so much. These days you can put just about anything from meats, fish and fruits, toss it with a dressing and voila, it's a salad.

Today's recipe is called Panzanella and is made with delicious pieces of toasted Italian or French bread.

PANZANELLA SALAD

- 3 cups bread
- 2 large fresh tomatoes
- 2 cups arugula
- Cucumber, radishes
- Red bell pepper (optional)

Dressing

- 1 cup olive oil
- 1/2 cup Balsamic vinegar
- Salt and pepper

Prepare the salad as you would by cutting all vegetables in small pieces.

Cut the bread into crouton-sized pieces and bake in a 400-degree oven until golden brown. Cool and then soak them into the olive oil mixture for 10 minutes.

Add the soaked bread and the rest of the dressing to the salad and toss.

I find that shredding the cucumber is easier to eat and looks pretty as well. Any other variation of the salad can also be used.

Stellwagen Bank, Leo Kelly Marking Milestones Programs To Celebrate Birthdays Of Two Environmental Treasures

The Beaches and Coastal Commission, the Park Department's Environmental Treasures program and the Thomas Crane Public Library are co-sponsoring a three-part program entitled "Celebrating the Birthdays of Two Environmental Treasures."

On Wednesday, June 6 at 7 p.m. Anne-Marie Runfola of the Stellwagen Bank National Marine Sanctuary will present an illustrated lecture on the Sanctuary at the main Thomas Crane Library, 40 Washington St.

The Sanctuary was created by Congress in 1992 and turns 20 this year. Located at the mouth of Massachusetts Bay between Cape Ann and Cape Cod, it is home to many species of marine life. The lecture will focus on seabird research and volunteer opportunities.

Following the talk at 8 p.m. there will be a party at the Library to celebrate Leo Kelly's 80th birthday. Leo represented Ward 1 on the City Council for 20 years and was a leading proponent of protecting open space while also focusing on environmental issues during and after his time on the council.

Leo created the Evergreen Program in the city through which residents returned their Christmas trees to be recycled into mulch and received a sapling to plant. Through this program, thousands of trees have been planted in the city.

Leo is currently Chair of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission which works to improve the City's coastline and sponsors numerous programs for the public. He has been honored with the Environmental Protection Agency's Merit Award. He was instrumental in developing the lawsuit in the early 1970s that led to the cleanup of Boston Harbor.

The public is invited to share some birthday cake with Leo as we celebrate his inspiring legacy.

On Saturday, June 9 at 9 a.m. Leo Kelly and naturalist Peter Fifield will lead a tour walking across a sandbar to Raccoon Island at low tide. Leo will describe his work as a boy for the Stigmatine Fathers that lived and conducted a summer school on the island in the 1940s.

Peter Fifield will lead a beach combing tour of the island. Participants should bring water, sunscreen, bug spray and shoes for walking in wet, rocky areas.

Participants should meet on Edgewater Drive at the intersection with Turner Street.

All programs are free. For more information and rain date rescheduling of the walk, call 617-472-0799.

THE ETHEREAL MOONSTONE
Moonstone (an alternative birthstone for June) possesses an otherworldly shimmering blue glow that is particularly evocative of its full-faced namesake on a cloudless spring night. This unique gemstone owes its romantic essence to an optical phenomenon known as "adularescence," which is also commonly referred to as "shiller." This effect, which is also present in opal, Labradorite, and other stones, is produced by the play of light across the gemstone's scattered inclusions. The result is a milky, bluish glow that seems to emerge from beneath the moonstone's surface to create an effect that is similar to the shimmering light that a full moon casts upon water. To wear moonstone to full effect, try pairing it with any black outfit or dress.

It is said if you give your lover a moonstone necklace when the moon is full you will always have passion. Our store, located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, is the place to celebrate the important moments of your life! We endeavor to make your visits with us enjoyable and relaxing. At Pre-Prom Safety Assembly

NQHS, QPD Kick Off 'Click It Or Ticket' State Campaign

The North Quincy High School senior class recently held their Prom safety assembly the day before their prom.

This was the fifth year of the in-depth program and once again the prom was incident/accident-free.

The three-hour program, sponsored by the Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit, began with opening remarks by District Attorney Michael Morrissey, followed by a presentation from Lynda Steverman, who spoke of the loss of her son after he walked away from a college party one night.

She focused on the importance of students taking care of themselves and their friends after becoming impaired, especially now that many have turned 18 and are considered adults.

After showing a moving video of her son and the news clips of efforts to locate her son, she advised the students that as young adults they fall under the wing of confidentiality, so it took time before she was contacted that her son was missing. Sadly he was found months later very close to the house party he attended.

Mark Cronin, a former Quincy public schools student, was the next presenter.

He spoke of an accident he was involved in a few years ago on the Neponset Bridge, when he was struck head-on by a drunk driver traveling in the wrong lane. He was on his motorcycle with his wife heading home when he saw the vehicle coming at him. He veered away to protect his wife but took the impact of the accident, which severed his left leg. At this time, he revealed his prosthetic limb to their astonishment.

Mr. Cronin told the audience how this incident adversely affected his life as well as the drunk driver's, who lost her license, her job and spent two years in jail.

Quincy Police Lt. Dan Minton presented a pamphlet on the financial costs of an OUI, estimated at $13,000, followed by a review of jail time, career disadvantages and personal humiliation. Videos of an actual case of a death caused by alcohol poisoning and an accident scene where a high school girl was badly burned in an accident caused by a drunk driver were also shown.

Quincy Police Detective Ward then brought out the "drunk driving" goggles and students were given the opportunity to experience what it is like to be under the influence while attempting simple daily tasks.

The class then went out to the front of the high school where a press conference was hosted by the Quincy Police Department and attended by representatives from the Office of Public Safety, the Massachusetts State Police and the National Transportation Safety Board.

After a few words by Officials, SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions) members Tim Liuzzo, Jen Griffith and Lisamarie Flora spoke to fellow students about the importance of buckling up.

The State Police concluded the program with a demonstration of their "Roll Over" vehicle, showing what happens to un-seated belted simulated bodies inside a vehicle if it was to flip over.

"This multi-faceted approach appears to be very effective in keeping our young adults safe during prom season - and hopefully as they continue forward," said Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan.

"We don't know if it is the videos, the speakers - Lynda and Mark, the pamphlets, or the goggles demonstration that reaches each student, but it is working here."

QUINCY POLICE Lt. Dan Minton was among the speakers at North Quincy High School's Pre-Prom Safety Assembly. Lt. Minton presented a pamphlet on the financial costs of an OUI, estimated at $13,000, followed by a review of jail time, career disadvantages and personal humiliation.

SAL Memorial Day Observance At Flags For Veterans Island Over 50 Memorial, Honor Flags Dedicated

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

More than 50 memorial and honor flags representing deceased veterans as well as service men and women who served or continue to serve in the nation's military were dedicated at a solemn tribute by the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294 at a ceremony Saturday at Veterans Island.

"The flags on this island are in honor of all the men and women who have served, continue to serve and those who have answered the final, so our country remains free," said SAL Commander Paul Moody.

"Always remember if there were no veterans, there would be no America. Freedom is not free," Moody said as American flags fluttered in a light breeze on a bright, sunny afternoon.

The ceremony at Veterans Island on Pleasant Street in Fort Square was attended by local officials, veterans, color guards and friends and family of the flag honorees.

With the approval of the city, Squadron 294 of the Sons of the American Legion maintains the island and its "Flag for Vets" display during the fair-weather months. A flagpole was added last year with the support of Mayor Thomas Koch.

Athletic Trainers, Extra Games Spark School Budget Debate

By EMILY TAFT

Questions were raised during last Thursday's Budget and Finance subcommittee meeting about the $35,000 in the 2013 budget to pay for two new trainers and five extra games for all major sports.

School committee vice chairwomen Barbara Isola said the money being used might be beneficial elsewhere.

"I really firmly believe that athletics is a wonderful thing in our school system. It saves students' lives and helps a lot of students get through school, and gives enrichment to so many students throughout their high school career, and middle school," said Isola. "I believe we should be putting some money into athletics, because they have been cut severely."

"When I look at the other cuts that have happened over the past two years, specifically that we took away media in elementary and middle schools, which affected every elementary and middle school student. I really have a hard time reconciling those two, so I have been thinking about it. I just feel as though we have cut so many academic programs and whether it be another teacher or another program, I just feel as though it would impact so many more students."

Although many agreed during the hour long meeting that they have cut many academic programs in the past few years and it would be beneficial to students to put money back into those programs, the small budget for the two trainers and five extra games wouldn't go far in other areas.

"I totally understand, but I look at it and say if we cut a little of it, what would it do? If it were a bigger amount, I think I would go to that area, and say to myself we could utilize this and put someone back full time here or there," said school committee member Dave McCarthy.

"When I look at the $35,000 to support those extra five or six games that we need to support both away and home, to make the schedule whole. When I look at this and I hear from the parents and the booster groups, they had to scrounge to get that done. That 20-game plateau is very important for MIAA for kids tournament bound, and for exposure. I feel pretty good about that number."

School Committee Member Anne Mahoney said she agreed that they should take a second look and analyze the programs they have had to cut, but she does understand the need of the trainers and extra games.

"I think we do have to go back and analyze the things we did cut, and sports was of course one that took a heavy, heavy hit," said Mahoney. "I absolutely understand the need for the extra games and especially the trainers."

Mahoney said advertising and sponsorships would allow that $35,000 to go elsewhere if necessary. This is not the first time Mahoney has mentioned creating sponsorships and advertising during sports games to create revenue and she said that she will continue to suggest it even if it is not a popular choice by the community and school committee.

"I do think it's time we as a school committee look at sponsorships and advertising and how to generate revenue in another way," said Mahoney. "Other towns do it, and we need to be innovative in trying to move our programs ahead because we are falling behind. It's something we need to consider. We already have business partnerships that would be willing to do it, and there are so many ways we could raise that money. It's doable, it's reasonable and it's within our reach."

School Committee Member Paul Bregoli along with Mahoney and McCarthy stressed the importance of having a trainer for both high schools.

"It seems ludicrous to me that we don't have the person who is trained in evaluating concussions and making the proper recommendation to the student athlete and the parent. We are talking about the health and safety of a child first and foremost," said Bregoli. "An athletic trainer not only treats an injury but then they also are able to get them back, because they are also trained to rehabilitate."

Bregoli added that the responsibility of the booster clubs should be to provide uniforms, jackets and gear for the teams, not to pay for the teams to play five extra games.

"The booster club use to be to supplement the uniforms because we can't buy uniforms every couple of years," said Bregoli. "My booster club had to raise a ton of money last year. We had to pay over a $1,000 to the athletic department in order to fund the extra buses and games that the kids played."

Bregoli said extra games are very important to the athletes, and to ask a student to pay to play and train for only 13 games is not worth doing.

"You're asking kids to train for several months to play 13 games; we can do that but what's the point? If we are going to do that we might as well just do away with the athletic department. In the direction we are going right now that is what's happening anyway," said Bregoli. "For us to be looking at an athletic line and saying that we want to move a minimal amount of money to something else, we are doing a disservice to the 900 or so kids that are participating in athletics and are safe. I am dead set against it."

Isola ended the meeting by asking School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro and his leadership team to come to the May 31st meeting with a presentation on some possibilities of what the $35,000 could also be used for.

"I would like to see that balance and maybe shift money elsewhere. I would like to explore other places in academic programs that we could take some of those monies and put it out there," said Isola. "I think that it's really beneficial for us to look at everything as we go through, and look at how many students are touched by each thing."

Commuter Boat Terminal Accident Kills Brockton Man

A Brockton man was killed in accident at the Fore River Shipyard's commuter boat terminal Friday morning, May 25.

Fred Clay, a 42-year-old James Devaney Fuel Co. employee, was pumping fuel into an MBTA Harbor Express boat. Around 3:30 a.m. the brakes on his fuel truck, which had been parked on an upward slope, released and Clay was driven backwards and trapped against a wall, according to MBTA spokeswoman Lydia Rivera.

"The truck was positioned on an incline," Rivera said. "The brakes failed, pinning him to a wall."

A second, unidentified fuel company employee was able to drive the truck off Clay, and then called 911. Quincy Police arrived on scene and performed CPR before Clay was rushed to Quincy Medical Center. He was pronounced dead at the hospital later that morning.

Rivera said Tuesday that the incident remained under investigation by the MBTA Police Department.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

ANY REASON TO BE AFRAID?

While there are some individuals who experience "dental phobia" to the point where they sacrifice their oral health by choosing not to visit the dentist, there may be little for them to fear. The fact is that modern dental techniques have reduced pain to a barely perceptible level. When nearly 52,000 people were recently surveyed on the matter of dental procedures they had undergone during the past five years, only six percent reported severe pain during tooth extraction. Only five percent reported severe pain associated with root-canal therapy (it is the infection and inflammation that hurts, not the procedure to alleviate the pain of an abscessed nerve root), and only one percent experienced severe pain associated with a dental filling.

People with dental phobia often put off routine care for years or even decades. We can help. This informative column has been brought to you as a public service. Extractions, sealants, fillings, root canals, cosmetic dentistry, partial or full dentures, and crowns and bridges are just some of the service we offer. For exceptional dental care, call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we want to provide your entire family with the best care possible. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If you are anxious about visiting the dentist, make your feelings known when scheduling an appointment to ensure that you will be given detailed information about anything the dentist intends to do.

First Of Four Discover Quincy Days Saturday

Discover Quincy, the tourism agency of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, announces a new "Discover Quincy Days" program being offered this summer.

On four Saturdays (June 2, July 7, Aug. 4, and Sept. 1), visitors and residents can experience Quincy and all of its rich history with three different planned itineraries for one admission price.

Participants may purchase a Discover Quincy wristband for $5 that gives them admission for the day. Wristbands may be purchased in advance at the Adams Academy, Best Western Adams Inn, Coffee Break Café, and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

They may also be purchased on each Discover Quincy Day at the Adams Academy.

With the purchase of a wristband, visitors can enjoy one, two or all three planned itineraries in the same day. With the "Adams Experience," visitors embark on a trolley at the National Parks Visitors Center for a guided tour of the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, as well as the Old House at Peace field.

Upon their return, they will stroll down to the United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) for a guided tour of the church and the crypt, which is the final resting place of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, and First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine.

With the "Quincy Experience," visitors will begin at the Adams Academy/Quincy Historical Society for a guided tour of the museum. From there, provided transportation will take them to the Dorothy Quincy Homestead for a guided tour of the estate, which was the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy, wife of John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence and first governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Upon completion of the tour at the Quincy Homestead, provided transportation will bring visitors to the Josiah Quincy House. Built in 1770 as a country estate by revolutionary patriot Colonel Josiah Quincy, this colonial home served as a lookout point from which the patriots observed British ships traveling in and out of Boston Harbor.

The third itinerary is the "Walking Quincy Experience." Participants can explore Quincy's history by walking in the footsteps of John Adams.

A Walking Tour map will guide visitors from the Adams Academy/Quincy Historical Society down Hancock Street. Along the way, a variety of statues and markers, such as the John Adams and Abigail Adams/John Quincy Adams statues and Granite Ball are highlighted.

At the Hancock Cemetery, located across the street from the United First Parish Church, a historical interpreter will be on hand to guide visitors through the town's earliest cemetery.

The walking tour ends with a visit to the Thomas Crane Public Library and its magnificent Richardson Reading Room.

For more information, visit TheQuincyChamber.com or call the Quincy Chamber of Commerce at (617) 471-1700.

Public Safety Firm To Lead Fire Chief Process

An independent fire safety consultant will head the selection to name a permanent Quincy fire chief as part of a process dictated by the State Civil Service Commission, officials announced Tuesday.

The firm, Facets Consulting based in Arizona, will put together a panel of experienced commanding officers from major fire departments from across the country to interview, screen and ultimately rank the candidates for the fire chief's position.

The process is expected to be completed within about a month, officials said. The city is paying $12,000 for the independent fire safety consultant.

According to the scope of work submitted to the city by the consulting group, Alexandria, Virginia Fire Chief Adam Thiel will be the chairman of the selection pane. He will be joined by San Antonio Fire Chief Charles N. Hood and Michael Lombardo, a retired Battalion Chief for the City of Buffalo, N.Y. Fire Department.

All members of the panel have experience in fire chief selection committees.

"This is a firm and a panel that has impeccable credentials, and this selection adheres to the wishes of the Civil Service Commission by creating a thorough and independent process," said Human Resources Director Stephen McGrath.

When the appointment process started in 2008, Mayor Thomas Koch was presented a list of the top three scorers on the Civil Service exam for chief. The top scorer, Deputy Chief Edward Fenby, declined the job, leaving Mayor Koch to pick from Deputy Chief Joseph Barron and Deputy Chief Gary Smyth, who were separated by a single point on the exam.

Koch chose Barron, resulting in a series of appeals and lawsuits. Eighteen months after first hearing the case, the Civil Service Commission ordered a new search be conducted.

History And Honor At 'The Church Of The Presidents'

10 countries including Australia, Japan, Thailand and Brazil as well as 36 states and Washington, D.C. have visited the "Church of the Presidents."

Haynes says the majority of international visitors say they have read about John Adams, notably David McCullough's Pulitzer Prize-winning book "John Adams." Those traveling out of state to visit the church and Quincy indicate they read "John Adams" or watched the HBO mini-series adapted from the book.

He says the visitor's program is about one thing: giving tourists a memorable experience.

"We provide guided tours of the crypt. We also bring people into the church sanctuary. We talk about the memorial tablets that honor three generations of Adams (family) as well as the memorial tablet to whom this city of Quincy is named in honor of — Colonel John Quincy who was the maternal grandfather of Abigail Adams.

"We also talk about why we pronounce Quincy with a "z" versus the way it's spelled," says Haynes, who himself speaks with a Virginia accent but nails the "z" each time he pronounces "Quincy."

"We also point out John Quincy Adams' pew where he actually worshipped and we also talk about John Hancock because he was actually born and grew up in Quincy. His father, the Rev. John Hancock, was one of the ministers of the parish.

"And if people are interested, we talk about how the church was formed in 1639 and some of the earliest ministers of the parish."

Haynes also said visitors are eager to learn why the Adamses are buried in the crypt.

"A lot of people want to know why they were moved from across the street (Hancock Cemetery) to the family crypt in the church. We tell them this is what President John Quincy Adams wanted to do as a memorial to his parents. He asked permission from the church congregation to build a crypt in what he referred to as the new Stone Temple and it was granted.

"The church also provided him a deed to the original plot of ground."

The Presidential wreath-laying ceremonies that commemorate the birthday anniversaries of John Adams and John Quincy Adams annually are very informative for the majority of church visitors, Haynes says.

"They weren't aware of the tradition that was started by Lyndon Johnson who ordered wreaths be placed at the final resting places for all deceased U.S. presidents. Every sitting president has continued that tradition."

There's also considerable interest in the architecture of the magnificent edifice. The Greek-revival style church was built of granite donated by John Adams and designed by Alexander Parry who was also the architect for Quincy Market in Boston.

While a bronze plaque fastened to the outside of the church notes the church is listed on the National Register of Historical Places, one look at the magnificent ceiling also suggests the church is special indeed.

"Visitors are very surprised when they first walk into the church because they don't expect to see that ceiling," Haynes says. "You don't see the dome from outside. The detail of the ceiling really surprises people. It surprised me when I first saw it. It's magnificent."

Haynes said he and volunteer tour guides Pat Sullivan and Bill Westland hope to give visitors an experience that completes their visit to the Adams National Historical Site that includes the birthplaces of the two Presidents as well as the Old House at Peace field. The Old House was home to four generations of Adams and the site of the Summer White House when John and John Quincy Adams served as president.

"We hope to leave them with that experience and they'll come back and they've learned some information not only about the Presidents but also the history of Quincy."

Commencement speaker was state Auditor Suzanne Bump. She was elected state auditor in 2010.

Bump, who has more than 30 years of leadership experience in both the public and private sectors, told the graduates she believes that better government means government that is more effective, more efficient, more accountable and more transparent.

Since taking office, Bump has implemented sweeping reforms in the Office and a new guiding set of principles under which OSA employees will work to achieve excellence in auditing.

"The Auditor's Office must model the behavior it expects from those it audits - if officials in government and private vendors are going to respect and heed our audit findings, and if the public is to have confidence that this office can be an effective watchdog and agent for change in government," Bump said.

The state auditor said she is using the resources and authority of the office in new ways to examine areas like the state's system of tax breaks, credits and incentives for the business community; to identify broken systems within state government; and to determine whether state vendors who provide services ranging from health care to education are delivering the benefits the public expects.

Prior to her election as State Auditor, she served in Governor Deval Patrick's Cabinet as Secretary of Labor and Workforce Development. She served eight years in the state legislature, representing Braintree in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. She has also worked as a business advocate and counsel for a number of private companies and has sat on the boards of non-profit business and service organizations.

Bump, a native of Whitman, graduated from Boston College with a bachelor's degree in English and received her juris doctorate from Suffolk University School of Law.

Leor Alcalay, Quincy College faculty member, served as the Mace Bearer at commencement. This year's commencement completes Professor's Alcalay's 24th year teaching at Quincy College where he has taught communication and ESL studies.

He is a past recipient of the President's Award for Teaching Excellence.

QHS Graphics And Visual Design Students Interpretive Signage At Inclined Plane Railway

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum is in the process of moving forward with the Inclined Plane Project.

The goal of the project is to erect signage at the historic Inclined Plane Railway that was used along with the Granite Railway, the first commercial railroad in America. Both railways were designed and built by Gridley Bryant to transport granite to the Neponset River for destinations up and down the east coast.

In researching the project, no photos, pictures or sketches of how it looked or operated when Gridley Bryant constructed it in 1830 existed.

The Quarry Museum commissioned artist Ruth Haderski of Weymouth to do a rendering of the 1830 Inclined Plane Railway system. The rendering of the Inclined Plane Railway in 1830 was based mainly on excerpts from the book by Gridley Bryant titled "Memoirs of Gridley Bryant" in which he describes the construction and operation of the railway in a letter to a friend.

The actual remains of the Inclined Plane on Mullin Avenue, West Quincy and Bryant's memoirs enabled the museum to work with the artist to develop a realistic rendering of what it may have looked like in 1830.

With the rendering complete, the museum members assembled historical photos and developed an interpretive for each photo and sketches to be included in the signage.

The project now needed technical expertise in the graphic design field.

The museum contacted Keith Segalla the Executive Director of Career Education and Instructional Technology in the Quincy Public Schools who directed the museum to the Graphic Arts and Visual Design class of Aileen McGinnity, to design the signage using the information supplied by the museum.

The three seniors who were chosen to work on the project were Olivia Goldson who will be attending the University of Arizona, Theresa Hughes who will be attending the Massachusetts College of Art and Design and Benjamin Witunsky who will be attending Bunker Hill Community College and then Becker College.

The informational signage will be placed at the foot of the Inclined Plane to give Quincy residents and visitors a prospective of the site when it was in operation transporting granite from the quarry in 1830.

The future plan of the museum is to continue the placement of signage at historical sites in Quincy related to the granite industry.

14 New Members Inducted On May 20

North Quincy High Basketball Hall of Fame Welcomes A New Class

By SEAN BRENNAN & CHRIS McDANIEL

The North Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame added 14 new members to its distinguished roll of former players and coaches at a dinner and awards night on May 20 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

The 14-member class ranged in scope from stars of the late 1940's (Ed McCauley, Class of 1947) all the way up to the early 2000's (Phil McGillicuddy & John O'Connell, Class of 2002), but the common theme of everyone being enshrined centered on the memories of rivalry games versus Quincy High to upsets over state powerhouse programs.

"There was a lot of pride wearing the Red Raider jersey, representing my family and school," said Michael Gill, a forward on the 1977 team. "I'll also remember good times and good friends."

Gill averaged 10 points per game as a senior, hitting for a career-high of 20 in a 57-48 win over Weymouth North. He also scored 11 points in a 54-50 upset of undefeated Rindge Tech — the biggest win of the 1977 season for North Quincy.

Matthew Beston, Class of 1995, spoke, not about particular games, but instead about his former teammates and the camaraderie they experienced battling for one another on the court. "It wasn't the particular games I'll remember," he said, "just the players. Something that always stuck with me, as a freshman I passed the ball to Sean Donovan for his 1,000 point."

Beston played for North Quincy from freshman to junior year before leaving to play at Taber Academy where he led them to the New England Prep School title. As a Red Raider, Beston was a three-year varsity player and finished his career with 582 points, which is tied for 16th all-time. In 1994-1995, he averaged 17.6 points per game with 8.5 assists a game. The team's point guard at the time, he scored a career-high 28 points versus Barnstable. Beston went on to star at Stonehill College where he led the Chieftains to an appearance in the Division II Elite Eight National Championships.

Joey Deane, a forward on the 1978 team, described being inducted as entering into a "basketball fraternity." A two-year varsity performer, Deane led the Red Raiders in scoring his senior year, reaching double figures in more than half the games that season. Following his career at North Quincy, he went on to play semi-professional ball with the Quincy Nets from 1989 to 1994.

Joining Deane from the Class of 1978 in this year's class was center Peter Johnston. "It was humbling and a wonderful gesture," Johnston said about the special honor.

Johnston was a solid two-way (undersized) center for North Quincy. During the 1977-1978 season, he led the Red Raiders in rebounding and blocked shots while finishing the year with a 10.4 scoring average against much taller opponents. After high school, Johnston played at Boston State.

For several of the inductees, the honor of being included into the North Quincy "basketball fraternity" came as an unexpected acknowledgement. Steve Martinelli, a guard on the 1975 team, said, "it was a pleasant surprise."

Martinelli was being humble. He career path at NQHS made him a worthy inclusion. During his senior season he averaged 11.7 points per game while playing for Coach Knobby Nolan. Another highlight of his senior season was his key block against Quincy that preserved a 52-50 victory. Martinelli would go on to prep a year at Cushing Academy before earning a four-year scholarship to Elon College in North Carolina. His performance at Elon earned him an invitation to tryout for the Boston Celtics in 1981.

Thomas "Cairnsy" Cairns, Class of 1971, a center on one of the best North Quincy team's ever, was inducted and remembered as one of the best big men to ever suit up for the Red Raiders. During the 1970-1971 season he led the team in scoring eight times while notching double figure games 15 times; his 16.6 point per game average ranks 24th all-time.

James Small, a pure jump shooter, and a member of the Class of 1970, earned induction honors for helping to lead the Red Raiders to a 12-5 regular season record and a berth in the Class A Tech Tournament in 1969-1970. Small played the majority of that season on a busted ankle but still managed to finish as the team's second leading scorer and earned Greater Boston League all-star honors. He was a four-year player at North Adams in college.

Thomas Kiley, Class of 1964, was a three-sport captain in football, basketball and baseball at NQHS. A two-year starter, he averaged 10 points per game his senior year and led North Quincy to a 12-7 record. A graduate of Harvard University, he enlisted in the United States Army where he was a decorated veteran. He also played in the U.S. Army National Basketball Championship in 1968-1969. Kiley also served the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as the Assistant Attorney General.

Three players from the 1950's were also inducted: Al Elkhill (Class of 1953, posthumously), Richard Mann (Class of 1957), and Russ Landburg (Class of 1959).

Elkhill was a three-year member of the varsity team and finished his career with 384 points ranking him 51st all-time in scoring. As a senior, he was named captain and averaged 10.7 point per game with a career high of 24 coming versus Arlington High.

Paired with legendary guard Doug Grutchfield, Mann, during his senior season, helped lead North Quincy to a 15-7 record and a Tech Tournament appearance at the Boston Garden. He averaged 15.8 points per game his senior year, including a 27-point effort versus Christopher Columbus High. After leaving NQHS, Mann played four years of hoops at Eastern Nazarene College and was named co-captain during his junior and senior seasons. Mann later earned a PhD in Chemistry and taught at Boston University. He currently resides in Houghts Neck.

Russ Landburg, a three-year member of the Red Raiders, was the program's second-leading scorer during his junior campaign, averaging 10.6 points per game. As a senior he was a dominant player in the Greater Boston League, averaging 16 points per game and reaching double figures 18 times. His outstanding three-game run in the Bay State Tourney where he had 20, 25 and 16-point games earned him a place on the All-Tournament team. He finished his career as the 23rd all-time scorer with 559 points.

The most senior inductee was Ed McCauley Class of 1947; a star CYO Basketball League player, he was enshrined for his stellar play during his senior year at North Quincy. McCauley led the Red Raiders in scoring during the 1946-1947 season, averaging 11.1 points per game. North Quincy that year finished the regular season at 14-3, qualified for the Tech Tournament before losing by three points to Waltham at the old Boston Garden.

McCauley later played three years for the UMass basketball program and following college; he served as a Lieutenant in the United States Army Infantry from 1951-1954.

The youngest members of this Hall of Fame Class were two members of the Class of 2002: Phil McGillicuddy and John "Okie" O'Connell.

McGillicuddy was a fix-ture for North Quincy all four years. He is the only player in school history to play every game — 81 in total. A smooth shooter with an aggressive streak as a guard, he finished his career as the second all-time leading scorer with 1139 points. During his time at North Quincy, McGillicuddy scored in double figures 60 times; he led the Red Raiders in scoring his sophomore, junior and senior years.

O'Connell was a three-year varsity performer. An undersized center, he helped North Quincy to a berth in Division I South tournament his senior season and was named an Old Colony League all-star for a second time. He finished his high school career with 562 points, which ranks him 22nd all-time. O'Connell, who went on to Westfield State, was killed breaking up a fight. He was just 21.

In his memory, Westfield State awards the John "Okie" O'Connell Award to its Outstanding Student Athlete each year. O'Connell was given his due by the NQHS Basketball Hall of Fame not just for his performance on the court but for the type of man he was: a player who finished with the respect and admiration of all who knew him as an athlete and a person.

The Hall also recognized the 1971-1972 North Quincy team, which finished that season as the Division I Eastern Mass finalists. Members of that team included: Burt Bray, Bernard Holleran, Peter Quinn, Dave Mahoney, James Driscoll, Don Small, Jamie Doherty, William Shea, David Nelson, Bob Torino, Bob McKay, Peter Bellotti, Ken Marsters, John Stevens and John Flynn.

North Lands Berth In EMass Tourney

By SEAN BRENNAN

North Quincy baseball didn't repeat as Suburban League champions, but the Raiders, in their final year in the league, will be in the Eastern Mass tournament for a second straight season.

The Raiders' hopes for another league title went out the window earlier last week when they dropped a 6-2 decision to Brockton, which claimed the crown.

The Boxers handed North Quincy (9-2 in the league) its only league losses.

The teams were tied at 2-2 going into the seventh inning when North ace Erik DeBoer was hit hard for the first time this year and Brockton scored four runs. The Raiders' Jeff Calvert had tied the game with a two-run triple in the sixth.

"This was the first time Erik had been hit hard all season," said North coach Leo Donovan. "Brockton has one of the best hitting teams in the league with several players among the Top Ten batters."

QUINCY FINISHES ON DOWNSIDE

Quincy baseball finished the season on the downside, losing its last three games, but did end up with a 7-13 record, a huge improvement over last year when the Presidents won only one game.

"I'm disappointed we didn't win a few more games, but are a young team with a particularly young pitching staff," said coach Bob Sylvia. "Using our young pitchers against much more experienced teams was asking a lot, but the experience they gained should help up next season in our first year in the Old Colony League."

A bright spot for the Presidents was the batting of Tom Balzano. He finished as the number five hitter in the Suburban League with a .438 average.

MURPHY INDUCTED INTO BENTLEY HALL OF FAME

Kevin Murphy, a North Quincy native now living in Falmouth was one of seven inductees into the Bentley College Athletic Hall of Fame.

Murphy played three seasons of club football at Bentley, serving as co-captain in his final two years. A fixture along the defensive line, he was among the team's leading tacklers each year, averaging better than eight a game during his career and was an all-conference honoree in 1976 and 1978.

Murphy's contributions off the field, as president of the football club, were just as distinguished.

Ended Season With 8-5 Win Over North Quincy

QHS Boys' Lacrosse Is Moving In The Right Direction

The Quincy boys' lacrosse team is a team in transition. Competing this season against some of the best lacrosse talent in the area, the Presidents found victories, not in wins, but in progress and development of a young core of players.

Quincy finished with an overall record of 2-15. The Presidents defeated rival North Quincy twice; winning 5-2 back on May 8 and 8-5 on May 22 to end the spring on a high note, and lost by a single goal to nonleague Dedham on April 4 (4-3) and again on May 5 (7-6).

But according to Head Coach Bob Foley, the team's record does not properly reflect the development his young group of athletes accomplished this season. Despite the lack of wins, Foley was excited that his team ended the season on such a good note with their 8-5 win over Quincy.

In that game, that tempo and atmosphere was that of a budding rivalry. Quincy jumped out to an early lead but the equally young Red Raiders, after some man down situations, kept the contest close throughout.

The Presidents finally took control of the scoreboard late in regulation. Mitch McGowan, Phil Truong, and Steve Ross each buried goals to seal the victory. Garrett Reynolds was the key distributor on these goals as Quincy's offense exploded late.

The Quincy defense against North Quincy was solid under the play of Eoin Hurley, Aidan Pugsley and Ryan Higgins.

Rounding out the 2012 roster were Nicco Ferragamo (captain); Josh Bergin (captain); Brian O'Callaghan, Ryan Harty, Max Hurley, Tim McDonald, Pat Dowling, Matt Roach, Joe Yacano, Ciaran McDevitt, Curran Jorgenson, John Quirk, Mark Solander, Billy Escobar, Suhail Purkar, Andy Johnson and James Guerin.

This is a program on the rise and with a talented core of returning players the Presidents are on the fast track to success.

Team Notes:

Quincy opened the season with a 16-0 loss to Duxbury on March 29. During April, the Presidents lost to Hull 19-2 on April 2, to Dedham 4-3 on April 4, and to Silver Lake 17-2 on April 10. Quincy dropped a 11-2 decision to Abington on April 13 before losing to Hanover 18-1 on April 24.

Nonleague Hull knocked off the Presidents 17-2 on April 26, and Quincy dropped an 11-5 decision to South Shore on April 30. Scituate got the best of Quincy, 17-5, back on May 2 and the Presidents fell to Whitman-Hanson, 10-2, on May 4.

A 7-6 loss to Dedham was followed by the 5-2 win over North Quincy on May 8. Whitman-Hanson defeated Quincy 10-2 on May 9; South Shore snuck past the Presidents, 10-7, on May 14, and Pembroke took a 13-5 win on May 16. State power Hingham claimed a 15-1 win over Quincy on May 18 before the Presidents ended the year on a high note with their 8-5 victory over North Quincy.

QHS Softball Today At 3:30 p.m. Versus Brockton Volleyball, Softball In Tournament Mode

By SEAN BRENNAN

Patriot League champion and undefeated North Quincy (14-0) boys' volleyball began its run to a state championship on Wednesday night against Greater New Bedford in a Division I South quarterfinal match at NQHS.

The Red Raiders, on the strength of a perfect regular season, earned the No. 1 seed in the nine-team Division I South tournament field. The reward for an unblemished spring season was a match-up with a dangerous No. 8 Greater New Bedford, which swept No. 9 Boston College High School 3-0 in a first-round match last Saturday.

A win by North Quincy on Wednesday would have set up a sectional semifinal match with the winner of the Barnstable and Newton South quarterfinal match on Friday. No. 4 Barnstable (13-5) and No. 5 Newton South (14-6) are two of the strongest programs in the South field.

On the other side of the Division I South bracket, No. 2 Newton North (16-1) squares off with No. 7 Brockton (13-7) in one quarterfinal match while No. 3 Needham and No. 6 Norwood meet in the other.

Last spring, the Red Raiders eliminated New Bedford 3-1 in the quarterfinals before getting swept by Newton North in the sectional semifinals, 3-0. It would not be a surprise if North Quincy and Newton North, the top two seeds in 2012, meet again in the sectional finals.

Technically, North Quincy is riding a 16-match winning streak. However, two of the wins this year where exclusionary games, meaning they didn't count to the overall seeding. Not that it matters much since the Red Raiders are the only undefeated program in Division I South.

Much of this success is based on a solid starting line-up that Head Coach Jason Cai puts out on the court. North Quincy's motor starts with senior outside hitters Aris Bega and Mike Tran. Against New Bedford last year, Bega dominated net play, finishing with 20 kills and a pair of blocks. In the 3-0 loss to Newton North, Bega finished with 20 kills while Tran was productive with ten kills and a handful of digs.

Cai's junior class is going to have to adjust to tournament-style volleyball, quickly, if North Quincy has any hope of winning a sectional crown. The core of Sebastian Francois (middle hitter), Matt MacPhail (middle hitter), Felix Mann (outside hitter), Andrew Sok (libero) and Peter Nguyen (setter) have been super productive this season, supplying the Red Raiders with depth across the court.

MacPhail finished with five kills and three blocks as a sophomore versus New Bedford.

The Division I South field is as follows: No. 1 North Quincy (14-0); No. 2 Newton North (16-1); No. 3 Needham (16-4); No. 4 Barnstable (13-5); No. 5 Newton South (14-6); No. 6 Norwood (12-6); No. 7 Brockton (13-7); No. 8 GNB (11-6), and No. 9 BC High (10-7, eliminated).

Quincy Softball

When Head Coach Greg Sommers took over the reins of the Quincy High softball program he just missed coaching the best starting pitcher in school history: Kori Sorensen.

But his consolation prize was equally as good this spring.

Senior right-hander Nicole Parry finished the season as the best pitcher in the Patriot League and arguably one of the top pitchers in all of Eastern Mass. It is now up to Parry, Sommers and the rest of the Presidents to enact some revenge for the previous two-tournament appearances by Quincy.

The Presidents lost 1-0 in 18 innings to North Attleboro last season (Sorensen struck out 26), and two years ago, Quincy lost to Dartmouth 1-0 in 20 innings.

This season Quincy will begin its tournament run with a preliminary round matchup against Big 3 opponent Brockton High today (Thursday) at 3 p.m. at Mitchell-McCoy Field. The Presidents (12-7) are seeded No. 14 while Brockton (11-9) is seeded No. 19.

The winner of this play-in game gets No. 3 Sandwich (18-4) on the Cape on Saturday at 3 p.m.

Parry will be a major reason Quincy advances today but not to be overlooked is the Presidents' offense led by seniors Caitly Lowry and Erin Chiocchio. Underclassmen Bethany Walker and Taylor Parry provide explosiveness down the order and players such as Ashley Faiella, Saxon Bresnahan, and Devon Varmahmoodi could come up with that big hit Quincy has been missing the last two years.

The entire 24-team Division I South field is as follows: 1. King Philip (18-2); 2. Bridgewater-Raynham (17-3); 3. Sandwich (18-4); 4. Notre Dame Hingham (13-3); 5. Silver Lake (16-4); 6. N. Attleboro (16-4); 7. Braintree (14-4); 8. Somerset-Berkley (15-5); 9. Marshfield (13-5); 10. Mansfield (14-6); 11. New Bedford (14-6); 12. Natick (14-6); 13. Dighton-Rehoboth (14-8); 14. Quincy (12-7); 15. Walpole (11-7); 16. Weymouth (11-7); 17. Taunton (13-9); 18. Norwood (10-8); 19. Brockton (11-9); 20. Whitman-Hanson (10-10); 21. Bishop Feehan (10-10); 22. Franklin (10-10); 23. Oliver Ames (10-10); 24. Stoughton (8-11).

BACK PAIN IS NOT LIMITED TO ADULTS

It is often pointed out that up to 80% of adults experience back pain during the course of their lives. While this statistic may cause many to think that the problem is largely age-related, the fact is that children suffer from back pain as well. According to epidemiological studies, about one-third of children and adolescents experience low back pain at some point in their young lives. However, a recent study involving nearly 3,000 patients reveals that, in the case of three-quarters of adolescents with mechanical low back pain, the source is non-specific and self-resolving. This finding argues for a minimalist approach, which chiropractic care can provide. Even in 7% of cases involving spondylitis (spinal osteoarthritis), the conservative approach is preferred.

Back pain that lasts longer than three months is referred to as chronic back pain and may be indicative of some underlying condition. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, your and your children's good health is our main concern. Be sure to call 617.472.4220 today to schedule an appointment. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. When back pain experienced by children is sports-related, the chiropractor can check the youngster's biomechanics in hopes of isolating the cause and determining effective treatment.

Tax Title Auction Brings Nearly $700,000 In Revenues To City

The City of Quincy realized nearly $700,000 in revenues from taxpayer redemptions, tax title auction sales and premiums paid by investors at its first ever tax title assignment auction held May 22.

The auction campaign was conducted by Brain-tree-based tax title auction specialists Strategic Auction Alliance.

After significant efforts to collect back taxes due without success, city officials utilized an option available through a section of the Massachusetts General Law. Under that provision, municipalities can sell the receivable position of taxes owed to the highest bidder at public auction, as long as the minimum bid at least equals what the city is owed. Winning bidders then in effect assume the city's position and are entitled to 16% simple interest on the principal balance of the tax title account. Assignees can elect to initiate foreclosure proceedings if the debt, plus interest, is not repaid. The assignment of the tax title in this manner allows the city to immediately recoup monies owed on taxes, and avoids additional time and expense involved with tax foreclosure proceedings.

The auction campaign started with $1.9M in tax titles. Some properties were withdrawn from the auction due to title problems or other issues, while others did not draw investor interest, in some cases due to the large amount of taxes due relative to the value of the properties. Many property owners paid their overdue taxes to keep the tax titles from being sold to outside investors. Investors were both local and from states including Arizona, Florida, New York and New Jersey.

Pre-auction redemptions totaled $409,750, while auction day sales accounted for $268,301 in revenues for a grand total of $678,051. Investors bid competitively for the opportunity to buy Quincy's individual tax titles, paying $14,200 in premiums (price in excess of face value of the tax title assignment).

Strategic Auction Alliance principal Tom Weibrecht said, "We're pleased with the outcome of the Tax Title auction campaign... investor participation was excellent resulting in spirited bidding that added to the revenues generated". Weibrecht, a 1987 NQHS graduate added "It was an honor to help the City of Quincy to raise funding the city needs to provide essential services to its residents."

Plan Now for Emergencies

Q: I wanted to write and remind your readers to have a plan in place in case of natural disasters. I live in a hurricane-prone area, so I keep what I call a "hurricane kit" ready at all times. It's stocked with first-aid supplies, food, water and other items that I can grab and throw into the car in case my family needs to evacuate. I also know the location of important papers so I can grab those, too. And I reserved a corner of my garage to store post-hurricane supplies like tarps, a generator and basic tools. I learned to do all this several years ago when a Category 3 hurricane passed through my town, but not until after the storm. Now I'm prepared before the storm. —Curtis F., Orlando

A: Thanks for reminding us all, Curtis! Organization is key to surviving during and after a natural disaster, fire or other calamity. Here are a few tips to keep in mind:

—Prepare your family for the most likely scenario depending on your geographic location: hurricane, tornado, blizzard, wildfire, flood or other event.

—Learn about and prepare for household emergencies, including fire, a gas leak, carbon monoxide leak, etc.

—Create an escape plan and rehearse it with your family.

—Create an evacuation kit that includes important papers, food, water, first aid, blankets and other essential items.

—Include pets in your plans! Add pet food and medicines to your evacuation kit, along with a copy of their vaccination record and license. And keep their carry crate accessible.

—If you must shelter in place during a disaster, designate your home's safe spot (basement, central room, closet or bathtub, for example), and make sure everyone knows to get there quickly.

—Create a post-disaster supply stash that includes several tarps (to cover damaged roof areas or create temporary shelter), a generator, canned foods, water and first aid, and store in a reinforced area if possible. Store gasoline away from the house at all times.

Don't Become a Victim of Identity Theft

The payroll tax reduction haThe Consumer Federation of America has a new website designed to help reduce identity theft. IDTheftInfo.org is packed with consumer, business and victim resources, as well as the latest news and a section on shopping for identity-theft services.

One section on the website explores how well you guard your personally identifying information (PII), even something as simple as your library card. If you were to lose the card, you might not be too concerned as it's not something connected with your bank account. But if someone checks out and doesn't return (in effect, steals) books or videos under your name, you're responsible for the monetary damages.

ID Theft Info suggests making a "PII Chart" to document the identity relations we have with companies and individuals. Who has our name, address, phone number and email address? A security breach in one area can lead to other areas also being breached, and it need not be associated only with financial transactions. Homeowner associations, frequent-flier clubs and churches can all have pieces of our personal information that can be put together.

Some suggestions:

Use a Post Office box for miscellaneous mail such as club newsletters and church bulletins; disable the GPS photo function on your smartphone; and use only one credit card for online purchases. Don't sign up with your real name on public Internet sites. Work to limit the amount of information in each section of your PII Chart.

When you go to the doctor and fill out the forms, leave out your Social Security number. Ask if you can substitute another form of identification.

Don't use public charging stations or anyone else's computer for your cell phone, and don't let anyone else hook their phone to your computer. Data-stealing malware could be transferred from one to the other.

Are you a potential victim of identity theft? Assess your risk with an online test. The higher the score, the bigger your risk. Big point items (indicating a larger risk) are questions about whether you've ordered your credit report in the last two years, posted your outgoing mail at home in an unlocked mailbox or failed to scrutinize your monthly bank and credit-card statements.

Look around the ID Theft Info website. The more you know, the less likely you'll become a victim of identity theft.

David Uffington regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475, or send e-mail to columnreply@gmail.com.

Friends Of Star of Sea Parish Prepare For 'New Voyage'

Since January 2011, the Vatican has issued more than two dozen decisions in favor of parishioner groups across the U.S. who have appealed the closing (and potential sale) of their churches.

Emboldened by these successes, former parishioners of Star of the Sea felt relatively optimistic when they filed their appeal at the Vatican challenging Cardinal O'Malley's decree of relegation of Star of the Sea Church in Squantum. So, when Sean Glennon and Maureen Mazrimas, co-chairs of the Friends group coordinating these appeals, received letters from the Congregation for the Clergy denying their appeal, they were surprised and disappointed.

"It just doesn't make sense; it's very disconcerting," said Glennon, who was the director of music ministry and liturgical coordinator at Star of the Sea before it closed. "In other dioceses across the country (including Springfield, MA) parishioner groups have been winning cases with the exact same evidence and using the same Canonical advocates we used. Yet, we and five other Boston parishioner groups, were denied. It's very suspicious, especially considering the blatant inaccuracies and misrepresentations in the Congregation's denial."

One "misrepresentation" Glennon notes from the Vatican decision states that parishioners failed to prove they had properly put the Cardinal on notice of the intent to appeal.

"Not only do we have US Postal Service 'return receipt' cards, but we have three letters from the Cardinal's office, one personally signed by his Eminence stating, 'Thank you for your letter, received in my office on July 19, 2011, requesting that I reverse or suspend the Decree of July 14...' Mazrimas questioned, 'What further proof would be required than a letter from the Cardinal himself?'" Mazrimas was Vice Chair of the Parish Pastoral Council of Star of the Sea.

"It's not the first time that there have been inconsistencies in applying the law," said Mazrimas. When the Diocese of Spokane, WA applied to the courts for bankruptcy protection, Bishop Skylstad testified under oath - supported by the opinion of his canon lawyer - that churches in his diocese could not be included in the bankruptcy assets because they were not owned by the diocese, but only held in trust. Boston area groups opposing the sale of parish real estate, hoped the same rules would apply on the East Coast. However, they did not. Same Catholic church - same canon law - different results."

Former parishioners of Star of the Sea plan to appeal this latest Decree to the Apostolic Signatura - the Vatican version of the U.S. Supreme Court - a multi-step process which will cost several thousand dollars and take several months. "There was no question we would go forward," said Mazrimas. "The parishioners, in meeting after meeting, consistently voted in favor of going the distance, and have confirmed that by funding these appeals."

"Another reason to proceed," said Glennon "is that the Signatura is a formal 'court' of the Vatican, whereas, the Congregation is a 'department.' We feel the Signatura will take an honest look at the evidence presented, which we believe to be quite compelling."

Star of the Sea was suppressed by Cardinal O'Malley in October 2004 and reopened as a chapel in July 2005, upon a positive recommendation by the Meade-Eisner Committee - a group created by the Cardinal to review the suppression of certain parishes. The parishioners were shocked when the church was closed again abruptly Sept 5, 2010.

Since the reclosing of the church 20 months ago, former parishioners have stayed involved through prayer meetings; town meetings; fundraisers; social media; and communion liturgies in the absence of a priest.

Last July, the church property went back on the City of Quincy tax rolls - with a bill in excess of $40,000 annually. With the property now being taxable, and the diminished real estate value, the parishioners say it makes more sense to keep the building open as a worship site.

"It's $40,000 found money, to say nothing of the revenues that could be generated in weekly collections if the church were reopened," said Mazrimas. "It would be a win-win; we don't understand why the Boston chancery has been unwilling to sit down and talk about this. This has never been about digging in and not being willing to give an inch, it has been about safeguarding the Church - purchased and built by the laity - as a place of worship for generations to come."

In addition to the canonical Appeal to the Vatican, the group has been exploring civil litigation, but hopes it will not come to that.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, May 22 at approximately 12:45 p.m., Officer Powers was on patrol in the parking lot of Hanaford's Supermarket when he noticed a vehicle idling in the "Fire Lane" directly in front of the entrance to the supermarket.

The vehicle was occupied by one male driver.

The officer queried the plate on his Mobile Data Terminal (MDT) and learned that the vehicle was registered to a female and had been queried 36 times with the most recent at 1:39 a.m. this date by the Lynn Police Department. Other departments that had recently queried the vehicle were Brockton, Lawrence, Boston, Abington and the Massachusetts State Police.

Officer Powers watched the vehicle from a distance as it continued to idle in the fire lane. After approximately 10 minutes, Officer Powers pulled up behind the suspect vehicle but did not activate his blue lights. The officer exited his cruiser and approached the male in the driver's seat, asking what he was doing and why he was sitting in the "Fire Lane."

In plain view the officer could see a "pot pipe" sitting near the gear shift above the middle console. The male stated he was waiting for a friend who was in the market.

When asked for ID, the driver gave the Officer a New Hampshire driver's license. The driver said that he was in the area working as a contractor. As the officer awaited a license and warrant check, a male came out of the store, leaned into the vehicle and removed an item from the vehicle quickly, placing it into his pocket.

Officer Powers returned to the vehicle and asked the male to step away from the vehicle. The dispatcher informed the officer that the driver had a default warrant out of Westborough District Court for motor vehicle violations. The officer removed the driver (suspect 1) from the vehicle and placed him into custody as Officers Parisi and DiMaggio arrived on scene to assist.

Officer Parisi scanned the interior of the vehicle and spotted some white pills in plain view near the middle console. The white pills were tucked along the side of middle console and wrapped into the cellophane wrapper from a cigarette pack.

Officer DiMaggio, who was standing next to the other male (suspect 2), learned from the suspect that the driver was his cousin and the car was owned by suspect 2's girlfriend. Suspect 2 said his license was suspended and that was why suspect 1 was driving.

When asked about the white pills, suspect 2 said he believed they were his girlfriend's and that there should be a prescription pill bottle in the vehicle for them. There was no prescription bottle located in the vehicle.

Suspect 2 then identified the pills as "Soboxones," which is commonly used illegally as well as sold. Suspect 2 said that he did not have any drugs on him. A criminal record check showed that suspect 2 had been charged with possession of a hypodermic needle.

After suspect 2 denied having any drugs on him, Officer Powers confronted him by stating that he saw suspect 2 place something into his pocket after leaning into the vehicle. Suspect 2 just mumbled something undecipherable.

Suspect 2 was then pat-frisked and an orange cap to a hypodermic needle and a plastic bag containing 5 blue pills and 4 green pills were found. At this point suspect 2 was also placed under arrest. As he was led to the cruiser, suspect 2 stated, "I want to be honest. I knew my cousin was going to be arrested so I came out to try and get the pills."

Both suspects were transported to the station and their vehicle towed. Suspect 1, a 30 year-old homeless male had 4 incidents on his criminal record in Massachusetts and one in New Hampshire, while his cousin, suspect 2, a 27 year-old Scituate resident, had 66 incidents on his record, with 7 open cases stemming from a daytime B&E out Abington.

The pills were identified using pillfinder.com as follows: 5 blue pills as 10 mg Adderall, 5 white pills as 8 mg Buprenorphine Hydrochlorides (derivative of Suboxone), and 4 green pills as 1 mg Klonopin.

Nice Work!

NICE WORK — goes out to Detectives' Ward and Ryan who were driving on Quincy Shore Drive last Wednesday afternoon when they witnessed a woman and her dog get struck by a motor vehicle directly ahead of them. They immediately pulled over, provided first aid to the victim and preserved the scene until additional help arrived.

The situation was chaotic due to the heavy volume of traffic going around them as they treated the victim in the middle of the four lane street. They also had to monitor the driver to ensure that he stayed at the scene. On top of this, they were being threatened by two males (who turned out to be the victim's friends) who were hovering over and screaming at the officers.

Additional officers arrived seconds later and subdued the friends. A neighbor brought the injured and bleeding dog to his yard, where he tried to assess the sluggish animal.

All of a sudden, the dog bit the neighbor in the head, resulting in a gash. Although the injuries to the pedestrian did not appear life threatening, they were serious in nature and she was transported to the hospital. The dog was tended to by Quincy Animal Control and transported to an animal hospital.

CAUTION: Area code 876 is not a toll free exchange — it is actually in Jamaica and it will cost you!

A person recently called the number and was charged a fee of $7.14 (others charged hundreds of dollars) on her phone bill. By searching Google, there are many warnings about this particular area code being involved in scams.

Other exchanges that will cost you are 809 (Dominican Republic) and 284 (British Virgin Islands), both with a history of scams. How do you get scammed with these bills? This actually happens more frequently on cell phones. You may receive an offer "too good to be true" or see a telephone number that you didn't pick up and then call back.

The scammers make money because in the United States and a few other countries, callers do not have to call the international prefix of "011", so it appears to be a call within the U.S. Once you make the call, the scammers try to keep you on the line as long as possible to ring up charges.

If you believe you have been scammed, contact your telephone carrier immediately. Most times, the call and associated fees will be removed.

So, what are legitimate "toll free" numbers? They are "800, 888, 877, 866 and 855", according to the FCC..

Koch Anticipates Construction Of New Building In February, March

Downtown First Phase Seen Sooner

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Tom Koch announced Monday that Quincy Center redevelopment could begin sooner than anticipated, with work on an area of Hancock Street beginning as early as next February or March.

"We are getting close to the day where a shovel goes in the ground for the actual construction of a private building," Koch told city councillors. "I think that is just awesome."

The first stage of construction was scheduled to start in the fall of 2013, in the area where the Ross Garage currently stands. But instead, Koch told the City Council that developer Beal/Street-Works

Storm, Open Tidal Gates Lead To Flooding

30 Homes On Lafayette, Armory And Putnam Sts.; Streets In Squantum, Houghs Neck

and EMILY TAFT

Thirty houses on Lafayette, Armory, and Putnam Streets in Merrymount were flooded late Sunday night after a combination of wind, high tide, and storm surge – as well as soon-to-be-replaced tide gates – caused Blacks Creek to overflow.

"This was an event that occurred as a result of a confluence of events," Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi said at Monday night's council meeting. "We had high tides, we had strong storm surges, and we had north-east winds that were very strong as well. And also, the physical structure of the tide gates within the Blacks Creek."

Raymondi explained that the tide gates were left open because they needed to be closed hours ahead of any anticipated flooding. Mayor Tom Koch's capital improvement plan (CIP) calls for dredging Blacks Creek and also installing new tide gates, at a combined cost of $800,000, that could close during a storm itself.

"Like most tide gates that operate currently," Raymondi said, "these are gates that you really have to look into the future and be prospective because they cannot be manually operated during the event. Whether it be six hours, 12 hours, a day in advance – that's when a decision needs to be made whether to close the gates or open the gates."

"Part of the tide gate enhancement project is to replace those old, reparable gates," Raymondi continued, "with a system or a new structure that would allow the city – at anytime, not just at ebb tide, but at anytime right in the middle of storm, maybe five minutes before an event, maybe while it's happening – to close those gates."

Councillor Doug Gutro wanted to know why the tide gate replacement and dredging in Black Creek hadn't taken place already, considering that the $25 million CIP had been passed last year and money from it had been used on other projects already.

"We voted for it 12 months ago, and this just happened," Gutro said. "We asked for an update on the capital improvement plan and where it's being spent, and it's being spent in a lot of great places based on what I'm understanding, and there were a lot of projects to move forward, but this is not one

Vietnam Veterans Flag Day Parade Grand Marshals

The Flag Day Committee will honor all of the city's Vietnam War Veterans as the Grand Marshal for the 61st Annual Flag Day Parade and Celebration on Saturday, June 16, Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday.

"These young men left their homes and families in Quincy to serve their country didn't return home to any parades. This one will be for them," said Mayor Koch, who is chairman of the Flag Day Committee. "Flag Day is a wonderful community event, and I can think of no more appropriate occasion for our community to come together and honor those who served."

All Vietnam veterans are invited to march, and need only arrive at the parade's start on Coddington Street prior to the step-off time of 7 p.m. There will be a float for veterans unable to walk the route.

The parade steps-off on Coddington Street, before making its way to Hancock Street, turning right onto Merrymount Parkway, and ending at the entrance to Pag-

Wet Weather Postpones Commencements To Wednesday, Tonight

Persistent rains earlier this week postponed the traditional Monday-Tuesday night commencement ceremonies for the city's two high schools.

Graduation for Quincy High School's Class of 2012 – originally set for Monday – was postponed to Wednesday at 6 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The graduation ceremony for North Quincy High School's Class of 2012 – originally scheduled for Tuesday – was postponed to tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m. at the stadium.

In the event of inclement weather Wednesday or Thursday, the graduation ceremonies would be held inside their respective schools in the gymnasiums, school officials said.

An announcement on moving the commencements indoors would be made in the morning and posted on the Quincy Public School's website: quincypublicschools.com.

Robert J. Kay Promoted To Lieutenant

Four New Firefighters Join Quincy Department

By SCOTT JACKSON

Family, friends, and fellow firefighters filled City Hall last Friday to witness the promotion of a new Quincy Fire Department lieutenant and the hiring of four new firefighters.

Robert J. Kay, who has served as a firefighter since October of 2001, was promoted to Lieutenant effective immediately. Fire Chief Joseph Barron said that Kay, a Pembroke resident, had done a great job in the nearly 11 years he spent as a rank and file firefighter.

"I know he does an outstanding job as a firefighter," Barron said. "I've spoken to his deputy chief, and I know we have great confidence in his abilities and he's going to be an outstanding lieutenant."

Firefighting runs in the family for Kay. His father, Bob, is a retired Quincy Fire captain. The elder Kay was in attendance and pinned his son with a lieutenant's badge. Mayor Thomas Koch congratulated Lt. Kay for continuing the family tradition of serving Quincy.

"I certainly want to congratulate Lieutenant-to-be Kay," Koch said before Kay was sworn-in. "He comes from a firefighter family. It's a wonderful moment of pride to see that follow another generation of public service, especially here with the Fire Department."

Firefighting also runs in the family for Joseph G. Ceurvels, Jr., one of the four new firefighters who were sworn-in. His father, Joseph Sr., is currently a captain in the fire department. Koch congratulated the younger Ceurvels for following in his father's footsteps.

"I want to thank Mr. Ceurvels for following in his dad's footsteps in the fire service," Koch said. "There's a long tradition of that in our Fire Department and it's certainly something we should all take pride in."

The younger Ceurvels also has something in common with the other three firefighters who were sworn in Friday: Mark A. Locken, Brendan J. Molloy, and Derek E. Monroe. The four of them all served in the military prior to joining the Fire Department, which Koch thanked them for.

Barron said that the new firefighters, all of whom are Quincy residents, were hired after a lengthy and thorough vetting process which can last upwards of six months.

"We do a very extensive background check," Barron said following the ceremony. "It's an over fifty page application that they go through. We speak with neighbors. We speak with co-workers, prior employers. They have a full physical that they go through, they go through a strengths test with the state, and they also go through a psychological evaluation. It's a fairly comprehensive program."

The four new recruits will next go through a month-long orientation program with the Quincy Fire Department. Following the orientation program, Barron said they would likely join Boston Fire Department recruits for a 12-week long training course, which would be completed in the fall.

Infrastructure Investment Incentive Program Business, Labor Leaders Urge Council To Approve I-Cubed Application

By SCOTT JACKSON

Local business and labor leaders urged the City Council to approve the city's application for the state's infrastructure investment incentive (I-cubed) program at a public hearing last Thursday.

Money from the I-cubed program, up to $50 million, would be used for Town Brook relocation, Adams Green, and building the Cliveden Street bridge. Under the program the state would take out bonds and use revenue from newly generated state taxes to pay them off. In the event of a shortfall, the city would need to pay the difference, using money from a municipal liquidity reserve, which the council would need to establish if it approves the I-cubed application.

Despite the risk, Quincy businessmen told the council it should approve the application and establish the reserve account. Dean Rizzo, president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, said the council has already made other risky votes on the downtown redevelopment.

"This is just one, as you all know, of many votes to have a risk associated with them," Rizzo said. "But you have taken a unique role, I feel, as a city council. You're not just a city council, a public entity, trying to shepherd a development project through the city. You are a true partner, a developer yourselves. And that is why you have taken on the risk you have taken."

The city needs to secure the I-cubed financing as part of its land disposition agreement (LDA) with Beal/Street-Works; if the application isn't approved by the end of this month, the developer could delay its purchase of the Ross Garage. But Rizzo explained that improvements funded by I-cubed would be needed even if the downtown redevelopment wasn't going to happen.

"These are three important projects that have to happen no matter what," Rizzo told the council. "You need to do the Town Brook project, you need to do the Adams Green project, — a signature, gateway green space for the residents of the community — and the other transportation gateway bridge into the heart of the downtown. These are going to enhance development throughout the City of Quincy no matter what."

Brian Moy, the owner of the China Pearl restaurant and a member of the chamber's board of directors, said the Cliveden Street bridge would help businesses like his that aren't located on Hancock Street.

"It is going to be able to ease a lot of traffic," Moy said, "and also it's going to show more people [from] outside the Quincy area that there's more to Quincy than Hancock Street. The surrounding streets and businesses will be able to get more exposure and I believe that that will also generate

The Brown - Warren Race

If you believe the polls, the U.S. Senate race between incumbent Republican Scott Brown and Democrat challenger Elizabeth Warren is a statistical dead-heat.

The latest poll released over the weekend by Western New England University showed Warren with 45 percent and Brown with 43 percent. The sample was 504 registered voters across the state and margin of error of 4.4 percent.

BROWN

WARREN

If you're with Warren, you can't help but be buoyed by those numbers. Warren - who has been dogged by a month-long controversy over her Native American ancestry - has actually climbed in the polls recently. And those who took part in this latest poll said the economy - and not Warren's ancestry controversy - is their number one issue.

If you're in the Brown camp, you may be getting a little nervous if these polls are right.

The Bay State's junior U.S. Senator was elected in a special election in January, 2010 riding a wave of support from Independent voters. He'll need to collect a large share of the Independent voters if he is to win a full six-year term this November.

The WNEU poll showed more Independents support Brown than Warren but the margin was only 13 percent. Of those Independents polled, 50 percent said they favor Brown and 37 percent said they favored Warren. Another 13 percent said they didn't know or were undecided.

As expected, the poll also showed Democratic and Republican support for the two candidates breaking down by party lines.

Democrats polled favored Warren by 84 percent to Brown's 10 percent.

Republicans polled favored Brown by 91 percent to Warren's four percent.

Of course, polls can be misleading and downright wrong.

In the weeks before the election to fill the unexpired term of the late Ted Kennedy, Brown trailed Democrat Martha Coakley. On Election Night, however, Brown secured a historic victory becoming the first Republican to win a U.S. Senate seat in Massachusetts since Ed Brook in 1972.

(Social media may have been a better indicator of the Brown-Coakley race. One poll using Facebook and Twitter showed Brown with a commanding lead in the days leading up to Election Day.)

So where does that leave the two U.S. Senate candidates today - some five months before Election Day Tuesday, Nov. 4?

Obviously, the polls show an increasingly tight contest so close that it may come down to a few percentage points on Election Day.

Quincy - of course - is fertile ground for potential votes, too. "The City of Presidents" boasts 55,434 registered voters. Brown and Warren have already been seen around town shaking hands at various events. You can bet they will ramp up their Quincy campaigning in the ensuing months.

The city has also become more "independent" when it comes to voter registration.

As of Feb. 15 - which was the last day to register for the Presidential Primaries in March - there were 26,325 unenrolled voters (or 47.4 percent of the city's 55,434 registered voters) in Quincy. Registered Democrats were second with 24,403 (42.2 percent) and Republicans third with 5,333 (9.6 percent).

From Oct. 19 to Feb. 15, some 1,550 new voters registered in Quincy. Of that number, 841 preferred unenrolled status instead of declaring a political party. That's about 54 percent of all new voters during that four-month period.

The trend of "independent" voters can also be seen looking at the statewide registration enrollment.

As of Feb. 15, the number of unenrolled voters is first in Massachusetts with 57.18 percent. Democrats are second with 35.9 percent and Republicans third with 11.35 percent. Green Rainbow and political designations make up the rest.

Quincy went with Scott Brown in the 2010 special U.S. Senate race. He received 15,607 votes (53.29 percent) to Coakley's 13,330 (45.51 percent). Libertarian Joe Kennedy picked up 325 votes or 1.11 percent. Turnout here was 29,364 voters or 52.43 percent.

What does it all mean?

Polls that show close races and the surging number of independent voters means the U.S. Senate race could be one of the closest this state has seen in years. It's also on the national radar as a "must watch" race.

In Quincy, it will also mean the candidates will be looking for endorsements from local elected leaders in the hope to gain a boost that could help him or her win the city - and perhaps the state - on Election Day.

Of course, endorsements may not exert much influence on the voting electorate as they used to but it does create some media attention for the candidates who often claim they are gaining momentum as Election Day draws near.

But if Brown or Warren hope to get an endorsement from the city's mayor, they should know he is staying neutral in that race.

"I'm going to do what's best for the people of Quincy. I don't see the value of me getting involved in the middle of that race with all that we have on our plate in our city," the mayor says.

"I've had the opportunity to work with Sen. Brown on a number of issues facing our city and he's been very helpful and cooperative. I've had the opportunity to meet Ms. Warren and she certainly seems like a great candidate but I've got a job to do for the people of this city."

"I can't take my eyes off the ball right now. At this point, I'm going to stay neutral," the mayor said.

KOCH

Koch is a registered Democrat but municipal officials are elected in non-partisan (non party) elections. That means there are no party primaries and candidates for mayor, school committee and city council don't seek office as Democrats, Independents or Republicans per se.

"I belong to the Quincy Democratic City Committee and I know there have been some rumblings from some members of the City Committee that I ought to be front and center for the Warren campaign," the mayor said.

"But I'm elected non-partisan - not just Democrats but unenrolled and Republicans as well as all municipal officials. We are elected in that fashion. I don't feel any obligation to necessarily follow the party candidate at least from the endorsement viewpoint of the Democratic Party even though I'm a registered Democrat."

Whomever wins the Senate race, Koch and other local officials will have to work with down in Washington to support city projects including the redevelopment of the downtown.

So, it will be interesting to see what endorsements Brown and Warren line up in Quincy as this race continues to heat up.

MARY CATHERINE IANONNI - retired Central Middle School guidance counselor and member of the Quincy Retired Teachers Association Scholarship Committee, notes one former recipient has been in the news a lot lately.

Priscilla Chan, the valedictorian of the Quincy High School Class of 2003, recently married Mark Zuckerberg, the founder of Facebook. Priscilla was a recipient of an $8,000 scholarship from QRTA and went on to graduate from Harvard University (where she met Zuckerberg). She recently graduated from the University of California Medical School.

CAN YOU GUESS the top baby names (nationally) for 2011? According to Social Security, the most popular baby names last year were Sophia for girls and Jacob for boys.

A look at the top 10 names may surprise you.

Girl names, in descending order: Sophia, Isabella, Emma, Olivia, Ava, Emily, Abigail, Madison, Mia and Chloe.

Boy names (descending order): Jacob, Mason, William, Jayden, Noah, Michael, Ethan, Alexander, Aiden and Daniel.

Jacob topped the list for the 13th straight year. This was the first year for Sophia (Isabella had been ranked first for two years in a row).

The only new name in the list? That would be Mason which climbed from outside the top 10 to second place, replacing Anthony.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS REAL-PHOTO postcard showing Wollaston Beach was mailed in 1924 to a Miss Lucy Dalton down in Wellfleet on the Cape. The message on the back says, "You wouldn't have to look for company here Lucy. You could find room enough to practice your famous nose-dive and somersault here, but I do not think you would care to swallow as much water here as you do at Gull Pond." Gull Pond in Wellfleet is one of the many pristine ponds the town is famous for. Quincy Bay, on the other hand, was the dumping ground for raw sewerage from the sewer plants on Moon Island in Squantum and Nut Island in Hough's Neck. In spite of that, Wollaston Beach at the time still drew big crowds. In the center distance is an overcrowded swimming raft, one of many placed along the beach by the Metropolitan Commission. Just above the raft on the horizon you can see the water tower that was on Great Hill in Hough's Neck. The large crowd on the beach didn't seem to bother the young man soaking up the sun in the foreground. (Or is that a young woman?) To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Shipyard Low Bidder On Passenger Lines

Bethlehem's Fore River Shipyard was disclosed as the low bidder at $54 million on contracts to build two passenger lines for American Export Lines.

John T. Wiseman, general manager of the Yard, said if Bethlehem got the contracts the 4,500 workers at Fore River would be assured of stable employment for the next two years.

However, a spokesman for American Export Lines said construction of the two liners depended on favorable Congressional action on bills calling for a 50% federal subsidy.

Appreciates All Who Support The Senior Olympics

Another Senior Olympics has passed, but the camaraderie and joy generated by this wonderful event will live forever. As usual, The Quincy Sun provided wonderful coverage and the reporters and photographers were a joy to be around.

There are so many people involved in the organization and planning of this event, it will be difficult to name them all, but I will try.

Firstly, Mayor Thomas Koch, who was instrumental in obtaining the funds for the creation of this beautiful Kennedy Council on Aging, which was the venue for several events.

Next, without the organizational skills and very hard work of Thomas Clasby, Jr., Director of the Council on Aging, and his Assistant Linda Bowes, events would not run as smoothly as they did - super smooth.

To the beauties of the River Bay Club, who worked so hard providing the Sportsmanship Luncheon and Awards Night refreshments, and who beautified the gymnasium so well by their presence, a sincere thank you from all of us.

Certain events provide special memories, and the hospitality provided by Bob Pettinelli, President, and member of the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club, will not be forgotten by every senior citizen who attended.

They are a marvelous group of citizens. I cannot resist mentioning though, that for the second year in a row, a Scotsman won a gold medal at your game. You will have to practice more, my Italian friends.

To Olindy's for their great hospitality in hosting billiards and bowling, thank you for your kindness.

Now to the real heroes of the Senior Olympics, Barry Welch's group of wonderful young people in the Department of Recreation; so ably led by Michelle Hanly: Sue Pacetti, Bridget Hawko, Jackie McAllister, Taylor Dennehey, Emily Rooney, Maria Dellacroce, Emily Hannon, Larry Liuzzo, Terence Rooney, Paul Carson, Tara McFarland, Mary Kate Nelson and Christina Gravina.

I am sure there are others whose names I was unable to obtain, and I apologize to them, but the youngsters mentioned are the ones who made the Senior Olympics click. The City of Quincy is indeed fortunate to have youth like this. Too often we read about the misdeeds of a few, while the good deeds of the majority go unnoticed, or unappreciated. This year, kids, I want you to know that you are deeply appreciated.

What a local treat this place is. A beautiful veranda overlooking the well-maintained golf course.

The food - excellent.

The price - very reasonable.

The staff is extra nice.

Try it - I hope you'll be as pleased as we were.

The Kennedy Center - East Squantum Street.

What a great spot for "mature" people to gather and enjoy all the activities.

Thanks to the two Toms (Mayor Koch and Council

Says City's On A 'Fast Track To Bankruptcy'

It appears after being in a coma for the last six years, the City Council is waking up to the fact the City of Quincy is on a fast track to bankruptcy.

When you have to borrow money every time you want to do something, you have to pay the money back with interest.

There is no such thing as free money.

They want to put a park and cut off traffic on Hancock Street and divert it to behind the Church of Presidents. Great planning.

You are dumping eight lanes of traffic on two lanes: two lanes from Adams Street, two lanes from Hancock Street, two lanes from Coddington Street and two lanes from Washington Street - all for a park.

And they want to build another bridge less than a hundred feet from the Granite Street Bridge. Great planning.

Three major traffic lights in 1/10th of a mile. You can't move in Quincy as it is.

God help the people of Quincy who spend half their lives in traffic jams.

Megan Leahy Pursuing Dance Dream 2012 NQHS Graduate Bound For NYC Dance Academy

By EMILY TAFT

For North Quincy High School Class of 2012 graduate Megan Leahy, it has always been clear what she wanted to do when she grew up: to be a professional dancer.

"It's my life," said Leahy. "It's weird when I am dancing it's just like everything else is blocked out. It's a comfort zone. I love dancing and I love watching people enjoying what I am doing, and I love to entertain people."

"Whenever it is a bad day, the second I step into the dance studio it all kind of like goes behind me, like nothing happened."

For 16 years, since the age of two, Leahy has been dancing and improving her craft in hopes to one day join the Rockettes and dance on Broadway. Now, after being accepted to the American Musical and Dramatic Academy (AMDA) in New York, she is one step closer to achieving her dream.

"I started dancing when I was two, I just loved it. I love to tap, I have been doing it my whole life; it just feels right," said Leahy. "I dance every single day. I have dance Monday through Friday at school, and then I dance at my studio Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays, and then I work at the studio all day Saturday, where I am an assistant teacher. After everything I would love to come back to Quincy and open up my own dance studio."

MEGAN LEAHY

Leahy dances everything from tap and ballet to jazz and point. Last summer, she participated in a six-city tour for Dance Olympus, which she will be in again this summer. She was on the dance team at North Quincy high school during her first two years there, and was a student of the Renaissance Dance Program at the high school from sophomore year until senior year. Leahy also dances and teaches at Dance Works in Quincy.

"She is by far one of the only people I have ever met that goes for the goals she sets for herself," said North Quincy High dance teacher Marisa Donovan. "She is eager to learn and she has stage presence like I have never seen. She is amazing to watch and I know she will do wonderful at AMDA."

Her dream of becoming a Rockette started when she took her first trip to see them perform.

"My Nana and Mom took me to the Rockettes when I was nine," said Leahy.

NORTH QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL 2012 graduate Megan Leahy has been accepted to the American Musical and Dramatic Academy in New York. The Red Raider, who played on the school's volleyball team, hopes to become a Rockette someday.

ahy. "I just wanted to be one of them because they are just such good tappers, and everybody loves them, and Christmas is my favorite part of the year."

Leahy was the only dancer in Boston to audition to attend AMDA, and was ecstatic when she received the call three weeks later informing her she had been accepted.

"AMDA was the first school I heard from. When I went and visited AMDA I knew I wanted to go there," said Leahy. "For the audition I had to prepare a minute and a half solo that I performed in front of one of the directors of the school."

"They didn't really give any feedback that day. About three weeks later they called and told me I had made it. I screamed when I got that phone call."

AMDA auditions thousands of hopefuls every year during their auditions all across the United States and internationally. AMDA is one of America's premier conservatories for the performing arts. They have been operating for over 50 years and are recognized throughout the industry for launching some of the most successful careers in theater, film, and television.

"They don't want you to just be a dancer - they want you to be what they call a triple threat, so they teach you how to sing and act, so when you go to an audition you can stand out," said Leahy. "I don't sing, so I am a little nervous for that. It's going to be a little bit of a challenge."

Leahy said she knows that the career path she has chosen will be a difficult one but plans on working hard and auditioning for as many parts as possible.

"I am going to go to as many auditions as I can, and try to get my name out there," said Leahy. "I am just going to keep trying because it is a very hard industry so it is going to take a while."

"My first audition will definitely be for the Rockettes. Rockettes is like the number one dream, but to be on Broadway would be amazing. I just love to perform, it doesn't matter where."

Leahy will be heading to New York City in October to participate in the two-year dance program at AMDA, and said that she most likely will head to AMDA's Los Angeles location where she will be able to receive her bachelor's degree. She said she is very sad to be leaving her parents and two older brothers but is excited to be heading to New York.

"I am very excited to be moving to New York City, because it is such an amazing place and I love it," said Leahy. "I am nervous of all the changes that are going to happen."

"It is a big step from high school to the big city."

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will host a free luncheon and "What If" program for seniors Wednesday, June 27 starting at noon.

"What If" allows a person to give the gift of preparedness to their loved ones.

During the 45-minute presentation, participants will learn about the importance of organizing personal information for their loved ones and how best to communicate their wishes. The intent is to help people put their affairs in order in a friendly, non-threatening atmosphere that encourages questions and answers.

The presentation will be led by Gwen Morgan of the Lydia Group, who has designed a workshop to lead people to organize, compile and document all their important information.

"Quincy Community United Methodist Church is offering this program free of charge to seniors," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church. "Mary Emsheimer, one of QCUMC's parishioners, pointed out the church does a lot of outreach to families, the homeless, and the needy around the world, but what about the seniors in our community?"

"She met the founder of this workshop, Gwen Morgan, and 'What If' seemed just the thing to offer seniors."

The church hopes to expand this initial offering with a Senior Expo and an ongoing series of topics important to seniors.

Reservations to the luncheon and program are required. Call the church at 617-773-3319.

The church is handicapped accessible through the front door nearest the flagpole.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Spaghetti Squash, Marinara Sauce

While visiting my daughter Rita and son-in-law Jonathan's home, she prepared spaghetti squash which I hadn't made in years. She served it with a marinara tomato sauce and grated cheese which was delicious and low in calorie, but not taste.

It turns out that it is pretty simple to prepare once the squash is well done.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH

- 1 large spaghetti squash
- 2 tablespoons water

Cut the squash in half. Place the squash with the water on the bottom of a baking pan and bake in a 350-degree oven for one hour. Cool and then pull with a fork and it comes out and resembles spaghetti.

MARINARA SAUCE

- 2 cloves of garlic
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 large can of tomatoes
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Basil, oregano and any favorite seasonings
- Parmesan or Romano grated cheese for topping

Sauté the garlic in the hot oil, and pour the tomatoes and seasonings and cook for 25 minutes.

Serve over the spaghetti squash with the grated cheese and added pepper.

Nancy's Carrot Muffins With Pecans

Here is a great recipe for carrot muffins that I received from my daughter Nancy and one that is pretty healthy as it is made with organic ingredients, and without a lot of sugar.

The sweetness of the carrots and the rest of the ingredients give it a more natural sweetness.

CARROT MUFFINS

- 1 1/2 cups wheat flour (She used oat flour)
- 1- teaspoon baking powder
- 1- teaspoon baking soda
- 1- teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 - teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/4 teaspoon allspice
- 2 large eggs
- 1/2 cup sugar (she used natural cane

sugar)

- 1 1/2 cups finely shredded carrots

In a bowl whisk together thoroughly all of the ingredients except the carrots. After that is mixed, stir in the carrots and let stand for 10 minutes. Do not over mix. Then stir in the following and mix until blended.

- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 5 tablespoons melted unsalted butter or vegetable oil
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans (or walnuts if preferred)
- 1/2 cup golden raisins

Divide the batter in the greased muffin tins or line with paper cups. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 15-18 minutes. Let cool for 2-3 minutes before removing from the pan. Let cool on a rack.

Program Spotlight On Dr. Joseph Warren Free Admission For Dads June 17 At Adams National Historical Park

The Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy, is offering free admission for dads on Father's Day, Sunday, June 17.

In observance of Bunker Hill Day – which is also June 17 – there will be a program on Joseph Warren: A True Patriot and Family Man.

Dr. Joseph Warren was a hero of the Battle of Bunker's Hill. On Sunday, June 18, 1775, Abigail Adams, on hearing of the fall of Dr. Joseph Warren at the Battle of Bunker's Hill, mourned that her "bursting Heart" compelled her to pick up her pen and write to her husband John that she wished she "could contradict the report of the Doctors Death, but tis a lamentable Truth, and the tears of multitudes pay tribute to this memory."

There are activities scheduled June 17 at the 1873 Carriage House and the Old House at "Peace field," the John Quincy Adams Birthplace, and Penn's Hill in Quincy.

• Listening Together: 1 to 2:30 p.m., 1873 Carriage House, 135 Adams St., Quincy. Local author Janet Uhlar will discuss her book Liberty's Martyr: The Story of Dr. Joseph Warren, the compelling tale of a remarkable man whose life and legacy "is all but forgotten, buried beneath the dust of time," but whose conditions to the nascent movement for independence in America cannot be underestimated.

Uhlar will autograph copies of her book.

• Living Together: 2:30-3:30 p.m., The Old House at "Peace field," 135 Adams St., Quincy.

View the Park's "study portrait" of Dr. Joseph Warren by famous American painter of Revolutionary figures, John Singleton Copley. This remarkable likeness of the fallen friend of John and Abigail Adams rests above the hearth in the Long Room at the Old House and its placement there speaks of the fondness felt by the Adams family for one of America's unsung heroes.

• Talking Together: 2:30-3:30 p.m., The Old House at "Peace field," 135 Adams St., Quincy.

Meet Dr. Joseph Warren, "True Patriot & Family Man," as he recommends his contributions to the movement for independence. Join Michael Lepage, historical reenactor, as he reprises his role as the revered revolutionary hero of the Battle of Bunker's Hill.

• Traveling Together: 3:30-4:30 p.m., meet at John Quincy Adams Birthplace, 133-141 Franklin St., Quincy, and walk to the Abigail Adams Cairn, top of Penn's Hill, Franklin St.

On June 17, 1775, Abigail Adams climbed to the summit of Penn's Hill to witness the bombardment of Bunker's Hill and the burning of Charlestown by British ships in Boston Harbor.

March to the beat of the Middlesex County 4H Fife & Drum Corps and accompany Abigail to the top of Penn's Hill to hear her account of the momentous event as she reads a letter to her husband John describing the dreadful scene and the demise of Dr. Warren.

Participants are advised to wear comfortable walking shoes.

For more information about tours, programs, events and activities at Adams National Historical Park, call the Visitor Center at 617-770-1175 or visit www.nps.gov/adam.

The Right Time For Electronic Payments

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

When you are away from home, one thing you don't want to worry about is how you will receive your next monthly Social Security payment. That is why it is important for everyone receiving Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits to sign up for electronic payments.

These days, almost everyone gets benefit payments electronically. Today, about 90 percent of all Social Security and SSI beneficiaries receive their payments electronically. That number is increasing because the law requires that by March 1, 2013 all federal benefit payments, including Social Security and SSI payments, be made electronically. Whether you receive Social Security or SSI, you can depend on your payment arriving in your account on time, every time. If you don't already receive electronic payments, there are many good reasons to sign up. For one, less money and time spent driving to the bank to cash your check helps you save. Second, fewer paper checks, envelopes, and stamps, and less fuel to deliver the checks means savings for the government.

Hurricane season is here for some areas of the country. Other regions bear the brunt of flooding. Some areas of the nation are plagued by tornadoes, and still others must deal with wildfires, severe thunderstorms, or even earthquakes. If you are unfortunate enough to be in the path of a natural disaster, the last thing you want is for your income to be interrupted because of an evacuation or a missing mailbox. With electronic payments, you know your money will be in your account on time no matter what.

When on vacation, an electronic payment ensures payments will be deposited into your account on time, so there's no reason to worry about the safety of your benefit or to ask a neighbor to look out for your check when you are away.

As an added bonus, many banks offer free checking accounts for people who use direct deposit because it saves the bank the cost of processing paper payments.

Skip the line at the bank, save money, get your payment faster, and know you can depend on your payment being in the bank no matter what happens or where you are. You can do all of this with electronic payments. Learn more about it at www.socialsecurity.gov/deposit.

Merrymount Park Advocacy Group Meeting Tonight

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes will host a neighborhood meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll School to discuss the formation of the Friends of Merrymount Park advocacy group.

"Merrymount Park in Wollaston is one of our most treasured parks. It is home to the Adams Walk, Veterans' Memorial Stadium, Fenno Street Tennis and Basketball Courts, Pageant Field, and Ryan Boathouse, among other facilities. The park also offers wooded walking trails which allow us all to experience its scenic setting and natural environment," Hughes stated in a letter to neighborhood residents.

"A group of concerned park users has voiced a need and desire for stewardship of the park. The purpose of this meeting is to engage the community in a dialogue that will lead to the creation of a Friends of Merrymount Park grassroots organization, define its mission and goals, and identify volunteers who would like to become involved," Hughes said.

40 Citizens Attend Sea Level Rise Workshop

About 40 concerned citizens recently attended the sea level rise workshop held at the Thomas Crane Public Library, announce Mayor Thomas Koch and Planning Director Dennis Harrington.

There were two large maps displayed side-by-side at the entrance to the meeting, one showing Quincy with 7.5 feet of sea level rise and the other showing Quincy in about 1890, before a significant portion of tidal land was filled to create buildable lots.

The land area shown in the maps was strikingly similar to one another, indicating that when the water level rises, by about the year 2100, Quincy will look like it did over a hundred years ago.

The highlight of the workshop was a presentation by UMass professor Ellen Douglas, a hydrologist and engineer who studies water-related issues. She talked about the array of factors that go into determining the rate at which the sea level will rise, including the amount of greenhouse gas emitted over the next century, ice cap melting due to global warming, and expansion of water due to higher temperatures. Her illustrations showing sea water pouring over sea walls on a regular basis were sobering.

Following Douglas's presentation, professionals from a range of disciplines engaged in an eye-opening discussion in which they each affirmed the immediacy of the issue and argued for a more synchronized system of requirements for constructing sustainable buildings.

The panel consisted of Julie Conroy, Senior Principal Planner at the Metropolitan Area Planning Council; George Preble, civil and environmental engineer and president of Beals & Thomas, Inc.; and Steve Wessling, President-CEO of Wessling Architects.

Questions from the audience exhibited knowledge of climate issues along with anxiety over the prospect of a shrinking Quincy. One member expressed that he's aware that he'll be gone by the time the rising water makes a significant impact, but he's committed to doing all that he can to preserve Quincy as a beautiful, vibrant city for his young granddaughter.

Another resident suggested that the city treat this issue with a greater sense of urgency by distributing mailings to the five thousand or so households that can expect to be flooded in the future.

Harrington thanked the presenters and panelists and asserted the city's commitment to sustainability.

City officials discussed the environmental efforts taking place with the New Quincy Center project, noting that Street-Works has committed to obtaining "LEED Neighborhood" certification, which provides independent, third-party verification that a building or neighborhood development project meets the highest green building and performance measures.

The department hopes to build on the success of the program with a similar workshop that would expand the scope to incorporate nearby towns like Weymouth and Braintree, yielding a valuable regional perspective that would allow for more efficient mitigation and adaptation planning.

DOT Public Hearing On Adams Green Park Design At Crane Library June 13

The City—with Howard/Stein-Hudson as the lead engineering firm—is moving forward with the design of the public works, transportation infrastructure, and streetscape improvements related to the Adams Green park project.

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) will hold the 25% Design Public Hearing Wednesday, June 13 for the public works, transportation infrastructure, and streetscape improvements necessary to support the design and construction of the Adams Green Park.

The hearing will be conducted by MassDOT engineering staff and will take place from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library's Community Room, located at 40 Washington St. in Quincy.

Although the 25% design public hearing is a requirement of the MassDOT review process, this is not the only opportunity for members of the public to register comments on the project.

Howard/Stein-Hudson gave a preview of the 25% design to the members of the City Council at the Downtown Committee Meeting on May 9. Many residents and other stakeholders attended this meeting and provided valuable input.

Further, the project team has set up a project website (www.adamsgreen.info), Twitter feed, e-mail listserv, and Facebook page to provide regular updates on the project's progress.

The 25% design public hearing marks a key milestone in the Adams Green project.

"This MassDOT-funded effort is significant because it will result in a final roadway and streetscape design that will allow the design and construction of the Adams Green Park space—the new focal point for Quincy Center—to finally come to fruition," said Quincy Planning Director Dennis Harrington.

"I would like to thank the engineering and planning staff at MassDOT for their efforts to work cooperatively with the City to move this project forward in such an expeditious fashion."

Quincy is using a reprogrammed federal transportation earmark (SAFETEA-LU) in the amount of $6 million for the design and construction of the roadway, public works and streetscape improvements. Design of the park space, which is currently underway with Halvorson Design Partnership as the lead landscape Architecture firm, is being funded with a $1 million award under the Commonwealth's Gateway Cities program.

"The funding commitments made by our federal and state partners over the last year are a clear sign that the downtown project has garnered considerable support," said Mayor Thomas P. Koch. "Adams Green is one of many components of the downtown project moving forward, and this project, will be the centerpiece of the New Quincy Center."

of those projects that moved forward. Maybe it would have been a preventable effort if we moved forward sooner."

Koch's Chief of Staff Jim Fatseas said that the work on Blacks Creek hadn't gone forward yet because the dredging project requires what he called "heavy duty permitting."

Reports of flooding began soon after high tide, which was around 11 p.m. Sunday, according to mayoral spokesman Chris Walker. He said the Fire Department and DPW warned residents that Blacks Creek was swelling and causing flooding in the neighborhood.

Power to the 30 flooded houses needed to be cut, but Raymondi said all but one house had power restored by Monday night. The DPW also helped residents pump out the water, and commissioner vowed that going forward the city would do what it takes to help residents whose homes were flooded.

"The mayor has agreed to waive any permit building fees," Raymondi said. "We're going to have extra trash pick-up if the community needs that going forward over the next couple of days. So whatever it takes to try and restore normalcy to that community is something that we're obligated to do and resolve to do."

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes said residents she'd spoken to were happy with the DPW's response. "I spoke with many residents down there tonight that were extremely happy with the quick response of your team," she said.

But residents interviewed by The Sun on Tuesday were less than satisfied with the city.

Karen Ukraine of 250 Furnace Brook Parkway said she lost her hot water heater and gas burner in the flood along with a new mattress, and other irreplaceable items. In addition, she suspects that water damage to her car could cause its electric systems to fail, and fears it might need to be replaced. She faulted the city for not closing the tide gates in anticipation of the storm.

"If it had rained and we had this damage it would be one thing," Ukraine said, "but this happened because the flood gates were open. I feel we should be compensated."

sated."

Bill Driscoll and his wife Nanci Reilly have lived at 40 Armory Street for eight years. They lost a number of family heirlooms in their half finished basement, including a grandfather clock, and old fashion desk, and items originally from Germany. Reilly said that they also lost a lot of furniture, such as a new couch, a washer and dryer, and a freezer.

"We've seen water in our basement before, but nothing like that," Driscoll said. "The water was up to my knees outside, and our freezer in the basement was floating."

Reilly said that both Hughes and State Rep. Tackey Chan had visited them, but wished the mayor's office had reached out to them.

Flooding was reported elsewhere in the city Sunday night, including parts of Squantum and Houghs Neck. Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said streets in some of the neighborhoods she represents in Houghs Neck and Adams Shore were under three or four feet of water, though no house flooding occurred.

Finance Committee OKs Fire, Public Works Budgets

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Tom Koch's proposals to add to the Fire and Public Works Departments' budgets were approved last week by the City Council's Finance Committee.

The committee held the second of its three scheduled budget hearings last Tuesday. Koch's proposal gave the Fire Department an extra $220,000 for overtime costs so fire stations could remain open as opposed to being closed on certain days, also known as a brownout.

Fire Chief Joseph Barron told the Finance Committee he was happy the mayor increased OT funding.

"I'm particularly pleased with the additional funding for the overtime," Barron said. "It will reduce the browning out of apparatus substantially. [I've had] many meetings with the mayor and he understands the importance of having the apparatus in service and to that end he's substantially increased the overtime which will go a long way."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest asked the chief why money was going towards overtime, and not adding more firefighters. Barron's rationale was that an overtime firefighter was always available.

"You're really better off to increase the overtime line, I believe, than to continue to hire," Barron said. "An overtime firefighter is never on vacation, an overtime firefighter is never injured, an overtime firefighter is never sick."

Committee Chairman Joe Finn asked Barron to explain why the Fire Department had four slots for firefighters open during much of the current budget year, FY12. "Would we have needed those brownouts if we had simply followed the budget?" Finn asked.

Barron said that on paper hiring the extra firefighters could've reduced brownouts, but the hiring process for firefighters complicates things.

"The way the state academy works today," Barron said, "in order to get a name on a slot to be trained, you have to have the person fully vetted - physical and psychological tests, background checks, all of those things. That's usually not started until we have a position to fill...once you do all those things to get in a state approved class, it takes six months."

The budget also includes additional money for equipment and training. Barron said the $80,000 increase in the equipment budget would go towards purchasing new protective suits, which cost about $3,000 each. The extra training money will be used for live fire training in conjunction with the Boston Fire Department, which will include different scenarios a firefighter might face.

The finance committee approved the Fire Department's proposed budget of $18.4 million by voice vote. The budget for the Emergency Management Department, which Barron also oversees, was approved as well. That department's budget was level-funded at about $55,000.

A series of budgets overseen by Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi were also approved by the committee. Most notable among those was the Public Works budget which includes an extra $250,000 for sidewalk repairs. Raymondi said the city would be more productive with that extra money because of changes he instituted.

"Instead of the city going out and either trying to do them in house...or to go out on private contract, we did a bit of both," Raymondi said. "The city crew goes out, rips up the sidewalk, brings it back to the Department of Public Works. Then we have a private contractor come in, bases and tops [it] and we pay for the asphalt. As a result, we're getting far more sidewalks done. We have increased our productivity four or five times."

The committee approved the proposed Public Works budget of $3 million. Other budgets that Raymondi oversees were approved without any changes. Those including the Engineering Department at $619,000, snow and ice at $1.25 million, the street lighting at $1.3 million, fleet fuel at $910,000, street sweeping at $50,000, and waste management at $6.7 million. Action on the drain budget was delayed until the next hearing so information on the water and sewer accounts could be released first.

The committee did make its first cut to the budget during last Tuesday's hearing. A $10,000 sum in the inspectional services budget was eliminated by a 7-2 vote, with Councillors Mike McFarland and Brian Palmucci voting against the proposed cut. Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca recommended the cut because it was redundant with another line for a part-time wire inspector.

That was the only change made to the inspectional services budget, which the committee set at $1 million. The committee also approved the budgets for the Traffic Department at $475,000, the Purchasing Department at $231,000, and Buildings Department at $2.9 million, all as proposed by Koch.

The next budget hearing is slated for Monday, June 11 at 7 p.m. Police Chief Paul Keenan and School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro are two of the department heads scheduled to appear that night, although the City Council only sets the bottom line for the School Department and not its actual budget.

A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for Monday June 18 at 7 p.m. The City Council will then vote on the entire budget at its meeting that night.

plans to start their end of the project with $120 million worth of construction in a parcel stretching from the Granite Trust Building at 1400 Hancock Street to the intersection of Hancock and Cottage Avenue; the triangle-shaped parcel also runs down Chestnut Street from Hancock to Cottage.

Merchants Row, as it will be called, will mimic the design of the new downtown as a whole because it includes a mix of office, retail, and residential space, according to Koch.

"This block will include about 300 units of rental housing and several thousand square feet of office component and several thousand square feet of retail component," Koch said. "We view it as a model of the entire downtown, something that will be really the marketing tool as we go forward."

According to plans revealed at the council meeting, two office buildings and two residential buildings will be included in Merchants Row. The Granite Trust Building and another existing building on Hancock will be renovated and used for office space. The Granite Trust offices would be what Street-Works partner Richard Heapes called boutique offices, while the others would be more of a loft type.

The residential space will be in two new buildings. A sixty-unit building would be built adjacent to the Granite Trust Building. Heapes said the design of lofts inside the building, known as the Tower Lofts, would replicate the feel of the Granite Trust Building.

"The design or vibe or vision for those lofts," Heapes said, "are really taken off of 'if they had done lofts back in the 1920s when they built the Granite Trust, what would they look like today?' So they will be unlike any other product outside of Boston. They will have 12-foot ceilings, they will have curtains not Venetian blinds, they will have marble and granite countertops and they will be the highest-end finishes and coolness factor outside of Boston that you can get."

The remaining residential units would be in the Kilroy Lofts, which would be placed where a parking lot currently is. Those would have a more traditional loft design and would feel more like a warehouse, according to Heapes.

The Kilroy Loft building is c-shaped, wrapped around a new public space labeled "The Yard," that would serve as a backyard for the millennials, those under the age 35, Heapes said the Kilroy Lofts will be targeted at.

"It will include things millennials are touched by," Heapes said. "They are mostly touched by doing things together, unlike the 'me generation,' they do things in groups. They date in groups...and it turns out as they live together they like doing group activities — a community fireplace outside is something they could relate to rather than being alone in their apartments. And they are also dog crazy, to the extreme, so in The Yard we will have dog watchers and this will be a pet friendly place so people can do that dog thing."

Street-level restaurants and retail will also be featured heavily in Merchants Row. Many of them would be located along a new road that would stretch across the parcel from Hancock to Chestnut. That street could be utilized differently at different times of day; a project Street-Works developed in Maryland has a similar road that delivery trucks use in the morning, non-commercial traffic uses in the afternoon, and closes in the evening so pedestrians and businesses can use the space.

The plan for Merchants Row is to have it completed in 2014, at around the same time the Adams Green project would be completed. "We think it's much more powerful for both parts of the city, public and private, that this great new address comes with a new development," Heapes said.

To allow work on Merchants Row to begin sooner than anticipated, the mayor proposed an ordinance at Monday's council meeting. One part would increase by at least $150,000 the amount of money the city would receive for payments during step 1 of the project. The other part would penalize the developer $1 million if development at Merchants Row didn't begin by September 2013.

Those matters were referred to committee and will be discussed immediately prior to the City Council's June 18 meeting. Downtown Committee Chairman Doug Gutro called the announcement a silver lining in the face of recent economic news regarding unemployment.

"It seems like we found a silver lining in the national economic news that came out last week," Gutro said. "It's terrific for the City of Quincy and frankly the South Shore, that things are starting to pick-up in a big way. I think it's a tribute not just to the team the mayor's assembled but Beal/Street-Works and the participants actively involved in promoting the downtown development."

Gutro did raise a question he's asked before of the developers. He wanted to know if business owners and other tenants in the buildings where Merchants Row will be built had been notified of the change in the timeline.

"There's a timetable where you have real people who have invested their lives in businesses in the properties that have spent a considerable time in Quincy Center," Gutro said. "The clock is now ticking on where they may go, if they may stay, what arrangements for their move. And the window is short when you're moving your entire life's business."

Heapes said they wanted to wait until after making the announcement to the council, and that they'd now be reaching out to tenants individually.

Croall: Labor Agreement Needed On New Fore River Bridge Project

The City Council voted 8-0 to issue a resolve calling on the Massachusetts Department of Transportation to issue a project labor agreement for the construction of a new Fore River Bridge.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall proposed the resolution. He told his colleagues Monday night that he's concerned about how the $280 million project will impact parts of Quincy Point closest to the bridge.

"What I'm concerned with is making as little interruptions to the neighborhood that directly abuts the potential project," Croall said. "I think it's important from a project management standpoint at how do we best manage risk and I think one of the things that a project labor agreement will do is to discourage any work stoppages thus promoting progressive project planning."

A project labor agreement would also get city residents back to work, according to Croall.

"It will also create an opportunity," Croall said, "which I know we're all excited about and a very depressed economic time to put Quincy residents to work on Quincy projects. I know that that's ever so important in these challenging economic times."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin spoke in favor of resolution, echoing Croall's sentiments.

"There's local hiring opportunities that come as a result of the PLA, there's skilled-training opportunities, there's control and management over the project in terms of [avoiding] any interruptions," Coughlin said, "especially with the exigency of getting that project done after years and years of having that erector set style bridge that's been in place."

Coughlin also refuted the notion that such agreements drive up project costs, citing a series of studies done throughout the country. "Anyone that's suggesting that PLAs cost more needs to do their homework and look at numerous studies that suggest the opposite," he said.

Council Postpones Vote On City, Coddington Halls Bond

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council won't be taking any action on the proposed renovation of City and Coddington Halls until the city's Community Preservation Committee approves the project.

The council's Finance Committee heard the matter for a second time last Thursday. They placed the proposed $18 million bond order on file until after the CPC reviews and recommends the project; their next scheduled meeting is June 14, four days before the council's last scheduled meeting before its summer recess. Finance chairman Joe Finn noted early on in the meeting that the preservation committee needs to approve the plan first according to the Community Preservation Act's requirements.

"The Community Preservation Committee plays an important role in terms of being a gatekeeper to those specific funds," Finn said. "The laws governing it seems to confer that their role is to make recommendations to the legislative body...it seems to me wholly inappropriate for us to pass this order."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee voiced his support for the project. But he said that the council couldn't do anything until the CPC approved, and walked out of the meeting less than a half-hour into it.

Finn also questioned the bond order itself, saying it would give the mayor too much control - or carte blanche as Finn called it - over how much CPA funding would go towards debt service on the bond on an annual basis. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who is also the CPC's vice chairman, said that committee would also like to set a cap on how much of its funding would be used for the project.

"I think that it would be helpful to everyone as to what is the maximum commitment that we're looking at - if we can get to that number," Coughlin said. "I don't know whether it's a number or a percentage or a combination of both... I think there was a sense of the committee that we wanted to have some sense of what our maximum commitment would be."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said it would be wise to wait because the preservation committee needs to determine what percentage of the project would be eligible to receive CPA funds. She noted that when Needham renovated their town hall, different proposals were eligible for differing amounts of CPA funds.

"I'm not sure that both of these projects standalone are 100 percent CPA eligible," Laforest said. "I know for Needham's town hall, I talked to their town manager's office and they had four different plans. It was strongly vetted in term of what was CPA eligible and what was not...that's just a concern that I had before it's fully committed with CPA money and that not all project costs are CPA eligible."

Mayor Tom Koch proposed renovating the two buildings in March. Old City Hall would be used to house public meeting space, including a great hall for the City Council. The School Department and School Committee would have new offices in Coddington Hall, as well as the city's IT, Printing, and Planning Departments. Offices in the New City Hall building would also be renovated; the current City Council offices would be expanded, the City Clerk's offices would take over space used for council meetings on the second floor, and the Finance Department would move to the third floor. The city is currently renting space in two office buildings for the Clerk's office and School Departments, at a combined cost of $460,000 a year.

The mayor's original proposal called for using $900,000 in CPA funding annually to pay the bond, equal to CPA payments on a bond used to purchase open space the city recently paid off. The remaining $100,000 to $250,000 in debt service would've been taken from general fund revenue. That plan was altered after councillors objected to tying up such a large amount of CPA funds for one project, and the new plan would've had that determination made on a yearly basis, with no floor or ceiling on how much CPA money could be spent.

Business, Labor Leaders Support I-Cubed Application

more revenue and tax dollars."

Eleven current and retired union carpenters, sheet metal workers, plumbers, and electricians all urged the council to approve the application. Most of them, including Sheet Metal Workers Local 17 labor representative Ed Marenburg, cited the need to get union members back to work.

"I have to speak in favor of this," Marenburg said. "It's the same kind of grant that's going on the waterfront in Boston with the Anthony's [Fan Pier] project and in Somerville at Assembly Square. It's given a good boost to those projects to get them running. The sooner this gets done, the sooner these guys to work in their own city...to me it seems like a no-brainer so I respectfully ask that you submit this, expedite the project, and get our people to work."

Federal and state leaders who represent Quincy also backed the proposal. Sen. Scott Brown, state Sen. John Keenan, and state House Majority Leader Ron Mariano all submitted letters to the council in favor of the I-cubed application. Brown said the city ought to take advantage of the state funds it has available.

"The availability of both state and federal moneys is increasingly limited as we work to meet our nation's tremendous financial challenges," Brown wrote. "I-cubed provides a community like Quincy that already has a formal redevelopment plan in place the ability to leverage state money to pay for much needed public projects. It is a tremendous opportunity."

Keenan's letter echoed many of the same sentiments. It also alluded to a proposal in the legislature that would enable taxes generated by construction - the income taxes paid by workers and sales taxes on materials - to go towards repaying the bonds. It was previously estimated that Quincy Center redevelopment would generate $21 million in taxes during construction alone.

"Quincy would further benefit from an amendment adopted by the House of Representatives," Keenan wrote, "that would allow tax revenue generated by construction activity...to count towards the revenue growth requirements. I anticipate this legislation will be taken up by the Senate in the coming weeks."

Mariano said the state's preliminary approval of Quincy's proposal showed it was a solid one; only three other projects in the state - the aforementioned Fan Pier and Assembly Square projects as well as Chestnut Hill Square in Newton - have been approved for I-cubed funding.

There is no other program available in the Commonwealth that can offer the City of Quincy up to $50 million in funding for infrastructure, or even come close," Mariano wrote. "Only three municipalities have been able to meet the rigorous qualification standards. To have earned preliminary approval is a testament to the quality of Quincy's plan and the economics involved."

There was some skepticism expressed at the hearing.

School Committee member Anne Mahoney - a mayoral contender in 2011 - said the City Council should pass the risk borne by taxpayers onto the developer, especially when it comes to paying for the liquidity reserve.

"With the liquidity reserve," Mahoney said, "we really do need to put that back on the shoulders of the developer. It shouldn't be the taxpayers that are burdened with that...and should the developer not want to take on that risk, that is a giant flag for the City of Quincy, because it's saying it won't take on the risk and it's small in comparison to what the whole project is."

'Pennies For Patients Campaign' At Sterling School Raises $10,000

Over the past seven years Sterling Middle School students have collected pennies and raised over $10,000 for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society's Pennies for Patients Campaign.

Leukemia is the leading cause of disease related death among children. Once again, during these uncertain economic times, Sterling Middle School students did a great job reaching deep into their pockets and selflessly raising $1,011 this year!

Committed to helping find a cure and raise awareness about leukemia and other blood cancers is Ster-ling's goal each year!!

"Our students love doing this campaign every year," said Gina Joyce, C.S.L. Facilitator.

"The classroom challenges are competitive, creative and fun! The race for first place gets very serious. This service learning campaign brings the whole school together.

"Faculty members and the Helping Hands Youth Council work together and educate our students about leukemia, lymphoma and other blood cancers. This campaign build's character as well as teaches compassion and service to people in need," Joyce added.

This year's lunch activities raised most of the money. Raffles were sold and grand prizes were given out at the students verse the teacher's volleyball game.

Boston Celtics tickets, Boston Bruins tickets and three $50 gift cards to various stores were among the raffle prizes.

Students also purchased tickets to listen to their iPods at lunch, wear pajamas to school, watch the volleyball game and to throw pies in their teacher's faces. The good sports of this sticky pie situation were faculty members, Colleen Nichol, Stacey McGuire, Courtney Mitchell and Bob McGillicuddy.

All the students signed a "Leukemia Challenge" banner and wrote messages on it to continue to support this great cause. It hangs in the school hall to remind students and faculty of the importance of their efforts.

A special thank you to Christine Prendiville and the Student Council for raising money at the volleyball game as well as Elise Higgins-Steel and the "Helping Hands Youth Council" for all their planning and effort with this years campaign!

"These students serve as an example to all of us through their commitment to helping others," said Sharon Klein, Executive Director, of the Massachusetts Chapter. "Their efforts will help local patients and their families along with funding blood cancer research at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, Boston's Children Hospital, New England Medical center and Massachusetts General Hospital along with 13 other institutions throughout Massachusetts."

Health Care Payment Reform Needed To Curb Growth In Costs

By JOHN F. KEENAN
State Senator

The cost of health care has grown at an almost double-digit annual rate over the past decade, due in part to the rising cost of medical technology, growth in the number of tests and procedures, and to the salaries paid to health care professionals.

What is particularly clear, is that this rate of growth is unsustainable. We cannot keep spending more and more of our household incomes on health insurance premiums, deductibles, co-pays and other out-of-pocket expenses. Small businesses are finding it increasingly expensive to provide coverage, and the government cannot keep up with the costs of Medicare and Medicaid.

It is in this backdrop that the Massachusetts State Senate recently considered and approved first-in-the-nation legislation that attempts to reduce the growth in health care costs, while also improving the quality of care and emphasizing wellness and prevention programs. The House of Representatives is expected to vote on a similar bill this week.

The economics behind health care are unique. Typically, if a commodity becomes too expensive, consumers will simply stop purchasing that product. But that isn't really possible when it comes to health care. Health care is more like water, heat, or electricity; it's a basic need. We all need health care at some point.

Presently, our health care system is fundamentally based on the volume of services provided, not the quality of services provided. What the legislation passed by the Senate attempts to do is flip that equation around; to create a system that rewards quality care rather than the volume of care.

One proposed approach is to pull the curtain back and expose the actual costs and quality rankings of health care services. As consumers, we typically don't know how much it costs for an MRI, or to see a specialist in Boston. Those prices can range dramatically. For example, a mammogram costs $75 at Quincy Medical Center, but $325 at Mass. General Hospital. In addition, the quality of care at a Boston hospital is typically no better than the quality of care at our local hospitals.

By requiring providers and insurers to make public the cost of services and care quality ranking, we and our doctors can make better-informed decisions about where to seek care.

This legislation also encourages better coordination of our care. Our primary care physicians should communicate with our cardiologists, or our ear, nose and throat specialists. In addition, we should have electronic medical records so that an emergency room nurse, a specialist, or a primary care physician can all access our full medical histories. Also, health insurance companies and our doctors should provide incentives to keep us healthy and out of the doctors' offices except for annual physicals.

Perhaps the most critical part of the legislation is that, for the first time, we set a policy that limits the growth of health care costs to the same rate of growth as the state's economy. This legislation puts health insurance companies and providers on notice that uncontrolled growth is no longer acceptable and that they must work together to keep costs in line.

The legislation recognizes that the health care industry has already started to move in the right direction. Increases in health insurance premiums this year are averaging less than 2 percent. Rather than issue directives, the legislation simply provides health insurance companies and providers with broad goals and clear expectations, and known sanctions if they fail.

In a lesson learned from the HMO experiment of the '90s, the legislation also prevents health insurance companies from controlling costs by restricting access to care, or sacrificing the quality of care. The legislation specifically requires health insurance companies to meet not just strict quality of care benchmarks, but also to maintain high levels of patient satisfaction.

During the debate on the legislation, I focused my efforts on making sure our health care system meets its requirements on state and federal parity laws, i.e. ensuring that people with mental health, behavioral and substance abuse conditions receive the same insurance coverage and treatment as they would if they had physical ailments.

While achieving parity is essential to help control health care costs across the state, it is important locally as well. Individuals with untreated mental health issues are more likely to have chronic illnesses such as hypertension, or diabetes. They are more likely to go to hospital emergency rooms. At the Quincy Medical Center and South Shore Hospital, emergency departments are forced to board mental health patients in crisis — sometimes for days at a time — while beds are located at psychiatric facilities somewhere in the state. Our local hospitals are not reimbursed by insurance companies for these mental health patients, forcing the hospitals to absorb the costs or pass them along in the form of higher rates for other hospital services.

We all pay for untreated mental illness and substance abuse. Employers pay the cost in the form of lost productivity when individuals miss work; police departments must respond to calls related to acute mental health and crimes related to substance abuse incidents; the costs of incarcerating, rather than treating, those with mental health or substance use disorders is greater; there are costs for social services for families of those with untreated mental health and substance use disorders; and, health care costs for those with mental illnesses and substance use disorders are typically higher.

If we are successful in controlling health care costs, we can possibly save $150 billion over the next 15 years. That is money that families can use for savings, college or retirement, that seniors can use for other living expenses, that businesses can use to grow, and that government can use to invest in education, bridges and other infrastructure needs and essential services.

Truly controlling costs requires action by all sides: insurance companies, hospitals and doctors must work together to provide quality, coordinated care that emphasizes wellness and prevention; government needs to make sure all sides are playing by the rules, and that prices are transparent; and, we as consumers must realize that by living healthy lifestyles we can help control long-term health care costs.

Once the House of Representatives acts on health care payment reform this week, representatives of the House and the Senate will meet to work out any differences between the two forms of legislation, sending the final version to the Governor.

And we, as consumers, must realize that by living healthy lifestyles we can help control long-term health care costs.

Ayers Discusses Safe Driving Law With North Quincy High School Junior Class

Students Learn Dangers Of Texting And Driving

By EMILY TAFT

State Rep. Bruce Ayers recently spoke with North Quincy High School's junior class about the dangers of texting and driving.

Ayers spoke with the students about the Massachusetts Safe Driving Law he helped pass, and pushed the message of "It Can Wait." The law bans drivers from texting while driving and prohibits anyone under the age of 18 from using a cell phone while driving.

"With social media today, and the technology we have today, all too often we find ourselves multi-tasking in our daily lives," said Ayers. "While driving you will see people doing just about anything: texting, emailing, internet searching, and using their laptops. But when using these tools of technology it must be done wisely and safely for one's self or the protection of others."

"In my opinion, the biggest danger is that drivers think they can handle it, they think they can text while they are driving, when in fact it is just another form of multi-tasking."

Ayers teamed up with AT&T Regional Vice President David Mancuso to spread the word to high school students. The students signed a pledge vowing not to text and drive.

AT&T launched the "It

Can Wait" campaign in Massachusetts to educate school communities and encourage students, parents, and teachers to sign the no texting and driving pledge.

They launched the campaign in March 2010, and to date more than 21,600 consumers have taken the pledge not to text and drive on AT&T's Facebook page.

"It is very serious business when you text and drive. The reality is it takes between three and five seconds to send a text message," said Mancuso. "It can wait. There is no text message that you will send or receive that is so vital or so important that it is worth harming yourself, harming a friend, harming a neighbor, or harming a loved one."

"You take your eyes off the road, you take your thoughts off what you're doing, which is operating a motor vehicle, and you take a chance of hitting someone, or harming someone and it's just not worth it."

Ayers said it is important to get the message out there to the new drivers. Ayers is a part of the Joint Committee on Public Safety and has over seen many pieces of legislation dealing with Massachusetts driving laws. Ayers said that a National Traffic Safety Administration study showed that motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of deaths from ages 15 to 20.

"Several years ago, as your legislator, I worked and supported to revise the Junior Operating License Law," said Ayers to the students who filled the North Quincy High Auditorium. "As of today, a recent study shows that since the passage of this law, the rate of teen deaths have decreased dramatically."

Ayers said studies show that you are 23 times more likely to be in an accident while texting and driving. Eight out of 10 respondents to a survey of kids 16 to 21 said that they were aware of the risks of using their cell phones while driving but still use it.

"The dangers might seem obvious to you all, but this number will go up and up unless you and I do something about it," said Ayers to the junior class. "I hope today, this morning, is the start of something new, because I am asking all of you to give up something that you use several times a day, you do it as a habit, you might even be addicted to it."

"It is a habit that can destroy you, or even ruin your entire future, and what I am talking about is texting and driving."

Ayers said that he couldn't stress enough how dangerous the act of texting and driving is and noted that the death rates are expected to increase by four percent each year if nothing changes. Students then watched a 10-minute documentary titled "The Last Text" that featured stories of real individuals whose lives had been changed because of texting behind the wheel. The video showed the many different ways texting and driving can change things in an instant.

One story spoke of a young man driving with his girlfriend. He went to send a text of "LOL" when he hit a person riding their bicycle. Another told the story of a young man riding in the passenger seat, and his friend was texting and driving when the car wrapped around a tree, leaving him paralyzed.

Other stories showed the impact on family members and friends of those who tragically died because they were texting and driving.

Ayers said that the plan is to visit every school in his legislative district and stress the need and importance of not texting and driving.

"As their legislator, I believe it is important to enact laws to protect our students, but the power of decision is theirs," said Ayers. "My hope is that they have a better understanding of the dangers based on today's presentation."

Four Sterling Middle School Students Win Poetry Contest

'Smoking, Don't Go There' Theme

Four Sterling Middle School students recently received awards from entering the "Smoking, Don't go There" poetry contest.

The winners - Brendan Corbett, Paige Shanley, Amy Trillcott, and Anthony McFarlane - were among over 70 students who entered the contest sponsored by the Norfolk South District Medical Society.

As part of the Health Education curriculum, Dr. Alice Coombs, president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, visited Sterling Middle School last November to help students understand the dangers of tobacco use. Her presentation and discussion with the students was highlighted by the students being able to actually touch (with gloves on), diseased and healthy pigs' lungs.

Dr. Coombs has an ability to reach middle school students, which engages them at their own level. Her interactive, questions and answer approach keeps students interested and they walk away from the program with a deeper understanding of the VETERANS AND QUINCY COLLEGE Students William Hunt (left) of Weymouth, and Christopher Sawin of Hanover volunteered to install banners in Saville Hall honoring the living, deceased, and fallen soldiers who have dedicated their lives in service to our country. Just as the College did last year, a poster was created for every veteran named by the College community—posters line the halls of every Quincy College building throughout the month of May. At top right Sawin puts the finishing touches on the installation of the Quincy College Memorial Day banners. One of the banners is shown at right.

Campus-Wide Memorial Day Banner Installation

Quincy College Honors, Remembers Military Vets

Quincy College honored veterans in observance of Memorial Day with a campus-wide banner installation.

College faculty, staff and students were encouraged to submit the names of their loved ones who have served in the United States Armed Forces. During May, Quincy College posted banners throughout its campus buildings in honor of the living, deceased, and fallen soldiers who have dedicated their lives in service to our country.

Quincy College also recently welcomed veterans of the United States Armed Forces, and their loved ones, to the college. Administrators said they looked forward to meeting their educational needs, and assisting them in navigating their education benefits with the U.S. Department of Veteran Affairs.

The college said its take pride in its ability to provide personalized assistance to all veterans and veteran dependents.

Through the Quincy College Veterans Discount Program, Veterans may enroll in either Liberal Arts or Business & Public Service classes at a discounted rate. Veterans are eligible for this reduced rate regardless of the number of courses they take in a semester. The veteran discount program is not funded by the state or federal government; therefore, veterans who are eligible for education benefits through the VA may also receive the Quincy College discounted rate.

Quincy College is a proud member of the Service Members Opportunity Colleges Consortium (SOC); we are happy to review both military and college transcripts, as well as CLEP and DANTES exam scores, for transfer credit according to American Council of Education (ACE) recommendations.

Veterans, veteran dependents, and active duty service members are able to use their federal education benefits here at Quincy College. Programs we are approved to administer include:

- Post 9/11 GI Bill
- Vocational Rehabilitation
- Montgomery GI Bill
- Tuition Assistance

Students may contact the Quincy College Director of Admissions & Advising, Lauren Folloni, at (617) 984-1773 or lfolloni@quincycollege.edu for assistance with their benefits.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, May 29, at approximately 6:20 p.m., Officers Dan Parisi and Dan Francis were dispatched to Bryant Avenue on a report of an unwanted party breaking windows.

As Officer Parisi pulled up to the residence, he observed a male standing by the side of the road frantically pointing toward Route 93, so the Officer glanced over and observed a heavy set white male wearing only red underwear frantically trying to open the door of a white mini van that had slowed in order to avoid hitting him as it traveled south.

LT. DAN MINTON

The minivan driver sped off and the male (now suspect 1) then tried the passenger door of a small sedan in an attempt to get in.

Officer Parisi immediately turned onto Route 93 with lights and sirens activated and drove towards the suspect. Seeing the cruiser coming, the suspect ran and then jumped the jersey barriers that separate the south bound lanes and the HOV lanes. He continued over another set of jersey barriers and began running across Route 93 northbound.

Officer Parisi exited his cruiser and began to chase the suspect on foot down the highway. As the officer closed in, the suspect suddenly stopped and turned toward the officer in a fighting stance. Officer Parisi tackled the suspect to the ground and attempted to handcuff him as the suspect struggled to get free.

Using his OC spray (mace), the officer hit the face of the suspect, then used his baton to strike the outer thigh in an attempt to subdue him. At this time, off duty Detective Molloy of the Braintree Police Department, who was driving down Willard Street, exited his personal vehicle and assisted Officer Parisi handcuffing the suspect. Because the suspect was so combative, the wagon was called to transport him.

While waiting for the wagon's arrival, the suspect blurted out several times, "Just kill me - shoot me in the head." The suspect appeared to be under the influence of an unknown narcotic and didn't know where he was. Both officers received minor injuries and were treated by Fallon Ambulance. Up to this time, the officers who subdued the suspect did not know what occurred prior to seeing him attempt to carjack on route 93.

Once the incident was stabilized, Officer Francis interviewed witnesses and learned the following from one witness, who was a friend of the suspect. He said that the suspect met him at an apartment on Bryant Avenue and asked if he could get a ride home to Marshfield. The suspect went into the bathroom and soon after came out appearing to be under the influence of narcotics.

The witness said that he knew that the suspect has a history of drug abuse to include crack cocaine, heroin and Xanax. He also said that the suspect's pants were soaked with an unknown liquid.

The witness stated he placed the suspect's pants in the dryer and informed him that he would drive him home once they dried. Once the pants were dry, the suspect was unable to put them on due to being so unstable, so the witness tried to assist. Suddenly, the suspect "flipped out" and screamed, "Who are you?", then punched the witness in the face, threw him to the ground and punched him in the back.

The witness tried to defend himself by striking back and was able to flee into a bedroom, chased by the suspect, who then threw a table at him. The table missed him, however it did strike a bedroom window causing it to shatter. The suspect then used one of the table legs and struck the witness in the left arm. The suspect then ran into the living room and threw an end table into a bay window, causing it to shatter.

The witness fled the home to the driveway followed by the suspect, who then picked-up a steel shovel and began swinging the shovel at the witness. The witness said he came close to being struck and actually blocked a blow with his hand.

A second witness who said he lived in the basement heard a loud commotion so he proceeded upstairs and observed the suspect attacking witness 1. After seeing the bay window damaged, witness 2 called the police. At

Burger King Wants Hours Their Way: Extended To 24

License Board To Vote On Request At June 12 Meeting

By EMILY TAFT

A proposal to extend the hours of operation to 24 hours at the Burger King restaurants on Granite Street and Adams Street was postponed by License Board commissioners at a meeting May 29th at City Hall.

The 24-hour request will be voted on at the June 12th meeting.

Neighbors of the two fast food restaurants have spoken with the board and city officials numerous times about their concerns with the request. The request has been denied numerous times in the past, and many neighbors have urged that the expanded hours be denied again.

Also at the May 29th meeting, the board granted special use permits to Father Bill's & Main Spring for their 18th Annual Food Fest, for the 2nd Annual "Full Speed Ahead" car show run by Ryan and Stacey Packer, for the Annual Jamie Cochrane Road Race, and for Victory Championship Wrestling to hold a wrestling match at the Morrisette Post.

The 18th Annual Food

Fest will be held July 31 at the Ocean Club in Marina Bay. A one-day event permit was granted, allowing the event to host 35 to 40 restaurants that will take part in the fundraiser, many of which will be cooking outside. According to John Yazwinski, president and CEO of Father Bill's & Main Spring, there will be police and fire detail on site during the event.

The "Full Speed Ahead" antique car show was granted a special use permit for the event, which will be held July 21 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the USS Salem. Last year, the event brought in 60 different antique cars, and this year organizers said they hope to have 80 to 100 cars registered. Cars can register the day of the event, which will be held rain or shine.

Former students and wrestlers of Quincy and North Quincy high school will be holding a wrestling fundraiser to raise money that will benefit both the Quincy and North Quincy wrestling teams. The event will be held at the Morrisette Post June 24th from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Around eight matches will be done by professional wrestlers from Bell Time Entertainment. The permit was granted but the concern of whether alcohol will be served is something the board decided to settle at a later date.

The Rio Steak House located on the corner of Washington and McGrath Highway will be changing its name to Spetto's Steak House after being granted a CV License by the board. The new manager Mario L. Rodrigues has five years experience in the food service industry, and has had all the necessary inspections done to open the restaurant.

Prestige Gas Station located at 9-11 Franklin St. requested from the board a license to become a self-service gas station. The owners have four other self-serve gas stations, and several years of experience in the business. They have installed cameras and said that for a handicapped person there will be a button available to inform the attendant that they need to come out and pump for the customer. The hours of operation will remain the same, 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

My House, located on 609 Washington St., will be re-opening its doors on June 15th after closing for renovations. Owner Marcellus Lee spoke in front of the board regarding the status of the CV All Alcoholic Restaurant License being issued to the business. Lee was granted the license on the condition that he re-opens as scheduled.

Items on the Board's agenda at its next meeting, Tuesday, June 12 at 4 p.m. at City Hall are:

- Hearing regarding the request of for a One-day Extension of Premise for the Annual JT Thunder Motor Cycle Race, Aug. 19, (August 26 rain date) at The Commonwealth Restaurant, 74 Parkway. Mr. Austin O'Malley.

- Continued hearing regarding the request for a 24 Hour License of Burger King, 670 Adams St. and 62 Granite St. Mr. Radouane Marmoucha.

- Hearing regarding May 24, 2012 Violation of MGL 138 §34 at Presidential Discount Liquors, 25 Scammell St. Mr. Michael A. Shain.

- Hearing regarding May 24, 2012 Violation of MGL 138 §34 at Seven Eleven, 78 Franklin St. Mr. Dhananhay B. Patel.

- Hearing regarding May 24, 2012 Violation of MGL 138 §34 at Callahan's Tap, 296 Copeland St. Mr. Anthony Donnelly.

North Quincy Volleyball Finishes Season At 15-1 Overall; Lost 3-1 To Newton South

Red Raiders Sweep Quarterfinal Match, Eliminated In Semis

By SEAN BRENNAN & CHRIS McDANIEL

If the Greater New Bedford Bears boys' volleyball team learned anything from last Wednesday's 3-0 quarterfinal loss to top-seeded North Quincy in the Division I South tournament, it was to get out of the way when senior hitter Aris Bega is airborne.

Bega recorded his 1,000-career kill in North Quincy's win as he added 16 kills and seven service aces to his Hall of Fame-worthy resume.

The Red Raiders easily dispatched of the Bears in Game One and Two, winning 25-20 and 25-19, but the decisive Game Three was more of a grind. The Red Raiders finally dispatched of the Bears, 26-24, to move into the South semifinals versus Newton South.

North Quincy's dream season ended on its home court on Friday when the Lions took a 3-1-match win from under the Red Raiders' nose. North Quincy finished the season at 15-1 overall.

Bega's performance in the quarterfinal match was described in one word by North Quincy head coach Jason Cai as "fantastic." According to Cai, Bega's power strikes were so deadly, that even Greater New Bedford seemed intimidated.

"I knew since he was a freshman that he would be great," Cai said of Bega.

Despite coming into the state tournament as the top-seed after finishing the regular season undefeated at 14-0 and as outright Patriot League champions, and despite winning over GNB 3-0, the match was not without some drama. In the third game, the Red Raiders may have started celebrating a little too early.

North Quincy jumped out to a 21-12 lead, and was four points from an easy win, but then, Greater New Bedford went on a 10-0 run to take the lead at 22-21. With the game evened at 23-23, the teams battled through a long back-and-forth volley before North Quincy junior Sebastian Francois (four kills, two blocks) finally found open space to bury a return volley. However, GNB would not go away easily as they took the next point to make the score 24-24.

But Lady Luck was on North Quincy's side of the net when they needed it most. Francois went for a kill spike that was blocked at the net and came right back over before deflecting off of his shoulder and finding daylight on the Bears' side of the court. Greater New Bedford's last hurrah went wayward out of bounds, giving North Quincy the win.

At the start, the Red Raiders played with confidence and moxie. North Quincy won Game One, 25-20, as sophomore Efthim Butka ended the game with a well-placed spike. "We always play better in the first set," said Cai.

In Game Two, Bega closed out the 25-19 win with a spike while juniors Mike Tran (14 kills) and Matt MacPhail also had strong performances.

Tran, who finished second in kills behind Bega, used a great mix of accuracy, power and creativity to earn his points. Wherever he wanted to place the ball, he did, which made the senior hitter a big part of the puzzle this spring for North Quincy.

Cai noted that he called Tran up to the varsity when he was a sophomore and credited him as being a "smart player" during his tenure on the court.

MacPhail's best attribute versus GNB was his serving. He finished with five service aces while sophomore Oresti Bega was dynamite at the setter position. The younger Bega finished with a match-high 35 assists.

Juniors Felix Mann (10 digs) and Andrew Sok (12 digs) played well for North

Division I South Semifinals

North Quincy had home court advantage against Newton South last Friday in the Division I South semifinals, and Cai believed his team had an advantage.

"We have a little advantage with the low ceilings," he said about the facility at NQHS. GNB struggled all

But the Lions, last year's sectional finalist, had no such issues. Newton South, which survived a five-set marathon versus Barnstable in the quarterfinals, took down North Quincy, 3-1.

Boys' Meet June 11, Girls' Meet June 12 at Cavanaugh Stadium

Hershey National Track & Field Quincy Recreation Program

The Quincy Recreation Department and Recreation Director Barry J. Welch announced Monday that the department will sponsor the Hershey National Track & Field Youth Program by hosting community meets open to all boys and girls ages 9-14.

In its 34th year, this local meet will be the first step in a competition that could result in a local athlete advancing to the National Championship in Hershey Park, Pennsylvania. New England champions are awarded an all-expense paid trip by Hershey Chocolate, the national sponsor.

Participants are not required to have any previous track experience or be a member of a community track program. This meet is also open to participants from surrounding communities; all participants must provide the sponsoring agency with proof of age before they will be allowed to compete.

There are no entry fees and spikes and starting blocks are prohibited.

Registration for the Quincy meets will be held at 5:30 p.m. Monday, June 11 for boys and Tuesday, June 12 for girls. The meets will begin at 6 p.m. each day. The events are held at Cavanaugh Stadium on Birch Street, located off Hollis Ave, near Atlantic Middle School in North Quincy.

The age of the participant will be his/her age as of December 31, 2012. Both boys and girls will compete in three age categories: 9-10, 11-12, and 13-14. Those youngsters currently eight years old, but who turn nine before Dec. 31 may compete in the 9-10 age group. Youngsters currently 14 years old, who will turn 15 years old before Dec. 31 are not eligible to compete.

The Quincy Hershey events are as follows:

Age 9-10 (Boys & Girls) - 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 400-yard dash, 4 x 100-yard relay, standing long jump, and softball throw.

Age 11-12 (Boys & Girls) - 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 400-yard dash, 800-yard run, 4 x 100-yard relay, standing long jump, and

Each participant may compete in up to three events. If three events are chosen, one event is required to be a field event.

"This event can be an opportunity for participants to refine their natural abilities," noted Welch. "In some cases it may be the spark that ignites an interest in track and field. We stress fun before competition."

Brockton Takes 1-0 Victory; Presidents Finish Season At 12-8 Boxer Rebellion Eliminates Quincy

By SEAN BRENNAN

Quincy got solid pitching from senior Nicole Parry, but it wasn't enough as the Presidents were eliminated from the Division I South state tournament following a 1-0 preliminary round loss to Brockton last Thursday at Mitchell-McCoy Field.

A 1-0 loss in the state tournament is nothing new for Quincy. Including this year, the Presidents have now gone 45 postseason innings without scoring a run and have now lost three straight 1-0 decisions in the one-and-done tournament.

Last year Quincy lost to North Attleboro, 1-0 in 18 innings in the preliminary round and back in 2010, the Presidents dropped a 1-0 20-inning decision to Dartmouth in the opening round.

Against the Boxers, Parry was her usual dominant self. The senior hurler fanned eight, walked two and allowed seven hits. Parry worked her way out of a one-out bases loaded jam in the top of the first and a two on, no-out situation in the third before allowing the game's only run on a two-out single by Karissa Pagan in the fifth.

Like Kori Sorensen before her, Parry was the victim of a lack of run support. Quincy managed only one hit (a bunt single from freshman Emma Kelly in the bottom of the seventh) off Brockton's Abigail Lambert. Lambert struck out 13, including seven straight between the second and fourth frames, with basically one pitch. She continually reared back and got Quincy batters out with inside heat.

Quincy finished the year at 12-8 overall.

"Lambert was working the inside of the plate and we struggled against the inside pitch," said Quincy head coach Greg Sommers. "She pitched really well and we couldn't get anything going offensively. Brockton is a great team; they fielded well and they pitched well."

Despite being no-hit through six innings, Parry's performance gave the Presidents a fighting chance. On Lambert's first pitch of the seventh, Kelly laid down a perfect bunt between home plate and third. The speedy outfielder beat the throw at first base on a bang-bang play and Quincy was in business.

With seniors Parry, Caity Lowry and Erin Chiochio, the team's 3-4-5 hitters up next, Sommers elected to let his seniors swing away instead of attempting to move Kelly into scoring position with a sacrifice. Lambert got Parry to pop to third, sat down Lowry swinging and induced Chiochio to tap back to the mound to end the game.

It would have been easy to second-guess that decision, and to his credit Sommers acknowledged he maybe should have called for a sacrifice in that situation, but he made the call to let his seniors — the heart of his lineup — swing away and it just didn't pay off.

"There were a couple of times I may have called for (the bunt) earlier in the game and it just didn't work out," Sommers explained when asked why Quincy didn't try a bunt earlier against Lambert, "but in that moment I thought we had a matchup down at third base and we could drop on down, just like Emma did, and get someone on base."

"What I should have done next was bunt her over with Nicole and gone from there," continued Sommers before adding, "I had my 3-4-5 hitters coming up next and with a runner on I couldn't have asked for three better players to come up to the plate at that time."

At the start of the first it looked as if Brockton would blow things open early. Parry allowed a leadoff single to Tori Hancock before striking out Lambert. A single by Bobbi Holmgren and a walk to Gabby Ameen loaded the bases with one out, but Parry settled in and struck out Pagan and Monique Vacca to quell the threat.

Lambert started off by getting Devon Varmahmoodi to ground out to second before fanning Kelly for the inning's second out. Parry grounded out to end the bottom of the first as Lambert set the early tone.

After Parry sat down Alex Sylvia, Alannah Healy and Ashley McDonald 1-2-3 in the top of the second, Lambert countered by striking out Lowry, Chiochio and freshman Saxon Bresnahan in the bottom of the inning.

Brockton threatened (again) in the third. Hancock reached on a bunt single and stole second. A Lambert single moved Hancock to third; Lambert took second on the throw back into the infield. But Parry maneuvered out of the jam by striking out Holmgren and Ameen before getting Pagan to pop to third base.

The Brockton right-hander continued to dazzle in the bottom of the inning. Lambert struck out junior Ashley Faiella, sophomore Taylor Parry and sophomore Bethany Walker on 14 pitches to send the game into the fourth scoreless.

Parry mowed down Vacca to begin the fourth and got Sylvia to tap back to the mound for the second out. After walking Healy, she got McDonald on a routine grounder to second. Lambert then sat down Varmahmoodi and Kelly on strikes before allowing her first base runner after walking Nicole Parry. Lowry popped to first for the third out.

With one-out in the top of the fifth, Brockton finally got its run-scoring rally started when Lambert roped a double to deep right-center. Parry struck out Holmgren, but Ameen laced a single to left that moved Lambert to third. Pagan then took a fastball back up the middle to score Lambert. Parry avoided any further damage by getting Vacca to tap out.

"Brockton had a bunch of good hitters and they were coming out swinging at the first pitch and working the count very well," said Sommers about the Boxers' hitting strategy against Parry.

"(Pagan) just hit (a good pitch)," explained Sommers about the game-winning single in the fifth. "Nicole is a great pitcher. They just caught it."

Chiochio led off the bottom of the fifth with a wicked drive that was snagged by Pagan at shortstop for the first out. Bresnahan followed by driving a ball to the deepest part of the park in centerfield, but the ball seemed to die before landing in the glove of Hancock at the fence. Lambert fanned Faiella to end the frame.

Parry allowed a two-out single to McDonald in the sixth but got Hancock to ground out. Lambert struck out two more in the Quincy sixth before Parry sat down Brockton 1-2-3 in the seventh setting up Kelly's lead-off bunt in the seventh.

For Quincy's seniors, the loss to Brockton ended three very successful high school careers: Parry, Lowry and Chiochio played varsity softball all four years and advanced into the state tournament every season.

"I am very proud of the three seniors that started this year," said Sommers. "All

SENIOR ERIN CHIOCHIO looks to the third base coaching box to pick up the signals during last week loss to Brockton in the Division I softball tournament.

Quincy Sun photos/Lisa Aimola

three of them made the tournament all four years and played all four years. Between them there is a ton of experience. They are great girls, great athletes and great students. I can't wait to see what they do later in life."

The Presidents graduate some big-time players (this includes senior Blair Hajjar) but Quincy's future is bright. Juniors Devin McMahon, Ashley Faiella, Liz Green and Devon Varmahmoodi will be back as will sophomores Taylor Parry, Rachel Papile, Bethany Walker and Leann McColgan.

Freshmen Emma Kelly, Saxon Bresnahan and Angelina Avitabile are also solid building blocks moving forward.

Quincy has work to do during the off-season, and it begins with the returning players working to refine overall team batting.

"I hope that they take out of this (1-0 loss) that we need to work in the off-season with hitting and getting runners on," said Sommers. "For three years in a row we haven't scored a run in the tournament. Hopefully they remember that in upcoming years and they can take that with them. 1-0 losses sting, so hopefully they don't want to feel that way again."

SENIOR NICOLE PARRY fires a pitch during last week's 1-0 loss to Brockton. Parry finished the preliminary round game with eight strikeouts.

FRESHMAN EMMA KELLY beats the throw to first base to start the bottom of the seventh. Kelly's hit was the only one that Brockton's Abby Lambert allowed all game.

BROCKTON'S TORI HANCOCK steals second. The Boxers were eliminated in the first round following a 2-0 loss to Sandwich.

Raiders, Presidents Play Intra-City Rugby Game North's Experience Too Much For Quincy

NORTH QUINCY AND QUINCY SCRUM for possession of the ball during a May 29 intra-city rugby game at Atlantic Middle School. Quincy's David Hanna (center) looks to apply pressure on North's Antroung Ngu (far left) as he looks to pass the ball out of the scrum. The game between the city's two high schools marked the first time in Massachusetts high school rugby that two teams from the same city played one another.

The afternoon of May 29 marked a historic milestone for Massachusetts' high school rugby.

It was on that day, on a field behind Atlantic Middle School, that the North Quincy Red Raiders and the Quincy Presidents lined up to play in the first ever intra-city high school rugby game, not only in Quincy, but also in the state of Massachusetts.

North Quincy, a four-year program, featured a smaller but quicker squad that was experienced. During the pre-game warm-ups, the North Quincy coaching staff especially stressed the importance of a disciplined defense while on the other side of field, the first-year Presidents looked to use their size advantage and play a physical match.

Quincy received the kick-off to start the game. After the ball went out of play, North Quincy got the ball back off a lineout and quickly capitalized. Just over a minute into the match, senior prop and co-captain Kevin Riordan bullied his way over for the game's first try.

The Red Raiders touched down six scores in the opening half. The other try scorers were co-captain senior flyhalf John Clifford, senior lock Luke Yanovich, senior prop Quan Au and senior scrumhalf Antroung Ngu while Riordan added two more tries to bring the halftime score to 35-0 North Quincy.

In the second half, the Red Raiders were able to steal away possession from Quincy on numerous occasions that set up multiple scoring chances. Ngu and Yanovich scored the first two tries of the half, but halfway through the second half, the Presidents were able to push over their first score off a beautiful maul.

After the maul crossed the try line, senior scrumhalf David Hanna fell down with the ball and was awarded the try. After Clifford scored again for North, Quincy's big inside center Katura Simmons ran over and around the North Quincy defense for the game's final points, bringing the final score to 50-10 Red Raiders.

The difference on the final score sheet was North Quincy's experience, fitness, and its ability to win possession of the ball. The Red Raiders were able to steal six out of nine Quincy lineouts in addition to winning all five of their own. North Quincy also dominated the scrum, stealing the ball in half of the Presidents' scrums.

For both squads it was a great way to end the season. Both teams played a hard and clean game all the way to the final whistle. After the game, North Quincy head coach/referee Brian Casey congratulated his players on a great game, especially some of the seniors who became the city's first four-year players. In addition to the big senior class, the coaching staff also praised the underclassmen that stepped up and played their best game all season.

Quincy High returns almost all of their players next year and will look to build on from their first year of high school rugby.

Both programs will look to recruit hard in the off-season and if this game was any indication, rugby has a bright future in the City of Quincy.

Seniors Quan Au, Matt Broadbent, Kevin Riordan (captain), Josh Donnelly, Luke Yanovich, Matt McDonough, Antroung Ngu, Leo Cay, John Clifford (captain), Minh Nguyen, Jason Lam and Goric Wong played their final high school rugby game for North Quincy.

Returning next season are juniors Tommy Zhen, Shane Ceurvels and Phil Tran and sophomores James O'Connor, Usama Masood, Eltonjo Palushi, Brendan Green and Stephan Maranian.

TREATING AN ITCH

At first glance, it might seem that persistent itching restricted to a localized area of the upper back should be treated by a dermatologist. However, the common condition known as "notalgia paresthetica" is more complicated than that. To begin with, there is often no visible lesion or inflammation other than signs of scratching. Moreover, while the symptoms of itching and pain may initially be treated with topical steroids and capsaicin creams, addressing the cause of these symptoms is another matter. Notalgia paresthetica is actually due to compression of spinal nerves by bones or muscles as the nerves emerge through the vertebrae. The disrupted nerves signal irritation to the skin, which causes the itch. Chiropractic treatment may help alleviate the itch.

Today's column about notalgia paresthetica has been brought to you as a public service. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we provide safe and gentle chiropractic care for the entire family. Call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment and let us help you feel better the natural way—the chiropractic way. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Notalgia paresthetica is more common in adulthood, typically affecting people between the ages of 40 and 80.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF

Geraldine B. Storella
July 15, 1938 — June 3, 2012

"People are often unreasonable, illogical and self-centered; Forgive them anyway.

If you are kind, people may accuse you of selfish, ulterior motives; Be kind anyway.

If you are successful, you will win some false friends and some true enemies; Succeed anyway.

If you are honest and frank, people may cheat you; Be honest and frank anyway.

What you spend years building, someone could destroy overnight; Build anyway.

If you find serenity and happiness, they may be jealous; Be happy anyway.

The good you do today, people will often forget tomorrow; Do good anyway.

Give the world the best you have and it may never be enough; Give the world the best you've got anyway.

You see, in the final analysis it is between you and God; It was never between you and them anyway"

Two Longtime Educators At Atherton Hough Retiring

Principal Dorothy Greene, Teacher Nancy Brennan

By SCOTT JACKSON

Tomorrow (Friday) will be the last day of class for two longtime educators at the Atherton Hough School.

Principal Dorothy Greene and kindergarten teacher Nancy Brennan are retiring after spending 22 and 19 years, respectively, in their current positions at Atherton Hough.

The 63-year-old Greene has taught in Quincy's school system for the past 42 years. After attending Boston College, she taught at Merrymount School for 15 years, and served as the teaching assistant principal for five of those years. From 1985 until 1990 she was the assistant principal at Lincoln Hancock before being promoted to the top spot at Atherton Hough. Once she stepped into the principal's position, Greene said she never considered leaving for another job.

"I just love Houghs Neck," Greene said Monday. "I love being principal of the Atherton Hough School. The history of Houghs Neck and stability of Houghs Neck has always appealed to me and I just love being here."

Greene said she'd contemplated retirement the last few years, but decided in April that this would be her last year. Her last day of classes will be Friday, though she'll still be at the school from time to time over the summer. While the principal said she had a hard time breaking the news to the school's staff and students, the hardest day will be when students return for classes in September.

"That Wednesday after Labor Day when the children start is going to be a very difficult day

Retirements Anticipated; Funds For One Extra Officer Approved

4 New Patrol Officers Hired By September

By SCOTT JACKSON

Police Chief Paul Keenan said Monday that he intends to hire up to four new patrol officers in the upcoming fiscal year.

Keenan's comments came during a City Council Finance Committee budget hearing. Mayor Thomas Koch's proposed budget for fiscal year 2013 includes funding for an extra patrol officer. But more will need to be hired because of two anticipated retirements — one sergeant and one patrol officer — and because the budget includes money for an additional sergeant.

"We've got a couple retirements we anticipate," Keenan said. "There's a sergeant retiring at any point in time, he's in for a disability pension. And we have one patrol officer retiring in September. And we have a new position and if we filled the sergeant's position we'd have to replace him as well so probably three to four new officers will come aboard."

Pension Cuts Add Up To $900,000 Savings

During its final budget hearing Monday, the Finance Committee found nearly $900,000 in savings by making two cuts to Mayor Thomas Koch's proposed budget.

The bulk of the money, $874,626, was cut from the line item for the city's pension fund contribution. The money taken out of the pension line item — which was $21.9 million when originally proposed — represents the amount the Quincy Housing Authority will be paying into the system. QHA pays into the fund independently of the city, while other entities including Quincy College reimburse the city for their share of the contributions.

Finance Chairman Joe Finn proposed the change after noticing the error. "There might be a mistake," he said, "the Quincy Housing Authority appropriation is $874,626. They pay that separately so that should not be in the general budget for the taxpayers to pay."

Auditor Susan O'Connor confirmed that retirement board director Ed Masterson had said the number should be reduced to $21.04 million, and the committee approved the reduction. Even with the change, the city's pension contribution will be about $720,000 higher in FY13 than it was in FY12.

The City of Quincy, in partnership with the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, is looking to bring more biotechnology businesses into the city by participating in the BIO 2012 International Convention.

The Convention kicks off Monday and runs through June 21 at the Boston Convention and Exhibition Center. It's billed as the largest gathering of biotechnology firms and startups in the world, and hosts over 15,000 people each year. The City of Quincy has a Platinum rating by MassBio, the highest rating for a community seeking to attract and support biotechnology companies.

"The economic development opportunities go far beyond the downtown, and I am delighted that we are able to put together the initiative for the future of the biotech industry in Quincy," Mayor Thomas Koch said at a City Hall press conference Tuesday.

Quincy's initiative will include the city having its own spot in the Massachusetts pavilion at the conference, marketing materials and a new video about the city. Quincy joins Boston and Cambridge in having its own space at the convention. The initiative also aims to bring in jobs to the city.

"Quincy is on the verge of greatness. This is something that has been going on for a number of years," said City Council President Michael McFarland. "Biotechnology is where the next sector of jobs is going to be. This is where

Brian Buckley To Receive Koch Youth Service Award

Recreation Supervisor, Basketball Coach To Be Honored During Flag Day Celebration Saturday; • Parade Steps Off At 7 PM; Fireworks 9:15 PM

Brian Buckley, a long-time program supervisor for the Quincy Recreation Department and basketball coach, will be honored with the Richard J. Koch Memorial Youth Service Award as part of the City's Flag Day Parade and Celebration scheduled for Saturday.

Buckley has supervised Recreation Department programs for 41 years; served as the City's first Youth Commission Administrator and was an Athletic Director at North Quincy High School.

This year, he retired as the Scituate High School girls basketball coach after leading to the team to Eastern Massachusetts Championship Game, capping a coaching career that included stints at Quincy College, Curry College, Archbishop Williams High School and Boston College High School.

"Brian built a life around helping and mentoring our young people, and that is really at the heart of what the award is all about. He is certainly a worthy recipient," said Mayor Thomas Koch. The award is named in honor of his father, the late Richard J. Koch, who was the City's long-time Park Director and the founder of the Flag Day Parade.

The parade, which will honor all of Quincy's Vietnam Veterans as honorary Grand Marshal, steps-off on Coddington Street at 7 p.m. before making its way to Hancock Street, turning right onto Merrymount Parkway, and ending at the entrance to Pageant Field anchored by the annual parade highlight: nearly 2,000 city young people from groups across the City marching with American flags.

The parade culminates into a celebration at Pageant Field with a flag-raising of an impressive 30' x 60' version of Old Glory, the presentation of the Richard J. Koch Memorial Youth Service Award, and a patriotic performance and sing-a-long.

The evening will be capped off by a spectacular fireworks display over Black's Creek that will kick off roughly around 9:15 p.m.

Mayor Koch said that the continued success, and growth, of the Flag Day events would not be possible without the commitment from the City's business community, specifically highlighting major donations from auto dealer Dan Quirk, Keohane Funeral Home, the Quincy Partnership, Street-Works Development, Eastern Bank and the Koch Club.

SPECTACULAR FIREWORKS will light up the night-time sky Saturday to culminate the city's 61st annual Flag Day Parade and Celebration. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble

Traffic Shift For Route 3 Over Burgin Parkway In Braintree/Quincy

During a recent bridge inspection of the bridge carrying Route 3 South over Burgin Parkway on the Braintree/Quincy line, MassDOT discovered one bridge beam at this location that had suffered some degradation to its secondary supports.

As a result, MassDOT has blocked off the beam and has shifted traffic to the right. There are still three lanes of travel, which have been marked to guide the flow of traffic.

A repair plan is being worked on; until repairs begin, the traffic shift will remain in place.

MassDOT encourages drivers to allow for extra time until the shift becomes familiar to drivers.

Drug Court Helps Graduates 'Put Lives Back Together'

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

When Carol Brouwer completed Quincy's Drug Court program four years ago, she was determined to lead a clean and sober life and to win back the two children who had been taken from her because of her addiction.

Last week Carol was one of the guest speakers at the commencement exercises at the Quincy Courthouse to honor this year's graduates of the program, five equally determined young men.

As each graduate accepted his certificate, he spoke most sincerely of the gratitude felt for what the Drug Court had done to change his life around, and how the program had put him on the right path and/or kept him out of jail.

Charles "Chuckie" Collins, who was first arrested two days before his 16th birthday, completed the program in December of 2011 and is one of the first to also experience the Quincy Fatherhood Program, which assists in dealing with a child and with the child's mother.

Graduate Pat Glynn, who completed the program in April and now works on a 'sober' crew setting up concerts, said that everyone in his family tried to get him sober, but that... "something clicked while I was in jail."

John Repetto entered the program in September of 2010, broke the rules, and went to jail. He completed the program just last month and said, "The recovery community is small and helps us get our lives back together."

Graduate Chris Wildes was quite young when he entered the Drug Court program in 2010 and is now in college. "You think people hate you, but do the right thing and people come to your side," he said.

A fifth graduate, James Taromino, was unable to get the time off work to attend the commencement ceremonies.

A special Recognition Award was presented to a surprised Judge Mark S. Coven, who was honored for "making the drug court what it is now" and for the trickle-down effect his superb leadership has had on the program.

Established in 2001, Quincy's Drug Court initially requires probationers to periodically appear for judicial reviews following a probation surrender hearing before a judge. They must complete a standard inpatient program, followed by a stay at a Half-way, or Sober House.

Among the many other requirements of these candidates is thrice weekly drug and alcohol testing—including 'hair' tests, attendance at meetings, and participation in the Relapse Prevention and Relationships in Recovery groups.

Associate Justice Diane Moriarty and First Justice Mark S. Coven have supervised this intensive substance abuse treatment program, now boasting its tenth group of graduates.

Program alumna Brouwer has been clean and sober for nearly five years and is now engaged and a full time mother to her son David and his new 18-month old brother Andrew. She hopes to someday regain custody of her six year old daughter Joselyn.

In the meantime, when things got tough, as when she recently lost her mother—whom she described as her 'rock'—Carol utilized the tools that the drug court

Baseball And Brotherly Love

Joe Brill's thoughts Saturday will be exactly where they've been every day for the last 30 or so years.

He'll be thinking about his late brother Bob who signed his first contract to play professional baseball June 16, 1972. Many believed the hard-throwing lefty had the right stuff to become a major league baseball pitcher but his life was cut terribly short 11 years later. This September will mark 29 years since the 29-year-old lost a courageous battle with leukemia.

Also embedded in Joe's mind are fond memories of his brother John. He died tragically in a motorcycle accident 30 years ago this September.

Time slips away but the memories remain.

"A day never goes by that I don't think about my brothers," Joe Brill says softly, his eyes welling with a tear.

"Never."

When it comes to brothers and their bond, you couldn't find a stronger one than the Brill boys of Houghs Neck.

Joe, John and Bob Brill grew up on the ball fields and playgrounds in the tightly-knit seaside community. Name it and they played it: baseball, hockey, basketball, soccer, even golf.

The ball field at Sea Street and Fensmere Avenue in the Neck is appropriately named in memory of John and Bob today. In their youth, the diamond and outfield were more than a ball field - it was second home.

"We grew up on that field," Joe says. "When we were kids, I can remember me and my brothers and a couple of other ball players tried to dig out a rock near home plate one day and it turned out to be a big boulder. We used to take flour from my mom and line the field."

"We also had what we called the Houghs Neck Golf Club," Joe recalled. "It was a seven-hole course. We took soda cans and cut them in half and stuck them in the ground to putt in."

"That field has been used a long, long time. We did just about everything on that field and to have it named after my brothers is awesome."

Bob Brill's rise to professional baseball was as swift as one of his 90-mph fastballs.

The handsome lad from the Neck was 18 at the time in June of 1972 and had just graduated from Quincy High School where he excelled both academically and athletically.

But it took a while for Bob to grow into his nearly 6-foot, 5-inch frame. As a youth, he was so uncoordinated that he played first-base and outfield but seldom ventured to the pitching mound. As such, he didn't overthrow as a kid trying to be the next Nolan Ryan. Joe believes this is one of the reasons Bob developed such a strong arm as he grew up.

"By the time he was in the 7th or 8th grade, Dave MacMillan (longtime coach of Houghs Neck Legion Baseball) started to work with him and saw potential. A lot of potential," Joe remembers.

"My brother worked hard, Dave MacMillan worked hard. He was on the championship junior high school baseball team for Broad Meadows. He pitched at Quincy High School and was a great hitter, too."

Then, the fairy-tale moment occurred.

"A week after graduating from Quincy High School in June of 1972, Bob's pitching in his first American Legion game for Quincy Legion in Weymouth," Joe says recounting the story. "There are big league scouts there to watch (prospect) Vinny Hillier."

"My brother pitched a two-hitter with great velocity and good control and won the game. The scouts decided to take my parents out to eat and they started talking. The next thing you know they're back at my house and it's 11 o'clock at night. This is Friday night after his first Legion game and they're talking."

"My brother was trying to decide whether to go to college or go pro. He calls up Dave MacMillan - who was also a volunteer pitching coach for QHS baseball for years."

"He and Dave went out for a walk at 11:30 that night. They walked around Great Hill and talked about it. It was basically just after midnight. The scouts are sitting there in our house and I'm talking baseball with them and loving it."

"When he came back, he signed his contract with the Milwaukee Brewers. It happened so quickly. A few hours later, we're bringing him to Logan Airport to get on Alleghany Airlines to get him to the NY Penn League and he played in Newark, N.Y."

The ink on the contract wasn't about the money. Joe thinks his brother received a few thousand dollars as a signing bonus and his minor league paycheck was about $300 a week.

This decision was about realizing a dream.

BOB BRILL signing his contract in the family home in Houghs Neck to play professional baseball with the St. Louis Cardinals Jan. 28, 1974.

The next year - 1973 - the Brewers cut Bob to make room for their first-round pick in the MLB draft that year. That pick was Robin Yount. He would go on to become a first-ballot Hall of Famer for the Brewers as a shortstop and outfielder.

Bob's pro career was rekindled in 1974. After playing in the Boston Park League, he signed with the St. Louis Cardinals and played for former big league first baseman Kenny Boyer - winner of the 1964 National League MVP - in the Florida State League.

But Bob's career - which many believed would blossom as a major league pitcher - came to an unfortunate abbreviated end.

He was diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease late stage.

"They only gave him six months to live," Joe says. "He basically lived for another nine years."

But Bob Brill was not done with baseball - or his other goals.

He started the Quincy Bay Mariners in the Cranberry League and went to the Stan Musial World Series.

He also enrolled in a two-year computer course at Quincy Junior College. After the first year, he got a job working nights at State Street.

His cancer was also in remission.

Then tragedy struck the Brill family.

John Brill - on Labor Day weekend, Sept. 4, 1982 - was killed in a motorcycle accident on Quincy Shore Drive on Wollaston Beach. The tragedy, Joe says, did a number on his brother Bob.

"He was in remission at the time of the accident but the cancer came back. He died the next year. I don't know if it was the shock of losing a brother like that but he had been doing great at the time."

A stone was placed in memory of John Brill near the field where the brothers had spent so much time as kids. Among those attending the dedication were members of the Brill family including Bob.

After Bob passed away Sept. 26, 1983, the field was renamed Brill Field for both brothers.

The Houghs Neck community was there to comfort the Brills much like they were there when Bob prepared to get a bone marrow transplant. His youngest sister had been identified as a match and a fundraiser was held to help him undergo the procedure in Seattle.

Sadly, Bob never got healthy enough to fly across the country for that transplant. The money that was raised was put in a scholarship fund. Today, the Robert Brill Memorial Baseball Scholarship Fund has sent dozens of kids to baseball camps and has helped high school graduates with college expenses.

"My brothers John and Bob have been gone a long time," Joe says. "This September will be 30 years for John and 29 for Bob. But they give back every day."

And so does Joe who is one of the city's biggest baseball ambassadors. He's heavily involved in the Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame (he's also a member himself). For years he's also worked tirelessly as a "celebrity chairman" for many charities helping line up support from Red Sox alumni.

Joe calls Houghs Neck a special place with special people that has done so much for his family.

"Quincy is a great city. It's an awesome city with awesome people. You think about how great Quincy is and how great the people and magnify that just a little with the people of Houghs Neck."

When his brother first came down with cancer, it took him a while to get over the bitterness, Joe says.

"Seeing young people stranding on the corner, doing nothing with their lives. His life and his dream being totally taken away and washed out. But once he got through that, it was all good."

"He had no regrets. He went back to college. He worked as a computer programmer. He took the opportunity to play professional baseball."

Big brother Bob - 11 months older than Joe - also had a sense of humor.

After returning home to Quincy after some time in the minors, Bob and Joe headed to Brill Field.

"I have the bat, he's going to pitch to me. My brother Bob says, 'Let me show you what they taught me.'"

"The first pitch - 90 miles per hour at my head. Bang, I hit the deck," he says, slapping his hands together but grinning ear-to-ear.

Then, his tone grows serious.

"While pitching in the NY Penn League, they teach Bob how to throw a splitter. He picks up speed. Dave MacMillan swears by it: if it wasn't for the damn cancer ... he had the heart (to play major league baseball) and that's half the battle. He had perfection, he had that attitude to be best he could be."

"Even after his cancer, he worked with David MacMillan helping kids. He loved the game so much."

Then there's that magical October, eight years ago this fall, when Joe traveled to Busch Stadium and witnessed Red Sox history as Boston swept St. Louis to win its first World Series in 86 years.

Joe flew stand-by through Cincinnati to St. Louis but he was hardly alone.

Brill found a seat off the left field line then moved his way up to the front row just off the Boston dugout. After the last out is recorded, Joe finds himself soaked in baseball lore.

"Here I am, right there at the corner of the dugout, being sprayed with champagne. I was interviewed on TV minutes after the Red Sox finally won the World Series. It was just incredible."

Joe was wearing a Red Sox shirt to show his allegiance to Boston. But beneath it was Bob's Cardinals' jersey.

"I wanted to bring my brother to the game. Bob was there, too."

Much like he's been in Joe's heart all these years.

Scenes From Yesterday

BEACH STREET, LOOKING EAST, WOLLASTON, MASS.

THIS IS 1939 postcard is a view of Beach Street in Wollaston looking east from its intersection with Hancock Street. The building on the left was known as the Gardner Block; it was destroyed by fire several years ago. It featured retail shops at street level and nine small professional offices upstairs with doctors, lawyers and dentists. The street level corner store was the California Cleansers, a landmark here for over 40 years. On the Beach Street side was the Reliable Market with their sidewalk fruit and vegetable displays. This corner is now home to a Bank of America ATM. The corner on the right was home to the Old Corner Drug Store, now Tony's House of Pizza. In 1940, the WPA built the Post Office on an empty lot behind the drug store. The publisher of this post card enhanced the view by removing all the utility poles and wires and the trolley tracks that ran across the foreground on Hancock Street. Council Adopts Govt. Center Plan

The City Council adopted the formal framework for a Quincy Government Center complex planned for the site adjacent to City Hall.

The legislation was proposed by Mayor James McIntyre and was recently signed into law by Gov. Francis Sargent but required local approval.

Proposed for the Hancock Street block housing McGilvary's Drug Store and other businesses, the 10-12 story building with an atrium would cost an estimated $10 million.

SWING BRIDGE FOR FORE RIVER REJECTED

The state Department of Public Works rejected the city's plea to widen the horizontal clearance of the Fore River Bridge and said it would end any further study.

The study was requested to keep the General Dynamics yard competitive by allowing it to bid on larger and wider tankers and other ships. The swing plan would have used one of the spans to "swing" open the bridge, allowing for wider clearance, but would have produced stress beyond the bridge's current capacity, according to the DPW.

The DPW also noted the cost was estimated at $6.5 million, not the $5 million estimated by General Dynamics.

CASHMAN'S QUARRY TO BE USED FOR DUMP

Mayor McIntyre ended the debate on siting a new city dump by designating Cashman's Quarry (off Willard Street and west of the Southeast Expressway) for one and a half to two-year operation.

McIntyre said he was open to any long-term solution to the dumping problem, including either sanitary landfill or incineration at Pike's Peak near the Milton line and the Blue Hills Reservation.

The mayor also expanded the committee studying the disposal issue to include representatives from St. Moritz Association and residents of Minihan's Lane.

Marathoner Expresses Thanks For CarePacks Support

This letter confirms the fact that coming up with the words to adequately express my sincere thanks and utmost appreciation has to be one of the most difficult aspects of this whole experience.

While I feel as thoughts these words do not satisfactorily convey the true extent of everything racing through my mind, I want to thank you all so much for contributing to my fundraising efforts on behalf of CarePacks.

To say that this year's event was a success is truly an understatement. Thanks to all of you, we were able to raise the highest amount of money to date.

The feelings of excitement, gratitude and humility all rise exponentially in light of the fact that this year's success brings our four year total to $99,000 being raised for our brave military personnel serving and protecting us all.

Marathon Monday was a perfect and beautiful day. For those watching along the 26.2 miles, however, that 90-degree temperature proved challenging for running to say the least. Honestly, there were times that I contemplated quitting, but the truth of the matter is that this marathon experience is nothing in comparison to what our troops experience on a day-to-day basis.

Knowing their drive and unselfishness was my focus and inspiration.

While my time was a little slower than what I expect from myself, I did not quit and that is a measure of true success. This was a truly rewarding experience on so many levels.

Once again my faith in the good and generosity of people was reaffirmed. I also learned how far I could push myself in order to exceed my expectations both in regards to our fundraising efforts and myself physically and mentally during those 26.2 miles.

Thank you once again for your kindness, generosity and support.

In Sync Center Of Arts Hosts Two Broadway Dancers

Even in a hectic time of cramming and reviewing recital routines, the students and staff at In Sync Center of the Arts found a time to continue learning and growing as dancers with two members of the touring Broadway cast of Beauty and the Beast.

Performers Brittany Conigatti and Kyle Dupree recently offered a rare and exciting opportunity by bringing their knowledge of the business and their love of dance to the students for a two hour Broadway jazz workshop.

Conigatti grew up in New York City and attended LaGuardia High School of Music, Art, and the Performing Arts. She has trained with companies such as Paul Taylor and Joffrey Jazz and Contemporary. Onstage, she has also performed in Disney's High School Musical as well as Hairspray.

Fellow cast member Dupree graduated from University of the Arts with a BFA in Jazz Dance Performance. In 2010, he had the privilege of traveling the world while performing with Holland America Line Cruises. Other stage credits include Dreamgirls, Les Misérables, CATS, and Aida.

The dancers, ages 10 through 18, warmed up and quickly jumped into learning the choreography to the musical's iconic number, Be Our Guest. Dancers were turning, jumping, and showcased the ending with a fabulous kickline.

After performing the routine several times, Conigatti and Dupree sat down with the dancers for an informative question and answer session, in which they entertained questions about their experiences on Broadway and the hard work they have put in to get them where they are today.

In Sync, which is holding its 16th annual recitals Saturday, June 23rd and Sunday, June 24th, was more than happy to open its doors to the Broadway performers.

"It was such a fantastic opportunity for the students to be taught by Broadway performers," said owner Teri Mangiaratti, "and it was truly inspirational to see them rise to the challenge!"

This Broadway workshop was one of two that were held at In Sync this year, and was only one of the fantastic opportunities provided to students.

Anneli Johnson, Conservation Chairwoman of the Wollaston Garden Club, was recently awarded the Helen DeOrsay Freidberg Scholarship Award at the Garden Club Federation's of Massachusetts, Inc. annual meeting in Mansfield.

The scholarship award entitles Johnson to attend her final course in the fall of Environmental Study School sponsored by the National Garden Clubs, Inc.

the Quincy Farmers' Market, which she managed for over 30 years.

"As Conservation Chair of the Wollaston Garden Club, she has led: an educational/advocacy project with the Quincy Environmental Network on the Town Brook; encouraged and led WGC's participation with the Friends of the Blue Hills on the "Identification of Invasive Plants"; organized and worked with Houghs Neck Garden Club in support of the Up-Dated Bottle Bill; and led the club's work with children at the Lincoln Hancock School Arbor Day & NGC School Yard Gardens Projects."

Susan Sweetser of the Wollaston Garden Club completed her course work and became a member of the NGC, Inc Environmental Studies Council last fall.

Sandra Lin Receives Respiratory Therapist Degree

Sandra Lin of Quincy, an employee of Quincy Medical Center, was recently honored by Gov. Deval Patrick after graduating from Massasoit Community College with an degree in respiratory therapy.

Lin was able to reach her dream of becoming a respiratory therapist thanks to an innovative educational partnership between her union, 1199SEIU, and Quincy Medical Center.

Lin, a billing specialist, received her associates degree in respiratory therapy from Massasoit. Gov. Patrick honored Lin and other program participants at a special ceremony June 7 at the Sheraton New York Hotel in New York City.

Born and raised in China, Lin moved to the U.S. in 1999. Language barriers made acclimating to life in the U.S. a challenge for Lin and her family.

She started working at the age of 16 and graduated high school in 2004. Her first job out of high school was working for the Boston Elections Department. A year later she accepted a position as a clerk in the emergency room at Quincy Medical Center. Through her observation of the ER, Lin became interested in medical interpreting. She took classes and became a registered medical interpreter, where she was able to help people in need of translation services in the hospital.

Lin eventually became interested in respiratory therapy and a friend told her about the respiratory therapy associate degree program that the 1199SEIU and Upgrading Fund was offering to union members. She shadowed a respiratory therapist and became eager to help recovering patients.

She took the pre-requisite courses for the training program and eventually began her studies at Massasoit Community College. She plans to study for her bachelors degree.

Eggplant, Zucchini, Then Pasta

With several members of my family vegetarians, it's easy to run out of ideas as to what to cook that looks and tastes tempting.

With so many fresh vegetables in season, today's recipe is a no brainer, as it has eggplant, zucchini and other vegetables to make this tasty dish.

When I cooked it recently, it was one of those dreary sunless days, and a plate of this just hit the spot.

EGGPLANT, ZUCCHINI, AND THEN SOME PASTA

- 1 eggplant
- 1 medium zucchini
- 1 red pepper
- 1 green pepper
- 8 ounces mushrooms (optional)
- 1 large can tomatoes
- 1 small onion (sliced)
- 2-3 cloves of garlic (chopped)
- 3 tablespoons olive oil

- ½ pound wide noodles
- ½ pound shrimp (optional)
- Salt and pepper to taste

First, cut up all the vegetables in bite size pieces. In hot oil, sauté the garlic and onion and then add the eggplant, zucchini, peppers and the mushrooms. Cook and stir for several minutes and then add the tomatoes.

Cover and cook until vegetables are tender and the mixture is well blended with the addition of the tomatoes. When this is done, place the shrimp on top and cook uncovered until the shrimp is pink.

While this is cooking, prepare the pasta according to directions. Pour the vegetable mixture over the pasta and add grated cheese if desired.

I added the shrimp this time, but even without it, it is still a delicious and healthy meal. My family loves the one-inch wide noodles, but any favorite pasta will do.

Salmon Sliders

Hamburg sliders are so popular these days, but last week, I had bought some salmon hoping to make a salmon loaf, but instead I thought - why not make sliders?

With this recipe, I happen to use fresh salmon, but canned salmon can also be used.

SALMON SLIDERS

- 1 pound fresh salmon (or canned equivalent)
- 2 medium potatoes (cooked and mashed)
- 1-2 tablespoons fresh parsley (minced)
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup white wine
- Salt and pepper
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- Corn flake crumbs or a favorite coating
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil for sautéing

In a large skillet, add about a cup of water, some salt and pepper and the white wine, and poach the salmon until done.

When cooled, shred the salmon and put aside.

In a bowl, add the potatoes, the egg, parsley and lemon juice. Blend these ingredients well, and then add the salmon. If needed, you may add ¼ cup of breadcrumbs if the mixture seems too moist.

When this is all mixed well, make each small patty and then coat them in the crumbs. Sauté them just until lightly browned on each side, and then place them in a 250-degree oven to finish them.

The markets all have small hamburger rolls to place the sliders or they can be enjoyed with any other food.

WARMING UP TO ROSE GOLD

As its name suggests, rose gold has a warm, skin-flattering pink hue that can be worn with any color. Consequently, this alloy of gold and copper has been all the rage among jewelry designers and lovers of fine jewelry. The fact that chains, rings, watches, brooches, bracelets, and earrings featuring rose gold have graced the necks, fingers, wrists, shoulders, and ears of countless celebrities and runway models in recent years provides testimony to the popularity of this lovely precious metal. The higher the copper content, the redder rose gold becomes. For the sake of contrast, mix rose gold pieces with yellow gold jewelry. Rose gold rings and bracelets, in particular, lend themselves well to this artful decoration.

Rose gold is a spectacular way to add a unique twist to your jewelry collection. Come into our store, located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, to uncover the exact piece of rose gold jewelry that is perfect for drawing attention your wardrobe. We have a wide and varied selection of jewelry sure to please. Contact us at 617-773-3636 and let us assist you in making a confident jewelry purchase.

Would Overturn Supreme Court Decision In Citizens United V. Federal Elections Commission

Four Councillors Back Bid To Amend U.S. Constitution

Four city councillors are backing a controversial resolution to amend the U.S. Constitution.

The resolution was introduced at its June 4th meeting by Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin after he received a petition from his constituent Daniel Higgins. The resolution calls on Congress to amend the constitution to overturn the Supreme Court's decision in the 2010 case Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission.

In that decision, the court ruled that a federal district court was wrong to block Citizens United from airing advertisements promoting a film critical of Hillary Clinton during the 2008 presidential primary election season. The lower court based its decision on the 2002 McCain-Feingold act which prohibited unions, corporations, and non-profits from broadcasting 'electioneering communications' in the weeks prior to an election.

The Supreme Court overturned that decision in a 5-4 ruling, saying it violated the First Amendment's Freedom of Speech. The ruling also threw out restrictions on money given by unions, corporations, and non-profits to independent political action committees (PACs), allowing the creation of so-called Super PACs. A ban on direct contributions from corporations and unions to campaigns at the federal level was unaffected by the decision.

The resolution passed by the council backs an amendment proposed in the Senate by Bernie Sanders (I-Vermont) and in the House by Ted Deutch (D-Florida) that would overturn the decision by redefining corporate personhood.

At the meeting last week, Coughlin noted that councils in other Massachusetts cities, including Boston, Cambridge, and Worcester had already passed similar resolutions. He further explained that public opinion was widely against the decision, with recent polls showing that 80 percent of people wanted the decision overturned, and that that support was bipartisan, because the same poll found that 56 percent of self-identified Tea Partiers supported an overturn of the decision.

"The amount of money spent in elections as a result of the decision has increased and has negatively impacted federal, state, and local races," Coughlin said. "The concern from folks is that moneyed interests are continuing to hijack the electoral process and that this decision just emboldened those efforts."

The council approved the resolution in a 4-0 vote. Councillors Brad Croall, Doug Gutro, and Kirsten Hughes joined Coughlin in supporting the resolution.

The other four councillors who attended the meeting - Margaret Laforest, Mike McFarland, Brian McNamee, and Brian Palmucci - voted "present" instead of voting yes or no on it. Palmucci said he voted present because the council wasn't the proper venue for the issue.

"I do not believe it is proper before the City Council," Palmucci said. "There's mechanisms and there's ways to change the constitution of the United States - they weren't decided in these chambers, they weren't decided by the Quincy City Council. They were decided and determined a long time ago by folks a lot smarter than us."

A proposed amendment must first be approved by a two-thirds majority in both the House and Senate, and then ratified by three-fourths of the states. States can ratify either by a vote of the legislature or a special state convention, though only the 21st Amendment which repealed prohibition was approved by state conventions and not legislatures.

Congress could be bypassed entirely in the process if two-thirds of states call for a constitutional convention to propose amendments, but such a convention has never happened since the current constitution was adopted. Any amendments approved by a convention would be still require ratification by three-fourths of the states.

the future of our country is heading and this is where the jobs are heading."

Quincy Chamber of Commerce President Dean Rizzo said the city and partners of the Chamber of Commerce funded the marketing, the video and the fee to become a partner in the Mass Pavilion, which costs approximately $70,000.

"We have been working hard, with the Mayor's office, with our community partners to get the job done. Some of the fruits of our labor are the marketing brochure and a DVD video about the city of Quincy," said Rizzo.

"This isn't just this initiative, this is a multi-year strategy that we are putting forward. We want you to consider the City of Quincy a great opportunity to locate your business. We want to put Quincy on the map. Now Quincy is on that state map as a great location for biotech companies. We are committed; the chamber is a full partner in this initiative. We want to wave our flag and say 'Here in Quincy, we are open for business and we want your business.'"

Part of the initiative is to promote Quincy in a way that shows biotech companies that it is a great city to relocate to and will provide their employees with surrounding areas that offer great recreation and cultural amenities along with convenient transportation alternatives, housing options, and attractive leasing rates.

"You think about what Quincy is on the verge of, as you try to build an economy you need diversity. The City of Quincy is very fortunate in the diversity that it does have," said state Sen. John Keenan. "We have some outstanding insurance companies, we have a medical presence with Quincy Medical Center, we have a great financial service presence, and we have an educational presence."

"The promise of downtown Quincy is just outstanding. So in that context looking to diversify further by bringing biotech to Quincy, wherever it may end up being, it bodes well not only for our economy but for the regional economy as well," Keenan added.

There are five different areas that are being promoted as bio-ready sites in Quincy. According to the new brochure, Crown Colony Office Park is master planned for up to 20 first-class office buildings, 13 buildings encompassing 1.5 million square feet already established and four additional development sites totaling 775,000 square feet. The four other sites include Fore River Shipyard, State Street Office Park, the Boston Scientific Facility, and Downtown Quincy.

After the convention, Rizzo said the city and Quincy Chamber would continue to try and get more biotechnology companies into Quincy through other initiatives for many years to come.

4 New Patrol Officers Hired By September

But the open positions won't be filled immediately. Keenan explained that there's a lengthy process involving physical, psychological, and background tests before a new recruit can be sent to an academy for training.

"We have to go through an extensive background process," Keenan said. "We do physicals, we do an agility test...then we do a psychological [test]. We do all of our background information and all of our background investigation."

The police will begin looking into candidates in July, and Keenan said he hopes to have that process wrapped up by September. After that they'd be sent to an academy, though Keenan said that too could take time because academies fill up quickly, though the new officers would likely be able to get into the MBTA's academy pretty easily.

"We've got a great rapport with the MBTA academy," Keenan said. "We send officers over there to assist them with their training and in return we get seats pretty quickly in their academy. And they're an excellent academy."

If all the available positions in the budget were filled, the Police Department would have 146 patrol officers. But he told the council he thinks the department would ideally have 160 of them, but said that would be a "pipe dream" because of the tough economic times.

The Finance Committee approved the proposed $22.3 million police budget by voice vote. That represents a 2.3 percent increase over the department's $21.8 million budget for the current fiscal year that ends June 30.

Patrolman Terminated After Hearing

Quincy Police Officer Joseph McGunigle was terminated Tuesday at the recommendation of an independent hearing officer, the mayor's office said as The Sun went to press.

McGunigle had previously been suspended for a long-running conflict with neighbors. His suspension came after a dispute arose over the placement of a traffic cone in McGunigle's neighborhood. An independent hearing officer recommended he be suspended for 30 days and attend anger management classes as a result of the dispute. Mayor Thomas Koch ultimately followed through on that and ordered the suspension and anger management classes.

A second complaint was filed earlier this spring. In it, Police Chief Paul Keenan said that McGunigle violated an order to stay away from police headquarters when he entered it in October, at the same time a witness to McGunigle's dispute with neighbors was present at the station. That allegation was sent to an independent hearing officer, following the same process that led to McGunigle's initial suspension. Keenan also revoked McGunigle's gun permit at the time.

Mayoral spokesman Chris Walker said that McGunigle was fired after the hearing officer made his ruling. "The hearing officer recommended termination," he said, "and the mayor followed that recommendation."

McGunigle's attorney Paul T. Hynes was not immediately available as of press time Tuesday. In April, he had declined to speak with The Sun about the case through his receptionist.

"Mr. Hynes does not talk to the press about pending cases," she said then.

Pension Cuts Add Up To $900,000 Savings

The other $10,000 in savings was from the line item for non-contributory pensions, which goes to surviving spouses of former city employees. That total for that line was reduced from $73,041 to $63,041.

Finn proposed the reduction because only four people receive surviving spouse benefits from the city, and the budget cut won't affect their benefits. In fact, O'Connor said that even with a three percent increase for cost-of-living expenses, the city would only pay out about $61,000 in benefits for surviving spouses.

The committee also gave preliminary approval to a series of other budgets at the hearing.

One of them was the city's portion of the School Department's budget which will increase from $86.2 to $88.9 million. Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said the extra money would go towards adding six new teachers. Those teachers would add three or four additional sections of art classes at Quincy High, as well as more sections of classes in the plumbing, health and human services, and fashion design programs at QHS.

Other positions would be added for an ELL (English language learning) teacher and a literacy one. The added money would also go towards hiring an athletic trainer for each high school.

The Finance Committee approved the School Department's bottom line spending by voice vote without discussion. The School Committee was expected to vote on the budget at its meeting Wednesday.

Another budget approved was the Parks Department's. Its budget will increase by 15.3 percent to $1.7 million. The extra money has been tabbed for hiring two new workers, a partial restoration of a summer jobs program aimed at primarily at college students, and for tree planting. A slight increase in the funding for the Cemetery Department was also given a preliminary okay.

The Veterans Services Department also received a double-digit percentage increase. The department's budget will go from $1.6 to $1.8 million. The bulk of the added money, $200,000, will go towards Veterans' benefits. Director Tom Stansbury noted that more and more veterans are signing up for benefits, including five in the past week.

The Drain Department's budget was also approved. It was approved with the Sewer and Water Departments' budgets, both of which fall outside of the city budget because they are enterprise accounts. They continue Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi's reorganization of the departments, as a retiring general foreman and retiring foreman/timekeeper would be replaced by laborers. The Water Department budget also shifts meter readers to meter repairers and meter inspectors.

The budget for the mayor's office was increased by $4,500 to allow for more out of state travel, and the elimination of a $60,000 Community Preservation Act offset also drove up the budget for the mayor's office. The Elections Department budget increased by $6,000 because the city needs to pay for ramps for polling places that had been funded by the schools.

The budgets for the City Council, City Clerk, License Board, and Animal Control were all approved as well. Those budgets were level-funded, except for slight decreases because FY13 has two fewer business days than FY12.

The council will need to give final approval to the budget at its meeting Monday. A public hearing on the budget will take place at 7 p.m. in the temporary council chambers.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

X-RAYS GO DIGITAL

Today's dentist is no more likely to use traditional x-ray film than Facebook users might be expected to take pictures with film cameras, have the images developed in a lab, and mail them to their friends. Now, dentists are bypassing film and chemical processing in favor of digital x-ray sensors. With sensing pads positioned precisely in the mouth, information is sent to a digital image capturing device that displays x-ray images of the patient's teeth on a screen for immediate viewing. This technically advanced process saves time and allows images to be transferred, enhanced, and stored in a computer. A technique known as "subtraction radiography" also makes it possible to compare current images with older ones to show changes.

We understand how image resolution is related to confident diagnoses, and ultimately to the quality of patient attentiveness. Our family oriented practice encourages comprehensive complete care with emphasis on prevention through early detection. We will be sure to review your oral and general health history and give you all the options available to you. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment for gentle dental care. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Digital x-rays reduce radiation by 80 percent to 90 percent compared to the already-low exposure of traditional dental x-rays.

Drug Court Helps Graduates 'Put Lives Back Together'

taught her and enrolled in a Relapse Prevention course to get her through that difficult time.

Probation Officer Jo Rothman welcomed the packed courtroom and introduced program alumni, public officials, law enforcement personnel, judges, and treatment providers who assist in addiction recovery, including medical personnel.

Representing Mayor Thomas Koch, Chris Casani applauded the commitment of the graduates, as did Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey, who stated that his office "would rather help people than prosecute them" and commendations were offered by Special Sheriff Bill Knight, representing the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

Guest speaker Specialty Courts Coordinator the Honorable Michael Brooks spoke fondly of his years working in Quincy "even before a parkway had been named for [his associate] Dennis Ryan."

"There are 13 drug courts in the Commonwealth, three in the Boston area and one juvenile, which are evidence based, which means they are proven to work. No drug court can work without a judge, police, probation officers and a defense bar. Everyone in this room is part of the village it takes."

Michael Owens, once a drug court intern and now a summer intern at Senator Kerry's office, presented to Judge Moriarty a proclamation by the Senator which read, in part: "The success of the graduates exemplifies the caring and the passion of the entire drug court team. I congratulate the graduates for their commitment to recovery and I salute the drug court's efforts to better the lives of members of the program while improving the quality of life in our community."

Keynote speaker Kathy Deady emphasized the pain that her son's heroin addiction had caused his family, as addiction does to all family members. A Quincy resident and married nearly 45 years, she and her husband raised three children.

Before discovering her son's addiction, she had no awareness of drugs and when she drove him to the hospital with what she thought was an asthma attack, he had actually overdosed on heroin.

Deady addressed the courtroom: "We need to talk about this...don't be quiet, don't keep secrets, give people a chance...this program is trying to save lives."

She spoke of the 55 detoxes and 10 programs her son had been through and praised the Quincy court and Quincy's law enforcement, who she said never treated her nor her son with disrespect.

She recounted an incident when he called her from a phone booth and told her he was dying—he had overdosed—and she called the Quincy Police who she said were there "in two seconds to help him."

She told the graduates, "There's a lot of crap out there that might look good, but isn't good for you. I wasn't there for my son... Drug Court saves lives."

Judge Moriarty, as is her custom, closed the program with some meaningful advice to all, this time taken from a piece titled 'Awakenings.'

Just a few of these guidelines were: "Learn the difference between wanting and needing, learn to look at relationships as they are, not as you wish them to be, learn the difference between guilt and responsibility and learn the importance of championing yourself."

of a community hospital," said Daniel Knell, QMC president. "Quincy Medical Center is the only hospital in the area offering a full range of joint replacement options, including cutting edge robotic arm assisted, computer assisted and conventional partial and total joint replacement technologies. This new unit ensures that our orthopedic patients will receive the highest level of care in a beautiful setting specifically designed to improve their recovery."

To further enhance their hospital experience and aid their recovery, joint replacement patients and their family members are invited to attend a special educational class prior to surgery, to learn about how to prepare for their surgery and what to expect during their recuperation. The class is taught by a multidisciplinary team and covers every aspect of a patient's experience, including medication management, physical and occupational therapy, nursing care, case management and diet and nutrition.

"Our goal for the QMC Institute for Orthopedics & Joint Replacement is to provide patients with the highest level of individualized care, using the latest technology to restore their quality of life as quickly and in the most comfortable, convenient way possible — without having to travel into Boston or anywhere else," said Leonid Dabuzhsky, MD, orthopedic surgeon. "My colleagues at QMC and I are thrilled to offer this beautiful new facility to our patients."

52 New Compassionate Allowance Conditions To Help Disabled

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

In April, Social Security announced 52 new Compassionate Allowances conditions to the growing list of severe medical conditions that qualify for expedited medical decisions. The new conditions include many neurological disorders, cancers, and rare diseases.

The Compassionate Allowances initiative is a way of quickly identifying diseases and other medical conditions that invariably qualify as "disabled" based on minimal medical information. Compassionate Allowances allow Social Security to quickly identify the most obviously disabled individuals for allowances based on objective medical information that we can obtain quickly.

The announcement of 52 new conditions, effective in August, will increase the total number of Compassionate Allowances conditions to 165. That list continues to grow as Social Security, the National Institutes of Health, and a number of patient organizations help identify new conditions that clearly warrant quick approvals.

"Social Security will continue to work with the medical community and patient organizations to add more conditions," Commissioner Astrue said. "With our Compassionate Allowances program, we quickly approved disability benefits for nearly 61,000 people with severe disabilities in the past fiscal year, and nearly 173,000 applications since the program began."

Social Security develops the list of Compassionate Allowances conditions from information received at public outreach hearings, comments received from the disability community, counsel of medical and scientific experts, and research with the National Institutes of Health. Also, we consider which conditions are most likely to meet our definition of disability.

For more information on the Compassionate Allowances initiative, please visit www.socialsecurity.gov/compassionateallowances.

Local Reaction To Proposed Billboard Regulations Council Opposes Proposed Billboard, Outdoor Signage Regulation Changes

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin authored and introduced a resolution approved by the council indicating opposition to a proposed set of changes to billboard and outdoor sign regulation in the commonwealth.

According to Coughlin "the proposed set of new regulations on outdoor advertising if enacted will see Massachusetts go from having some of the strongest billboard controls in the country to some of the weakest, and result in a proliferation of signs all over the state." In his presentation to the council Coughlin catalogued the changes proposed by MassDOT's Office of Outdoor Advertising (OOA). Among the concerns; despite the current ban on electronic illuminated billboards, which is part of a 1971 agreement still in force with the Federal Highway Administration, the new regulations will allow an electronic billboard to be erected anywhere in the state or swapped for an existing regular billboard, without setting forth illumination or brightness level standards or restrictions on nighttime displays for such electronic billboards near residential areas.

Coughlin noted that "the new laws will also exempt from regulation billboards featuring "non-commercial" free speech messages. This exemption is problematic and dangerous and potentially costly to taxpayers," he added "as differentiating regulations based on content will open the door to an influx of unregulated billboards and creates a slippery slope exposing the state to First Amendment legal challenges. The determination as to whether a message is "non-commercial" is left arbitrarily in the discretion of the Director of the OOA." The new rules will also allow billboards to be erected without permits, without payment of fees and without regard to other applicable billboard restrictions such as local zoning requirements and spacing and sizing requirements.

"Temporary signs" have been limited to a size of 32 Square feet and a duration of 90 days with no ability to renew approval. The new regulations have no size limitations, extend the temporary time period to one year and make the approval renewable without limitation. Signs on "street furniture" such as kiosks, will increase significantly in size and not be subject to local regulations. The prohibition of billboards within 300 feet of parkland will be preempted if the park is less than 30,000 square feet thus lifting an important protection in an urban setting like Quincy where pocket parks are more likely to exist.

"The Commonwealth's heritage," Coughlin concluded, "in terms of protecting the public's interest in regulating outdoor advertising and billboard blight and visual pollution first codified in 1918 in Article 50 of the Massachusetts Constitution and further established in state and local standards has been substantially undermined by these proposed regulatory changes. If the issue of aesthetics and scenic beauty were not concern enough, a December 2011 study entitled "Beyond

Aesthetics: How Billboards Affect Economic Prosperity" points out a number of significant economic facts including: "residential properties within 500 feet of a billboard have a decreased real estate value of $30,826.00; homes beyond the 500 feet but within that census tract "experience a decrease of $947.00 for every billboard in that census tract."

These new exemptions from regulation put Massachusetts at risk of failing to provide for effective control of outdoor advertising as required by the Highway Beautification Act, and this action will threaten the loss of a portion of the state's federal highway funding," Coughlin said. "The public should be outraged with the direction the OOA is taking us in by weakening the protection of the public from the adverse economic impacts, the deleterious effect on the aesthetics and the environment of our city and other communities, the proliferation of sign and billboard blight that desecrates our landscape."

Keenan: Delay Electronic Billboard Regulations

New electronic billboard rules being considered by the Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) propose a fundamental shift in statewide policy that would negatively impact communities, neighborhoods and business districts across the Commonwealth, state Sen. John F. Keenan (D-Quincy) wrote in a letter to MassDOT's Office of Outdoor Advertising (OOA) this week.

Keenan's testimony, submitted to the OOA during the agency's public comment period for the proposed new rules, outlined his strong opposition to the regulations, and cited his background and familiarity with state regulations and local zoning ordinances regarding signage, particularly with billboards, as a former Quincy city councillor and Zoning Board of Appeals member.

He called on the state officials to shelve the proposed policies and to begin working with a broad group of residents and stakeholders to create a new set of proposals drafted with the best interests of the Commonwealth in mind.

"I believe these proposed regulations represent a fundamental shift in policy that will negatively impact not only the communities within my senate district, but the Commonwealth as well," Sen. Keenan said in his letter. "I urge the OOA and MassDOT to halt its review and instead engage residents and stakeholders in crafting a new policy that enhances, and is reflective of, our communities, neighborhoods and business districts."

In his written comments, Keenan outlined his concerns that the proposed new policies do not seek to limit or reduce the negative impacts of signs and billboards, but allow for greater numbers, and less regulations, of such signs. He pointed to the fact that current regulations prevent the construction of a billboard within 300 feet of any public park, playground, forest, reservation or any other scenic areas. However, the new regulations, as proposed, would only apply to such areas in excess of 30,000 square feet, thereby failing to adequately protect small urban parks and playgrounds, which are often times within residential neighborhoods abutting commercial districts or within mixed use areas.

"Given the importance of these small urban parks and playgrounds, I believe the regulations should serve to protect these areas from signs and billboards, rather than increase the likelihood of them being negatively impacted," Keenan wrote.

He also cited his concerns with provisions in the proposed rules that grant the Director of the Office of Outdoor Advertising broad discretion in allowing exceptions to signs that do not meet regulatory or zoning requirements, including extending the time for temporary permits issued by the Director from 90 days to 365 days. He similarly noted his concerns that the proposed regulations hinder the ability of local officials to regulate signage within their respective communities, as well as the fact that they fail to set any standards for levels of illumination, or maximum brightness, of such signs.

While MassDOT and the Office of Outdoor Advertising considers his comments and all testimony received during the public hearing and comment period, Keenan said he will be sure to follow-up with the agency and pledged to continue sharing his concerns about the proposed regulations.

"From everything I can tell, the drafting of these policies lacked input from the residents and communities that could be affected by them the most," said Sen. Keenan. "If the state is going to move forward with these policies, it must move forward in a process that protects and reflects the interests of the entire Commonwealth."

State Senate Approves Foreclosure Prevention Bill

Legislation approved by the Massachusetts State Senate would reduce the number of unnecessary foreclosures by requiring banks to work with homeowners when a loan modification would be financially beneficial to both sides, Sen. John F. Keenan announces.

Banks would also be required to formally prove ownership of a mortgage before beginning the foreclosure process, and would be prohibited from charging other parties for the cost of clearing up titles to properties that they illegally foreclosed on.

"Homes continue to be foreclosed upon at rates not seen since the Great Depression," Sen. Keenan said. "Both lenders and borrowers share blame in creating the problem. However, banks have been less willing to help find solutions, and in some cases, have been outright obstructive and deceptive."

"A healthy state economy requires a healthy housing market. This legislation recognizes the role banks play in fixing our housing market and requires them to take a seat at the table."

The bill requires banks to analyze whether modifying the terms of a troubled mortgage could be financially beneficial to both sides prior to starting the foreclosure process. If so, the bank will have to work with the homeowner to either reduce the interest rate, extend the terms of the mortgage up to 45 years, forgive some of the principal, or undertake other fixes. Borrowers would also be able to request the assistance of a professional mediator to help forge a deal.

"Too often we see examples of banks unwilling to negotiate with homeowners struggling to make mortgage payments, even though a simple refinancing would solve the problem. Instead, banks are quick to move through the foreclosure process, despite knowing they will lose more money reselling the house than modifying the original mortgage," Keenan said. "Meanwhile, our local neighborhoods are impacted by the increased numbers of vacant homes."

Banks would be allowed to review the personal finances of borrowers, and would not be required to offer mortgage modifications to those unable to afford the new loan terms. The Office of the Attorney General, along with the state Division of Banks, would have oversight of the modification process and make sure banks undertake a "good-faith effort" before starting the foreclosure process.

The nation's five-largest banks earlier this year agreed to pay $25 billion to settle a lawsuit brought by 49 states, including Massachusetts, following the discovery of widespread mortgage foreclosure fraud and other abuses. Among the offenses were initiating foreclosures without actually owning mortgages, "robo-signing" documents without reviewing them to make sure they were accurate or legal, and deceiving borrowers about eligibility for voluntary mortgage modification programs.

The Senate bill includes a pair of consumer-friendly amendments offered by Sen. Keenan that would require lenders to assign no more than 2 representatives to a specific application, and require banks to provide borrowers with a concise summary of the modification's interest and principal costs compared with the interest and principal costs of the existing mortgage.

"Borrowers should be able to pick up the phone and talk to one or two people about their mortgage, not constantly shuffled to a different person every time they call," Sen. Keenan said. "In addition, borrowers deserve to know how much money the lender stands to make from the modification."

The legislation also requires the lender to record all mortgage assignments prior to beginning the foreclosure process. This step would ensure that the lender foreclosing the property is the actual owner of the

The House passed a similar version of the bill last month. Keenan expects that a conference committee will work out the differences between the two bills quickly and a final vote will take place prior to the end of the legislative session on July 31.

Wings Over Squantum:

Squantum Community Association Presents Story Of America's First Naval Reserve Airbase

Author and retired reservist Marc J. Frattasio recently regaled over 140 audience members with stories of Naval Air Station Squantum, located in Squantum from 1917 to 1953 on the site of Marina Bay.

Frattasio brought the history of the base to life as he shared Squantum's connection to the birth of aviation starting with the Harvard-Boston Aero Meets of 1910-11, an era when pilots were treated like rock stars and crowds gathered for their first glimpse at flight.

As America entered World War I in 1917, the Navy commissioned the base as U.S. Naval Air Station Squantum, and Lt. Earle Spencer, then married to Wallis Warfield, became the first commanding officer. Mrs. Spencer is better known as the woman who, after divorcing twice, married the former King Edward VIII of England, who abdicated the throne "for the woman I love."

Following the war, the base was re-opened in 1923 as the first naval reserve air station. Through World War II Squantum provided primary flight training to thousands of men, including Joseph P. Kennedy, the older brother of President John F. Kennedy.

The evening was moderated by Glen Buscher, past commander of Robert I. Nickerson Post, American Legion of Squantum. Following the talk guests mingled over refreshments and shared personal memories of the base.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, June 2, at approximately 12:18 a.m., Officers Dave Cooper and Bob Sweetland were dispatched to the rear of the Half Door restaurant/pub for "a man with a knife" call.

Sergeant Mark Kennedy arrived on scene first and radioed to the responding Officers that the suspect fled towards the Cottage Avenue alley. The male suspect was described as a 6'2" with a long blue t-shirt and dark shorts, armed with a knife. Once the description was out, detail Officer Dave Zupkofska radioed that he had the suspect detained in front of Clash of the Ash on Hancock Street.

As officers arrived on scene, they found the suspect in a prone position with a knife on the ground several feet away from him. The suspect was very agitated, yelling obscenities at the crowd that gathered. He appeared to have blood coming from his forehead, so an ambulance was dispatched to treat his injuries. While waiting for the ambulance, Officer Cooper spoke with the doorman of Clash of the Ash, who said that he was standing out front with the smokers, when the suspect approached and for no apparent reason, just began yelling at them.

The doorman said that the suspect then reached into his waist band and took out a knife, swinging it in the air while yelling, "Who wants some of this?" The doorman said that the suspect started coming at him with knife in his hand, so the doorman created distance and spoke with the suspect while a bystander was able to inform Officer Zupkofska who was nearby inside to come over.

When Officer Zupkofska came into the suspect's view, the suspect quickly moved against the building with his hand holding the knife behind his back. The doorman advised the officer that the suspect was holding and threatening people with the knife.

Officer Zupkofska initiated a conversation with the suspect by calmly asking him what he had behind his back. The suspect responded, "Nothing."

Officer Zupkofska ordered the suspect to turn around and when he did this, he dropped the knife. Due to the proximity of the knife to the suspect, Officer Zupkofska brought the suspect to the ground and into a prone position until other units arrived on scene.

After interviewing the doorman, Officer Cooper spoke to the original caller, a doorman at the "Half Door" restaurant/pub, who said that the suspect first approached him and started yelling, "I'm not a f@#$%" for no apparent reason." As the doorman attempted to calm the suspect down, the suspect became more enraged and yelled profanities louder.

The doorman then witnessed the suspect remove a knife from his waist band and come at the doorman, who quickly opened the door to the business and jumped inside, locking the door behind him. The doorman looked out the window and saw the suspect flee towards Cottage Avenue. He then called "911" to report the incident. Sergeant Kennedy transported the "Half Door" doorman to the location of the suspect and he positively identified the detained male as the suspect who came at him with the knife. The suspect was then placed under arrest, handcuffed and transported to Quincy Medical Center for medical treatment of his laceration.

The suspect was verbally abusive in the emergency room, threatening those around him. As an x-ray technician attempted to aid the suspect, the suspect, out of control, spit blood all over him. It was not determined how the suspect was cut and he would not calm down enough to gather information from him.

The suspect, a 26 year-old Weymouth resident, was charged with, assault by means (knife 2 counts) and assault and battery on ambulance personnel.

The knife was taken in as evidence.

Nice Work!

for me," Greene said. "My entire life, since I was four years old, I started school the Wednesday after Labor Day. I'm going to have to find some place that I really want to be that first day of school with friends and family members to get through the day."

Greene is proud of the 22 years of work she's put in at Atherton Hough, Quincy's oldest school. She advocated for a garden and grass put on the school's property because the school had no grass when she took over. Greene also lobbied to have the school's appearance updated with new flooring and paint, because she felt it was important to the Houghs Neck community. But Greene never asked for a new building because she feels they lack character.

"I like the old elementary school buildings, I think they have character," Greene said. "The high ceilings, the big windows - I like that, just a typical old elementary school. The new buildings, in my opinion, don't have the same character."

Though a lifelong Milton resident, Greene feels like she's a "Necker" - a term Houghs Neck lifers use to affectionately describe each other. She was to be named an honorary Necker by Mayor Thomas Koch and Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest in a ceremony outside the school Wednesday at 6 p.m.

"I've dedicated 22 years of my life here," Greene said. "It's not a job that you just come in and leave. I'm a hard worker, I'm dedicated, and I go to a lot of the neighborhood events and I really feel I'm entrenched in the neighborhood."

Over 1,000 students have attended Atherton Hough since Greene became principal. She's also worked with 50 to 60 teachers, and most of the school's current staff was hired by her. Developing young teachers was part of why Greene continued as principal after she was eligible for retirement.

"I really wanted to see these young teachers develop into the educators I knew they could be when they were sitting in front of me during an interview,"

Greene explained. "I really wanted to be able to see them in a classroom after a few years and [see them] be a self-confident educator."

Brennan was one of the teachers Greene hired. Brennan, a lifelong Weymouth resident, taught in her hometown for 12 years in two stints before starting work in Quincy Public Schools in 1990 teaching three-year olds at Point Webster's Early Start to Success program. She joined the Atherton Hough's staff in 1993, and calls herself lucky for having been able to follow in the footsteps of her mother, who was a teacher in Weymouth.

"My mother was teacher, I have a feeling that's probably what got me into that," Brennan said. "My summer jobs were working in schools and I always loved it and I've been very lucky to have the job I've loved all my life."

Brennan's involvement with the school won't end with the school year. She intends to work as a substitute at the school and will help tend the school's garden.

QHS Graduates: 'Never Let That Fire Go Out'

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy High School Valedictorian Michaela Walker urged her 328 fellow classmates at the school's June 6th commencement in the QHS gymnasium to care about becoming the best person they can be as they move forward.

"Life may turn out to be nothing more than a brawl, a battle, a war, I wouldn't know at this point, I'm only 17. It could be all puppies and rainbows, though I seriously doubt it, but as long as there is something in the world or within yourself that can be better and as long as you care enough about the world you live in, the people you love, and yourself, to put forth every effort to make that change a reality, it's a fight worth getting your derriere kicked in," said Walker.

"So care Class of 2012, and as long as you can hold onto that, you will find the strength and the courage to struggle, to persevere, and to persist. Never let that fire go out. Never wave a white flag because it is easier than standing your ground. Never forget the people that make your life worth living or the future you are fighting to create."

The ceremony took place for the first time in the Quincy High gym after rain postponed the outdoor ceremony at Veterans Memorial Stadium from Monday to Wednesday. Students, parents, family, and friends all listened as speaker after speaker stepped up to the podium with words of inspiration and wisdom with a few laughs along the way.

"In a perfect world, I would march up to this microphone, say 'congratulations, Class of 2012' and sit right back down," Walker told her fellow graduates. "Unfortunately for all of you and, more importantly, for me, the powers that be are a bit more demanding than that."

"They won't even let me point at our lovely class president and say, 'yeah, what she said.' So now you will all be subjugated to the cruel and unusual punishment the Bill of Rights is supposed to protect you from as I offer words of 'wisdom and inspiration.' For those of you who haven't already taken the liberty, you can start your nap now."

Walker, who is off to Duke University to study biomedical engineering in the fall, told her classmates to continue to listen to their mothers, and to thank those who have impacted their lives to make them the person they are today.

"I would like to provide you with a small insight into the great and mysterious workings of the world. Your mother is always right. This is indisputable, at least that's what my mother told me," said Walker. "Say thank you to all the wonderful people in your life who deserve it. Like coaches, teachers, parents, sketchy Uncle Bob that so is not actually related to you and just shows up for the food."

"So many people sitting before me are so much more important to me than I would like to admit, and I can only hope that I will, at some point, touch at least one person's life in a way that is as meaningful as the way you have touched mine. Because if I could only be the best at one thing, I would want it to be that."

Class President D'Onna Roche, who will be attending Suffolk University in the fall, announced the class gift of benches for the school's courtyard and spoke of the expectations she had before entering Quincy High and how different the reality was from what was perceived in movies and television.

"When I think back to when I was younger and my impressions of what high school was going to be like, I think of all the movies and the way they portrayed high school as having different clicks. You had the preps, the jocks, the Goths, and the smart kids, and they all stuck to their own, but that has not been my experience at Quincy High," said Roche.

"Since day one we have accepted each other for our differences. We have learned from each other, and grown together and these are friendships that will last forever. I remember freshman year when we all started together in the old building. It was such an exciting time getting to know each other, everyone coming from different parts of Quincy."

"We started off as the Point kids, the West Quincy kids, the Merrymount and Adams Shore kids, the Germantown kids, and of course the Houghs Neck kids, but friendships were developed quickly and we all became one, the Quincy High kids.

"A lot of graduation speeches mention that we will be the future, doctors, lawyers, scientists, and business people, and I know that we will. QHS has taught us well. But more than that, we have learned to truly accept people for who they are. We know that the world is made up of all different sorts of people and we can learn from them all, just as we have here. So we can go not just as doctors, lawyers, scientists, and business people. We are able to move on as great members of society."

School Committee Vice Chairwoman Barbara Isola reminded students that their own actions would control their future, and being kind to others will help them through life.

"You the students are the reason we school committee members do our work, and quite frankly you are our reward," said Isola. "Be thankful to those who have helped you along the way. So I am going to ask you to focus on being kind to others. Sometimes it's not easy, we all know that, but believe me showing kindness and respect towards others will not only give you personal satisfaction it will also come back to you in ways you may never expect."

"Live with passion, have positive attitude and do your best each day. As you go forward, let me assure you, there are truly no mistakes in this life. Sometimes the path we're taking, which we think will go from one place to the other, will take an unexpected turn. Embrace it and learn from it. That zig-zag path will provide you with untold riches."

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, a graduate of Quincy High School, urged the graduates to keep dreaming, and working hard.

"You all have worked so hard and to be here in this beautiful gymnasium this evening. As you begin this next very exciting stage of your young lives, still be mindful of the love and nurturing and the guidance and encouragement that your parents and so many other family members have shared," said DeCristofaro.

"You all worked so hard to get here, and you have made your city so proud. Keep working hard, believe in your family and friends, but most of all believe in

NQHS Graduates: 'Dream Bigger, Shoot Higher'

By EMILY TAFT

Although the few days before, and even the day of, were chaotic and last minute for the graduates of North Quincy High School Class of 2012 and their families because of intermittent rain, the ceremony went on without a hitch. The North Quincy High gym was packed June 7th with family and friends of graduates holding flowers and black and Red Raider themed balloons saying congratulations.

The students of the class of 2012 at North Quincy High School have lived their four years of high school by one simple quote: "Be the change you want to see in the world."

The quote, said by Mahatma Gandhi, was a recurring theme during the ceremony. Students, faculty, and city officials all spoke of dreaming bigger, changing the world, and treating others with kindness. The class of 2012, the first class to start a SADD (students against destructive decisions) chapter at North, was also a class that gave back to the Quincy community in many significant ways throughout their tenure at North. They held annual blood drives, participated in walks for hunger, became CPR certified, held coat drives, and penny drives.

"We've managed to graduate and leave our mark on North Quincy High School. In four years, not only have we met the academic standards, but we contributed to our community in significant ways," said Class President Mary Theresa McGough.

"This is something that distinguishes the class of 2012. We are the class to give back, to serve."

McGough, who will be attending Harvard in the fall, spoke of many community services students had done during their four years of high school.

"Service has become engrained in our every day lives here at North," said McGough. "Service is about making the community a better, safer place, and by getting this training (CPR training), we, the class of 2012, have managed to do just that."

"These last four years of hard work and service do not come to an end with this day, but rather to a beginning. In the future, continue to serve your community and give back in whatever you do. Never forget your Raider pride and the duty of service it entails."

McGough also spoke of bringing Rachel's Challenge to North during their junior year and how they took on the challenge of being compassionate to others.

"At the start of our junior year we watched a moving presentation concerning bullying called Rachel's Challenge," said McGough. "They challenged us to start a chain reaction of benevolence through simply being compassionate to others. We took on the challenge. We started a paper link chain to recognize acts of kindness. It sparked its own domino effect, as we began to grow more accepting of one another."

Valedictorian Grace

Wong, who will be attending the University of Pennsylvania in the fall, spoke to her 374 fellow classmates about first arriving at North Quincy High and keeping the energy and hope they all had when they were asked in second grade what they wanted to be when they grew up.

"I am pretty sure we all remember the first moment we all walked into North Quincy High. All these white walls are identical; wait what floor am I on? Is there really a swimming pool on the 5th floor," said Wong. "But now June 7th, 2012 has finally come. Those white walls have become a second home, and we all know the swim team does not meet on the roof for practice."

Wong spoke about being asked to write a paper in second grade on what you wanted to be when you grow up.

"What a difficult question to ask an 8 year-old," said Wong. "Many of us probably answered with police officer, astronaut, and doctor. Without a doubt we were ambitious and we believed we could be whatever we wanted to be."

"Don't lose that energy and hope we had in second grade. Dream bigger and shoot higher. The road is filled with opportunities waiting for us to grasp. In September we will no longer be at North Quincy High School. Instead, the Class of 2012 will be spread out across the United States ready to pursue our dreams and shape our future."

Ng, who will be attending Tufts University in the fall, told her fellow classmates to look forward to the future and remember the past.

"Today is the day to look back on our past and also look towards our future," said Ng. "Take a moment to take in your surroundings and reflect on the accomplishments it took to get here. Our experiences during the past few years have shaped us into who we are today."

School committee Vice Chairwoman Barbara Isola said she felt like she was a part of the North Quincy High School community by being a mother of graduates from 2007 and 2009, and told the Class of 2012 to take responsibility for their actions and to live their life with passion and pride.

"In anticipation to speak to you, I was racking my brain, because this is such a privilege. I was really looking for something earth shattering and inspiring to say to you. Well I hate to tell you I think I failed miserably," said Isola.

"What I did do is think of some of the lessons I have learned having lived a number of years on this earth, and if you bear with me I would like to share them with you. What you consistently focus on will determine the quality of your life and as such I am going to ask that you focus on being kind to others."

"Showing kindness and respect towards others will not only give you personal satisfaction it will also come back to you in ways that you will never expect. Your future depends on you, and not on others, so take responsibility for your actions and determine what you love and what you want to be and take the actions necessary to get there."

Mayor Thomas Koch told the graduating class to thank all of those who have helped them to get to this point, and that this is what the members of the Quincy public school system work towards.

"This is the night that each of the members of Quincy public schools takes pride in," said Koch. "You are our future, we are counting on you, we are proud of you."

Principal Dr. Earl Metzler II spoke of how the Class of 2012 is special and unique.

"The class of 2012 is a very special class," said Metzler. "Four years ago the class of 2012 started a very important group that is af-yourselves. Continue to dream of all the accomplishments, and all that you set your sites on in your life."

Quincy High School Principal Frank Santoro spoke of the many accomplishments the Quincy High Class of 2012 has had through out their four years. Santoro said that 85% of the graduates made honor roll during their tenure, 80% are planning to attend college, 61 college-bound graduates earned free tuition at a state school because of their MCAS grades, 79 students were in the National Honor Society, 68 graduates earned National recognitions and the title of Presidential Scholar's because of their 3.7 or higher GPA and outstanding scores on their SAT's, and three graduates have earned the title of National Merit Scholar, among many other achievements.

"As I think about your accomplishments, it goes without saying that you have left your mark on Quincy High School and continued the tradition of excellence. Class of 2012 you stayed with us when others left because of construction fears. You put those fears behind you and you truly have left your mark of excellence," said Santoro.

"You have a constant desire to stay in touch with each other by instant messaging, chatting, texting, tweeting, posting, skyping, using your aps and getting your face-time. Spending too much time on friendly conversation will keep you from appreciating the stars or not experiencing the opportunities that are around you.

"Use the technologies that are now available to you not just to stay in touch, use it as a resource to follow your dreams. Today you can find anything at your fingertips. The tools technology brings cannot compare to the passion that is within your heart. Don't spend your life unaware of those opportunities around you.

"Don't miss the stars Class of 2012. Don't miss those dreams. Use that new technology to find out what's in your heart. You're a talented group you have left big shoes to fill for the classes behind you.

Thank you for the contributions, and thank you for being great mentors and role models. You're a talented group, thank you for your contributions, we will miss you," Santoro added.

fectionately called here at North SADD. This past fall our SADD chapter hosted Rachel's Challenge. Rachel's brother Craig inspired us to pursue the legacy that we want to leave behind.

"The students at North are special for many reasons but it is their kindness that sets them from the rest. What makes the Class of 2012 a special class," Metzler continued, "is they do the right thing or good thing even when nobody is watching. You have proven time and time again that you value the good things."

"Less is sometimes more and honor is more than just honor. The Class of 2012 always focused on quality not quantity. Your time is limited, so don't waste it on someone else's life. Excellence is not a matter of chance; excellence is a matter of choice."

Metzler concluded his speech with the very quote the class lived by and leaves behind in their class gift: an engraved rock that will sit in front of the school.

"The class of 2012 is that change we want to see in the world," said Metzler. "The class of 2012 had spirit with a focus on character."

Morrisette Post 294 Out For Redemption

By SEAN BRENNAN

When word broke last spring that Morrisette Post 294 would be the sole American Legion baseball team in Quincy a quiet confidence developed.

By the time the District 6 East regular season was over, and Morrisette had grabbed hold of first-place with a 15-3 record and earned the top-seed in the District 6 East/West best-of-three playoff round, that confidence was slightly enhanced.

After Morrisette took care of Franklin Post 119 two games-to-none in their opening best-of-three district playoff round that confidence began to explode, and when Post 294 dominated the double-elimination, round robin sectional bracket round with an undefeated 3-0 record, which spring-boarded them into the Final Eight Team Department State Championship for the first time since 1995, that confidence went through the roof.

Morrisette's storybook season came to a screeching halt in the state finals at Riverside Park in Hudson. Post 294 lost 7-3 to Lowell Post 87 before being eliminated from the tournament following a 5-2 loss to South Attleboro Post 312.

It was a bitter pill to swallow. But despite falling just short of a chance to play in the American Legion Northeast Regional in Old Orchard Beach, Maine, that confidence never wavered, and this year Morrisette hopes to use last year's disappointment as motivation.

It will not be easy. Post 294 lost several key players off last year's team. Shortstop Colin Ryan is gone (never to be replaced) as is first baseman/pitcher Matt Goreham. Starting centerfielder Greg Nelson, second baseman Leroy Wallace, and catcher Malcolm Kelly aren't back and neither is last year's No. 1 starter Don Murray.

But the returners that remain, and the first-year players that are now donning the Yellow & Blue of Morrisette have the talent and experience to succeed.

"We don't have any weak spots, but I am not sure we have any strong spots. We are a well-rounded team and very solid," said Morrisette Manager Steve Maze about the 2012 Post 294 roster. Maze enters the season with a record of 84-69-3. "I don't think we will blow anybody out, but I don't think we will get blown out this year."

"I think every game is going to be a seven inning game that we are going to have to fight through and work at. It is not going to be like last year."

Leading the way is third baseman turned starting shortstop Joe Alibrandi. Called the "best player on the team" by Maze, Alibrandi, a North Quincy product, is expected to play every inning of all 22 games Post 294 has on its schedule. Tim Liuzzo, Morrisette's No. 2 starter last season takes the role of ace this summer for Post 294. The former Red Raider has big game experience on the mound. He pitched eight innings, allowing three earned runs in Post 294's loss to South Attleboro in the state finals; Liuzzo is expected to see time at DH and in the outfield when he isn't pitching.

SUN SPORTS

STARTING PITCHER TIM LIUZZO has been tabbed as Post 294's No. 1 pitcher for 2012. Liuzzo and Morrisette have their sights set on a return trip back to the American Legion State Finals. Last year, Post 294 finished in first place in District 6 East with a 15-3 record.

Other returning positional players include outfielder Chris Connolly, second baseman Adam Nazzaro, third baseman Jason Pekinen, catcher Kevin White and first basemen Tom McDonald and Bob Kozlowski.

Connolly has moved from left to center this summer replacing the departed Nelson at the position. He has also been moved from ninth in the order to leadoff. Nazzaro, an important bench reserve last year, moves into Wallace's vacated spot at the keystone position of the infield.

With Kelly departed, White becomes the team's go-to signal caller. The Catholic Memorial grad should play every inning this season. His emergency backup is Connolly.

Pekinen exploded onto the American Legion scene last year and saw some time at third base. With Alibrandi moving to shortstop, the Archbishop Williams product is expected to man the hot corner on a daily basis for Post 294.

McDonald takes over for Goreham at first with Kozlowski filling in from game to game. McDonald pitched last summer for Morrisette but will only do so in spots this season.

With Liuzzo in the starting rotation are second-year pitchers Sam Lawlor and Luke Barkowski while in the bullpen returning closer Jack Higgins is back to shut the door.

Joining the Morrisette fraternity in 2012 is outfielder Andrew Currie, outfielder Matt Davis, infielder Patrick Verhault, catcher/first baseman Andrew Jaehnig, starting pitcher Tom Garland and relief pitchers TJ Hobin and Dan Cobban.

Currie and Davis will start opposite Connolly in left and right field, respectively. Currie, a rising junior at NQHS and Davis a rising junior at QHS, are young, but they are fast. According to Maze, the trio of Currie-Connolly-Davis maybe the fastest outfield in Morrisette's long and storied history.

Davis will bat second with Currie hitting eighth. When any three of them get on base expect Post 294 to run, and run, and run some more.

North Quincy product Verhault is expected to back-up Nazzaro at second base. Jaehnig is currently out with an injury. He is expected back in late June or early July.

Hobin, a 16-year old out of BC High, has already made an impact in the bullpen. In Post 294's 6-4 win over Holbrook Legion in the season opener, he fanned five and did not allow a hit in three innings of relief while Cobban will be part of Morrisette's bullpen bridge to Higgins.

"There is more of a team unity this year," said Maze about the makeup of this summer's team, "because there is less talent. Last year it didn't matter if the kids liked each other. These guys have played together and like each other. They all know that they have to gel, but everybody on this team is good."

June Schedule

Due to bad weather Post 294's early season schedule is in flux. However, beginning next Monday (June 18) the slate of June game is as follows (all home games are at Adams Field):

On June 18, Morrisette hosts Milton at 8 p.m. before traveling to Braintree on June 20. Post 294 welcomes Cohasset on June 22 (8 p.m.) before going to Weymouth on June 24.

On June 25, Post 294 plays Holbrook at 8 p.m. at home followed with an away game at Hyde Park on June 27. The month ends with a home game versus Jamaica Plain at 8 p.m. on June 29.

Coaches Jacqui Niosi & Sarah Conlon Are Directors; Clinics To Include Weight Training Women's Q-Clinics This Summer At QHS

By SEAN BRENNAN

When the new Quincy High School opened back in 2010 it pried open the door for a 21st century learning atmosphere.

What it also opened was the door to a state-of-the-art weight room, adjacent to a beautiful new gymnasium. Since that time, incorporating weight training into varsity and jayvee practices and daily gym class has allowed students, both male and female, the opportunity to become familiar with the benefits of lifting and what that can do to help improve an athlete's body and ability to remain actively healthy.

This summer two long-time coaches at QHS have plans to use the weight room and gym as a venue to hold camps that will – for the first time – allow female participants the opportunity to tune their craft while learning the intricacies and benefits of weight training and fitness.

Jacqui Niosi, girls' volleyball coach (2006-present), and Sarah Conlon assistant varsity girls' basketball coach (2005-present) will be directing Q-Clinics beginning July 30 and ending Aug. 16.

Conlon, along with area high school basketball coaches and former players, will run a Basketball Clinic for female athletes entering 6-10th grade from July 30-Aug 2 (9 a.m. to 2 p.m.). Mornings will concentrate on individual skills including passing, dribbling, shooting, and defense while the afternoons will consist of games and contests.

Niosi, whose teams have made three sectional final appearances and one state semifinal match is running two weeks of volleyball clinics, starting on Aug 6-9 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The second clinic is set for Aug 13-16 (same time). Her clinics are open to all female athletes entering 8th grade and higher. Mornings and the afternoons in the beginning of each week will concentrate on individual skills including passing, setting, hitting, blocking, defense and serving and towards the end of each week game play and organized scrimmages will be part of the afternoon sessions.

The unique thing about both camps is that Conlon and Niosi plan on using fitness and weight training that will be included in every session and are sport specific. This is something that never would have been possible without the new facilities at QHS.

"I think the new facilities got us on track in thinking about running some camps and taking advantage of the nice facilities that we have at Quincy High," said Niosi who has also been head coach of the Mass Patriots/Juniors Volleyball Club since 2001. "We've both worked camps growing up and in college. We decided it was time to venture off and try something on our own."

Niosi and Conlon, along with varsity tennis coach Megan Matthews, took immediate action once the new high school was up and running. The three founded QHS F.A.S.T., which stands for Female Athletic Strength Training. This program introduced weight lifting as a means to improve overall fitness in female student athletes.

"We started the F.A.S.T. program two years ago at the high school," said Conlon, "but it is starting to pick up now. The girls are not so scared to (lift) anymore."

For Niosi, bringing lifting and weight training into her varsity program has been much easier with the new facilities. Not that her program needed any more advantages, but having the weight room right off the gym floor, has been an added bonus.

"We have been trying to incorporate weight lifting for the girls at the high school," added Niosi about her team's training regime over the past two years. "Before the new school was built lifting was more of an afterthought and the (old) weight room wasn't in the best condition. It was more of a hassle and then after a couple of weeks I would give up because the girls were so miserable (lifting)."

"Now going into this nice new facility we wanted to make sure that the girls had ownership of part of the weight room," Niosi continued. "Lifting is important because it helps to prevent injuries and it builds confidence. It also has made us stronger."

Because the age level for both camps ranges from sixth grade through high school, Niosi and Conlon plan to structure the weight lifting portion of the camps accordingly.

"The weight level will be different," said Conlon, a math teacher at QHS. "There is a big movement to using your body weight in exercise, so the younger kids can do anything from pushups to squats; those are all safe exercises. It is really going to depend on what age group we are dealing with. For a lot of these girls they will be novices. (The weight lifting) will be basic stuff."

Niosi is also planning on running a Team Clinic for local high school volleyball teams from Aug. 6-Aug. 9 from 5-8 p.m. This clinic is separate from the other volleyball clinic and will consist of drills to improve team defense and offensive schemes along with free ball/transition drills. There will also be time dedicated to scrimmaging other teams.

"This is a clinic for high school teams," she noted. "We will be doing drills by positions and also team drills. At the moment we already have three teams signed up but we are still looking for three more."

Anyone out there thinking about signing up for either of Niosi's volleyball clinics or for Conlon's basketball clinic should know that all courts will be run by experienced coaches and all sessions will include fitness and weight training that are sport specific. Their goal is that all athletes will leave their clinics with a better understanding of their sport and also specific ways to improve their athleticism through strength and fitness training.

Defeated Yellow Cab 6-4 In The Championship Game Of The 9-12 Division McFarland Club Captures Dorothy Quincy Softball Title

After great regular seasons by both teams, McFarland Club (14-1-1) squared off against Yellow Cab (13-4-1) in a very exciting 9-12-year old Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball Dorothy Quincy League Championship Game on Monday night.

The starting pitchers for the night matched Camryn Burgio for McFarland Club against 10-year old ace Olivia Haney for Yellow Cab.

McFarland club broke the ice in the second inning when Kathleen Saverse led off with a single, which lead to a big inning in which Saverse, Colleen McDonough, and Madeline Farrell all scored. Yellow Cab answered right back in the top of the third when Talia Viera, Lindsey Toland, Karissa Beal, and Samantha Striffler all scored to put Yellow Cab ahead 4-3.

The game remained that way with Olivia Haney and Samantha Smith, who came in to relieve Camryn Burgio, stifling the bats until the fifth inning.

McFarland Club was able to score three runs in the bottom of the fifth when they plated Mary Kate Finneran, Michaela O'Gara-Pratt, and Maggie Martin. Two of the three runs were thanks to a Camryn Burgio double.

Given the lead, Samantha

Smith wasted no time in striking out the side against the top of the Yellow Cab lineup.

Coach Mike O'Brien of Yellow Cab credited his veteran players including Beal, Striffler, Shannon O'Brien, and Johanna Douglas for their excellent defense and timely hitting, which carried them to the Championship Game. Coach Brendan Smith of McFarland Club pointed out Burgio, Saverse, Smith, and Carly and Allison McMorrow, for their leadership throughout the season. He also credited Maria Theodore who played well at third base while also starting the game off by singing the National Anthem.

The Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball Dorothy Quincy League, which has ten teams made up of girls ages 9-12, had a double-elimination tournament for the playoffs and there were many very close and well-played games during the past two weeks. Dorothy Quincy League Coordinator, Michelle Hanly pointed out the many, many hours that the volunteer coaches and assistant coaches put in since April for these ten teams. Hanly wishes to acknowledge these coaches and to thank them for their dedication, enthusiasm, sportsmanship and hard work throughout the season.

Coached By Bob Griffin & Steve Reardon; Off To 2-0 Start, Including 16-3 Win Over Braintree

Wollaston Sr. Babe Ruth Has Sights On State Tourney

By SEAN BRENNAN

Forget spending big time money on the trip into Kenmore Square to watch the uninspiring Boston Red Sox. There is plenty of great baseball being played this summer right in our backyard in Quincy.

One such team is Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth. Coached by Steve Reardon and Bob Griffin, this team is made up of 19 players between the ages of 16-19, and plays in the competitive Senior Babe Ruth League's South Shore League out of South Boston. In seasons past, Griffin and Reardon fielded two teams: Wollaston Black and Wollaston Blue, but with the introduction of a Morrisette Legion Junior baseball team this summer, numbers for Senior Babe Ruth were down slightly.

However, the team that Griffin and Reardon has put together is full of talent. Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth already has two wins under its belt. The team opened the 2012 slate with a 1-0 win over a combined Hingham/Hull team and came back in Game Two and smoked Braintree White, 16-3.

So far, so good according to Griffin.

"This is a team that is a mix of high school players and a couple of college-aged players," said Griffin on Monday about the makeup of his program. "We have a good group of kids. This team will play an 18-game schedule with the state playoffs beginning on July 1."

Last year, Wollaston Black advanced into the Senior Babe Ruth State Tournament before being eliminated by Cape Cod Elite in the second round. The summer before it was Wollaston Blue that advanced into the state tourney. Suffice to say, Griffin and Reardon have plenty experience and success coaching up the talent at hand.

This year's roster is made up of players from North Quincy and Quincy High, both past and present, as well as players from Archbishop Williams HS; Boston College HS, and Catholic Memorial School.

Representing North Quincy are former Red Raiders Eric Kelly (catcher/third base/pitcher) and Kevin Jackson (outfield/pitcher) and current (including recently graduated seniors) Chris Kerin (outfield/pitcher), Tyler Braun (third base/shortstop/pitcher), Scott Higgins (outfield), John Johnson-Tatelman (catcher), and Shawn Thomas (outfield).

The Presidents on the Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth roster include Kevin Mullin (second base/shortstop), Jonathan Leveillee (pitcher/first base), Dillon Darcy (pitcher/outfield), Chris McMahon (pitcher/outfield), John Marsinelli (catcher), Michael Pugsley (shortstop/third base/second base), and Mike Haley (outfield).

Matt Kerin, a pitcher and outfielder, attends Archbishop Williams, while Boston College HS is well represented with Bill Campbell (first base/outfield), Ed McDonough (outfield), Michael Gallotto (first base/third base), and Ben Martin (second base/outfield).

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth is scheduled to play at 8 p.m. on Sunday at Adams Field against Milton Senior Babe Ruth.

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Off To A 2-0 Start

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth won their first two games of the season, beating Hingham/Hull and Braintree White to get to 2-0 overall, in the early going.

Against Hingham/Hull, Wollaston pitchers Jonathon Leveillee and Tyler Braun held that combined team scoreless for eight innings. Leveillee limited Hingham/Hull to four hits and struck out 12 batters over seven innings. Braun, who earned the win, also scored the winning run in the bottom of the eighth.

He led off the inning with a single and scored on Ben Martin's game-winning triple over the right fielder. Chris Kerin was a top offensive performer with two hits.

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth picked up its second win of the season following a 16-3 triumph over Braintree White. Braun once again earned the victory, limiting Braintree to one earned run over four innings of work. Dillon Darcy pitched two scoreless innings, and a multi-hit Wollaston attack was highlighted by Eric Kelly's three-run home run, one of his two hits.

Other players with two or more hits included Jon Marsinelli, Chris Kerin, Mike Pugsley and Darcy.

This week Wollaston had four games scheduled including a game against last year's league champions South Boston, two games against Braintree Blue and a game versus Milton.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

EFFECTIVE TREATMENT OF NECK PAIN

An estimated three-quarters of adults experience neck pain at some point in their lives, which leads to millions of health care visits and compromised quality of life. The good news is that new research shows that long-term spinal manipulation and home exercises are more effective at relieving neck pain than medication. According to a study involving 272 people between ages 18 and 65 who had neck pain (with no known cause), the manipulation/home exercise combo provided better relief than first-line medications such as acetaminophen and non-steroidal anti-inflammatory medications (aspirin, ibuprofen, etc.) and even narcotic pain medications and muscle relaxants. After one year in treatment, 27% of those receiving manipulation and home exercise felt 100% pain reduction.

Most episodes of neck pain will get better with time and can be addressed with non-surgical treatments. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we recommend a continuing schedule of regular chiropractic checkups, which can help detect, correct, and maintain optimum spinal and nervous system function. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Neck pain should be carefully evaluated to rule out serious and correctable causes of pain.

The tournament was recently held at Northeastern University. The tournament is sponsored by Sport In Society, a Northeastern University Center, and the Red Auerbach Youth Foundation.

The Beantown Jumpers competed against many other teams from New England in each category. The teams are part of the Beantown Jumpers Double Dutch Team. Beantown Jumpers is affiliated with Champs Boston, Northeastern's Sport In Society and the Red Auerbach Youth Foundation.

Beantown has teams in Boston, Milton, Quincy, Pembroke, Westwood and Wakefield. The Beantown Jumpers head coach is Patti Travers, a Physical Education/Wellness Teacher at Quincy Catholic Academy.

Double dutch involves two long jump ropes turning in opposite directions with one or two athletes jumping simultaneously. Teams compete by grade to compete to achieve the most jumps in two minutes, perform a dance routine and execute tricks including a dance, turning rope trick and an acrobatic routine. Speed, compulsory and freestyle are the names of each category necessary to master a successful score to win. These girls displayed great poise and performed their routines brilliantly. This sport combines so many attributes necessary for winning such as leadership, cooperation, listening skills, critical thinking and an ability to work together to conquer a goal.

"MJA WOW" doubles team members Jackie Carroll, Waringa Ngorge, Angela Louie attend Quincy Catholic Academy and Maura Hegarty attends the Woodward School for Girls. These girls are sixth graders and have been jumping together for one year as a doubles group. This is Jackie, Maura and Waringa's second year jumping together for Beantown.

"The Green Peas" team members are Courtney Dondero, Emily Kraunelis and Rayne O'Gara-Pratt. These third graders at the Merry-mount Elementary School have been jumping together for two years as a singles team.

"The Champions" team members are Colleen Connor, Abigail Kraunelis and Michaela O'Gara-Pratt. These fifth graders at the Merry-mount Elementary School have been jumping together for three years as a singles team.

"The Champions" have come in first place the past two years. There are two sets of sisters on each of these teams.

The Green Peas and the Champions teams will be jumping at the 100th anniversary Celebration for the Boston Red Sox Staff at Fenway Park tonight (Thursday).

The girls also plan to continue to jump together during the summer at various venues. Everyone involved is so very proud of these Beantown Jumpers teams. Next year, they will continue to compete and hope to receive an invitation to the 2013 World Double Dutch Tournament.

A seventh grade doubles team from Boston called the Beantown Bombsquad received an invitation and will be traveling to Sumter, South Carolina June 13 with coaches Lynne and Patti Travers to compete at the 2012 World Double Dutch Tournament. The four girls will be competing with other World class jumpers from the United States and other countries.

She was the beloved wife of more than 44 years to Paul F. Loud, whom she married on April 7, 1968.

Born and raised in Quincy, she was the only daughter of Dora (Fabrizio) Cellucci and the late Paul Cellucci. She graduated Quincy High School in 1961, and as a young adult enjoyed bowling in leagues around Quincy. It was in one such league that she met her future husband, Paul.

After marrying and starting a family, she accepted a secretarial job with Christ Church, Quincy, where she worked for 12 years. For the last 22 years, she was employed as the office manager at Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home in Quincy.

A true 'people-person' at heart, she cared deeply about helping others, and for the past 25 years was involved with Landmark Education, holding the position of Seminar Leader. She had the rare ability to relate with and help people from all walks of life without judgment or prejudice, and her advice was sought by many. She will be sorely missed.

Mrs. Loud was a consummate homemaker, and enjoyed cooking food and caring for the gardens she planted around the home that her husband Paul designed, and that they built in 1970, but her favorite times were those spent with her loving family. As a grandmother, she rarely missed an opportunity to attend soccer games or to take her granddaughters shopping and have sleepovers.

In addition to her beloved husband Paul, she leaves two sons, Derrick Loud and his wife Michelle (Boisvert) of Lakeville, Darrell Loud and his fiancée Josephine Bottari of North Weymouth, and her loving mother, Dora Cellucci of Weymouth.

She was the cherished grandmother of Jordan "J-Lo", Nicole "Nikki" & Alison "Ali" Loud, all of Lakeville. Dear sister of Paul Cellucci and his wife Sue of Whitman, and sister-in-law of Donald & Elaine Loud of Lunenburg. She is also survived by nieces, nephews, extended family, and many close friends and colleagues.

Redstockings Rack Up Wins

Quincy 10-year old Redstockings continued its winning ways by defeating a tough Braintree team, 4-2, as Christian Mazzeo hurled six innings, finishing with eight strikeouts.

The Redstockings got three runs in the fifth inning with Mazzeo helping his own cause with a double, while David Ryan, Cameron Munchbach, Logan Crowley, Nathan Slieman, Brendan Donovan and Ethan McDewitt collecting singles.

In the second game of the double-header, Doug Concannon started on the mound and Munchbach closed it out as Quincy won 5-3.

With the game tied 3-3 in the sixth inning, Mike Levine walked and moved to third in smart base running. David Ryan singled him in with the winning run. Zach Hatfield had a big hit for Quincy.

Quincy Sweeps Mariners

The Quincy Redstockings improved to a perfect 6-0 overall following a two-game sweep of the Atlantic Mariners.

In Quincy's first game, a 9-1 win, the Redstockings wasted no time scoring with a towering three-run home run over the centerfield fence by Cameron Munchbach in the first inning. Brandon Sullivan's doubles and singles from David Ryan, Logan Crowley, CJ Jaehnic, Nathan Slieman, Doug Concannon, and Mike Levine accounted for the remaining runs.

Sullivan started the game on the mound and Crowley closed it out. Slieman made the defensive play of the game with an amazing diving catch in deep left field to rob a sure base hit.

In the second game, the Redstockings overpowered the Mariners, 11-0. Munchbach and Slieman took care of the pitching while it was a team effort driving in the runs. Sullivan and Munchbach finished with doubles and Brendan Donovan, Ryan, Crowley, Concannon and Levine all got hits.

Aggressive base running from Ethan McDewitt, Crowley and Concannon proved to be too much for the Mariners.

Spending Plan Also Repairs Sidewalks, Restores Sunday Library Hours; Average Tax Hike Of $112 Seen

Budget Beefs Up Schools, Public Safety

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council unanimously approved a budget for the upcoming fiscal year that adds teachers and police officers, keeps more fire stations staffed, restores Sunday hours at the Thomas Crane Library, and pays for sidewalk repairs.

The budget for FY13, which begins July 1, was set at $246.96 million. That represents a 3.76 percent increase over the $237.99 million for the current fiscal year. The increase will likely cost the average homeowner an extra $112 on their tax bill starting in 2013, but any tax hike needs approval in the fall.

The School Department will receive an extra $1.3 million in FY13 compared to FY12, even after money was transferred away from the schools as part of a consolidation of maintenance

City, Coddington Halls Renovation Moves Forward

The renovation of City and Coddington Halls will go forward after the City Council approved issuing a bond to pay the project's cost.

As proposed by Mayor Thomas Koch in March, the two buildings will be renovated at a combined cost of $18 million - City Hall is expected to cost $8.2 million and Coddington Hall, also known as Coddington School, will cost the other $9.8 million.

Space in the Old City Hall Building, formally the James R. McIntyre Government Center, will be used to house a new chamber for the council. That so-called "great hall" would seat more than 180 people and would take up a majority of the building's second floor. The building's first floor will have meeting space for other boards such as the licens-

Pilot Community Service Program For High School Students

By EMILY TAFT

School committee members unanimously voted through a pilot program implementing community service as a graduation requirement.

The pilot program will require students in grades 10 and 11 to complete 10 hours of community service during the school year. The original idea is something that former school committee member Jo-Ann Bragg brought to the table before leaving last year. Bragg, who attended the June 13th meeting, was happy to see the committee had worked on her original resolve and decided to test the program out.

"I am proud of the school committee for working out the details to implement making community service a high school graduation requirement. By taking the vote, the Quincy School Committee has shown our young people it is important to give back to your community and help others," Bragg told The Sun.

She added:

"The world will be a better place if more people do community service. It builds character and creates an understanding of all types of people. It will be helpful to high school students' college and work applications by adding community service to their transcript. My hope is after they evaluate the program next May, everyone will see the program will work and they will expand it to all grades. I agree it has to be a phase-in plan and any new program will

SOLEMN SALUTE – Quincy police officers line up outside police headquarters on Sea Street to pay respects to a fallen comrade, Det. Edward Ryan. The 16-year police veteran was found dead last Thursday at Pine Hill Cemetery in Quincy. No foul play was suspected, according to the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office. About 100 police officers and department employees stood at attention last Friday as a blue funeral hearse escorted by about 50 police personnel on motorcycles and other department vehicles passed police headquarters in a traditional "slow drive-by." Det. Ryan was laid to rest Tuesday after a funeral Mass at St. Ann's Church. "This is a terrible loss for the City of Quincy and for the Ryan family, several of whom have dedicated their lives to careers in law enforcement. We are very sorry for your loss," said Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey. Obituary on Page 26. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

$91.3M School Budget For FY13 Approved By 6-1 Vote

By EMILY TAFT

A number of teachers, aides and other staff will be hired after the school committee voted 6-1 in favor of the $91.3 million budget for fiscal year 2013, which is up $1.8 million from last year's spending plan.

The budget allows for a number of different staff increases, including the addition of five academic classroom teachers, 10 special education aids, two new office aids, and two new sports trainers at both high schools. The five new teachers will include a new ELL (English Learners Language) teacher, a new literacy teacher, and two special education teachers.

There will also be two new positions for nurses and 1.3 new positions for guidance. The budget also lists a ten cents increase in lunch prices, which is federally mandated, at the elementary and middle school levels.

The original proposed budget planned to allow student athletes to play an additional five or so games, along with the addition of two new trainers, one for each high school. After some discussion by the budget and finance subcommittee the money for the five extra games was taken out and put towards an extra academic classroom teacher.

Director of Business Affairs James Mullaney presented four different options to the committee during the May 30th budget and finance meeting that could be done with the $65,000 initially put in the budget for the trainers and extra games. Mullaney said that they looked at a few different needs and requests that the money could possibly go towards and came up with the options that suited those options that had the greatest need.

The committee chose to vote through option four, which allows for funding of the two trainers and funding for a full-time academic classroom teacher by taking away funding for a full schedule of games for sports. Option four takes funding from the proposed budget on the coaches line of $35,000, from the overtime bus drivers line of $8,500 and from the student furniture line of $8,500 to fund a full time academic classroom teacher and keep the two athletic trainers.

According to Assistant School Supt. Colleen Roberts, the extra teacher or teachers – depending on the need – will be added somewhere at the high school level. Roberts said the five extra teachers that were already included in the budget will be spread throughout different schools, 2.5 teachers for grade six, 1.5 teachers in the high schools, and a 1.0 teacher for Squantum Elementary School.

Funding for this year's budget comes from three main sources: the Mayor's appropriation of $88.88 million, a $2.65 million increase; projected circuit breaker funding of $2.46 million, a $522,000 increase; and the elimination of the Education Jobs Grant Funding, which is a decrease of $1.29 million. The funding will allow for an additional $500,000 to address class sizes, programs, and academic support.

"What this funding allowed us to do is absorb the seven teaching positions from the 'No Child Left Behind' grants that were reduced in the FY 2012, absorb the 17 teaching positions that were funded by the Education Jobs grant, meet all contractual obligations of the 2012-2013 year, as well as an additional $500,000 that we have been able to begin to incrementally build, and I think we have done some good things with that," said Mullaney. "Also there is the $800,000 coming from Comcast for the middle school technology and North Quincy High School so altogether is quite a healthy budget when you look at the technology application."

Mayor Thomas Koch provided $828,000 in additional funding for technology upgrades and purchases in all five middle schools and in North Quincy High School. In preparation for the new technology, the budget for the electrical costs went up by $81,400 in the budget.

"We very responsibly restored, shifted, reorganized and re-aligned in order to establish a budget that we feel can be sustained," said School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "And offering incremental improvements to some programs by really balancing what the student needs are with the funding that's available."

The committee voted 6-1 in favor of the new budget. School Committee member Anne Mahoney cast the lone dissenting vote against the budget. She did not explain her vote when it was taken at last week's School Committee meeting. Mahoney could not be reached for comment before the Sun went to press Tuesday.

Koch: City Sought Second, Third Opinion On Elm Tree

At the direction of Mayor Thomas Koch, the city sought multiple opinions on the condition of an elm tree prior to allowing the Central Middle School contractors proceed with state-approved construction plans for the new school, the mayor's office said Tuesday.

According to the mayor's office, those opinions confirmed an original assessment by the project's architects stating that the tree was in decline, was not a good candidate for preservation or relocation, and that the site could not accommodate both the tree and the new school building.

The following is a letter sent by Mayor Thomas Koch to residents who had expressed support for preserving the tree:

"I'm writing today because of your interest in preserving an American Elm tree located on the site of our new Central Middle School near Merrymount Park. I truly appreciate your concerns, and because of your advocacy, the City conducted a second review of the health of the tree to determine if it could be relocated or preserved.

"The certified arborist hired by the City, Acorn Tree and Landscaping, Inc., visited the site and performed a thorough study of the tree's health. The arborist concluded that the tree was indeed in decline, demonstrated by the large amount of canopy die-back. Relocation of the tree would cost more than $100,000 and would stand very little chance of survival.

"In addition, the City also invited a University of Massachusetts lab to visit Quincy and do a thorough investigation of the Elm. This lab had previously determined that a small sample of the tree was in good health, and this information was used as the basis for a group of residents interested in preserving the tree.

"The lab declined to visit the City to do a full investigation, and suggested that the sample test it conducted was not meant to be a definitive exam of tree's overall health. Further, the lab instructed that it would not recommend relocating the tree because its age and condition. These conclusions matched those originally offered by architects for the school, who determined that the tree was diseased and did not stand a very good chance of long-term survival.

"The tree will be removed as originally planned, but wood from the tree will be included in some fashion as part of our new school building, which I must stress is decades overdue. As the son of a former Park Commissioner and a Park Commissioner myself for 12 years, I believe very strongly in our City's natural beauty, and have worked very hard over the years to protect existing trees and plant new ones across our City.

"But this desire to protect our urban forest must be balanced by common sense and fiscal prudence. In this case, the cost and risk associated with trying to preserve this tree simply could not be justified.

"Thank you again for expressing your concerns, and I hope this letter will help you better understand the actions taken by the City.

Sincerely,
Thomas P. Koch
Mayor."

AMERICAN ELM TREE located at the site of the former Winfield House in Wollaston was cut down Monday to make way for the construction of a new Central Middle School. The health of the tree, according to multiple opinions expressed to the mayor's office, was in decline. "The cost and risk associated with trying to preserve this tree simply could not be justified," Mayor Thomas Koch wrote in a letter to residents who had petitioned the city to save the tree.

Tree's Demise 'A Real Loss To The Community'

Pat Artis, one of the leaders of the movement to save the Winfield Elm, said the community suffered a loss when the tree was cut down Monday.

"It's a just a real loss to the community," Artis said. "I wish the mayor would've figured something else out."

Artis is the head of the Wollaston Garden Club. Members of the club had written letters to Mayor Thomas Koch, urging him to not cut down the tree during the construction of a new Central Middle School. Artis said that she's spoken to the mayor before, most recently in February, and Koch offered to consider moving the tree. But Artis felt the tree was too old and too big to move, and would've been damaged.

Still, Artis thinks it could've survived construction at the site if it were simply left in place, with the new structure and parking lot built around it. "Engineers and architects could've figured it out," she said.

Artis said Koch mentioned that one of his sons came up with the idea of using wood from the tree for items in the school, including benches, when the two had met in February. While she said the tree was irreplaceable, Artis said saving some wood was better than having it all fed into a wood chipper.

"How would you replace a 100-year-old tree?" Artis asked rhetorically. "[Saving some wood] is better than nothing, I guess."

Determined to pay off your mortgage as quickly as possible?

This loan is for you!

There are so many good reasons to love the 10-Year Mortgage. For some people, it's about being debt-free. Others want the mortgage paid off by the time the kids go to college or before they retire. Some see paying off their mortgage quickly as a kind of "forced" savings. Here's the simple fact: If you can swing the somewhat-higher monthly payments, a 10-Year Mortgage knocks years off your original loan. Your equity builds very quickly. And you pay thousands less in interest, compared to a longer-term mortgage loan. Rates are still at historic lows. How much longer? Who knows. If a 10-Year sounds good to you, let's talk. Soon! Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com. (Have another loan or term in mind? THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On June 29, 1613, the Globe Theater, where most of Shakespeare's plays debuted, burns down. The Globe was built in 1599 from the timbers of London's very first permanent theater, Burbage's Theater. The galleries could seat about 1,000 people, with room for another 2,000 "groundlings," who could stand around the stage.
- On June 28, 1888, writer Robert Louis Stevenson and his family leave San Francisco for their first visit to the South Seas. Stevenson, an adventurous traveler plagued by tuberculosis, was seeking a healthier climate. His novel "Treasure Island" was published in 1883.
- On June 27, 1922, the American Library Association awards the first Newbery Medal, honoring the year's best children's book, to "The Story of Mankind" by Hendrik Willem van Loon. The Newbery Medal seeks to encourage originality and excellence in the field of children's books.
- On June 26, 1948, in response to the Soviet blockade of land routes into West Berlin, the United States begins a massive airlift of food, water and medicine to the citizens of the besieged city. For nearly a year, supplies from American planes sustained the more than 2 million people in West Berlin.
- On June 25, 1956, the last Packard rolls off the production line at Packard's plant in Detroit. The classic American luxury car used the famously enigmatic slogan "Ask the Man Who Owns One."
- On June 30, 1962, Sandy Koufax strikes out 13 batters and walks five to lead the Brooklyn Dodgers over the New York Mets 5-0 with his first career no-hitter. Koufax went on to throw three more no-hitters, including a perfect game on Sept. 9, 1965, in which he allowed no hits and no walks.
- On July 1, 1979, the Sony Walkman - the world's first low-cost, portable music player - goes on sale in Japan. The initial production run of 30,000 units looked to be too ambitious, as only 3,000 were sold at $150 apiece in the first month. Some 200 million sales later, Sony retired the cassette Walkman in 2010.

The Calm Before The Election Storm

You might call the fall primaries in Quincy the calm before storm on Election Day, Nov. 6.

While there are virtually no contested races for local voters to decide when the state primaries are held Thursday, Sept. 6, the Presidential Election two months later will offer some big decisions at the ballot box.

But before we get to November, let's look at September.

There is only one primary race for Quincy voters to decide and that's in the Republican primary. Two candidates are seeking the GOP nomination for Congress in the 8th district. They are Joe Selvaggi of 49 Beacon St., Boston and Matias Temperley of 55 1/2 Penn St., Quincy. The winner of this race faces incumbent Democrat Stephen Lynch of South Boston in the final election Nov. 6.

LYNCH

That's it.

There are no other contested primary races for Quincy voters to decide.

Every Democrat incumbent legislator representing Quincy is unopposed in the state primary and final election. State Sen. John Keenan, and Representatives Bruce Ayers (1st Norfolk District), Tackey Chan (2nd Norfolk District) and House Majority Leader Ron Mariano (3rd Norfolk District) are all unopposed.

MARIANO

Voters in one precinct in Quincy - Ward 3 Precinct 3 - will also have a new state representative after the fall election. That precinct in Quincy will become part of the 13th Suffolk District currently represented by Martin Walsh, a Democrat. He too is unopposed.

While no Republicans submitted nomination papers to challenge any of the local legislators, the head of the city's GOP City Committee says future candidates are being recruited to challenge local Democrat office holders or seek any open seats. But this year, Republicans are setting their sights on helping U.S. Sen. Scott retain his seat this fall.

"The Republican Party is working diligently to recruit candidates for local, state and federal offices," said Christine Cedrone, chairwoman of the Quincy Republican City Committee and local Republican State Committeewoman.

CEDRONE

"We are focusing all our efforts on re-electing U.S. Senator Scott Brown. He has done an outstanding job for our district and he will continue to do so," said Cedrone, a former Quincy school committeewoman and a local attorney.

Norfolk County office holders who are on the ballot this year - all Democrats - are also unopposed this fall.

They are:

Norfolk County Commissioners John Gillis of Quincy and Francis O'Brien of Dedham; Clerk of Courts Walter Timilty and Register of Deeds William O'Donnell.

Governors Council member Christopher Iannella, also a Democrat, is unopposed.

Cong. Stephen Lynch, a Democrat, is running for re-election in the new 8th district. He is unopposed in the state primary but faces the winner of the GOP primary.

The state primary here in Quincy may be a "perfect storm" for the lowest election turnout in Quincy in quite some time.

For one thing, it will be held on a Thursday and not the traditional Tuesday. The date is Sept. 6 - three days after Labor Day. The unusual Thursday election date set by the state Secretary of State means there will also be no school in Quincy that day. (Normally, the Thursday after Labor Day is the first full day of classes in local public schools.)

So while voters here may have to tie a little string around their finger to remember the Thursday election, they may not feel compelled to even cast ballots because there's a lack of contested races.

It's not just Quincy where there's a dearth of primary races. Out of 26 municipalities in Norfolk County, only one has a primary for a seat on Beacon Hill and that's in Franklin where there's an open state representative seat.

The scarcity of local contested races means turnout could be among the lowest in a state primary. City Clerk Joseph Shea estimates 12 to 14 percent of registered Republicans, Democrats, Libertarians (yes, there's a Libertarian ballot, too) and unenrolled voters will take the time to cast ballots Sept. 6. But he wouldn't be surprised if turnout fails to crack double digits.

Regardless of turnout, the primary will cost the city $70,000 in election expenses, Shea said. Those costs include election workers, police details, printed bilingual instructions for voters and extra signage. The state - because it's a Presidential Election year - will cover the cost for ballots.

SHEA

Open seats generate contested election races. Two years ago - with open seats for Congress, Norfolk County district attorney, state senator and one state representative - turnout was 28.43 percent here.

The state primary, you might say, could be the eye of the "Election Hurricane" Nov. 6.

It's a Presidential Election year and that in of itself will create a lot of buzz and drive voters to the polls. President Barack Obama and presumptive Republican challenger Mitt Romney offer contrasting styles and positions on a host of issues from healthcare to creating jobs. Stay the course or chart a new direction?

Then there's the Brown-Elizabeth Warren U.S. Senate contest that has all the makings of a political barnburner. Anyone who doesn't want to see these two square off in televised debates this fall should have their pulse checked. And like the Presidential race, the Senate contest should be dominated by one issue: the economy.

There are also a myriad of referendum questions bound for this year's final ballot. Among the petitions being submitted for voters to weigh in on include medical use of marijuana, limiting the amount water and sewer rates may be raised, small businesses repairing motor vehicles and updating the bottle bill. Questions that receive the necessary signatures to appear on the ballot will be determined later this summer.

So, while the state primary appears to be a snooze-fest this year, voters may need the rest.

The weeks leading up to and including Election Day Nov. 6 may be a workout.

LAST DAY to register to vote for the Sept. 6 primary is Wednesday, Aug. 17. The city's Election Department at the City Hall Annex, 1259 Hancock St., adjacent to City Hall, will be open until 8 p.m. that evening.

GET WELL QUICK wishes to Joe Brill, the city's "baseball ambassador" and longtime activist in many local community causes, who was injured in a fall at his home last week.

He is recuperating at a local rehabilitation center.

Hope you're back on your feet soon, Joe. Your many are rooting for you.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1934 real photo postcard published to commemorate the opening of a new H.P. Hood & Sons Milk Distribution Plant at 75 Adams St. near Quincy Square. The plant was across the street from Russell's Diner. Hood's had been on this site for a number of years, but they built this new state-of-the-art plant to serve the expanding Greater Quincy area as far south as Hingham and Hull. They had a two-day open house for the people of Quincy and the South Shore district to celebrate the occasion. The plant was closed many years ago and today this site is home to the condominium complex known as 77 Adams Street. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Poverty In Wollaston?

A proposal to cut the metered price of parking in Wollaston from five cents an hour to two and a half cents an hour drew sharp criticism from City Councillor Edna B. Austin.

"I didn't think the people in Wollaston were so poor," she said as the City Council referred the proposal to its Ordinance Committee.

Public Works Commissioner Charles R. Herbert called the price slash "a markdown sale, which would sell parking meters to the people."

Councillor Amelio Della Chiesa said Wollaston parking meters were taking in an average of 16 cents per meter per day, while those in Quincy Square were averaging twice as much.

COMIC BOOK SUIT

A New York comic book publisher filed suit in Federal Court in Boston for a permanent injunction to prevent the Quincy Literature Review Board from banning its publications from the city's newsstands.

Named in the suit were Mayor Charles A. Ross, Police Chief John J. Avery and three members of the Review Board, Rev. Joseph D. Parkman, Mrs. Katherine J. Quinn and Mrs. Ida G. Glasser.

The Board was set up by the City Council in December, 1948, to regulate the sale of comic books and paperbacked reprints that might, in the view of the Board, tend to corrupt the morals of the young.

Two comic books published by the plaintiff, Lee Gleason Publications, Inc., of New York, entitled "Crime Does Not Pay" and "Crime and Punishment," were among the first books banned by the Board.

NUMBERS ROOM

The City closed down the waiting room for bus passengers at the corner of Washington and Coddington Streets because of vandalism and other abuses.

Park Department Foreman Harry Boyd said one of the other abuses was the use of the building by numbers pool operators as a headquarters in which to take bets.

The waiting room had been little used since the old streetcars for Houghs Neck had been replaced by buses, which also picked up passengers at the main station on Hancock Street.

North Quincy, Wollaston Future Meeting Topic

The future of North Quincy and Wollaston will be the topic at a public meeting Tuesday, June 26 from 6 to 8 p.m. at North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St.

Coordinating the meeting are the City of Quincy, the Asian Community Development Corporation (ACDC), and the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC).

The meeting will bring together residents and business owners from North Quincy and Wollaston to discuss their vision for the future of these two neighborhoods.

"We want to make sure all Quincy neighborhoods benefit from the investments that the city is making in planning," said Quincy Planning Department Director Dennis Harrington. "We also want to make sure that the diversity of our neighborhoods is reflected in our planning processes."

At the meeting, a panel of local leaders will discuss residents' priorities for growth in the neighborhood. Input on these priorities was gathered through the social media planning game CommunityPlanIt, which is available at www.boston.communityplanit.org.

The planning game, called "NoQuWo: Quincy Neighborhoods on the Move," is an online social media game that engages the public in expressing their vision for the community's future. It is being used to augment existing offline engagement efforts by bringing more people into the process - including residents under 30, who make up half the game's users - and by providing an interactive platform for people to learn more about the issues in depth.

Game users can also deliberate about ideas in longer and more meaningful ways than attendees at a public meeting, and can develop a familiarity with each other before coming together at a public planning meeting.

The game was developed by the Engagement Game Lab at Emerson College and has been live for public viewing and playing this past month. More than 200 people have registered for the game to date, and together they've left upwards of 1,000 comments on topics ranging from local business development to transportation and community programs.

"This project uses technology to supplement our grassroots efforts to pull people together," said Janelle Chan, Executive Director of ACDC. "Game user comments show a tangible excitement about sharing the issues that matter to them with their neighbors. We're happy to be part of facilitating this discussion."

In conjunction with these social media efforts, residents of all ages and linguistic backgrounds were invited to participate in focus group discussions about how to strengthen the quality of life in North Quincy and Wollaston this spring.

The feedback gathered during all phases of this project will be used for strategic planning in both neighborhoods, recognizing the high level of diversity in the population of North Quincy and Wollaston - in particular the Asian American communities.

"This is an important moment for residents to help set the agenda for neighborhood improvement," said Robert Chen, a resident and member of the Asian American Civic Engagement Task Force convened by the Mayor. "We all have invested our hard-earned dollars and hearts in this neighborhood."

At the meeting, data from the game play and the focus groups will be presented, and there will be activities through which attendees may add additional feedback to the information already gathered from the community. The event will close with a panel discussion from local leaders about the current state of Asian Americans in civic engagement in Quincy.

"Changing demographics and new technologies are, quite literally, 'game changers' when it comes to planning and civic engagement," said Holly St. Clair, Director of Data Services at MAPC. "It is great to see neighborhood leaders, community organizations and the city of Quincy at the leading edge of new innovations."

The meeting is free and open to the public.

A Wonderful Job By Cemetery Workers

The cemetery workers are to be commended for the wonderful job they did mowing and trimming the grass at Quincy's cemeteries for Memorial Day.

They worked 12 hours a day, 7 days a week to prepare for this important holiday. Despite the constant rain, they succeeded in making everything look nice for those visiting graves and the holiday's memorial service.

We appreciate these workers and extend a very special thank you to them.

RAINBOW GARDEN

By Ashley Philibrick, Grade 7
Point Webster Middle School

Seventy-nine students at the Point Webster Middle School participated recently in the Poetry Contest sponsored by the Wollaston Garden Club, the Garden Club Federation of MA, Inc. and the National Garden Clubs, Inc (NGC).

The theme of the contest was based on the national garden club's project on community gardens - "colorful fruits and tasty vegetables."

WGC member and P-W teacher, Jessica Davis-Myers, coordinated this contest at Point Webster.

Two of the students, Ashley Philibrick, Grade 7, and Bashar Abraham, Grade 5, won First Place awards in the state of Massachusetts. Ashley also received a 2nd place award for her poem "Colorful Fruits" from the national garden club, and her poem is included in the national garden club publication "Colorful Fruits & Tasty Vegetables," Anthology of Poetry By Our Youth - 2011.

The Point Webster students with the assistance of their dedicated and enthusiastic language arts teachers (Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Bernick, Ms. Loftus, Mr. Smith, Mrs. Duffy-McGowan, and Mrs.

Delisle) spent time writing and editing their poems, which were sent last December to the state garden club poetry contest chair and committee, who judged them based on title, content, creativity and style.

All 79 of the Point Webster students who participated were awarded "Certificates of Participation" recently. Eleven of the students whose exceptional work was forwarded to the state contest committee, received special commendations and gift certificates to "Frozen Freddie's". Those students who wrote outstanding poems were: Bashar Abraham, Ariya Noor Ahona, Yusra Ahmed, Joanne Chung, Jamanee Depina, Moustafa El-Dayisty, Michael Hoffman, Judy Luu, Josefine Marstjepovic, Kimberly Merrifield, and Ashley Philibrick.

Wollaston Garden Club President Pat Artis commended Principal James McGuire, the language arts teachers, and students of Point Webster for their enthusiasm and hard work.

"It has been a long time since Quincy students won state and national awards in the garden club's poetry contests," Artis said.

The theme for the NGC's Youth Activities Poetry Contest for 2012 will be: "Protecting Our Aquatic Friends" based on the NGC's major project of protecting aquatic ecosystems.

The contest is open to students in Kindergarten through Ninth Grade, and includes students in both Special Education and English as a Second Language programs.

More details will be provided later to all the Quincy Public Schools by the Wollaston Garden Club; entry deadline for this next poetry contest will be in November.

Marie's Kitchen

Baked Polenta With Sausage And Artichoke Hearts

When we think of polenta, we think of it as a dry mixture like cream of wheat.

But I often purchase the kind that comes shaped like a tube.

Sometimes I just take a couple of slices, add some tomato sauce and shredded cheese and just heat them in the microwave and they are so delicious.

Then recently, I found this great recipe for a baked polenta.

Today's recipe is for the tube type that really is simple because the polenta is already cooked.

BAKED POLENTA

1 tube (18 ounces) polenta (cut in 1/4-inch slices)
1 pound of sweet Italian sausages (casings removed)
2 garlic cloves (sliced)

1 small onion (sliced)
2 teaspoons olive oil
3/4 cup marinated artichoke hearts (chopped)
1/2 cup chicken stock
1/4 cup fresh parsley (chopped fine)
Salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In a large skillet, heat the oil and sauté the onion until softened. Add the sausage and cook, breaking up the meat with a spoon until browned.

Add the garlic and cook for a minute of so. Remove from heat and stir in the artichokes. Season with salt and pepper.

In a baking dish, layer the polenta rounds and spoonfuls of sausage mixture. Pour the chicken stock over the top and bake until bubbling and the polenta is a golden color (20-25 minutes). Sprinkle with parsley and serve.

Jordan Marsh Blueberry Muffins

Some of us still remember (before Macy's) the Jordan Marsh Blueberry muffins as well as many delicious pastries.

It turns out that one of my daughter Nancy's customers (at her barber shop) Bill Meacham, gave her the authentic recipe for their famous blueberry muffins.

Blueberries are so plentiful these days, so they'll be easy to find.

JORDAN MARSH BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup butter (or margarine)
2 cups flour

2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 cups blueberries
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sugar and cinnamon for topping

Mix the sugar and butter together. Add the eggs and vanilla and mix. Add the flour, baking powder, salt to the batter. Stir in the milk and fold in the blueberries.

Pile them high in the muffin tins - should be enough for 12 muffins.

Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon.

Bake in a 375-degree oven for 25-30 minutes.

Council Endorses I-Cubed Program

By SCOTT JACKSON

A unanimous City Council vote paved the way for the city to apply for up to $40 million in funding for infrastructure improvements needed before downtown redevelopment can happen.

On Monday, the council endorsed an amended application to receive up to $40 million in funding through the state-run Infrastructure Investment Incentive (I-cubed) program. The money would be spent on Town Brook Relocation, Adams Green, and a bridge linking Cliveden Street to Burgin Parkway. The original application was for $50 million, but the city received $10.1 million in MassWorks grants already for Town Brook.

If the city's final application is approved, bonds would be issued to cover the cost of construction. They would be paid by "net new" state tax revenue generated by the new downtown. In the event of a shortfall, the city would need to pay the difference. Despite that risk, Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines said the council ought to approve the application because it needs to finance the projects and no other federal or state money is available.

"The [Land Disposition Agreement] puts on the City of Quincy the responsibility to get the $50 million," Hines said. "We have that contractual obligation, that was our problem to solve."

"[With] the Tea Party movement and others in Washington," Hines continued, "the federal earmarks have dried up, which we had not anticipated. State funding and the state budget took a hit, so the state funding programs were not as plentiful as they had been. So the only game in town for us, essentially, to help the city meet the $50 million responsibility is the I-cubed."

To pay for any shortfall, the city needs to create municipal liquidity reserves. The reserve would have enough money in it to pay two years worth of debt service, about $5.4 million if the full $40 million was bonded out. Hines indicated that the city would prefer to do so by obtaining a letter of credit, but that won't be necessary until the bonds are issued — around the time the Ross Garage is purchased next year.

While the council approved creating the reserve at the city's expense, Councillor Joe Finn proposed an amendment shifting that burden to developer Beal/Street-Works. "I do believe that this should be passed contingent on some shared sense of liability," he said.

Finn's amendment failed because no other councillor would second it. He later supported the application, saying that costs of doing nothing outweighed the risk of having to pay for the core improvements.

"I feel I've met my own responsibility in letting people know there really are certain risks that are associated with this," Finn said. "But I think that it's very important to keep in mind the cost of doing nothing. And that there are far more serious costs, at this point in time — of not moving ahead, of doing nothing — that far exceed the extra hits we may take because of the municipal liquidity reserve."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said the perception of risk was dependent on how optimistic one is about the economy. He said he was optimistic about the economy, because it can't get much worse.

"The exposure we feel we're under kind of depends on your economic outlook," McNamee said. "I'm pretty bullish about where we're going, I don't think it's going to get any worse."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci echoed many of the same sentiments as Finn did, alluding to the French Foreign Legion's unofficial creed of "march or die."

"March or die," Palmucci said. "Tonight I can appreciate those words more than ever, because tonight it's vote to support this or die; to support the I-cubed funding or sit idly by while we watch the downtown continue to die a slow death."

While the council approved the application, the bonds won't be issued until Beal/Street-Works submits a breakdown of its finances to the state. That will be similar to the one it gives to Quincy when it purchases the Ross Garage under terms of the LDA. The developer has until September 2013 to set a closing date for that purchase, though it can be extended for a fee.

The state will also do another series of revenue projections at the time of the financial submission, based on more updated knowledge of how newly created space will be utilized. If they feel the risk to the city is greater at that time, the council would need to approve the plan once again.

Boston Man Arraigned In South Quincy Shooting

A Boston resident was arraigned Tuesday for a Sunday night shooting in South Quincy.

Police Capt. John Dougan said that at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, a half-dozen officers responded to a 911 call at 127 Federal Avenue. The victim, a 28-year-old Hispanic male identified as Omar Mejia, had two bullet holes in his stomach. Officers performed first aid on Mejia until an ambulance arrived and rushed the victim to Boston Medical Center where he remained in serious condition Monday afternoon.

Johnell Monteiro, a Mattapan resident, was arrested Monday afternoon by Boston Police. He was arraigned at Quincy District Court Tuesday on charges of assault with intent to murder, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, discharging a firearm within 500 feet of a dwelling, unlawful possession of a firearm, and unlawful possession of ammunition.

Dougan said Monday before the arrest was made that police believed the victim and suspect knew each other. "This wasn't random," he said, though no motive was known at the time.

Council Approves Bond For Renovation Of City, Coddington Halls

ing board, as well as exhibit space.

Coddington Hall will house the School Department, as well as the city's Planning, Printing, and IT Departments. The School Committee would have a new permanent home in the building.

The measure had been held up because the project will be partially paid for with money from the city's Community Preservation Act (CPA) fund. It was determined in May by Councillor Joe Finn that no action could be taken until the city's Community Preservation Committee (CPC) approved of the project.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who is also the vice chairman of the CPC, said Monday the committee approved the project by a 7-1 vote last Thursday. They also recommended allocating $550,000 a year in CPA funds towards the repayment of the bond. The original plan was to have $900,000 in CPA funds go, but in previous meetings councillors were skeptical of having so much CPA funding go towards the project.

Before voting on the bond, councillors expressed their support for the project. Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said that while constituents had expressed concerns to him about the city's growing debt, he supported the project because it shows potential investors in the new Quincy Center that the city is dedicated to saving its assets.

"We're really acting very boldly to revitalize the downtown," McNamee said. "If we're going to be successful, we have to communicate to potential investors that the city also wants to preserve and make sure our public assets are the best they can be. They want to see us also stepping up to the plate and investing."

"I see that these two public buildings are magnificent buildings," McNamee continued. "By spending these monies, we're going to communicate to, I think, the world at-large that we care and we're also willing to invest."

Coughlin also went on the record with his support for the project. In addition to the historic value of the buildings being preserved, he noted debt service payments on the bond remaining after CPA money—about $400,000 to $500,000, depending on interest rates—would be offset because the city would no longer pay rent to house the School Department and City Clerk's office.

"[The buildings] are really historic jewels that have very practical benefits to the citizens," Coughlin said. "We understand that apart from the investment here of the $550,000 going forward on an annual basis from the community preservation fund that offset in money we're paying to lease other space will cover the balance and it just makes good sense in every imaginable way that we move forward on this."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci told his colleagues he was at first concerned about the project taking too much money from the CPA fund, but he would support the project because the CPC supported it.

"My major concern," Palmucci said, "was for the effect it would have on our available funding to purchase open space and fund community preservation projects. If the CPC is in support of this, I suppose I will defer to their judgment and guidance on the issue."

The council took two votes on the matter. The first amended the bond to state that $550,000 a year in CPA funds would be used to pay for the project. That vote passed unanimously.

A second vote authorizing the bond itself passed 8-1, with Councillor Joe Finn casting the lone dissenting vote. He said he supported the project, but voted no because the council wasn't consulted before the city closed Old City Hall and moved the City Clerk and other offices last summer.

"On the substance of this I don't have any real problems with this," Finn said. "Yet at the same time I have a great deal of concern about the body that is going to occupy that renovated [City Council] chamber as well."

"Unfortunately the way this is structured, in many respects, it does very much have the feel of a fait accompli," Finn explained. "This was rushed ahead—leasing agreements made, things were moved out, we were moved out—everything happened long before this approval to actually provide the resources and money came before this body."

4 Local Businesses Caught Serving, Selling To Minors

By EMILY TAFT

Four local establishments have been reprimanded by the Quincy License Board for serving and selling liquor to underage patrons during a city-wide sting operation on various restaurants and liquor stores May 24.

During the day-long investigation, an 18-year-old minor was sent into the businesses and attempted to purchase beer with a marked bill. The Board of License Commissioners voted to suspend one restaurant's license for a day, and give the other three a warning during their meeting on June 12th.

Presidential Discount Liquors on 25 Scammell St. received a written reprimand after selling a 24-ounce bottle of Bud Light to a minor. The store, which has a machine that checks ID's, decided to fire the clerk who sold the beer and sent their managers to T.I.P.S. (Training and Intervention Procedures for Servers of alcohol) training. The board unanimously voted to give the store, which has been in the city for 15 years, a written warning that will stay on file for a year.

The Seven Eleven located on 78 Franklin St. received a written reprimand that will be placed on file for a year, after selling a 24-ounce bottle of Bud Light to a minor. The clerk who sold the minor the alcohol said that he thought he knew the girl when Police Detective Lt. Peter Turowski asked him why he didn't ask for her ID.

The store has been selling beer and wine for four years, and has been in business for 17 years, according to owner Dhananhay Patel. Patel said that he sends his clerks to a video training and that they have a zero tolerance policy for selling alcohol to minors and that the clerk was fired after the incident occurred.

Police Chief Paul Keenan said that he was very surprised that this store was one of the four to be caught. "I was a little surprised. I have been to that store and know they are strict and run a good operation."

Callahan's Tap located at 296 Copeland St. received a written reprimand, which will stay on file for one year, after selling alcohol to a minor. At 8:30 p.m. on May 24th, Turowski said he sent the 18-year-old minor into Callahan's Tap with a marked $10 bill to purchase a 12-ounce bottle of Bud Light beer.

The bartender, who has worked at Callahan's for two years and has been a bartender for 10 years, told Turowski she served the underage girl without asking for an ID because she believed she looked old enough. Turowski added that the underage girl informed him that the owner of Callahan's Tap, Anthony Donnelly, had approached her before the bartender ever did and asked her what she would like to drink. Donnelly, according to Turowski, seemed highly intoxicated during this time.

Keenan said during the board meeting that he was concerned about the situation Donnelly put his bartender in. Since the sting, three of the bartenders have become T.I.P.S. certified, according to Donnelly.

Quincy Jade Restaurant located at 20-22 Cottage Ave. received its second violation in a two-year span. At the time of the sting, the restaurant was empty with the underage girl as the only customer at the bar. According to Turowski, the girl was served a 12-ounce bottle of Bud Light that the cook of the Quincy Jade poured into a Styrofoam cup and then allowed the young woman to leave the restaurant with the beer. Turowski said that when he asked the chef why he did not ID the girl and also allowed her to leave with the beer, he said that it was what his boss had told him to do. The last violation, according to Turowski, was September 2010.

"Someone has to be held responsible, this is your second bite of the apple," Board Chairman Joseph Shea said to owner Mihn Phuoc Giang. "You need to pay attention and have the cooks pay attention. There is really no excuse for it to be happening."

The board voted unanimously in favor of issuing the restaurant a one-day suspension that will force the Quincy Jade to close its doors all day and night on June 28th. The next Board of License Commissioners meeting will be held on June 26th at 4 p.m.

Budget Beefs Up Schools, Public Safety

workers. That money will be used to hire teachers, athletic trainers, and other personnel.

The police will receive an extra $500,000. That money will be used to add one more patrol officer position and another sergeant. Also included are raises for officers, including a $5,000 raise for Police Chief Paul Keenan. The Fire Department's budget was increased by $200,000, almost all of which will be for overtime to keep more fire stations open.

The budget for the library was increased by $157,000. Most of that money, $152,000, is tabbed to restore Sunday service at the main branch on Washington Street. An added $5,000 will go towards the purchase of books and periodicals.

The DPW budget includes an extra $250,000 for sidewalk repairs. It also includes money for the restoration of a summer jobs program for young people. The Parks Department budget also has money for the same summer jobs program, as well as money for a tree-removal/planting program.

Because contracts for every union representing city employees expire this year, the budget also includes $820,000 to pay for possible raises that might be negotiated.

In budget hearings, the council did make three cuts to the budget totaling $894,626 dollars. The bulk of that was from the city's pension contributions line which saw an $874,626 decrease to correct an accounting error. The other cuts were $10,000 each to inspectional services and a separate pension account. The reductions brought down the budget from Mayor Thomas Koch's original proposal of $247.85 million.

Separate from the city budget, the council approved the budgets for the Sewer and Water Departments for FY13. The Sewer Department's budget was set at $21.74 million and the Water Department's was set at $15.12 million. Those budgets are funded through the revenue of enterprise accounts separate from the city's general fund. Both budgets were approved unanimously.

The maximum expenditures for two revolving accounts, which allow spending on certain items without council approval, were also set for the upcoming fiscal year. A 9-0 vote established a $300,000 limit for the Recreation Department's revolving account. The DPW's revolving account was capped at $100,000 by an 8-1 vote, with Councillor Doug Gutro opposed.

Quarries Canopy Tours Clear Hurdle

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal to bring canopy tours to Quincy's quarries cleared its first hurdle after the City Council backed the project.

On Monday, the council approved two measures allowing the project to go forward in a pair of 8-0 votes. The first makes three city lots available for disposition for the project; the second allows the mayor to negotiate a license agreement with the developer and the state — the DCR owns four lots needed for the project — and also allows the mayor to lease the three lots for up to ten years.

There was no discussion on the matter Monday, but the council's committee on the environment and public health held a lengthy discussion on the proposal last Wednesday. During the meeting, Quincy resident and developer Al Endriunas gave councillors an overview of the tours.

Visitors would start out at an approximately 800 square foot welcome center, before going to "ground school" where the guides would go over the basics of zip lining and rappelling as well as safety instructions. The tour itself will traverse between eight and ten zip lines, two or three suspension bridges, and two or three rappel points. Endriunas said the history of the site would be a major selling point of the tours.

"It's the guides job to offer a little bit of education and a lot of fun," Endriunas said. "There's a huge story to be told at the quarries. There's a lot of history there, there's a lot of things going on on the ecology side of things."

As part of the proposal, Endriunas' company would build new public facilities at the site, located off of Ricciuti Drive. Those include public restrooms, a picnic area, a "non-plastic" playground, and smaller zip lines and bridges that could be used for free. Endriunas told the committee that the quarries and surrounding area need work that Quincy and state Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) can't currently afford to do.

"The city, the DCR, everybody is strapped for cash," Endriunas said. "Nobody can mow the grass there. The trash is being dumped; no one is picking it up. There's no one there policing anything. We feel the site can be better utilized."

At the committee meeting last week, councillors did express some concern over the project. Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, whose district includes Quarry Hills, said he'd heard from residents and others that wanted assurances the canopy tours wouldn't interfere with rock climbing.

"The quarries and that area," Palmucci said, "it's one of the few places in Eastern Massachusetts where there is actually any quality climbing for folks. I'd just like you to address how you would ensure that their access wouldn't be limited."

Endriunas said that the platforms would be located above and away from quarry walls so climbers wouldn't be disrupted. And the developer said he was open to advice from climbers, though that could be difficult because different climbers might have different opinions on what would and would not interfere with climbing.

"We would have to work with the climbing community," Endriunas said. "I can't exactly tell you how that would work because if I ask 25 climbers, I'm going to get 25 different answers. So I think there has to be some kind of a formalization with the Appalachian Mountain Club or with a group of climbers that frequents the quarries and make sure we can coexist."

Another concern Palmucci raised was over the potential liability to the city. He wanted to know what would protect Quincy from being held responsible financially if someone was injured since part of the project is on city land.

Endriunas said that an indemnification agreement would be reached between his attorneys and the city's. He also would have visitors sign waivers before taking the tour, something that he was familiar with from his experience running Ragged Mountain Ski and Golf Resort in New Hampshire for 20 years and the Blue Hills Ski area for 10 years.

"I've been in the ski business for over 20 years," Endriunas said. "I've dealt with a lot of insurance issues. Quite honestly, whether it be canopy tours or ski business, when you're doing something like that it's inherently not as safe as sitting in [a] chair. So they're assuming some risk, they're signing a waiver when they come there. When a person bought a lift ticket at one of my ski areas, the back of the ticket had the terms of what they were entering into. We're not reinventing the wheel."

Assistant City Solicitor Janet Petkun also weighed in on the city's liability. She said that the tour company needed to have at least $1 million in insurance, and Quincy needed to be covered by the policy. And while nothing can stop someone from naming the city in a lawsuit, the waiver would give the city an affirmative defense against a potential suit.

"God forbid someone gets hurt up there, they're going to name the city," Petkun said. "We can't stop a person from filing any suit they wish, but we can minimize our exposure through the waiver, which then becomes an affirmative defense where we would in court say 'even if you assume all their facts are true, they released us of liability.'"

Endriunas anticipates the project costing between $500,000 and $700,000 to build. The tours would run year-round, including during periods of light rain and snow. Lightning and other severe weather, however, would bring all activities to a halt.

Between 15,000 and 20,000 annual visitors are expected. Each ticket would cost $99, but a 10 percent discount would be available for all Quincy residents, veterans, and seniors. Members of any group involved with the quarries — The Friends of the Blue Hills, the Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum, and the AMC's Boston chapter — would also receive a 10 percent discount.

For its part, the city would receive either $50,000 or five percent of gross revenues, whichever was greater.

City Pledges To Help Flood Victims

By J. MICHAEL WHALEN

The city has vowed to aid victims of the flooding that affected 30 houses in Merrymount more than two weeks ago.

That help will include any financial assistance that can be arranged through the city solicitor's office.

Mayor Tom Koch, Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, Department of Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi and other officials made the pledge during a June 12 meeting in the community room at the Koch Park and Recreation Complex. About 40 residents were in attendance.

Hughes, who has met with numerous residents since the June 3 flooding occurred, offered words of assurance while introducing Koch.

"We're here to help and to do what we can," she said.

Koch expressed similar sentiments.

"We certainly feel very badly about what occurred," said the mayor. "It's not a pretty thing."

Reiterating what Raymondi told the City Council a week earlier, Koch said the flooding — which caused Blacks Creek to overflow — didn't have as much to do with the relatively light rainfall than with a combination of high tides, strong winds, storm surges and aging tide gates.

"The rain wasn't much of an issue," said Koch. "[The gates] are technically broken; they truly never worked properly."

The mayor said for environmental reasons, a decision to close the state-owned gates must be made hours before any flooding occurs, and none was anticipated in this instance. Koch added that he doesn't always agree with that policy.

"I felt the tide gates should have been closed," he said. "In the short term, they will be closed. They have to be operated manually until we get the new ones in place."

The mayor's capital improvement plan calls for the installation of new tide gates and the dredging of Blacks Creek, which will cost a total of $800,000. He said construction of the new gates will hopefully begin by the spring of 2013 but he is unsure when the dredging will take place.

Asked who makes "the judgment call" about whether to close the 20-year-old gates, Koch said the DPW foreman who happens to be on duty would do so. He said from now on, DPW Superintendent Larry Prendeville, who was among those at the meeting, will also be involved with every such decision — even on weekends and holidays.

While members of the audience remained calm and expressed appreciation for the mayor's presence and willingness to help, some voiced frustration over the situations they are facing.

Lawrence O'Brien, who owns a condominium at 250 Furnace Brook Parkway, said a tenant there, who is a doctoral candidate, lost "all of her notes" as a result of the flooding.

Furnace Brook Parkway resident Kate Timberlake said she hasn't been able to shower or cook at home for a week, and drives an hour to her mother's house in Somerset to do so.

"It's been a week," she said. "How are people supposed to live like this?"

Others wondered how they might be reimbursed for what they have lost. While offering no promises on dollar-for-dollar reimbursement, Koch said the city will do everything it can.

"I want to make good as best we can," he said. "We have to operate under the confines of the law."

Koch said residents who are hoping to recoup their losses must tally them up and bring them in writing to City Solicitor Jim Timmins. He said there is no time limit on filing a claim with the city.

The solicitor could not attend last week's meeting because he was away on a previously scheduled vacation, but the mayor said residents will have a chance to meet with Timmins at another evening meeting planned for this week at the Koch Complex.

Koch said those who could not attend the meeting can make arrangements to meet with Timmins at another time during work hours.

In answer to a question from Hughes regarding trash pickup, the mayor said the city "will pick up anything and everything related to the flood."

Flooding also occurred in other areas of the city June 3, including parts of Houghs Neck and Squantum.

Blockbuster Stars Ride Into Retirement Sunset

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Summertime is here, and that means blockbuster movies are in season. This summer — and throughout the end of the year — moviegoers can catch some of the usual heroes on the silver screen.

Take Batman. He'll be back on the big screen in another surefire blockbuster. The superhero first gained fans in the comics back in 1939. He could be taking advantage of delayed retirement credits — the power to receive bigger payments for delaying retirement benefits beyond one's full retirement age. The credit could be worth as much as eight percent a year until age 70. Learn more about this super power available to anyone at www.socialsecurity.gov/retire2/delayret.htm.

Dark Shadows will be making a big screen debut, based on the popular television series. The main character, Barnabas, is more than two centuries old. Surely, he would qualify for benefits if he would just go online and apply.

Then there are the marvelous superheroes of the "silver age" of comics, several of whom are appearing in The Avengers. Captain America was born in 1941, making him not only fit for leading but also ripe for retiring. The Hulk and Thor both came onto the scene in 1962; Iron Man and Nick Fury joined them in 1963. They, along with 1962's Spiderman (also enjoying a movie reboot this year) don't qualify for retirement benefits yet, but they might want to plan ahead by taking a look at the online Retirement Estimator at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator, where they can get an instant, personalized estimate of future retirement benefits.

From Batman to Spiderman, Captain America to The Hulk, making a decision to retire does not mean hanging up your costume. Today's retirees are more active than ever, even as they collect benefits.

If you'd like to learn more about your own future retirement benefits, take a break from the big screen and take a look at your computer screen. Visit www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator to receive a picture of your own future retirement.

Ready to start the sequel now? Let the opening credits on your retirement begin; apply for benefits right over the computer. Just visit www.socialsecurity.gov and click the "retirement" tab.

Planning Board OKs New Location For Ministry, Sea Street Construction

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Parishioners of Born Again International Ministries gave praise to the Quincy Planning Board last Wednesday, after a motion was passed allowing the congregation to utilize an unoccupied space at 33 Newport Ave., for worship purposes.

The ministry, which was founded in 2001 by Pastor Bridget Aikhionbare, currently holds Sunday prayer services, weddings and funerals, along with weekday activities such as choir practice, bible study, and a youth violence prevention program at 301 Columbia Road, P.O. Box 190936, Boston, MA 02119. According to the ministry's website, <http://www.bornagainint.org>, "the church has experienced a steady growth," which requires the acquisition of additional property.

The group presently consists of approximately 60 parishioners.

Charles W. Bradley, an architect with The ARCH Professional Group, Inc., presented sketches of the space to board members, and outlined various improvements which have taken place since 2009. Bathrooms and an elevator have been installed, and entryways have been made handicap accessible. Of the 21 on-site parking spaces, two have been reserved for the handicapped.

Mechanical and electrical upgrades are still necessary according to Bradley.

Overflow parking will be made available courtesy of The 99 Restaurant and Stop & Shop Supermarket, both of which are within close proximity to the ministry's new location.

"They're taking the second floor of a building in an area that could really use some life," said, Economic Development Planner for the City of Quincy Nicholas Verenis, who urged board members to approve the motion.

Aikhionbare, who earned a B. Ed. at the University of Benin, Nigeria, and began preaching out of her living room to a handful of followers, thanked board members individually for their decision.

"God bless you," she said, as she exited city council chambers.

The application of Mike's Carpentry, Inc., of 65 Reservoir Road, for the approval of the construction of a 3-unit, 3.5 story residential building at 595 Sea St., was met with little enthusiasm by local residents whose concerns focused primarily on possible flooding.

Judy McGuire, whose property abuts the proposed work site, said that she had "serious flooding concerns," and was afraid that any changes to the surrounding area may result in additional water draining onto her property, which has flooded several times in the past and is located in a flood zone.

According to a civil engineer working in conjunction with Mike's Carpentry, Inc., excess water would be directed towards the front of the property, where it would be collected by two catch basin inlets which would lead into a ground water infiltration system. It would then overflow into the city system.

Ward 1 City Councillor Margaret Laforest said she had "heard a lot of concerns about drainage" from residents, yet she is satisfied with the proposed flooding precautions.

She went on to echo the concerns of another Sea St. homeowner who took the opportunity to speak directly to board members, requesting that the catch basin inlets currently in place throughout the neighborhood be thoroughly cleaned.

"I appreciate the investment in Ward 1. The neighbors' concerns that are voiced here tonight are important to me," said Laforest. "I have worked with the property owner on other projects with his team and have been pleased with the results."

The motion to begin construction was passed unanimously by the board despite neighbor protests.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, June 12 at approximately 3:50 a.m., Officer Thomas Gaeta II was on preventive patrol on Granite Street. As he drove by the Burger King restaurant, he observed a male banging on the front glass doors of the closed restaurant. Realizing that the male did not see him drive by, Officer Gaeta pulled his cruiser over and conducted surveillance out of sight on the suspect. The suspect stopped banging on the front door and then ran quickly to the side door and began violently pulling on the door handles.

LT. DAN MINTON

The suspect then stopped and returned to the front of the restaurant, where he scanned the roadway, then sprinted towards the drive thru area and out of the officer's sight. Officer Gaeta believed that the suspect was attempting to break into Burger King, so he drove to the opposite side of the building and approached the suspect on foot. The Officer witnessed the suspect standing on a curb with his left foot and resting his right knee on the wall while pulling and pushing forcefully on the drive through windows as if attempting to manually pry them open.

Officer Gaeta surprised the suspect when he yelled out, "Quincy Police." The suspect immediately stepped away and said, "I'm just hungry - I want to buy some food."

At this time, Officers Daniel Church and Patrick Folan arrived on scene to place the suspect under arrest. The suspect, a 39 year-old homeless person, was charged with, "Breaking and Entering in the Night-time with intent to Commit a Felony" along with a Default Warrant from Quincy District Court for "Breaking and Entering (Misdemeanor), Destruction of Property over $250 and Trespassing."

Nice Work!

ANOTHER JOB WELL DONE

On Saturday, June 9 at approximately 5:25 a.m., Officer Edward Bagley was dispatched to the area of Sea and Palmer Street to investigate a call of someone pulling fire alarm boxes.

Upon arrival, Officer Bagley spoke with Lt. Daniel Duncan of the Quincy Fire Department, Engine 6, who said that his crew had just responded to Albartross Road for a false fire alarm box. After realizing there was no emergency or fire, Engine 6 reset the fire box and cleared.

Minutes later, the alarm came in for Sea and Palmer Street a short distance away, but again there were no signs of fire, so the box was reset. Lt. Duncan told Officer Bagley that a black pick-up truck was seen in the area. Moments later, a male in a black pick-up truck pulled up and asked to speak to Officer Bagley.

The male identified himself and said that he and his girlfriend were just involved in a domestic disturbance and she became physical. He said the verbal dispute was over his girlfriend's use of drugs and being drunk now.

The male said that he told his girlfriend that she would have to leave, which led to her punching the male over his left eye. The male stated that his girlfriend packed a trash bag and left on foot towards Palmer Street. When asked if he thought that his girlfriend would pull fire box alarms, the male said, "Yes - she is real drunk and high." The male added that he was looking for her because she was so drunk and smoking pot.

Officer Bagley informed the male about his rights but did not want a restraining order at this time. While attempting to locate the female suspect, a third fire alarm Box came in at Oakwood Road and Palmer Street. Based on the pattern of direction of the alarms, Officer Bagley continued on and found a female with a trash bag walking on Palmer Street.

Officer Michael Kelly joined Officer Bagley as they stopped the female suspect, who confirmed her identity as the female involved in the domestic violence incident. She was placed under arrest for the assault and then advised of her Miranda Rights. She then confessed that she pulled the fire alarms and apologized.

The suspect, a 31 year-old Quincy resident, was charged with, "Domestic Assault and Battery" and 3 counts of "Pulling a False Fire Alarm."

Nice Work!

Detective Edward Ryan: One Of Quincy's Finest

Quincy Police Detective Edward Ryan passed away last week. The 16 year-veteran was the epitome of the common police cliché, "A cop's cop." He had the uncanny sense of detecting a crime was about to occur.

Another cliché, "one of Quincy's finest" has always been associated with his quality work. Frequently recognized in the "Job Well Done" column, he will be missed.

Parade, Fireworks Celebrate Flag Day

MORE THAN 2,000 local youngsters marched in the 61st annual Quincy Flag Day Parade, including this group representing Quincy Youth Soccer. Children marching in the flag day parade is a tradition that dates back to the founding of the parade by the late Richard J. Koch, Sr., who served many years as the head of the Koch Club as well as the director of the Quincy Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department.

ELECTED OFFICIALS marched in the 61st annual Flag Day Parade and then had a chance to see the nearly 50 units that participated in the parade from the reviewing stand at the route's end at Merrymount Parkway.

FLAG DAY CELEBRATION culminated with a spectacular fireworks display that lit up the night-time sky over Blacks Creek.

Flag Day: It Was An Honor

From our hearts, we sincerely thank Mayor Koch and the Flag Day Committee for the special tribute paid the Vietnam Veterans of Quincy and the invitation to march in this year's parade.

We greatly appreciate and are grateful to the people along the parade route for the outpouring of cheers and the spontaneous display of support and acknowledgment of our services.

It was an emotional walk from the High School to Adams Field as we thought of our fellow veterans who were not able to be with us — especially the 48 individuals named on the Clock Tower. The parade was for you, and we proudly walked in your honor.

Thank you Tom Koch and the Flag Day Committee for giving us the opportunity to honor those Vietnam Veterans.

THIS IS A HAMMER

By Samantha Mazzotta

De-Cluttering For Mental Health

Q: My husband has claimed pretty much the entire garage with his workshop, tools and lawn-care equipment. A lot of it is necessary, but he just keeps collecting stuff. He's got at least three of the same screwdrivers and wrenches, and endless jars of old screws, nails and fasteners. I'd love to be able to park one of our cars in there. Or at least, you know, walk around without tripping over stuff. How can I get him to clean out the place without starting a feud? — Carol T., Providence, R.I.

A: Getting your husband to neaten up what's become his man-cave can be a real chore. He probably sees as necessary what you see as extraneous: those extra sets of tools have a purpose, at least in his mind.

Talk directly to him about it — the trick being not to accuse, nag or cajole him. He may not be very receptive to your request that he give you enough space to park the car in the garage, but tell him that's what you want. Don't build it into an argument; he's likely to just dig his heels in and not budge at all. Instead, try to get him to talk about what he'd really like to do with the space. It's hard to work in a messy workshop; did he have any projects planned that he hasn't yet started? Does he really just want a place to get away for a few hours? Find out what he wants, and see if you can work from there.

One option you might bring up is that the extra tool sets and other unneeded items can be sold by throwing a yard sale or putting them up online on a sales or auction site. The profit can be used to buy an item for the workshop, like a power tool, a refrigerator or an old couch.

HOME TIP: A tackle box is one way to store different sizes and types of fasteners like bolts, nuts, washers, and so on. It's portable and allows for quick access to the items you need to complete a repair.

BBB: Store Your Belongings With Confidence

The Better Business Bureau recommends checking out self-storage facilities carefully before handing over your precious belongings.

Here are 7 major factors to consider before selecting a temporary storage facility.

Cost. Obtain written cost estimates from at least three facilities. Most will insist on inspecting your items before offering an estimate. Costs to consider include the monthly rental fee (usually there are a minimum monthly storage charge and a minimum number of month's storage); storage preparation, padding, packing or transportation fees; and fees for extra options (electricity, pest control, insurance) you may choose. Ask how the fees are to be paid and by what date.

Size. What size storage units are available? Is there a maximum weight limit for unit contents? Can you jam-pack the entire unit from floor to ceiling?

Climate. Consider the general climate and whether your belongings might be subject to mold or water damage. If so, you may want to consider an environmentally-controlled unit.

Insurance. Make sure your items are insured from theft, fire or other damage. The facility may provide basic insurance or you can choose to purchase insurance from an alternate source. Some homeowners' policies cover self-storage; check with your insurance agent to be sure you are covered.

Safety. You will need a heavy-duty, secure lock protecting your storage unit. Ask if the facility has surveillance cameras on the property and if a system is in place to restrict access by strangers. Ask for contact information to reach someone at the facility in case of an emergency, both during and after business hours.

Contract. Get everything in writing — the size and location of the unit, options (such as climate-control) that you have selected, termination regulations, insurance coverage, and payment terms.

Access. What are the hours and related charges for accessing your unit? Is there adequate room for parking and is the distance from your car/truck to the rental unit acceptable?

Lastly, pay attention to your monthly bill or credit card statement to make sure you are up-to-date on your payments. You don't want your storage unit to be labeled "abandoned" and put up for auction.

"STILL NUMBER ONE"

Lost To Milton Post 114, 7-2 Monday At Adams Morrisette Post 294 Needs To Regroup Quickly

By SEAN BRENNAN

To be a successful baseball team you need to have a short memory. One loss does not make a season; however, this summer in American Legion Baseball in Massachusetts losing early in the year carries with it a weight that could bring a season to a crashing halt.

Unlike in years past when the top-5 teams from District 6 East and West met in a best-of-three district playoff round followed by a double-elimination, round robin sectional round, which determined what team advanced into the American Legion State Finals, only the first-place team in the East and the first-place team in the West (best record as of July 9) have any shot of playing for the state title.

The two top teams in District 6 East/West will now play a single playoff game to determine the District 6 champion.

This new "race to first" format has put extra onus on early season wins and losses. Even if a team rallies late in June, if they started slowly, a shot at playing in the state finals on July 29-August 2 at Brockton could be caput.

Through four games Morrisette Post 294, the reigning District 6 champion already faces an uphill battle. Following Monday's 7-2-loss to Milton Post 114, Post 294 has a 2-2 overall record, and with games this week versus Braintree (Wednesday night), Cohasset (Friday), Stoughton (Saturday), and Weymouth (Sunday), Morrisette needs to quickly regroup.

"Before if you were top-5, you were alright," said Morrisette Manager Steve Maze following Post 294's loss to Milton. "Now that isn't the case any more and it is tough because you have to finish in first place. Right now we are 2-2; we need to run the table this week."

"I told the kids that they need to have a short memory, but they also need to have a long memory because you have to know that you can't fix today, but you have to hate to lose more than you love to win. We have to come out tomorrow at practice and go all out, and we need to be ready to go the next game."

"It is not going to be a easy road," Maze continued. "I told them that the great thing about baseball is it is not like football where you play every Friday night and then have to wait around for seven days. Tonight's game is over and we have to go right back on the horse and do it all again. The whole thing is you have to come out and play hard."

It wasn't that Post 294 didn't play hard against Milton; Morrisette just couldn't get the big hit when it was needed most, and Post 114 did. And did so early off starter Tom McDonald.

Milton erupted for seven runs in innings one and three, which included throwing up a crooked number (5) in the third off the right-handed flamethrower out of BC High.

McDonald opened the game by allowing a lead-off single to Derek Curley before mowing down Joe Ferrera on strikes. A single from Tyler Starks (two hits) and a walk to Will Archibald loaded the bases with one out. McDonald looked like he would escape any damage after striking out Mike Davis for the second out, but Justin Lloyd (three RBI) laced a 2-run single to center, scoring Curley and Starks. McDonald picked up his third strikeout by getting Matt Levasseur swinging to end the frame.

Milton's Mike Demille allowed a one-out double to Matt Davis in the bottom of the inning, but stranded the Quincy High product by getting Jason Pekkinen to fly out and striking out Joe Alibrandi.

McDonald worked around a one-out error in the second, but Demille got Kevin White to ground out to short

SUN SPORTS

SHORTSTOP JOE ALIBRANDI and Morrisette Post 294 have a tough road ahead of them in the quest to advance back to the American Legion State Finals on July 29-August 2 in Brockton. Post 294's next home game is Friday at 8 p.m. versus Cohasset.

and Bob Kozlowski to fly to center before Adam Nazzaro singled with two outs in the second. Left fielder Andrew Currie (hit) flew out to end the inning.

Post 114 opened up a 7-0 lead with a five-hit top of the third. Starks doubled and advanced to third on a single by Archibald. After a walk to Davis loaded the bases with no outs, Lloyd drove in Starks with a RBI single (3-0) and Levasseur plated Archibald and Davis with a 2-run hit (5-0). McDonald bore down and fanned Pat Coffey for the first out, but Nick Petchell drove in Milton's sixth run with a sacrifice fly. Curley made it 7-0 with a RBI single that scored Levasseur.

"(Tom) hasn't pitched in a while and Milton is one of the better teams he has faced; they hit him, so hats off to Milton," said Maze about McDonald's outing. "They hit one of our better pitchers and that's the story."

With McDonald scuffling, Demille made quick work of Post 294 in the bottom of the frame. He got Patrick Verhault on strikes and Chris Connolly on a ground out before fanning Davis to end the third. McDonald settled down in the fourth, getting Starks, Archibald and Davis 1-2-3.

Morrisette finally got on the board in the bottom of the fourth. Pekkinen drew a leadoff walk and Alibrandi moved him to second with a single. White's deep fly to center advanced Pekkinen 90 feet to third and Pekkinen would come around to score on a RBI single from Kozlowski (7-1). With two outs, Currie plated Alibrandi with a bloop single to right-center (7-2).

Post 294 went to Sam Lawlor to start the fifth, and the second-year player sat down Milton 1-2-3, helping to keep momentum on Morrisette's side. After two quick outs by Demille in the bottom of the fifth, Pekkinen (single) and Alibrandi (walk) gave Post 294 life. However, Demille shut the door by getting White to pop to short.

Lawlor made short work of Milton in the sixth, but Demille countered with a 1-2-3 inning of his own in the bottom of the frame. Post 114 went quietly in the seventh, and after Verhault and Connolly led off the Morrisette seventh with singles, Post 294 had something going. Unfortunately a hard hit ball in the hole by Davis turned into a 6-4-3 double play. Pekkinen flew to center to end a frustrating affair for Post 294.

"These kids compete," praised Maze about his team's never-say-die attitude. "In the fifth inning we were a hit away from scoring two runs and in the seventh we had first and second and nobody out. We didn't roll over and die; the game wasn't over until the last out, but that hit that we needed just wasn't there."

"Every inning we were a hit away and it is frustrating as a coach, but you go back and you workout tomorrow; we are back at it on Wednesday."

STARTER TOM McDONALD fires a pitch toward home during Monday's game with Milton Post 114. Post 294 lost 7-2 to fall to 2-2 on the season.

THIRD BASEMAN JASON PEKKINEN reached base two times versus Milton. He walked and scored in the fourth and later singled in the fifth. The Archbishop Williams product is a second-year Morrisette player.

Post 294 Improves to 2-2 With Win Over Newton Junior Morrisette Rides Clancy To 5-2 Win

By TOM LAYMAN

Aaron Clancy got plenty of early help from his offense, but the right-handed pitcher looked to be in mid-season form in his first outing of the season on Monday night for Morrisette Post 294.

Clancy scattered six hits and struck out five, while only issuing two walks as he went the distance to shut down Newton Post 440 in a 5-2 victory for the Morrisette Post 294 junior team at Adams Field.

Post 294 head coach Rick Beach has seen dominating performances before from the right-hander and he wasn't worried about any rust from Clancy after he spent the entire high school season away from the mound as a catcher for Catholic Memorial.

"For me he's been my No. 1 pitcher since these kids were 10 years old," said Rick Beach, whose team evened out the record at 2-2 with the victory.

Clancy got himself into a little bit of trouble in the top of the first inning after allowing a leadoff single to Johnny Little. Kevin Alexy later hit a single to right and both runners would move up into scoring position at second and third with one down after a passed ball skirted by Post 294 catcher Liam Fitzmaurice.

Newton's Ethan Feldman fouled off two pitches on a 3-2 count, but Clancy got him swinging for the second out of the inning. Clancy got out of the jam unscathed after striking Teddy Radcliff out swinging to fan the side in the first inning.

"I think that was rust, because he hadn't pitched at all this year," said Rick Beach. "But I think Aaron did a great job."

The Post 294 bats went right to work in the first inning as Tyler Beach slapped a single to left from the lead-off spot. Beach stole second and moved up 90 feet on a grounder to third by Eddie Riley. Clancy helped himself as he took a 2-2 pitch deep enough to left field to bring in Beach easily for the 1-0 lead.

The hosts took advantage of some sloppy play from Post 440 in the second inning to extend the lead to 5-0. Fitzmaurice (2-for-3) started the inning with a single and would come home on an error by the shortstop on Bryan Turner's grounder up the middle. Eddie Riley singled home Patrick Keohane and Turner would come around after Newton made two errors throwing the ball around trying to catch the active Post 294 runners on the basepaths.

Overall Newton had three errors in the inning and Clancy would deliver the final run of the second with a RBI single to right for the 5-0.

"When you get more than three outs in an inning it's huge," said the head coach. "You definitely have to take advantage of it."

Clancy left the ball up at times in the middle innings, most notably in the fifth inning when Cleary brought in a run with a bloop RBI single that just fell in between the left-fielder and shortstop, but he was able to limit the damage and the get the defense involved in the field.

Bryan Turner came in and made a lunging catch on a popup by Dan Goldstein, and Turner quickly got to his feet to double off the runner on first to end the sixth inning.

Morrisette Junior gets right back into action Friday with an away game versus Cohasset.

Beach's boys invite Medfield Legion to Adams Field on Sunday (5:30 start), while Holbrook Legion visits Quincy on Tuesday for another 5:30 start. June ends with a home game on the 30th at 5:30 p.m. against Foxboro.

Another home game with Weston on July 1 is followed by a ten-day break for Morrisette Junior. The team is going to need all the rest they can get because when Post 294 gets back into action on July 11 it begins a stretch of five consecutive away games.

Post 294 heads to Foxboro on July 11, Franklin on July 14, to Newton on the 19th, Needham on July 22, and to Norwood on July 25. A home game at Colletta Field on July 27 against Cohasset precedes the final regular season game of the summer on July 30 at Medfield.

STARTING PITCHER AARON CLANCY scattered six hits and struck out five, while issuing two walks as he went the distance to close out Newton, 5-2, on Monday night at Adams Field. Post 294 improved to 2-2 overall with the win.

New Kids On The Block

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Morrisette Legion family welcomed a new addition to its ranks this summer with the inception of its Junior Legion program.

Coached by Rick Beach, this collection of 16 ball-players is the next wave of baseball talent in Quincy. Made up of kids from Quincy and North Quincy, BC High, Archbishop Williams and Catholic Memorial, Post 294 is off to a 2-2 start in its inaugural campaign.

"The whole idea of a junior program is great," said Beach before Monday's game versus Newton Post 440. "This is getting these guys ready to play at the next level. The good thing about this team is that we have eleven kids who played varsity baseball this year."

"We have been trying to get everyone to play together, but the majority of these kids have been with me since they were nine or ten years old."

Beach coached seven players on this junior team to the 13-14-year old Junior League Eastern Regional Tournament in Freehold, New Jersey last summer. Beach's Quincy Youth Baseball Junior League travel team defeated East Boston in a two-game-to-none series to win the Massachusetts state final.

Beach will also be coaching a number of these players in the upcoming 15-year old Babe Ruth New England Regional on Aug. 2-8 at Adams Field.

Against Newton Post 440, the starting nine included infielders Josh Haywood (first base), Eddie Riley (second base), Tyler Beach (shortstop), Bobby Salvucci (third base), and Liam Fitzmaurice (catcher).

Aaron Clancy got the start on the mound.

Other players on the roster include Ken Sorenson, Padraig Geaney, Mike Gendreau, Rob Munroe, Mike Carnevale, and Dave Suslowicz.

"The best thing about these kids is that they are all kids that play baseball," Beach said about the makeup of his team. "Baseball is their main sport and they love wearing the Morrisette colors. They act like baseball players; they look like baseball players, and they really like playing together."

Ceremony Held June 10

Ten-Member Class Inducted Into QHS Baseball Hall of Fame

By SEAN BRENNAN & CHRIS MCDANIEL

Ten worthy men, including two honorary members, were inducted into the Quincy High Baseball Hall of Fame at an induction ceremony on June 10 at the Sons of Italy Social Hall.

The 2012 induction class ranged in former players from the 1930's through the 1990's, and many of the men honored thought at first their induction was joke; most were shocked, but all were honored to join the 105 members already enshrined in the QHS Baseball Hall of Fame.

Max Shangold, Class of 1932, was inducted posthumously 80 years after he last played for Quincy High. He was represented at the banquet by his son; Barry Shangold who didn't even know the Hall of Fame existed. "That's going back 80 years," he said about his late father's high school baseball career.

Another former player inducted posthumously was Angelo LoCicero, Class of 1951. LoCicero was represented by his sister Marie LoCicero who was able to look at a banner being hung at the event and point out multiple Hall of Famers that she and her brother know and that he had played with.

LoCicero played for Hall of Fame coach Bill Sullivan. During his storied athletic career at Quincy, he played baseball, basketball and football and was voted best athlete in 1951. He was part of the Quincy basketball team that won a state championship.

When asked if her brother's induction was expected,

Marie LoCicero said, "Yes and no. It was one of those things if and when Joe Brill would do it."

The 1970's were represented by Paul Craig, Class of 1974, while the 1980's were represented by Joe Conti (1983) and Joe Ciardi (1985). Both Craig and Conti played under coach A. Bud Mosher.

"Every game was big," said Conti about his memories of Quincy High "playing under the lights at Adams Field."

"It was a surprise," Conti added about hearing that he was being inducted. "I've been out of school for thirty years now. Those were four of the best years (of my life)." After his career at Quincy High, Conti went on to play in the Cranberry League for Quincy and Weymouth for ten years.

Ciardi, who played under coach Bob Sylvia, was joined in the 2012 class by three members of team from 1990's: Steve Loud (1992), Dewey Holmes (1993), and Jeff Russell (1995), who all also played for Sylvia.

"I remember funny stories with Coach (Sylvia)," Holmes reminisced. He was the first baseman during a game in which Loud tossed a no-hitter, and he also got the game-winning hit against a tough Weymouth team.

Holmes later reflected on his senior year, which he called a "career year." That season he hit for the highest batting average in school history at the time. Holmes, like most of the inductees recalled that the biggest games were always against rival North Quincy. "Playing against friends growing up, there were always bragging rights (in those games)."

Longtime Morrisette Legion Manager Raymond Cattaneo and former City Clerk and current Norfolk County Commissioner John Gillis were also inducted into the Quincy Baseball Hall of Fame as Honorary Members. Cattaneo and Gillis join past Honorary Inductees George Burke, former Mayor James Sheets, and former Minnesota Twins Manager Sam Mele in the exclusive class.

The Hall of Fame Committee also recognized three Youth Baseball coaches who have given a lot of time, work and dedication to countless kids playing the game of baseball in the city. Presented with awards were Joe Pearson, Sr., Bob Griffin, and Steve Reardon.

Pearson coached for over 15 years between the Koch Club and Quincy Youth Baseball/AAA League. He started a travel team, which would go on to win all but one of their games. His team won three consecutive championships from 1967-1969.

"Joe Brill called and I was going to hang up on him because I thought it was a joke," Pearson said about the initial call that he was being honored by the Quincy Baseball Hall of Fame.

Wollaston Sr. Babe Ruth Finishes 2-2 Week

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth was a busy team last week. The Senior Babe Ruth representative from Quincy played four games, and finished the week with a 2-2 record.

The week that was included solid pitching performances in all four games, but untimely errors contributed to losses in two of the games. The team continued to receive strong offensive performances from its core of veteran players.

In the first game of last week, Wollaston lost to South Boston, 6-5.

Jonathan Leveille, a starting pitcher for Quincy High, held the perennial league champions to one earned run over five innings. In 12 innings this year, Leveille has allowed just one earned run for a 0.58 ERA. Former North Quincy payers, Eric Kelly (third baseman) and Kevin Jackson (centerfield) paced the offensive attack with two hits and one run batted in. Ed McDonough a recent gradu-

VOICE FOR HEALTH
by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

THE POWER OF GOOD POSTURE

Upper back pain is usually caused by poor posture. A prime example of the poor posture that can lead the upper back to suffer pain is the position that many office workers assume while hunched over their desks. This improper positioning overexerts the muscles at the base of the neck. As they battle to hold the cantilevered head in an upright position, intervertebral discs become strained, ligaments pull, and muscle imbalances arise. The resultant pain may lead many to the chiropractor for relief, but long-term relief may best be realized by adhering to the posture recommendations and program of stretching exercises presented by the chiropractor in hopes of staving off further problems.

Over 500 Participated On May 18

Central Sweeps MS Track Championships

Central Middle School wasn't going to be content with winning one City Championship. So, they won two.

Both the boys and girls' track teams took first place at the May 18 Citywide Middle School Track Championships, besting Atlantic, Broad Meadows, Point Webster and Sterling along the way.

This year's meet, which was held at Cavanaugh Field in North Quincy, included more than 500 participants who competed in events ranging from distance races to sprints to field events. Run by Middle School Coordinators Carolyn Parsley from Atlantic and Ricardo Cordero of Central, the event also received phenomenal assistance from Quincy/North Quincy track coach Geoff Hennessy and his coaching staff and student-athletes, according to Cordero.

Parsley's Atlantic entrant received assistance from Joe MacRitchie and Chris Ranft, while Cordero's winning teams were also coached by Aaron Skowrya.

Christine Flynn and Ron Adams coached Broad Meadows; Caitlyn Barry and Donna Mullen led the Sterling team; and Mike Maguire was the coach of the Point Webster program.

With over 500 competitors, the coaches mentioned two student athletes who did very well (while acknowledging that everyone who competed gave their best). For the champions from Central, Mia Healy and Aidan Smyth stood out; Melody Umeron and Zhang Hao Zhang shined for Atlantic; Molly Donahue and Andrew McDonnell highlighted a strong showing by Broad Meadows; Obehi Otoadese and Alley McPherson were tops for Point Webster; and Doug Santos and Olivia Palazzi stood out for Sterling.

The Quincy Sun's Sports Department was emailed a list of some of the top-performers from each event — both boys and girls. Some of the names listed did not include a full first name, but we are going to list the top-2 for each event anyway. Congratulations to everyone that went out and gave their best. In the end, that is all that matters.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Information you need might be coming in sporadically, but at least what you're getting is valuable. Continue to wait until more is available before acting on that career move.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You continue on an upbeat cycle, and with that strong Taurian energy you should see favorable results from your hard work. A pleasant surprise awaits you in your private life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A misunderstanding needs more time to be worked out. Don't give up on it just yet. Remain open to providing explanations, if called for. Another friend offers good advice.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Fast action can correct a seemingly minor problem that has taken on some unexpectedly difficult aspects. Stay with it until it's resolved. News on a more positive note is due soon.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Some snags could cause delays in those plans you're eager to see put into operation. But be patient. The Clever Cat will soon have good reason to celebrate a job well done.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Be careful not to let that Virgian sensitivity dissuade you from being the hardheaded realist you should be at this time. Your goals are in sight. Stay focused on them.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A more positive aspect opens up, allowing you to make some important changes in a personal situation. Remember to seek balance and avoid extremes as you proceed.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is a good week to get out and enjoy the fine times you missed while you were so deep in those workaday projects. Be sure to share it with that special person.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Work and play are in balance this week. However, expect news that could tip things toward the workplace for quite a while. But all to a good end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You're more productive on the job than you have been in some time. That's good. But be careful not to overlook some situations developing in your private life.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You've been doing a lot for others (as usual). But now it's time to focus on your needs, including finally going on that long-delayed trip you've been hoping to make.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It's all smoothly going on 'twixt you and that very special person in your life. But a colleague causes some disruption on the job that you might be called on to help settle.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are sensitive to the needs of others. But you're no pushover. You would make a fine teacher, psychologist or minister.

Quarries Canopy Tours

As originally proposed, the entire payment to the city would have gone towards school athletic programs. But Palmucci amended both measures last week so that all after school programs – including programs for the arts – would receive money from the tours, and not just sports.

"My wife is an artist," Palmucci said. "She's an art educator and she would kill me if I didn't fight for the arts. I think that while it's admirable that we put money towards the athletic department, not every student utilizes athletics. I think it's just as important to fund culture and the arts and foster that kind of attitude in our youngsters."

Though the project received approval from the council, Quincy must still reach a lease agreement with Endriunas. The city, the state, and Endriunas need a separate three-way agreement to use state land for the project.

60+ Senior Ice Hockey Team Is Based Out of The Quincy Youth Arena

Bald Eagles Earn Silver At MA Senior Games

The Quincy Bald Eagles, an Over-60 Senior Ice Hockey club that skates at the Quincy Youth Arena three days a week, placed second and earned a silver medal in the 70-Plus Division at the Massachusetts Senior Winter Games, held at the New England Sports Center in Marlborough on May 15-17.

The Bald Eagles defeated the Rhode Island Rhodys, 4-1 and the Central Mass Rusty Blades, 7-0, but lost to the division winning Moby Dicks out of Boston, 8-5 in the final.

Most players on the Quincy Bald Eagles are from the South Shore area. Quincy players on this year's team include Fred Cashman, Joe Chase, Ralph DiMattia, Jack Duffy, Jim Heggie, Jack Hurley, Jack Neely and Ken O'Connell.

Sponsored by the Quincy Youth Hockey Arena and McKay's Restaurant, the Bald Eagles have been playing since 1992, and annually enter three 70's division tournaments per year. The skill level of players range from lifetime pond hockey players to former college All-Americans. The current roster has players from age 60 (floor) through age 80.

The games are no check and no slap shots – the goal is to have fun and get in a workout. The QYA is the home ice sheet for the Bald Eagles with scheduled ice on Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 9-10:15 a.m. Summer hours will be on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 2-3 p.m.

Monday's ice time is reserved for age 65 and older while Tuesday and Friday ice is open to all players over 60. The Bald Eagles welcome new players, but reserve the right to limit the numbers of skaters to a manageable number (no more than 14 per team) at any given time.

The Bald Eagles are dedicated and play year round except for some occasional weeks when the rink is reserved for youth hockey tournaments or closed for routine maintenance. The cost is $6 per player per skate.

On top of playing organized hockey, the Bald Eagles are active off-ice. Activities include charitable donations, a Christmas party, summer pool party/barbeque, and occasional golf outings.

The Association is self-managed with an elected board, a constitution and monthly meetings. Anyone not conforming to the policies or proper play and sportsmanship will not be allowed to participate.

Pilot Community Service Program For High School Students

have kinks to work out but I am confident Quincy Public School's talented staff can do this.

"Now the high schools have to determine what will qualify for community service credit. I envision students assisting at food pantries, hospitals, health centers, Big Brother Big Sister, Salvation Army, senior centers, community centers and other ways to better our city and its citizens."

The pilot program will launch this October. Each high school will have a community service coordinator who will help students find different opportunities for community service. According to Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, the coordinator will be someone who is already a member of the school's faculty and the position will pay a stipend for the work they do.

School committee members Emily Lebo and Dave McCarthy voiced their concerns during the meeting about what will happen to those students who do not complete the required hours.

"What happens if the student doesn't do the community service?" McCarthy asked. "What happens if they blow off say 30 of the 40 hours - what happens at graduation?"

Policy subcommittee chairman Paul Bregoli said that it will part of the job of the coordinator job to stay on top of those certain students.

"Part of the responsibility of the coordinator is to identify those students who have not met the requirement of the 10 hours per year so it wouldn't drag on hopefully to the student's fourth year of high school," said Bregoli. "But in fact, if we do put this as policy, it would be just like not passing MCAS or not passing four years of English. They would not graduate. It is a graduation requirement. I do want to recognize Mrs. Bragg for bringing the high school community service pilot before this committee before I was on it. It's taken a while to get done Jo-Ann but we are ready to go."

Lebo said that although she would vote in favor of the pilot she still has her concerns about it, and that she would like to put the pilot under review before the committee decides to implement the program fully.

"I'm still not completely comfortable with this but I am going to support it," said Lebo. "I would like us to consider to not moving forward with the other implementation phase before reviewing the pilot. Moving forward in the fall of 2013 may be to soon to implement it fully. I would like to see what the pit falls are to make sure we can straighten them out before we implement this across-the-board."

Bregoli said that there are still a few things that need to be done before the pilot can take flight, including hiring a coordinator for both high schools and coming up with a list of approved businesses to volunteer with. Student organizations such as clubs, sports teams, and classes or individual students are encouraged to develop their own proposals, which will then need to be pre-approved at each high school. Students may work on their community service after school, during school vacations (including over the summer), and on weekends.

Council: Current Process Gives Public Ample Notice ZBA Remains Part Of Flood Plain Review

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal to take the zoning board of appeals out of the review process for construction work in federally designated flood plains was nixed by the City Council Monday night.

All projects in flood plains, except those in the downtown district, go before the planning board for a review and need approval from both the conservation commission and zoning board of appeals. Downtown projects already bypass the ZBA.

The proposal before the council, attached to a measure accepting a new flood plain map, would have allowed larger projects to go

City Evaluating Property Losses After Blacks Creek Flooding 19 Residents File Damage Claims

The city will be paying residents whose property suffered flood damages earlier this month when Blacks Creek overflowed into a Merrymount neighborhood.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins said he and his staff held a meeting with flood victims last Wednesday. About 30 residents attended the meeting, which Timmins called productive.

"Obviously people are very upset that their property was damaged and they're not happy to be in the position they are in," Timmins said. "But they were gracious at this meeting and they were communicative and we thought it was productive."

As of Tuesday morning, 19 claims had been filed. But other claims may be filed as more residents come forward. Timmins advised residents to contact the law department to file a claim, and to have supporting documents ready.

The claims will be paid out of the city's judgments budget, which was set at $200,000 for the fiscal year that starts July 1. Timmins declined to say how much the city expects to pay out in claims, but said the claims so far have been more manageable than damage reports after the storm would've indicated.

"What we found was that the magnitude of the claims was not as substantial as the original media coverage would lead you to believe," Timmins said. "When we actually talked to the individuals about what the scope of the losses were, they were a little more manageable."

There will be no cap on individual claims. Timmins said his office will evaluate any items damaged by the flood. So far those mainly include boilers, washers and dryers, and clothing.

Though the city will be paying damages, it won't admit liability because that could open the floodgates for insurance companies to seek money from the city.

"Our approach is going to be, at the direction of the mayor, to not even discuss liability issues," Timmins said. "We're simply evaluating the damage claims, and doing what we can to make all the property owners whole."

To that end, the solicitor said he's looking into drawing up release forms that could offer some protection to the city. But he doesn't want residents to feel their hands were tied.

Improvements OK'd For Drohan Apartments

By KRISTINA KALABOKAS

The Quincy Housing Authority is in good financial standing according to a recent budgetary review presented at last Wednesday's meeting of commissioners, where conversation focused primarily on the accumulation and redistribution of reserve funds to be used for anticipated improvements at Drohan Apartments.

In accordance with U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) policy, excess cash reserves can be captured from housing authorities unless they are utilized quickly for structural and administrative purposes.

"We've collected more than we've budgeted for. We ought to be able to keep some of that money," said Executive Director Joseph

A. MacRitchie who, along with fellow board members, voted in favor of allocating surplus funds totaling $250,000 from Pagnano Towers and O'Brien Towers, to the Drohan Apartment complex, which is operating with minimum reserves.

MacRitchie attributed the monetary gain to a more "hands-on" approach to collecting rent taking place in certain complexes, which encourages landlords to knock on doors and actively pursue tenants who turn in late payments or don't pay at all.

The improvements to be made to Drohan Apartments, which may possibly include a repaving of sidewalks and driveways, will be determined at a later date.

The discussion of repaving elicited comments from

Presidential Wreath To Honor 245th Birthday Of John Quincy Adams

A presidential wreath from the White House will be placed on the tomb of President John Quincy Adams in a ceremony at the United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center Wednesday, July 11 at noon.

The wreath-laying ceremony will commemorate the 245th birthday anniversary of the sixth President of the United States of America. The public is invited to attend and admission is free.

Captain (Select) Helen Furbush, Commanding Officer, Ft. Devens, will present the wreath on behalf of President Barack Obama.

A tour of the church and crypt where President John Adams and his wife Abigail Adams and their son President John Quincy Adams and his wife Louisa Catherine Adams are entombed will be offered after the ceremony.

In the 1960's, President Lyndon Johnson began the tradition of the White House arranging for a large laurel wreath to be placed with due ceremony on the graves of deceased U.S. Presidents.

President John Quincy Adams was born in Quincy (at that time the North Precinct of old Braintree) on July 11, 1767.

Commissioner Rosemary Wahlberg, who said that while on a recent walking tour of Germantown, she noticed the poor condition of the driveways of QHA run properties.

"Those driveways haven't been [repaved] since I was there in 1950. I mean, that's 60 years," she said. "I think we should at least make a plan that in the next five years or so, there would be consideration [for repavement]."

QHA Maintenance Director David Ferris attributed the lack of upkeep to the prioritization of structural repairs over strictly aesthetic enhancements.

"The state has always worked under the assumption that if it's not broken, don't fix it," he said.

Wahlberg said she was impressed by the overall appearance of QHA owned buildings in Germantown, but that when it comes down to it, "in the scheme of things the driveways can wait, but it did seem that 60 years was a long time."

BANK OF AMERICA BUILDING

Mayor Thanks Council For 'Historic' Session

Mayor Thomas Koch Tuesday thanked the Quincy City Council for its work this session that he said will see the City make "historic progress" on a number of initiatives vital to Quincy's future in the months ahead.

Koch highlighted the Council's work on state grant funding for infrastructure work as part of the Quincy Center redevelopment; the Council's endorsement of a plan that will accelerate the timing of the Quincy Center project; its approval of $18 million in financing for the preservation and restoration of old City Hall and Codrington Hall; and its hours of deliberation on a City budget that will see sustainable increases in public safety, education and infrastructure.

"We are setting a great example in Quincy about what can be accomplished when we work together, and I am greatly appreciative of the work of each of the councillors, their commitment to this City and their friendship and counsel," Koch said. "We have our challenges, but there can be no doubt that we are a City on the move. That would not be possible without the work of our city councillors."

The fruits of that work, Koch said, are already visible around the City and will become increasingly so in the weeks ahead. Construction vehicles can be seen fanning out already to different areas of the City on a number of projects — including the long-awaited Central Middle School, the new track facility next to Quincy High School, flood-relief projects, and construction to restore the Town Brook culvert through Quincy Center.

"It's going to be an incredibly busy construction season in Quincy — one of the busiest in many, many years. We are working aggressively and affordably to secure our City's future, and we're doing it together as community," Koch added.

Property Tax Incentive Program For Veterans

A program backed by the City Council may soon allow veterans to save up to $750 on their property tax bills by volunteering for the city.

Last Monday, the council unanimously agreed to accept Massachusetts General Law 59 Sec. 59, which allows cities and towns throughout the commonwealth to create a program where veterans would be able to volunteer and save money on property taxes.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin proposed the measure. He noted that many existing programs only offer tax breaks to veterans who have been left disabled or lost a limb. He said it was times for those benefits to be extended to other veterans.

"Without them there would be no America," Coughlin said. "I don't believe we should tread from any opportunity that we have to provide our veterans some recognition of their service. This benefit is not a gift, it's an earned benefit that we can secure for them."

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, the chairwoman of the council's committee on veterans services, spoke in support of the program too. She explained that many veterans already volunteer for the city, and it was time for the city to return the favor.

"These veterans clearly deserve this incentive," Hughes said. "Many of them, as we all know, already so generously volunteer their time here in the city and are perfectly willing and able to do so. And I think, in recognition of that, that this is a really great way to do that."

Mayor Tom Koch must still set-up the program and decide how it would be administered.

A similar program, proposed by then-Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, exists for seniors in the city. That program, the Senior Worker Abatement Program, has been in place for 17 years.

Determined to pay off your mortgage as quickly as possible?

This loan is for you!

There are so many good reasons to love the 15-Year Mortgage. For some people, it's about being debt-free. Others want the mortgage paid off by the time the kids go to college or before they retire. Some see paying off their mortgage quickly as a kind of "forced" savings. Here's the simple fact: If you can swing the somewhat-higher monthly payments, a 15-Year Mortgage knocks years off your original loan. Your equity builds very quickly. And you pay thousands less in interest, compared to a longer-term mortgage loan. Rates are still at historic lows. How much longer? Who knows. If a 15-Year sounds good to you, let's talk. Soon! Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com. (Have another loan or term in mind? A Great Day & Way To Discover Quincy

They're affordable, educational and offer a memorable experience.

They're "Discover Quincy Days" and they are a perfect opportunity to enjoy some of the city's historical sites, including some that may not get the exposure they richly deserve.

All you need is a $5 wristband and time on one of three upcoming Saturdays (or, plan to participate on all three Saturdays).

Discover Quincy Days are set for Saturday, July 7; Aug. 4 and Sept. 1. The first DQ Day was held June 2 and despite heavy rains, some two dozen hearty souls took part in the tourism experience.

DQ Days are the brainchild of the Discover Quincy Board of Directors. Discover Quincy is the tourism arm of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

The concept ties together some of the city's well-known tourist sites with lower-profiled but nonetheless history-rich venues. So if you've ever wanted to visit the Adams National Historical Park, United First Parish Church as well as the Dorothy Quincy Homestead and Josiah Quincy Home all on the same day, you can on a Discover Quincy Day.

Another feature of a DQ Day is the Hancock Cemetery where a National Park Service Ranger interprets gravesites of many of the city's historic figures and Revolutionary War leaders.

Simply put, Discover Quincy days offer a streamlined, cohesive approach to taking in some of the city's historic sites.

"It started off that we wanted to coordinate all the homes being open on the same day," says Donna Mavromates, vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. "Josiah Quincy and Dorothy Quincy (homes) were open one Saturday a month but on opposite Saturdays. People would come and they would want to experience everything but they were only getting pieces of it because not everything was open."

"We started discussing as a board if we could coordinate and have things open at the same time. That evolved into 'there's so much more in Quincy that people don't know about.' They know about the Adams tour and some of them finish the Adams tour and they don't even know about United First Parish Church and they certainly don't know about the Hancock Cemetery."

"So we said, why don't we put together these Discover Quincy Days so that people could come and we'll focus on Quincy's history to start with and people can do one, two or three planned itineraries. We also felt we had to make it easy and planned for them as well as provide transportation because again they can walk up to the Dorothy Quincy Homestead but the Josiah Quincy Home on Muirhead Road is hidden - people don't know where it is and how to get there."

There are three different itineraries for the Discover Quincy Days, and one includes shuttle transportation to the Dorothy Quincy Homestead on Butler Road and the Josiah Quincy Home on Muirhead Road in Wollaston.

The itineraries are:

- Adams Experience. Visitors embark on a trolley at the Adams National Park Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center, for a guided tour of the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, as well as the Old House at Peace field. Upon their return to the Visitor Center, they will visit United First Parish Church ("Church of the Presidents") for a guided tour of the church and the crypt where Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives are entombed.

Tours depart the Visitor Center between 9:15 a.m. and 3:15 p.m., leaving every quarter past and quarter of the hour.

Public parking in attached garage (Presidents Place.)

- The Quincy Experience. Visitors begin at the Adams Academy/Quincy Historical Society for a guided tour of the museum. From there, a 14-seat passenger shuttle courtesy of Yellow Cab of Quincy takes visitors to the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy. She was the wife of Patriot John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence and the first governor of Massachusetts.

After visiting the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, provided transportation brings visitors to the Josiah Quincy Home. The home - built in 1770 by Patriot Josiah Quincy - served as a lookout point for patriots observing British ships traveling in and out of Boston Harbor.

Wayne McCulley, the general manager of Yellow Cab, was instrumental in coordinating the passenger van service on Discover Quincy days. The white vans are spacious and clearly marked with Discover Quincy signs affixed on their side.

The launch point for the vans is in the parking lot of the Quincy Historical Society (Adams Academy Building), 8 Adams St. Tours depart from here at 12:45, 1:15, 2:15, 2:30, 2:45 and 3:45 p.m.

Free parking is available in the adjacent lot at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St.

- The third itinerary, "The Walking Experience," participants trace some of Quincy's history by "walking in John Adams's footsteps."

A walking tour map guides visitors from the Adams Academy down Hancock Street. Maps are available at the Adams Academy the guided tours run from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Highlights of the walk include markers and statues such as John Adams, Abigail Adams and young John Quincy Adams, and the Granite Gazing Ball outside City Hall.

Next stop is Hancock Cemetery, the sacred burial grounds of Patriots and early settlers. Among them: the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence; and Josiah Quincy, for whom the city is named.

A National Park Service ranger interprets some of the gravesites and helps guide visitors through the cemetery.

The walking tour concludes at the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Richardson Reading Room.

Dollar-wise, a DQ Day offers the most Quincy history for the buck. To see all three experiences on your own, it would cost about $22. But wristbands - which provide access to all three itineraries on one day - are only $5.

Wristbands can be purchased in advance at the Adams Academy, Best Western Adams Inn, Coffee Break Café, and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. They are also available on each Discover Quincy Day at the Adams Academy.

Many of the folks who took part in the first DQ Day last month sounded a familiar refrain: "I know there's so much history in Quincy but I never stopped to actually experience it myself."

That's where DQ Days step in.

"The days themselves are important and we want to get people out and have this experience but we really want to just raise awareness and have people recognize that this is here for you," Mavromates said. "It doesn't have to be one of these four specific days but just to remind people of the history we have here in Quincy."

There's also some thought to expanding the itineraries next year to include Quincy's proud granite and shipbuilding industries, aviation at Squantum Point Park and an entrepreneurial component that includes such business start-ups as the first Dunkin' Donuts and Howard Johnson's.

"Discover Quincy Days is really to make people much more aware and more appreciative of what we've got for history in Quincy," Mavromates says. "I think it also makes sense to have things coordinated and have a nice streamlined way of seeing Quincy's many historical sites."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 real photo postcard view of Beale Street in Wollaston looking east from the bridge over the railroad tracks. At the time what was known as Wollaston Center was located around the railroad depot that was just to the left and out of view here. There were just a few commercial buildings located at the intersection of Beale and Hancock Streets. In the building on the left the Wollaston Cash Market later became one of almost 40 First National Stores that were located throughout

Quincy. Howard Johnson opened his first store next to it on the left. After prohibition ended, the Wollaston Wine Company was located in this block as was the Viking Cafe that later became Dee Dee's Lounge. All of these buildings were demolished in the late 1960's to make room for the Red Line parking lot. The buildings on the right remain pretty much unchanged. Quincy's Yesterdays

This Week
1950
62 Years Ago

It Rained On Their Parade

The heaviest rainfall of the year (1.3 inches in 24 hours) fell on Quincy during Fourth of July celebrations, cancelling fireworks displays but otherwise failing to dampen holiday enthusiasm.

Chairman Paul Benzaquin, dressed as "Bushman the Gorilla," led the parade in Merrymount, which featured a 1923 Stanley steamer driven by John Simmons.

The single men defeated the married men, 10-9, at the Adams Shore Community Club festivities and John Reardon, Barbara DelMonica, Jerry Spink and Gordon Faust were judged the four best horrors.

Commander Harold Mason of the Nickerson Legion Post led the parade in the 41st Independence Day observance in Squantum and Danny Shea's barbershop quartet entertained in the evening.

The Montclair Men's Club played host to some 1,200 youngsters during the day and threw a dance and concert for adults in the clubhouse in the evening and everyone went outside to Bishop Field when the rain stopped.

Fontbonne Academy Collects Food Items For Germantown Pantry

Fontbonne Academy junior Cindy Truong of Quincy recently collected an exceptionally large number of food items for Quincy's Germantown Food Pantry.

The pantry had been the recipient of Fontbonne's Thanksgiving Food Drive and recently reached out to Fontbonne to let them know they were very short on food supplies, and Fontbonne's Service Club was called in to help. Cindy put the word out through emails and posters throughout the school, and set up tables in the back of the Fontbonne Cafeteria for all the generous donations that poured in.

The Service Club was also able to collect loose change over the course of the food drive so that additional provisions could be purchased and donated.

"I was completely blown away by how much of a success the food drive was and by Fontbonne's generosity. Looking at the huge pile of food we were able to collect made me feel really proud to be a part of this food drive. We were just collecting loose change at the end of each lunch but somehow we got up to over $100! The food collected should supply the food pantry for quite a while. We definitely exceeded everybody's expectations. I know we exceeded mine," beamed Cindy Truong.

Fontbonne Academy is proud of the effort made by the Service Club, and particularly of the efforts made by members Cindy Truong '13 of Quincy, Vivian Chau '15 of Quincy, and Cecilia Thai '15 of Boston who coordinated the food drive.

Bank Of Canton Quincy Branch Moving To 60 McGrath Highway

After 15 years at its present location on Quincy Avenue, the Bank of Canton is relocating to a new, larger branch at 60 McGrath Highway, Quincy.

The Bank of Canton has maintained a branch at 275 Quincy Ave. since 1997. Bank officials said steady growth has necessitated the move to the Mayor McGrath Highway location.

On Saturday, June 30, the bank will close its full service location on Quincy Avenue and move to the new location, which will be open for business on Monday, July 2.

The branch opens at 7:30 a.m. for the drive-up teller and 9 a.m. for walk-in customers. The bank also announced there will be no interruption in service during the relocation.

To maintain service to customers, the 24-hour ATM will be available at the Quincy Avenue location through July 2 and will be fully transitioned to the new branch on Tuesday, July 3.

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Chicken Cacciatore

Here is a great healthy recipe for a favorite-chicken cacciatore from my daughter Suzie who is a nutritionist, and is sharing this great recipe with all of us.

Chicken thighs with the bone in can also be used, but today's recipe is made with chicken breasts and also delicious. Needless to say, all of the ingredients are organic.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE

- 1 ½ pounds chicken breasts (cut in pieces)
- 2 cloves of garlic
- 1 medium Vidalia onion (sliced)
- ½ cup extra virgin olive oil
- 1 shredded carrot
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1- teaspoon red pepper flakes

- 1- teaspoon basil
- 1-teaspoon thyme
- 2 teaspoons fresh Rosemary (chopped)
- 1 package of baby Bella mushrooms
- 1 -28 ounce can crushed tomatoes
- Salt and pepper
- 2 tablespoons fresh parsley

Season the chicken with salt and pepper. In the hot oil, sauté the chicken and brown well. Remove from pan and set aside.

In the same pan, add the onions, mushrooms, red pepper flakes and all other seasoning except for the parsley and garlic.

Return the chicken to the pan and toss with the garlic, and cook. Add the tomatoes and carrots and simmer covered for 25 minutes. Serve with fresh parsley over the top.

Carrot Muffins With Pecans

Here is a great recipe for carrot muffins that I received from my daughter Nancy and one that is pretty healthy as it is made with organic ingredients, and without a lot of sugar.

The sweetness of the carrots and the rest of the ingredients give it a more natural sweetness.

CARROT MUFFINS

- 1 ½ cups wheat flour (She used oat flour)
- 1- teaspoon baking powder
- 1- teaspoon baking soda
- 1- teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ - teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- ¼ teaspoon allspice
- 2 large eggs
- ½ cup sugar (she used natural cane

- sugar)
 - 1½ cups finely shredded carrots
- In a bowl whisk together thoroughly all of the ingredients except the carrots. After that is mixed, stir in the carrots and let stand for 10 minutes. Do not over mix. Then stir in the following and mix until blended.

- ¼ cup orange juice
- 5 tablespoons melted unsalted butter or vegetable oil
- ½ cup chopped pecans (or walnuts if preferred)
- ½ cup golden raisins

Divide the batter in the greased muffin tins or line with paper cups. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 15-18 minutes. Let cool for 2-3 minutes before removing from the pan. Let cool on a rack.

ZBA Remains Part Of Flood Plain Review

through the planning board and conservation commission, while smaller projects would need approval from Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca and then the Conservation Commission.

Planning Director Dennis Harrington said the proposal was made to help reduce redundancy in the process. "One of the key elements was to remove the double permitting scenario for projects where they have to go through the Zoning Board of Appeals," he said.

Councillors were skeptical of the change from the start of the meeting. Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said he was concerned about the shift because the planning board can set conditions for proposed projects, but not stop them like the ZBA can.

"There's a big difference," Palmucci said, "between having a public hearing where neighbors can come up and tell the planning board what their concerns about the project are... and the planning board putting in conditions to make that project bearable for the neighborhood, or even improved for the neighborhood...and the ability to prevent a development from moving forward."

Other councillors were concerned about limiting comments from abutters to proposed developments. Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said he wanted to keep the redundancy in the process to insure those who wanted a chance to speak out had an opportunity to do so.

"The public can never really get enough notice," McNamee said. "People are busy and I like to have that redundancy - it's added insurance for the public to get the best outcomes for their neighborhoods."

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes said her constituents wanted to keep the zoning board involved in the process. Their feeling, Hughes said, was that the zoning board "might hear something that makes a difference for their case."

McNamee proposed an amendment striking the zoning changes from the acceptance of the new flood plain map. The amendment passed 6-2, with all six ward councillors backing it. Council President Mike McFarland and Councillor Joe Finn voted against the amendment. Councillor Doug Gutro was absent.

The council also accepted the new flood plain map, as defined by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) by a 7-1 vote. Palmucci voted against accepting it because he hadn't seen the new maps as they weren't presented to the council.

The new flood plain designations go into effect July 17. Before the council's vote, Duca said the new map is largely unchanged from the current one, which was introduced in 2006.

"There are a handful of people that may be put in," Duca said, "but there were also some that were taken out."

Duca said that homeowners should contact his office to see whether or not they will live in a flood plain come July 17. Residents may also view the new and old maps at the city engineering department's headquarters on 55 Sea Street.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest hosted a forum on flood plains in March. At Monday's meeting, she urged residents who will be moved into a flood plain to purchase flood insurance immediately. That way, they'd pay a lower rate than if they waited for the new map to take effect.

"Do not wait until the change happens," Laforest said, "because it's going to be much more expensive for you on the insurance end. Now, you can buy the insurance before you're restricted in with this map taking effect July 17. Then you get grandfathered in at your rate."

Information on flood insurance, but not the new maps, is available online at floodsmart.gov, the official website of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).

Residents are also able to apply for a letter of map amendment (LOMA) through FEMA's website - FEMA.gov. That allows houses elevated above a certain level to be removed from the flood plain map.

Manet Community Health Center Receives $102,268 In State Funds

By EMILY TAFT

The Manet Community Health Center located in Quincy has received $102,268 from the Patrick-Murray Administration to enhance their ability to transition to global payment systems.

"We are pleasantly surprised to be funded and appreciative to the Commonwealth for their support in Manet and our efforts to maintain quality health-care," said Henry Tuttle the Chief Executive Officer of Manet Community Health Center. "It is great that we have been funded and we are pleased to see that our work is being rewarded."

The funding is designed to support one of five priority areas at hospitals and community health centers which include initiatives to support a transition to a global payment systems, support for community health centers to achieve recognition by the National Committee for Quality Assurance (NCQA) as Patient Centered Medical Homes, support for community health centers that are already recognized by NCQA as Patient Centered Medical Homes to enhance clinical care management, supporting performance management improvement activities, enrollment, outreach, and health care access improvement projects for consumers who may be eligible for insurance programs and for consumers who may require individualized support for various reasons.

This is the third year Manet Community Health Center has received funding from the administration to help implement the global payment systems. Tuttle said that they had to report to the administration on the progress of the system in order to be considered for the funding again this year. The program allows Manet to manage the patients who need more attention health wise, and encourages health centers to focus more on the health of the patient then the cost aspect of their visits.

"The responsibility for keeping the patient healthy is ours," said Tuttle. "Instead of looking at their health care as a fee for every service they receive, there is a budget for every patient."

Once the system is implemented, Manet will be accepting a flat-rate-fee for their patients. In the past few years, Tuttle said Manet has been working diligently in getting things going and that with certain insurance companies they are already using the global payment system. Global payment systems allow for the cutting of health care costs for patients. The new system would allow Manet to track patients, call and remind them when they are due for check ups, and allows doctors to look at their progress all in one system.

Police Urge Awareness, Action At Ward 3 Safety Meeting

The Quincy Police Department recently held a safety meeting at the Montclair Elementary School to update residents on criminal activity.

The meeting was hosted by Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and attended by Doug Gutro.

Community Police Officer Sean Glennon updated the audience about recent crime as did Transit Police Lt. William Fleming.

Main concerns were the unarmed robberies in the past few months in the area between North Quincy and the Wollaston train stations.

There have been six incidents, resulting in two arrests and one warrant issued for another suspect. In the remaining cases, detectives are following up on leads.

Another issue was house breaks, which appear to have subsided due to recent arrests. Car breaks were consistent with the rest of the city and these occurred overnight. Officers on the midnight shift have been diligent catching numerous criminals breaking into cars.

Almost all car breaks throughout the city are the result of unlocked doors, police said.

During the presentation, Quincy Police Crime Prevention Lt. Dan Minton urged residents to create the habit of being aware of their surroundings, identifying potential threats and listening to their intuition.

The second message was to take "action" by reporting suspicious activity before a crime occurs.

At the end of the meeting, citizens met individually with Coughlin and the contingent of Police Officers to discuss individual matters.

Thomas Zukauskas Retiring As President Of Cerebral Palsy of MA

By JENNIFER LOGUE

When Tom Zukauskas joined Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts as assistant director in 1980, the agency primarily served 30 local children and had an annual budget of $200,000.

When he retires June 30 after 20 years as the organization's chief executive officer, Zukauskas, 64, will leave a well-respected nonprofit with a $270 million budget and 185 employees that serves 12,000 people with all types of disabilities across the state.

"I feel I accomplished what I set out to do, and the agency is in a good position, so it seemed like the right time to retire," said Zukauskas, who will be succeeded by Larry Spencer, the agency's longtime chief financial officer. "I have every confidence that Larry will continue to maintain the agency's high standards and move it forward to even greater success."

TOM ZUKAUSKAS

A lot has changed in the 32 years since Zukauskas first joined CPMA, which initially was founded by a group of Quincy parents to serve children with Cerebral Palsy. In 1980, the agency operated out of a 3,000 square-foot facility. Today, CPMA operates from a 21,000 square-foot headquarters in Quincy and a 4,000 square-foot office in Taunton, where the agency's Personal Care Attendant program is based. Funded by Medicaid, the agency's PCA program – the largest of its kind in the state – provides personal care attendants to individuals with disabilities, allowing them to live as independently as possible in their own homes.

The state's support for the PCA program played a large role in CPMA's growth, Zukauskas said.

"The state has been very supportive of the program," he said. "They recognized it as a positive alternative to institutionalization for people with disabilities."

A highlight of the PCA program, Zukauskas added, is the amount of control it gives to each consumer, as the agency refers to its clients. "Through the program, Cerebral Palsy trains the consumer to hire, train and pay his or her own personal care attendants," he said. "The consumer is really empowered, and we're here to support them in managing their PCAs."

To assist consumers in handling the legal and financial aspects of hiring their attendants, Cerebral Palsy operates a fiscal intermediary program, which processes PCA timesheets and paychecks, and pays the necessary state and federal taxes.

"Our fiscal intermediary program is a national model," Zukauskas said. "They process timesheets and payrolls for 20,000 PCAs every two weeks."

New technologies have also played a role in the agency's growth: Zukauskas recalled that when he first joined the agency in 1980, the most technologically advanced equipment on hand was an IBM Selectric typewriter. Today, CPMA uses special optical character recognition software to quickly process PCA paperwork, and all case managers are outfitted with cell phones and laptops, enabling them to access needed records while making home visits to consumers.

The agency also offers numerous free programs for local children and adults with disabilities. CPMA has a longstanding relationship with the Quincy Public Schools, providing physical, speech and occupational therapy services to students. It also runs a weekly children's aquatic program as well as a therapeutic riding program, where young children with disabilities strengthen their muscles and balance through horse-back riding. And one of the agency's longest-running programs — a weekly activities class in Quincy for adults with disabilities — has been going strong since the 1960s.

"I think that what sets us apart is not just that we offer all these services," Zukauskas said. "It's the quality of our services - that's what has really established our reputation. At Cerebral Palsy, the consumer comes first, and that's true from our frontline staff all the way up to our board of directors, which has been incredibly supportive of our mission over the years."

It's that mission, Zukauskas said, that kept him with the agency for more than three decades. "I never thought I'd be here 32 years," he said, noting that over the years he'd had opportunities to move on to other organizations. "I'm glad I stayed."

Even as he discusses retirement plans that include spending more time with his two adult sons and three grandchildren at his home on the Cape, Zukauskas said he will still be available to assist CPMA on a part-time basis with special projects, such as the agency's planned purchase of a new Middleboro facility to replace its Taunton office, tripling its space to 14,000 square feet.

"I've just always enjoyed the mission," he said. "And I always thought there was more to do."

Seven Tips To Help Landscapes Beat The Heat

By MELINDA MYERS
Gardening expert, TV/radio host, author & columnist

Summer has arrived and for many gardeners that means heat, drought and watering bans. This can be hard on gardeners as well as their landscapes.

The good news is that there are ways to help plants thrive despite these seasonal challenges. Adjusting landscape care accordingly during the summer months can not only provide relief for lawns and gardens, but also for the gardener.

Here are some low maintenance eco-friendly ways gardeners can keep their landscapes looking their best throughout the summer months, while beating the heat:

- Water plants thoroughly to promote deep drought- and pest-resistant roots. Wait until the top few inches of soil are crumbly and moist or footprints remain in the lawn before watering again.

- Avoid light, frequent watering that encourages shallow roots. Shallow roots are less able to tolerate drought and more susceptible to disease and insect problems.

- Spread a 2- to 3-inch layer of shredded leaves, evergreen needles or shredded bark mulch over the soil in garden beds and around trees and shrubs. Mulching conserves moisture, keeps roots cool and moist, and suppresses weeds.

- Mow lawns high. Taller grass produces deeper roots that are more drought-tolerant. A deeply rooted lawn is also more resistant to insects, disease and other environmental stresses.

- Always mow lawns often enough, so you remove less than one third the total leaf surface. Leave the grass clippings on the lawn. They add nitrogen, organic matter and moisture to the soil.

- Use a low nitrogen slow release fertilizer, like Milorganite, to give gardens and lawns a nutrient boost. This organic nitrogen fertilizer remains in the soil until the growing conditions are right for the plant.

- Remove weeds from garden beds and borders as soon as they appear. These "plants out of place" steal water and nutrients from your desirable garden plants. Plus, they can harbor insects and diseases that are harmful to your garden plants.

- And don't forget to take care of yourself while caring for your landscape during the heat of summer. Drink lots of liquid, use sunscreen, and work during the cooler morning and evening hours.

Then when the gardening tasks are done for the day, grab a glass of lemonade, take a seat in the shade and enjoy the beauty of your handiwork.

Council Endorses Early Start For Downtown Redevelopment

By SCOTT JACKSON

An early start to downtown redevelopment was endorsed by the City Council at its meeting last Monday.

Private development on the downtown was to begin in the fall of 2013 in the area where the city-owned Ross Garage currently stands. That project would've led to the creation of mostly retail space known as Market Center.

Earlier this month, however, Mayor Tom Koch personally told the council that developer Beal/Street-Works would instead begin construction as early as next February or March. And instead of the Ross Garage area, the first work would begin in a wedge-shaped parcel spanning from the Granite Trust Building to Cottage Avenue. That area, known as Block 4 or Merchants Row, features a mix of residential, office, and retail space.

Though the change in the timeline didn't need council approval as both Koch and Planning Director Dennis Harrington found the change to be a minor one under the agreement with the developer, the council was still asked to endorse it. To that end, a meeting of the council's downtown committee took place immediately prior to the full council meeting last week.

During the committee meeting, Councillor Joe Finn asked city attorneys if the change in plans could allow Beal/Street-Works to walk away from Quincy Center after only developing Merchants Row.

"I don't want this to sound the wrong way because I know people have been moving forward with good faith," Finn said. "But is there anything in this that would allow, essentially, one deal and out in terms of Block 4 and basically leaving the rest for not?"

That scenario is unlikely, according to Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines, who said that Beal/Street-Works has already made a substantial investment in the project. They've already spent about $25 million in pre-development costs, a number that will jump to nearly $80 million over the next 15 months.

Outside legal counsel Bob Fishman further explained that Street-Works founder Ken Narva told him the company couldn't make a profit if it only developed Block 4, and further explained that the shifting timeline was related to market demands.

"It's like a chicken and egg issue," Fishman said. "What comes first, do you build some residential and office [space] to create the critical mass of people who then shop at the retail or do you start with the retail?"

"What retailers are telling [the developers]," Fishman continued, "and what their investors and equity sources are telling them is 'start with something that isn't retail — create the market.'"

In the end, Finn agreed that the move was made by market demands. He maintained that the council would need to be wary going forward, but expressed support for the project's acceleration.

celeration.

"We're going to have to be vigilant as this moves forward," Finn said. "It's not always going to go exactly according to any plan per se, but a lot of this also has to be driven by certain demand and what the economy is going to help in some regard. I think this a positive component because this will actually see stuff happening downtown sooner."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin also expressed support for the project at the committee meeting. He told his colleagues that the development would help boost the economy faster.

"This redevelopment of the downtown is an economic engine," Coughlin said, "not just for the City of Quincy but really the entire region. Let's prime that pump and get that engine started six months quicker. It's all to the good of the City of Quincy. It's to the good of the taxpayers. It's to the good of people looking for jobs so desperately out there now."

Downtown committee chairman Doug Gutro weighed in as well. He said the accelerated timeline indicates that years of effort paid off and was happy Koch brought the issue before the council.

"This is a strong sign that the fruits of the labors of the past decade are really beginning to ripen ahead of schedule," Gutro said. "And the fact that we're here on a minor change, and given the opportunity to weigh in as the City Council...I welcome that. It's a sign that the executive branch and the legislative branch can continue to work in partnership."

With their unanimous endorsement of the new timeline, the council also backed two changes to the financial arrangements between the city and developer. One part increases by at least $150,000 the amount of money the city will receive for payments during step 1 of the project. The other part penalizes the developer $1 million if work at Merchants Row doesn't begin by September 15, 2013 and if a closing date for the Ross Garage isn't put in place at that time.

While the council endorsed the new plan, Hines noted that there remains much to be done before work on Merchants Row begins. Building permits need to be issued, and a review of Beal/Street-Works financing is needed as well.

The price tag for Merchants Row is $120 million. Once completed, it will have two new residential buildings with 300 total units. The area will also include office space and street-level retail, most of which will be on a new public road bisecting the parcel. Merchants Row is expected to be completed in 2014, at about the same time construction of Adams Green wraps up.

Officer Terry Downing, president of the Quincy Police Patrol Officers Association, presents the donation to Kathy Quigley, executive director of the Germantown Neighborhood Center. "We would like to extend a huge thank you to the Quincy Police Patrol Officers Association for their generous donation to our youth programs. 19 Residents File Flood Damage Claims

"We're trying to respond quickly and [residents] get back on their feet," Timmins said. "We're not trying to respond in a manner that, after the fact, they might feel like legal options were foreclosed because they acted hastily."

So far, Timmins is unaware of any potential lawsuits against the city related to the flooding, but said his office hasn't heard from all residents affected by the flooding.

The flooding, which happened just before midnight on June 3, caused damage to about 30 homes on Lafayette, Armory, and Putnam Streets in Merry-mount. Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi later said that tide gates on Blacks Creek had been left open because they couldn't be closed during the storm itself.

Mayor Tom Koch held a community meeting on the flooding on June 12. At the meeting, he pledged that the city would help residents. "I want to make good as best we can," he said.

As part of the mayor's capital improvement plan, the 20-year-old gates will be replaced, a process the mayor said should begin by the spring of 2013. As part of the $800,000 project, Blacks Creek will also be dredged, though it's unknown when dredging will take place.

ARTIST RENDERING of townhouse complex proposed by Quincy-based Galvin Construction on the site of the former St. Mary's Convent, 135 Crescent St., West Quincy.

Townhouses Planned At St. Mary's Convent Site

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy-based Galvin Construction plans to build a townhouse complex on the site of the former St. Mary's Convent, 135 Crescent St., West Quincy.

The project calls for nine townhouses at the former convent. It has been approved by the city's Zoning Board of Appeals and will next be reviewed by the Quincy Planning Board.

Project planners said the townhouse concept will boost church finances from the sale of the property and offers a good fit for the residential neighborhood.

Co-owners Sean and Scott Galvin came up with the project because as parishioners of the church it is important to them.

"We have been told the income from the sale of the property will directly affect the parish in an arrangement with the archdiocese, which as parishioners was important to Scott and I," said

Sean Galvin.

"We came up with a small condominium project that would be marketed to homeowners, not renters, and scaled it in size, only 1 1/2 stories, so as not to dominate the neighborhood. We thought it was a good opportunity and a good neighborhood."

Galvin said that a neighborhood meeting was held to see what would and wouldn't be acceptable to the neighbors and they then did their best to design a project that was economically feasible and met those criteria. The company then held another neighborhood meeting in March with Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci to present the project to the neighbors.

The proposed project will cost $3.2 million to demolish the 62-year-old convent and construct the townhouses. According to Galvin, the property had been for sale for about a year and a half before the brothers decided to purchase it.

The proposal calls for nine "Cape Cod Style" wood frame townhouses. The homes will have five to six rooms, two bedrooms, and two bathrooms, and the grounds will be professionally landscaped with traditional front lawns, planting beds, and paved walk ways.

New catch basins with particle separation devices will be installed to work in conjunction with the new curbed parking lot to collect, treat, and recharge rain water.

The site contains approximately 46,805 square feet where currently a three story, wood frame, brick veneer convent building lays.

The construction phase of the project is expected to last around four to five months and the townhouses will be sold in the mid $300,000 range.

City Remembers 'Forgotten War' On Korean Veterans Day

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy observed Korean Veterans Day Monday with a wreath-laying ceremony to commemorate the 62nd anniversary of the start of the Korean War.

The ceremony was held at the Korean War Veterans Memorial located at the corner of Hancock Street and Merrymount Parkway, and featured special guest speaker Richard F. Foy, a U.S. Army Korean War veteran.

Born and raised in Quincy, Foy graduated from Quincy High School in 1950. He has been a member of the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post #294 for 42 years.

Foy served 16 months in South Korea during the war and said in Quincy, the "Forgotten War" has not been forgotten.

"The Korean War is known as the forgotten war, but it was a horrible, bloody war," said Foy. "The forgotten war was not forgotten by Quincy. There were a bunch of young veterans who got together, raised donations, sold bricks, and they got the city to give us a piece of this property so we can honor the men that served," Foy said at the granite memorial.

"Let us not forget these men."

Foy said that he had written a long speech but because of the forecast for heavy rain, he decided to just say a few words and wanted those in attendance to remember one thing: freedom is not free.

"We have a saying, 'Freedom is not free' and it is so true," said Foy. "Let us forget about the monetary costs, and let us remember the lives that have been given up in sacrifice so that we can live the way we want."

Also in attendance were Mayor Tom Koch, state Sen. John Keenan, state Rep. Tackey Chan, and Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest.

"When you look back, think about what we sacrificed and the sacrifices that we made," said Keenan. "As we stand here today, let us not forget that in the battle of right and wrong the United States was clearly on the side of right."

The ceremony ended with a roll call of all 38 Quincy natives who died during the Korean War. Their names are listed on the Korean War Memorial.

A wreath was also placed in the front of the memorial.

Also participating in the program were P.C. John Raeke, chaplain of the Quincy Veterans Council, who gave the invocation; Naseeb "Moe" Morad of the Morrisette American Legion Post who sang the Star Spangled Banner; Joseph H. Brooker, chaplain and past president, Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces of Quincy, who offered the benediction; and Robert LaFleur, past commander, Quincy Veterans Council, who played "Taps."

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

DO YOUR TEETH MATCH YOUR SKIN?

We are all at least somewhat familiar with any number of invasive and non-invasive cosmetic surgery procedures (ranging from laser skin rejuvenation to face-lifts) that are popular among those wishing to eliminate wrinkles, sagging skin, and surface imperfections. As effective as these treatments and procedures are, their effect can be undermined by teeth that are decidedly less youthful-looking. The good news is that dentists also perform an array of cosmetic procedures that can make anyone's smile as perfect as his or her skin. Such procedures include simple, non-invasive professional tooth whitening and bonding, which cover imperfections and fill cracks with tooth-colored resin. Lost To Westwood, 3-2; Record Stands At 7-3

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Let's One Slip Away

By SEAN BRENNAN & CHRIS MCDANIEL

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth began the season scintillatingly hot with a 7-2 record in South Shore League action, but the chance to storm out to an 8-2 mark through ten games went by the wayside on Sunday night at Adams Field.

Against Westwood, Wollaston led 1-0 heading into the seventh inning and looked well on its way to grabbing another early season win, but Westwood had other plans as the visitors rallied late to win, 3-2.

It was a loss that stung for Wollaston. On two separate occasions in the seventh inning, pitcher Jonathan Leveillee was a strike away from ending the game. Leveillee started off the seventh by hitting a batter with two strikes before calming down to get a sacrifice bunt out and a punch-out, but with two outs and trailing by a run, Westwood perfectly placed hits to bring in three runs, grabbing a 3-1 lead entering the bottom of the frame.

Despite trailing 3-1, Wollaston would not go quietly into the night. Matt Kerin led off the bottom of the seventh getting robbed of extra bases on a diving catch from the Westwood centerfielder; however, Billy Campbell beat out an infield hit and stole second and Leveillee plated Campbell with a rocket single up the middle (3-2), but Westwood escaped further damage and hung on to win 3-2.

Wollaston's pitching combination of Leveillee and catcher John Marsinelli were the story despite the hard-luck loss.

Leveillee pitched six shut-out innings to start the game while only allowing two hits. He finished the game allowing four hits, three walks and had three strikeouts in a compete game effort that Coach Steve Reardon called, "gutsy."

At the plate, Leveillee had Wollaston's only RBI. "He has been on fire," said Coach Bob Griffin about Leveillee's performance in the batter's box.

Marsinelli had a monster game both offensively and defensively for Wollaston. He finished 2-for-4 with two stolen bases and a run scored, and behind the dish he threw out a Westwood base runner and saved another run with a textbook block of home plate.

"Marsinelli has really taken charge of this team," said Reardon. "He keeps the pitchers in control, even better than the coached do."

Team defense saved Wollaston in the top of the second inning. After Leveillee allowed a walk and double to begin the frame, shortstop Tyler Braun fielded a slow grounder and had the awareness to make the throw to the plate where Marsinelli executed the perfect plate block to get the led runner and keep the game scoreless. Braun's stellar defense was on display again as the next batter hit a grounder his direction and he was able to flip the ball to second baseman Scott Higgins who turned and threw to a stretching Campbell at first to turn the double play and snuff out Westwood.

Braun and third baseman Eric Kelly have provided Wollaston with a veteran presence on the left side of the infield. Kelly's shining moment defensively came in the fifth inning after Westwood got runners on base following an error and a hit batter. With momentum swinging Westwood's way, a high hopper was hit to Kelly, who had to jump to catch the hop before calmly collecting himself and throwing a strike to get the runner at first base.

Kelly finished with a walk at the plate.

"Our defense has come along quite well, it is really falling into place," said Reardon.

Wollaston took the early lead in a rather unconventional way on the third inning. Marsinelli led the inning off with his second single of the game and then Kelly drew a walk to put runners on first and second. Reardon called for a double steal and it worked as the Westwood catcher airmailed the ball into left field that allowed Marsinelli to score easily.

"The bats were dead, so we had to go small ball," Reardon explained. "That was a play designed to score a run."

After the tough loss, Reardon and Griffin, two longtime baseball coaches in Quincy, called the defeat a reality check. "When you don't play every inning as hard as you can, that's going to happen," said Griffin. "This game will help us build for the playoffs."

Team Notes

Wollaston defeated league-power South Boston, 12-2 on June 20. Tyler Braun and Ben Martin combined to throw a three-hitter; Braun improved to 4-0 on the mound. Mike Galloté led the offense with three hits and three RBI.

On June 19, Wollaston beat Braintree White, 10-0. Dillon Darcy pitched a two-hitter, while Ed McDonough had three RBI and Braun finished with two hits.

Jonathan Leveillee pitched a no-hitter and struck out eight as Wollaston knocked off ADSL, 10-0 on June 18. Michael Pugsley and Braun made great play to preserve the no-hitter and Leveillee added a single double and three RBI while John Marsinelli had two hits and threw out two runners attempting to steal.

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth plays tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at Adams Field.

STARTING PITCHER JONATHAN LEVEILLEE was a tough-luck loser for Wollaston on Sunday night at Adams. Leveillee threw a complete-game, but his team lost, 3-2. Back on June 18 he tossed a no-hitter against ADSL.

Under-14 Girls' Team Based Out of Quincy Hancock Strikers Win MASC Title

The Hancock Strikers Under-14 girls' team recently completed their season by winning the MASC tournament held at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst on June 4. After finishing a season where they outplayed their opponents in every game, but were unable to find the back of the net, the goals and goal scorers finally put it all together and won the tournament, squeaking by a very good Galway Rover Under-14 team in the final, 2-1.

Playing goal for most of the MASC tournament was Stoughton player Marissa "Missy" Williams. Her toughness and ability to challenge every ball in the box was invaluable.

The defense was anchored by sweeper Julia O'Donnell who refused to be beat, stopper Annie Doherty who prowls the middle of the field like a ferocious bulldog, outside back Molly Kate Cannon who has the best skills on the team and is always in the right place at the right time, and Erin McCarthy who played outside back and knocked every ball coming her way to the forward line.

The midfield consisted of a very soccer savvy Charlotte Chretien setting up the play to the outside midfielders Kyra Maskell and Alison Radzik. Maskell would take the ball down the wing and give a very strong cross while Radzik preferred the fast footwork associated with quick style give and go's. Shannan Kennedy who played goal for most of the season was found to have a new calling at outside midfield using her speed and aggressiveness to win balls defensively and continue the attack with pinpoint passing. Marissa McGue led the team from the midfield until she was called up to play forward and scored many go-ahead goals.

At forward, Hailey Houlihan's breakaway speed and quick cutbacks often netted her goals or set up goals. Alison Coleman was usually a recipient of these set-ups and lasered shots into the goal from 18-25 yards out, but could also dribble and lay out passes of her own. Emily Anglehart was very effective at crashing the goal and intimidating the opposing goalie; she also came back and received the ball from the midfielders then distributed to the forwards. Shayley Monahan came into her own and tied for scoring the most goals in the MASC tournament with three. Her checking back to the ball made her very effective and hard for the defense to cover.

Unable to make the tournament but who played well for the Strikers during the season were Stoughton's Michaela Peck whose speed and hard shot were sorely missed after she went out with a hip injury halfway through the season, Shanel Ford, who was extremely aggressive while pressuring the opposing defense and causing them to turn the ball over, was out with a knee injury, and Birica-Bikara Pierre-Louis, one of the team's smartest players, was at a family graduation. Sarah Clancy, of Quincy, a very good man-marker was also unable to attend.

The Hancock Strikers were accompanied by a bunch of positive parents and fans at the MASC tournament. Mike Kennedy and Peter Coleman coached the team.

Quincy High Softball Celebrates Season

The Quincy High softball team recently held its end-of-the-year banquet at the Quincy Adams Heights Men's Club and the QHS Softball Boosters treated guests to a fine Italian buffet.

The year-end get together was extra special as it marked an end of an era. Quincy captains Caity Lowry, Erin Chiochio and Nicole Parry have all been four-year starters and all four years the made the MIAA tournament. These special girls have also been playing together since their youth softball days.

Also, during their tenure at QHS, they have boosted as being the only QHS softball team to have never lost to North Quincy.

QHS Principal Frank Santoro addressed the crowd and told the underclassmen "they had big shoes to fill."

He also said, "the seniors who are leaving (Lowry, Chiochio, Parry and Blair Hajjar) have no doubt left their mark not only on the softball field but also in other sports as well."

Head Coach Greg Sommers presented each player with gifts commemorating the season as well as play-off jackets recognizing their 2012 MIAA Tournament appearance.

Quincy Residents Finish College Baseball Careers

Scott Warwick, a product of Quincy Youth Baseball, Quincy Babe Ruth and Quincy American Legion, completed his senior season at Fairfield University as the most dominant pitcher in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference (MAAC).

A four-year starting pitcher, Warwick led the MAAC with the lowest ERA, 2.60. He posted a 3-4 record, started 12 games, pitched 72.2 innings, struck out 57 batters and limited batters to a .243 average.

He was the MAAC Pitcher of the Week for April 30. His best pitching performance was a four-hit, shut-out of Canisius University. Warwick was selected to the All-MAAC Tournament Team.

Warwick was the first Division I player from Quincy to be selected to play in the New England Intercollegiate Baseball Association All-Star Game. The contest was played June 11 at Campanelli Field in Brockton.

Warwick pitched the eighth inning for the University Division team. He limited the College Division team to two hits, no runs and struck out a batter as his team won, 6-3.

Conley, Misho Complete UMass Careers

Tom Conley and Glenn Misho, battery mates at the University of Massachusetts (Conley a catcher, Misho a pitcher), completed their collegiate career this spring, thus marking the most talented group of collegiate baseball players in one graduating class.

(Note: this group would have also included Michael LeBel, the career home run leader for the University of Rhode Island, but his season was cut short by shoulder surgery. LeBel hopes to complete his college career next year as a red-shirt senior.)

Conley, a four-year starter behind the plate, threw out approximately 50% of base runners attempting to steal. He had a career batting average of .295.

Misho emerged as one of the top starting pitchers his junior year and averaged over 70 innings pitched the last two seasons.

Conley and Misho are both products of Quincy Youth Baseball and Quincy Babe Ruth. Conley played Quincy American Legion with Warwick, while Misho played for Morrisette American Legion.

Both and Warwick and Conley were members of Boston College High School's 2008 state championship team, while Misho played high school ball at Catholic Memorial.

Braintree Walks Past Morrisette Post 294, 6-5

By SEAN BRENNAN & TOM LAYMAN

There are games that get away that sting a little bit, and then there are games that get away that leave some swelling and maybe a little bit of bruising.

Morrisette Post 294's 6-5 loss on June 20 to Braintree Post 86 at Braintree High probably can go in the latter category.

The Morrisette clan clawed its way back with a valiant three-run inning in the top of the seventh inning to take a 5-4 lead only to see Alex Alexander hit a walkoff single to take the game right back for Braintree in the bottom of the inning. The boys with the gold "M" on their hats were quiet as they walked off the field, but it's still early in the season and according to head coach Steve Maze there is plenty of time for this wound to heal.

"We played the whole game and we fought the entire time," said Maze, whose club went to 2-3 after the loss. "You are talking about a good Braintree team that makes all the plays. There are 21 outs in a game, and they scored on the 21st out. We took them to the brink. We had a good start and we didn't finish it right."

That good start came from the bats in the top of the first inning as Post 294 got to Braintree starter Nick Radcliffe for two runs on two hits. Andrew Currie walked to leadoff the game and he advanced on a swinging bunt by Matt Davis. Jason Pekkinen singled in Currie with a ground ball up the middle, and Kevin White added a RBI single on the first pitch he saw for the 2-0 lead.

Radcliffe settled in nicely after the first inning, as Post 294 wouldn't get a run across the plate until their final at-bat.

"The biggest issue that we've had this year is that we score early and then we stop," said Maze. "We get a pitcher on the ropes and we've got to finish it."

Braintree struck for four runs in the bottom of the third as the Morrisette bats started too quiet to take control of the game. The hosts got the first two men to reach safely off of Luke Barkowski, and Colin Pratt reached base safely to load the bases with nobody out after a perfectly executed bunt found a hole down the third base line.

Steve Lee delivered with a two-run double and Braintree would plate two more to take a 4-2 lead.

Currie walked with one down in the top of the seventh and his teammates would respond with four straight hits to take the lead at 5-4. Pekkinen delivered again with a RBI single. Joe Alibrandi hit a liner over the head of the shortstop to tie the game and Kevin White went with the pitch through the right side to score Pekkinen for the 5-4 lead.

The Morrisette pitchers were off with their location all night as they walked four men and hit five batters, and that bout of wildness came back to hurt them in the final inning.

Jack Higgins hit the first two men in the bottom of the seventh to put the tying and winning run on. Higgins got Pat Delano looking and got the next batter to pop out to the catcher for the second out of the inning. Garrett Hurley hit a RBI single to cut the deficit to a run. Higgins walked the next man he faced and Alexander ended things with the walkoff winner to right.

"It's first and second with no out and they haven't even swung the bat yet," said Maze. "Walks are a killer."

Post 294 Notes

Morrisette clawed back to the .500 mark on June 21 following a 2-1 win over Stoughton, but Post 294

BOBBY KOZLOWSKI and Morrisette Post 294 are going to have to fight for every win as the calendar turns to July. Post 294 has a three-game home set this weekend beginning on Friday against Jamaica Plain. Morrisette plays Weymouth on Saturday and Stoughton on Sunday — all games start at 8 p.m.

dropped to 3-4 overall after losing to Weymouth, 7-4, on Sunday afternoon.

Mother Nature has thrown a wrench in the American Legion District 6 schedule, forcing teams to move games around. Morrisette's game versus Cohasset, which was supposed to be played on June 22 at Adams Field, was canceled due to lighting and rain in the area and Monday's game with Holbrook was moved to Tuesday for the same reasons.

What this means for Post 294 is that they are in for a very busy week — a week that will decide if Morrisette has any shot at advancing to the District 6 East/West play-in game next month.

This season, American Legion Baseball in Massachusetts has changed its state championship format. Only the top teams from District 6 East (Post 294's bracket) and District 6 West have any chance of playing for a shot at the National World Series. The two teams with the best record (as of July 9) will play a one-game playoff to decide who represents District 6 in the state finals at Brockton.

Morrisette played Holbrook at home on Tuesday and traveled to Hyde Park on Wednesday.

Following an off day today (Thursday), Post 294 plays at Adams Field (8 p.m.) on Friday against Jamaica Plain before hosting Weymouth on Saturday at 8 p.m. and Stoughton on Sunday at 8 p.m.

District 6 Standings (As of June 26)

Quincy Residents Riding In Pan-Mass Challenge

On Aug. 4 and 5, 21 Quincy residents will pedal their way into fundraising history as participants in the 33rd annual Pan-Massachusetts Challenge (PMC), the nation's pioneer charity bike-a-thon that raises more money than any other athletic fundraising event in the country.

These residents will be among 5,500 cyclists who will ride with the collective goal of raising $36 million to support adult and pediatric cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through the Jimmy Fund.

PMC riders range in age from 13 to 88. Some are seasoned tri-athletes while others are weekend warriors having trained for this event alone. Most PMC participants ride in honor of a family member or friend lost to, or being treated for cancer. All share a passion and desire to one day find a cure for the disease. The average PMC cyclist trains for three months, solicits 40 sponsors, and raises more than $6,000.

"The PMC is the gold standard of athletic fundraising events," said Billy Starr, PMC founder and executive director. "PMCs are as committed to raising money for cancer research as they are to pedaling the miles. PMC cyclists are all heart and soul."

The Red Sox Foundation and the New Balance Foundation present the PMC. To become a virtual rider, or make a financial contribution to a Quincy rider, visit www.pmc.org, or call (800) WE-CYCLE. Checks can be made payable to PMC, 77 Fourth Ave, Needham, MA 02494.

The following is the list of Quincy residents participating this year in the PMC. If you would like to support a rider, go to the above website and find their eGiftID:

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

DON'T GET FROZEN OUT

People aged 40 years and older, and women in particular, are more likely to experience "frozen shoulder," which can be caused by injury to the rotator cuff that leads to immobility. Adhesive capsulitis (the medical term) involves inflammation of the watertight sac, known as a capsule, which bathes the shoulder in nutritious fluid. When irritation caused by throwing leads to chronic inflammation, scar tissue may develop within and around the joint. Adhesive capsulitis can progress to the point where the shoulder is rendered immobile, hence the name "frozen shoulder." The key to effectively treating this condition is early intervention. Proper shoulder function and motion can be restored by addressing both joint mechanics and supporting muscles.

We recognize that adhesive capsulitis probably comes close-est to what patients are thinking of when they use the archaic generic term "frozen shoulder." At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we recommend a continuing schedule of regular chiropractic checkups. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment and let us help you lead a healthier life. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. "Active release" muscle therapy's aim is to reduce the scar-tissue "stickiness" associated with "frozen shoulder" by "breaking up" scar tissue with precisely applied tension in combination with specific patient movements.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, June 16, at approximately 1:30 a.m., Officers Steve O'Donoghue, Cheryl Potter and Dan Church were dispatched to the rear area of 230 Willard St. for a report of a breaking and entering into a motor vehicle call. The caller stated there were two males committing the crime, adding that one suspect was on a bicycle.

Officer O'Donoghue arrived on scene and drove up the ramp leading to the upper parking area/building main entrance. As he scanned the area, the Officer observed two people fleeing in the distance. As the Officer pulled into that area, he discovered a mountain bike lying near the vehicle.

Suddenly, the driver's side door of the vehicle opened up and a male sprung from the vehicle. Officer O'Donoghue got a good look at the suspect, who fled. The officer radioed a description and direction of travel of the suspect as he gave chase along a fence. The suspect had a GPS in his hand as he stopped running and flipped over the fence. Apparently, the suspect did not know that on the other side of the fence was a drop of 15 to 20 feet onto an area of shrubs and rocks.

The officer heard the male suspect yell out in pain. The suspect got up and ran towards Hall Place through the back yard, leaving behind a black GPS at the spot where he landed. Knowing there were possibly two suspects, Officer O'Donoghue radioed responding units of the fleeing suspect and then returned to the crime scene, where he spotted a second bicycle a short distance away. Officer Potter recovered the GPS and after a search it was determined that no other vehicles were broken into.

The victim of the car break was contacted and she came out of her abode to confirm that the GPS was hers but nothing else appeared to be missing. Meanwhile, additional officers searched for the suspects, knowing that it was possible that one suspect was injured and still in the area. The suspects no longer had a mode of transportation out of the area now that the bicycles were confiscated.

After an extensive search with no results, the officers pulled back their search area in the hopes that the suspects would eventually emerge from their hiding spot. About 20 minutes later, as Officer O'Donoghue drove down Hall Place near Quarry Street, he observed a male who he believed was the suspect. The male, seeing the cruiser approach him, flagged down the officer.

As the officer exited his cruiser, he immediately confirmed that this male was the suspect and placed him under arrest. The suspect complained of ankle pain and pulled up his pant leg to show a very swollen ankle. Fallon ambulance was dispatched to treat the suspect, who said that he turned his ankle stepping into a pot hole moments earlier. A search of the suspect by Officer Church uncovered a black leather case in the suspect's jeans pocket.

Officer O'Donoghue called the victim and inquired if she owned a black leather case. She said she did and it contained a digital talking tire gauge that she stored in her glove box. This item matched what the suspect had in his possession.

After a visit to the emergency room, the suspect, a 23 year-old Roxbury resident, was booked for breaking and entering into a motor vehicle in the nighttime for a felony, larceny over $250 (GPS) and receiving stolen property over $250.

The two bicycles recovered at the scene appeared to have been stolen due to the chopped up cable on one and the u-shaped bike lock still attached to the frame on the other bicycle.

The second suspect is still at large.
Nice Work!

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Be prepared to face some challenges stirred up by an envious colleague. Your best defense is the Arian's innate honesty. Stick with the truth, and you'll come out ahead.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your sensitivity to the needs of others is admirable. But be careful to avoid those who would take unfair advantage of your good nature, especially where money is involved.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Having an optimistic attitude is fine, as far as it goes. But don't be lulled into a false sense of confidence. There are still problems to deal with before you can totally relax.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel somewhat "crabby," as you fuss over plans that don't seem to work out. Maybe you're trying too hard. Ease up and let things happen without forcing them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Heed that keen Leonine instinct. It's trying to tell you to delay making a decision until you're sure there are no hidden problems that could cause trouble later on.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to reach out to those who might be nursing hurt feelings over recent events. Best advice: Ignore any pettiness that could delay the healing process.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your understanding helps a colleague get through a difficult period. Although you didn't do it for a reward, be assured that your actions will be repaid down the line.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You score some high marks in the workplace, which will count in your favor when you face the possibility of changing direction on your current career path.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your goal lies straight ahead. Stay focused on it and avoid distractions that could throw off your aim and cause potentially detrimental delays.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Keep that burst of exuberance in check and resist pushing through your new project before it's ready. In your personal life, a family member again needs help.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Paying attention to your work is important this week. But so are your relationships with those special people in your life. Make time for them as well.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Good news. Someone is about to repay a long-standing debt. But be warned. That same someone could try to charm you into lending it back unless you say no and mean it.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are sensitive to matters that involve your home and family. You would make a fine family-court judge or social worker.

S.S. Statements Online

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

If you would like to get a Social Security Statement, which provides estimates of your future benefits, it is now available online at www.socialsecurity.gov.

"Our new online Social Security Statement is simple, easy-to-use and provides people with estimates they can use to plan for their retirement," said Michael J. Astrue, Commissioner of Social Security. "The online Statement also provides estimates for disability and survivors benefits, making the Statement an important financial planning tool. People should get in the habit of checking their online Statement each year, around their birthday, for example."

In addition to helping with financial planning, the online Statement also provides workers a convenient way to determine whether their earnings are accurately posted to their Social Security records. This feature is important because Social Security benefits are based on average earnings over a person's lifetime. If the information is incorrect, the person may not receive proper benefits.

The online Statement provides you the opportunity to save or print the document for future reference, or to have handy for discussions with family members or a financial planner.

According to the American Customer Satisfaction Index, users are giving the online Statement a score of 89, making it competitive with our other top-rated, best-in-government online services, such as the Retirement Estimator and online retirement application.

To get a personalized online Statement, you must be age 18 or older and must be able to provide information about yourself that matches information already on file with Social Security. In addition, Social Security uses Experian, an external authentication service provider, for further verification. You must provide identifying information and answer security questions in order to pass this verification. Social Security will not share your Social Security number with Experian, but the identity check is an important part of this new, thorough verification process.

When your identity is verified, you can create a "My Social Security" account with a unique user name and password to access your online Statement. In addition, your online Statement includes links to information about other online Social Security services, such as applications for retirement, disability, and Medicare.

For more information about the new online Statement, visit www.socialsecurity.gov/mystatement.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. P.O.D.
